PREFACE

TO

THE SIXTH EDITION.

The present Edition has been prepared on the same lines as previous Editions. The alterations in the law have been pointed out, and such judicial rulings and orders as bear on the new Code have alone been reproduced under the sections to which they relate, but it is necessary further to explain in all of these rulings and orders, the references to various sections of the repealed Codes have been changed to the corresponding sections of the new Code. An endeavour has also been made to make the law more readily intelligible by referring generally, in the notes to each section, to their sections of the Code or other laws bearing on the same subject.

The comparative statement published by the Legislative Department showing the sections of the new Code corresponding to those of the repealed Code of 1872 and its amending Act of 1874 has also been reproduced, while as a cross reference, under each section of the new Code, the law which it professes to re-enact in whole or in a modified form is entered in brackets. It has been thought that such reference to the High Court Procedure Act, 1875, or the Presidency Magistrates' Act, 1877, would unnecessarily encumber this work, and therefore when a section of this Code re-enacts either wholly or in part one of the Code of 1872 or its amending Act of 1874, these have alone been noted.

Where judgments or orders quoted have been published, reference has been made to the Report or Government Gazette : but in many instances unpublished cases and orders have been entered in the notes. These have been obtained from official sources, and may be depended upon as strictly accurate.

The judgments of the CALCUTTA HIGH COURT have been taken from Sutherland's Weekly Reporter : the Bengal Law Reports : the Indian Law Reports and the Calcutta Law Reports published by Messrs. Brown and Co. A few cases have also been taken from the earlier reports by Mr. W. Marshall and from the Revenue, Civil and Criminal Reporter published by Messrs. Wyman and Co. The cases decided and orders passed by the MADRAS HIGH COURT have been obtained from the reports of Mr. Whitley Stokes, Mr. O'Sullivan, and Mr. J. M. C. Mills ; also from the Madras Jurist, the Indian Law Reports and a publication by Mr. T. Weir, Registrar of that Court ; those by the BOMBAY HIGH COURT from reports by Mr. J. Dunbar, Mr. R. T. Reid, Mr. C. F. Farran and Mr. C. W. L. Jackson as well as from the Indian Law Reports ; those of the late AGRA SUDDER COURT from reports published under authority of that Court (quoted as Agra), those of the AGRA HIGH COURT from the reports of Moonshee Hanooman Pershad and Lalla Lalita Pershad (quoted as N. W. P.), and after removal of that Court to ALLAHABAD from reports by Mr. Tarrant (quoted as Allahabad), the Indian Law Reports, and the Legal Remembrancer edited by Mr. C. P. Hill.

The cases decided by the Punjab Chief Court have been obtained from official reports designated the Punjab Record.

Lastly the orders passed by the several Courts have been quoted from the publications of Mr. C. A. Wilkins, Registrar, Calcutta High Court: Mr. T. Weir, Registrar, Madras High Court: a book published by the authority of the Bombay High Court; and a similar publication by Mr. Smyth, of the Punjab Chief Court.

The appendix contains nearly all the Acts of the Legislature which are intimately connected with the Code of Criminal Procedure, and these have been annotated with references to decided cases and orders likely to be useful in interpreting them.

For the Indices I am much indebted to my friend Mr. W. Gordon Leith of the Calcutta Bar.

Power to alter Divisions and Districts.

The Sessions Divisions and Districts existing when this Code comes into force shall be Sessions Divisions and Districts respectively, unless and until they are so altered.

Existing Division and Districts maintained till altered.

Every Presidency-town shall, for the purposes of this Code, be deemed to be a District.

Presidency-towns to be deemed Districts.

8. The Local Government may divide any District outside the Presidency-towns into Sub-divisions, or make any portion of any such District a Sub-division, and may alter the limits of any Sub-division.

Power to divide Districts into Sub-divisions.

All existing Sub-divisions which are now usually put under the charge of a Magistrate shall be deemed to have been made under this Code.

Existing Sub-divisions maintained.

A Cantonment Magistrate is under Act III of 1880 S. 3 to be deemed a Magistrate in charge of a division (now subdivision) of a District within the meaning and for the purposes of this Code.

All Courts of Session existing when this Code comes into force shall be deemed to have been established under this Act.

(Ss. 15, 18.)

The officers mentioned in para. 2 are consequently Courts of Session to the extent of their respective powers and are included within that term when used in this Code.

ment, or the District Magistrate subject to the control of the Local Government, may, from time to time, define local areas within which such persons may exercise all or any of the powers with which they may respectively be invested under this Code.

Except as otherwise provided by such definition, the jurisdiction and powers of such persons shall extend throughout such District.

(Ss. 37, 49.)

This section which takes the place of S. 49 of the Code of 1872 extends the powers of a District Magistrate. Under S. 49 a District Magistrate could authorise any Magistrate subordinate to him to entertain complaints arising within certain local limits only "under general or special orders of the Local Government." A District Magistrate is now competent to exercise this power "subject to the control of the Local Government" and unless restricted by express orders would be able to act in this respect.

All Magistrates of Districts have been empowered to act under S. 12 in the following Provinces: BENGAL (Gaz. 1873, p. 67): MADRAS (Gaz. 1873, p. 717): NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES (Gaz. 1873, p. 3): PUNJAB (Gaz. 1873, p. 75): BRITISH BURMAH (Gaz. 1873, p. 5.)

The following Circular (No. 23, dated 23rd May 1871) issued by the Government of Bengal under S. 49 of the Code of 1872 is important in connection with S. 12 of this Code.

The Lieutenant-Governor, considering that it is desirable that the Magistrates of Districts should have the fullest possible authority and responsibility in regard to the administration of the whole of the districts, is of opinion that the authority of Government to invest particular officers with general powers should not ordinarily be exercised, and should be confined to special cases and special circumstances. Ordinarily he would leave the delegation to any Magistrates subordinate to the Magistrates of the District (whether they are in charge of Sub-Divisions or not) of the power to entertain cases to the Magistrate of the District himself, who will act under the authority conferred on him by S. 12 of the present Code.

It is to be understood that the former orders authorizing Magistrates of Districts to delegate the power of hearing complaints in certain circumstances, are not by implication to limit that power to those circumstances; the fullest authority is now given to Magistrates of Districts to exercise their discretion in empowering any Magistrate or Subordinate Magistrate to hear all cases or any classes of cases or any particular case, according to his jurisdiction and fitness.

At the same time it must be particularly understood that these orders are not intended to encourage Magistrates of Districts to divest themselves of criminal functions; on the contrary, it is expected that they will exercise the utmost discretion in regard to the power entrusted to the Magistrates subordinate to them, whether at head-quarters or in Subdivisions; and since they have been so much relieved by the transfer of rent suits, the Lieutenant-Governor considers that they should them-

- Ch. II. selves take a large share of the criminal business. With this latter view, the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to cancel the orders under which Joint Magistrates are usually placed in charge of a head-quarter's subdivision. He thinks that the Magistrate of the District should ordinarily himself undertake this charge when he is at or near head-quarters, and that it should only be delegated to a subordinate when he is absent in other parts of the district. Exceptions may only be made in the case of the 24-Pergunnahs and any other district in which the general duties of the Magistrate and Collector are of a very peculiar character.

The instructions contained in the last paragraph will, however, not prevent the Magistrate from empowering any of his subordinates in the head-quarter portion of the district to hear petitions in any cases, or classes of cases, or coming from any locality. This distribution of the work will require great judgment and discrimination. Things should be so arranged that neither on the one hand should the Magistrate lose sight of cases which he ought to see or regulate, nor on the other should parties be unnecessarily driven about from one Magistrate to another before being heard. The great thing is, that the people should not be harassed more than can in any way be avoided. The Lieutenant-Governor fears, from what he has heard, that at present they are at some places far too much handed about from one Court to another, and he trusts that this will not be the case in future. It must be remembered that only one officer at one place can have the power to make over a petition to any other Magistrate, viz., the Magistrate of the District at head-quarters, and the Subdivisional Magistrate in his Subdivision, so that it cannot legally be that the Magistrate should hand over to the Joint Magistrate and the Joint Magistrate to the Deputy. It will generally be better that Magistrates whom it is desired to employ in that capacity, and whose discretion can be trusted, should be empowered to hear certain classes of cases arising within certain local limits, the Magistrate of the District always keeping a watch over their proceedings besides retaining certain criminal works himself.

Ordinarily it will of course be desirable that Magistrates in charge of Subdivisions should have a general authority to hear complaints and receive cases in their Subdivision. The Magistrate of the District should exercise his own discretion in empowering any other Magistrate in a Subdivision to hear any cases or classes of cases, subject to the power of withdrawing any case which is possessed by the Magistrate of the Subdivision.

It should be understood, however, that even in the case of Subdivisional Magistrates, it is not to be taken as a matter of course that they are to be empowered to hear all cases without reserve. Much must depend on the character of the Magistrate and of the locality, and the Magistrate of the District should limit the power to hear any classes of cases which he does not think it desirable wholly to entrust to the Subdivisional Magistrate. He must always remember that his own responsibility is as complete in the Subdivisions as in any other portion of the district.

The Lieutenant-Governor specially desires Subdivisional Officers to keep the Magistrate of the District promptly informed of any emergent case which they may have taken up under S. 68 (S. 142 of the present Code) or of any peculiar difficult or important case which may come before them in the exercise of the powers entrusted to them, so that the Magistrate of the District may have an early opportunity of advising them and of withdrawing the case if necessary. They should keep him well informed of any action they may take regarding the removal of nuisances and such like matters.

Ch. II.

Ss. 12, 13.

It must be very fully understood that Subdivisional Magistrates are most entirely under the control of the Magistrate of the District, and no attempt to escape entire and honest subordination will be tolerated. The Lieutenant-Governor hopes that he will have no occasion to interfere for the thorough and complete maintenance of this principle.

Magistrates of District, should lose no time in supplying by their own order, under S. 66B (S. 49 of the present Code), the want of jurisdiction to hear cases which may be occasioned by the withdrawal of powers heretofore conferred by Government, and they are directed to submit to the Commissioners of Divisions a report showing what arrangements they have made for the distribution of the criminal work of the whole district. They are competent to alter this distribution from time to time, and to withdraw any of the powers which they have given to any Magistrate, but should keep the Commissioner generally informed of the nature of the arrangements which they make. And Commissioners will be so good as to submit to Government a report showing the arrangements made in the several districts of their Divisions. They should give Magistrates the benefit of their advice with reference both to their own experience and to what they may see of the working of different practices in the various districts, and they should inform Government of their opinion of the arrangements made, and bring to notice anything that seems to them faulty or objectionable, and anything that seems specially worthy of imitation in other districts.

13. The Local Government may place any under this section to the District Magistrate.

(S. 40.)

The ordinary powers of a Subdivisional Magistrate are set forth in Sch. III, No. 4. It would seem that under the terms of section 12 the jurisdiction and powers of such Magistrates would extend throughout the District, though in the exercise of their powers as Subdivisional Magistrates they might be restricted to the limits of the particular Subdivision.

A Cantonment Magistrate is under Act III of 1880 section 3 to be deemed a Magistrate in charge of a Division (now a Subdivision) of a District within the meaning and for the purposes of this Code.

person all or any of the powers conferred or conferrible by or under this Code on a Magistrate of the first, second or third class, in respect to particular cases or to a particular class or particular classes of cases, or in regard to cases generally, in any local area outside the Presidency-towns.

Such Magistrates shall be called Special Magistrates.

With the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, the Local Government may delegate, with such limitations as it thinks fit, to any officer under its control the power conferred by the first paragraph of this section.

No powers shall be conferred under this section on any Police-officer below the grade of Assistant District Superintendent, and no powers shall be so conferred except so far as may be necessary for preserving the peace, preventing crime and detecting, apprehending and detaining offenders in order to their being brought before a Magistrate, and for the performance by the officer of any other duties imposed upon him by any law for the time being in force.

(S. 42.)

15. The Local Government may direct any two orBenches of Magistrates.

more Magistrates in any place outside the Presidency-towns to sit together as a Bench, and may by order invest such Bench with any of the powers conferred or conferrible by or under this Code on a Magistrate of the first, second or third class, and direct it to exercise such powers in such cases, or such classes of cases only, and within such local limits, as the Local Government thinks fit.

Except as otherwise provided by any order under this section, every such Bench shall have the powers conferred by this Code on a Magistrate of the highest class to which any one of its members who is present taking part in the proceedings as a member of the Bench belongs, and as far as practicable shall, for the purposes of this Code, be deemed to be a Magistrate of such class.

Two or more Special Magistrates of the Town of Benares may sit together as a Bench for the trial of cases within the municipal limits of that Town.—N. W. P. Gaz., 1874, p. 1175.

The following orders have been issued by the Government of Bengal with regard to Benches of Magistrates in the following Districts,—Dinagapore, Malda, Rungpore, Chittagong, Tipperah, Dacca, Backergunj, Mymensingh, Shahabad, Sarun, Tirhoot, Kamroop :

1. Under the direction of the Magistrate of the District, any two or more of the Honorary Magistrates in any District may, in that District, sit as a Bench in company with the Magistrate of the District, or the Subdivisional Magistrate, or any salaried Magistrate subordinate to the Magistrate of the District exercising not less than second class powers, whom the Magistrate of the District may depute for that purpose ; and any Bench so constituted is vested with first class powers in respect of offences cognizable by Magistrates of the first class, and with powers of summary trial under S. 260 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

2. Under the special order of the Magistrate of the District, any two Magistrates, honorary or salaried, of whom one is vested with not less than second class powers, may form a Bench with first class powers, for the trial of any particular case or class of cases, specially referred to them by the Magistrate of the District. Such Bench may also exercise summary powers under S. 260 unless the order of reference is for trial in regular form.

3. Under the direction of the Magistrate of the District, any one of the Honorary Magistrates of a District may sit with any salaried Subordinate Magistrate to form a Bench, and the Bench shall, when so constituted, exercise second class powers in respect of offences cognizable by Magistrates of that class and powers of summary trial under S. 261 of the Criminal Procedure Code, unless any Member of the Bench have first class powers, in which case the Bench may also exercise those powers. If the Magistrate of the first class has summary powers under S. 260, the Bench may exercise those powers.

4. Subject to the general orders of the Magistrate of the District, any two or more Honorary Magistrates may, in their respective towns or municipalities, sit together as a Bench for the disposal of offences under Municipal or Towns Acts, and the conservancy clauses of any Police Act, without the assistance of any salaried Magistrate : and such Bench shall exercise third class powers, and powers of summary trial under S. 261 in respect of all such cases.—Cal. Gaz., 1873, pp. 17, 662.

The terms of section 15 enable the Local Government to empower Benches of Magistrates to deal with Miscellaneous cases not being trials which they could not do under section 50 of the Code of 1872. See In the matter of Suffurooddeen, 2 Cal. L. R., 263 ; (S. C.) I. L. R. 3 Cal., 754. It is important that the constitution of the Court should not be changed in the course of a trial. Thus when a Bench of Magistrates invested with 1st class powers commenced the trial of an offence cognizable only by a Magistrate of the 1st class, and at the adjourned trial

- Ch. II. only one of the Magistrates was present and he personally was invested only, with inferior powers it was held that he could not proceed with the trial. Baroda Prosunno Chuckerbutty, 2 Cal. L. R., 348.
- S. 16.

16. The Local Government may, or, subject to the control of the Local Government, the District Magistrate may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Code for the guidance of Magistrates' Benches in any District respecting the following subjects :—

- (a)* the classes of cases to be tried ;
(b) the times and places of sitting ;
(c) the constitution of the Bench for conducting trials ;
(d) the mode of settling differences of opinion which may arise between the Magistrates in session.

(Ss. 52, 53.)

The following draft rules and instructions for the guidance of Benches of Magistrates, to be established after issue of the Circular, have been issued by the Government of Bengal, Cir. 16, March 25, 1880, power being given to the District Magistrate to make additional rules if approved by the Commissioner.

1. The Bench shall try such cases as its powers enable it to try, and it is authorized to try, arising within the local limits following, or such particular cases as are made over to it by the Magistrate of the district or any Magistrate empowered to make over cases. It can only entertain of its own motion such complaints as the Magistrate of the district may authorize it to entertain both in respect of local limit and classes of cases.

[Here enter Local Limits.]

The Magistrate of the district may nominate any single member or members of a Bench, or any salaried Magistrate, to receive complaints of cases triable by the Bench, and which the Magistrates nominated are themselves empowered to try or commit for trial. In the event of the complaint not being received by the Bench itself, the District or Sub-divisional Magistrate may transfer the case to the Bench, and issue the necessary processes for bringing the accused and the witnesses before the Bench at its regular sittings.

2. The Bench shall sit at the place and on the dates mentioned below. The Honorary Magistrates will sit in the rotation arranged by the Magistrate of the district or division, but any Magistrate not named may sit, provided he is not personally interested in the case before the Bench.

3. The Bench may hold one or more adjourned sittings if this be found necessary for the disposal of business or of part-heard cases ; but it shall be open to the Bench at the close of its regular sitting either to apply to the District or Sub-divisional Magistrate to transfer from their file any unheard cases, or to postpone them to next Bench day, as may seem most convenient. Ch. II. Ss. 16, 17.

4. The Chairman of the Bench for the time being shall be the Magistrate of highest powers present at a sitting. Where two or more are of equal powers, the Bench may elect its own Chairman, provided always that it shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate of the District to appoint the Chairman for each time of sitting, or generally.

5. The Chairman shall maintain order, conduct the proceedings of the Court, and exercise all the functions in that behalf usually exercised by a Magistrate when sitting alone. It shall be open to any member of the Bench to put any question to the witnesses, either direct or through the Chairman as the latter may deem advisable, and to suggest any matter for the Chairman's consideration.

6. Each member of the Bench shall have a voice in deciding as to the admissibility of evidence and in the finding and sentence. In a Bench of three or other uneven number of members the opinion of the majority shall prevail. When the numbers are even, the Chairman shall have a casting vote.

7. In the trial of ordinary cases the Chairman shall generally record the evidence and judgment, but such duty may, with his consent, be performed by any one of his colleagues.

In the trial of summary cases, where the Bench has been invested with summary powers, the necessary record shall be prepared by the Chairman or one of his colleagues, or by means of the Clerk of the Court, but in every case the record must be signed by each member of the Bench who is present.

8. Any part-heard case postponed to a further sitting of the Bench may be proceeded with if any member of the Bench has been present at the previous hearing in the case, but subject to the provisions of section 350 of the Code.

9. The Bench may refer any point of law for the opinion of the Magistrate of the district or division, or of any first-class Magistrate appointed by the Magistrate of the district for that purpose, and the Magistrate may certify his opinion thereon.

10. When any person is convicted in an appealable case by the casting vote of the Chairman, the Chairman shall then and there ask him if he wishes to appeal, and if he desires to do so, shall forthwith record his appeal in brief, and forward the case to the Magistrate, intimating to the person convicted that he may file any grounds of appeal he pleases.

A complicated and somewhat difficult case should not be referred by the District Magistrate to a Bench. Bholanath Sen, I. L. R., 2 Cal., 23.

17. All Magistrates appointed under sections 12, 13 and 14, and all Benches constituted under section 15, shall be subordinate to the District Magistrate, and he may, from time to time, make rules con-

Subordination of Magistrates and Benches to District Magistrate ;

Ch. II. sistent with this Code as to the distribution of business Ss. 17, 18. among such Magistrates and Benches; and every Magistrate (other than a Sub-divisional Magistrate) and every Bench exercising powers in a Subdivision shall be subordinate to the Subdivisional Magistrate, subject, however, to the general control of the District Magistrate.

All Assistant Sessions Judges shall be subordinate to the Sessions Judge in whose Court they exercise jurisdiction, and he may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Code as to the distribution of business among such Assistant Sessions Judges.

Neither the District Magistrate nor the Magistrates or Benches appointed or constituted under sections 12, 13, 14 and 15 shall be subordinate to the Sessions Judge, except to the extent and in the manner hereinafter expressly provided.

(Ss. 37, 41.)

The subordination of Magistrates to the Sessions Judge would thus be restricted to cases regularly coming before him on appeal (section 408) or committed for trial in his Court (section 193); to matters taken up by him under section 435 in order to satisfy himself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order, or the regularity of any proceedings; and to cases in which a person ordered by a Magistrate to give security for more than one year does not give it. (section 123.)

District Magistrates should comply with all requisitions for records, returns, and information made by Sessions Judges with regard to any case appealable to them or referable by them to the High Court whether decided by the District Magistrate or by other Magisterial officers of the District, or made by Sessions Judges under orders of the High Court in the exercise of their duty and superintendence over the Subordinate Courts. They should also render any explanation which Sessions Judges may require from them and obtain and submit any explanation which Sessions Judges may require from Subordinate Magistrates in order to assist the appellate Courts in respect of these classes of cases above referred to. Ss. 18—21.

Any two or more of such persons may (subject to the rules made by the Chief Magistrate under the power hereinafter conferred) sit together as a Bench.

(Act IV, 1877, Ss. 8, 9.)

19. Every Presidency Magistrate shall exercise

Local limits of their jurisdiction. jurisdiction in all places within the Presidency-town for which he is appointed and within the limits of the port of such town and of any navigable river or channel leading thereto, as such limits are defined under the law for the time being in force for the regulation of ports and port-dues.

(Act IV, 1877, S. 8, para 5.)

20. Every Presidency Magistrate in the town of Bombay Court of Petty Sessions.

Bombay shall exercise all jurisdiction which, under any law in force immediately before the first day of April, 1877, was exercised in that town by the Court of Petty Sessions :

E.—Justices of the Peace.

22. The Governor General in Council, so far as Justices of the Peace regards the whole or any part of dency-towns,

and every Local Government, so far as regards the territories subject to its administration (other than the towns aforesaid),

may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint such European British subjects as he or it thinks fit to be Justices of the Peace within and for the territories mentioned in such notification.

(Act II, 1869, S. 3.)

The jurisdiction of such Justices of the Peace would be confined to cases against European British subjects, but it should be observed, first, that only European British subjects can be so appointed Justices of the Peace, and, next, that unless the officer so appointed is also a Magistrate of the first class, a Sessions Judge, or an Assistant Sessions Judge specially empowered by the Local Government and of at least three years' service in that office, he is not competent to inquire into or try any charge against such a person. (Sections 443, 444.)

23. The Governor General in Council or the Justices of the Peace Local Government, so far as refor the Presidency-towns. gards the town of Calcutta, and the Local Government, so far as regards the towns of Madras and Bombay,

may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint to be Justices of the Peace within the limits of the town mentioned in such notification any persons resident within British India and not being the subjects of any foreign State whom such Governor General in Council or Local Government (as the case may be) thinks fit.

(Act II 1869, S. 4.)

The jurisdiction of a Justice of the Peace so appointed would be of a different nature from that of one appointed under section 22.
 His jurisdiction would be limited to Presidency Towns; his duties and powers are prescribed by various local Acts.

24. Every person now acting as a Justice of the Peace within and for any part of British India other than the said towns; under any commission issued by a High Court, shall be deemed to have been appointed under section 22 by the Governor General in Council to act as a Justice of the Peace for the whole of British India other than the said towns.

25. In virtue of their respective offices, the Governor General, the Ordinary Members of the Council of the Governor General, the Judges of the High Courts and the Recorder of Rangoon are Justices of the Peace within and for the whole of British India, and the Presidency Magistrates are Justices of the Peace within and for the towns of which they are respectively Magistrates.

CHAPTER III.

POWERS OF COURTS.

A.—Description of Offences cognizable by each Court.

28. Subject to the other provisions of this Code, any offence under the Indian Penal Code may be tried by the High Court or Court of Session or by any other Court by which such offence is shown in the eighth column of the second schedule to be triable.
 (S. 8.)

“Subject to the other provisions of the Code.”—Thus, for instance, except in certain cases of contempt of Court committed in its view or presence (section 480) or of certain offences such as perjury, forgery or offences against public justice of various kinds committed in or in relation to any proceeding in such Court (section 477), no Court of Session can take cognizance of any offence as a Court of original jurisdiction unless upon commitment by a competent Court or Magistrate (section 194) or on a reference made by a District Magistrate in exercise of special powers under sections 30, 34, or by an Assistant Sessions Judge. (Section 380).

So also no Court can take cognizance of certain offences committed in contempt of the authority of a public servant or committed in or in relation to any proceeding in any Court or committed by a party to a proceeding in any Court with respect to a document given in evidence therein without special sanction or complaint of that or a superior Court (section 195); or of any offence against the State without the authority or on complaint of Government (section 196); or of an offence committed by a Judge or public servant not removable from office without sanction of Government unless special sanction be previously accorded (section 197); or of an offence under Chapter XIX (Breach of Contract) or Chapter XXI (Defamation) or sections 493—496 (relating to marriage) of the Penal Code except on complaint of an aggrieved person (section 198); or of an offence under section 497 (adultery) or section 498 (enticing away of a married woman) of the Penal Code without complaint of the husband of the woman or her temporary guardian. The jurisdiction of a Magistrate would further depend upon the due observance of the conditions requisite for initiation of the proceedings (sections 191, 192).

A High Court may take cognizance of any offence upon a commitment made to it. Such commitment in a Presidency Town may be made by any Presidency Magistrate, in which case the accused may be a European British subject, a native of British India or of any other country, and the offence may be one triable exclusively by a High Court, or one which in the opinion of the Magistrate ought to be tried by such Court. But as regards cases arising in British India outside Presidency Town, the committing Magistrate must himself be a European British subject, a Justice of the Peace and a Magistrate of the first class, (section 443), the offence charged must be one punishable with death or with transportation for life (section 467), and the accused must be either a European British subject or one charged jointly with a European British subject who has been so committed for trial. (Section 452). Similar cases but for less heinous offences should be committed by such Magistrates to Sessions Judges who must also be European British subjects (section 444). If the Sessions Judge considers that the maximum sentence which he can pass, viz., imprisonment for one year or fine or both, is not adequate for the offence committed he is required to record his opinion to that effect, stay the trial, and transfer the case to the High Court. (Section 449). Ch. III.

Ss. 28—30.

29. Any offence under any other law, when any Court is mentioned in this behalf in such law, be tried by such Court.

When no Court is so mentioned, it may be tried by the High Court or by any Court constituted under this Code: Provided that—

(a) no Magistrate of the first class shall try any such offence which is punishable with imprisonment for a term which may exceed seven years;

(b) no Magistrate of the second class shall try any such offence which is punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years; and

(c) no Magistrate of the third class shall try any such offence which is punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year.

(S. 8, para. 1.)

An offence punishable under a local or special law with fine only would be triable by the High Court or any Court constituted under this Code.

An offence under the Indian Railway Act (IV of 1879) can be tried only by a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate whose powers are not less than those of the second class. Act IV of 1879, S. 50.

30. In the territories respectively administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces, British Burma, Coorg, and Assam, and in those parts of the other Provinces in which there are Deputy Com-

Ch. III. missioners or Assistant Commissioners, the Local Government may, notwithstanding anything contained in Ss. 30, 31. section 29, invest the District Magistrate with power to try as a Magistrate all offences not punishable with

(S. 36.)

Any District Magistrate so empowered can pass sentence of imprisonment not exceeding seven years including such solitary confinement as is authorized by law, or of fine, or of whipping, or of any combination of these punishments authorized by law, provided that every sentence of imprisonment exceeding three years shall be subject to the confirmation of the Sessions Court. Section 34. Section 380 provides for confirmation of such orders and section 408 for appeals.

B.—Sentences which may be passed by Courts of various Classes:

Sentences which High Courts and Sessions
 Judges may pass.

31. A High Court may pass any sentence authorized by law.

A Sessions Judge, Additional Sessions Judge or Joint Sessions Judge may pass any sentence authorized by law; but any sentence of death passed by any such Judge shall be subject to confirmation by the High Court.

An Assistant Sessions Judge may pass any sentence authorized by law, except a sentence of death or of transportation for a term exceeding seven years or of imprisonment for a term exceeding seven years; but any sentence of imprisonment for a term exceeding three years passed by an Assistant Sessions Judge shall be subject to confirmation by the Sessions Judge.

(Ss. 15, 17, 18.)

The powers exercised by an Assistant Sessions Judge are, generally, the same as those which may be conferred under section 30 on District Magistrates in certain specified parts of British India, except in the trial of European British subjects which a specially empowered District Magistrate can hold only as a Magistrate and Justice of the Peace if he is himself a European British subject: the sentence of imprisonment which the latter officer can pass in such a case cannot exceed three months or fine of one thousand Rupees or both (section 446); on the other hand, if the Assistant Sessions Judge is qualified by three years' service in that office and by being himself a European British subject (section 444), he can exercise the full powers of a Court of Session and pass sentence of imprisonment not exceeding one year or fine (without limit) or both (section 449). There are the same rules for confirmation of sentence (section 380), and for appeals (section 408). The form of trial would be different. Cases tried by a specially empowered District Magistrate would be tried under Chapter XXI as trials by Magistrates in warrant cases, whereas, the Assistant Sessions Judge being a Court of Session, trials held by him would be either by Jury or with the assistance of Assessors according to the practice in force.

Ch. III.

S. 32.

32. The Courts of Magistrates may pass the following sentences, namely :—

Sentences which Magistrates may pass.

(a) Courts of Presidency Magistrates and of Magistrates of the first class :

Imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, including such solitary confinement as is authorized by law ;

Fine not exceeding one thousand rupees ;

Whipping.

(b) Courts of Magistrates of the second class :

Imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, including such solitary confinement as is authorized by law ;

Fine not exceeding two hundred rupees ;

Whipping.

(c) Courts of Magistrates of the third class.

Imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month ;

Fine not exceeding fifty rupees.

The Court of any Magistrate may pass any lawful sentence, combining any of the sentences which it is authorized by law to pass.

No Court of any Magistrate of the second class shall pass a sentence of whipping unless he is specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government.

The last para. of this section is important as it contains an amendment of S. 20, the corresponding section, of the Code of 1872.

"Imprisonment" means imprisonment of either description (i. e., rigorous or simple) as defined in the Indian Penal Code.—Act I, 1868, S. 2, cl. 18.

The limit of sentence is generally prescribed by the law defining the offence, and it is within such limits that the powers of individual

Ch. III. Magistrates should be exercised subject to jurisdiction to try the particular offence which is set forth in Sch. II, col. 8 of this Code, and to special local jurisdiction (see Chapter XV). But a special law (Act VI, 1864) declares what offences are alone punishable with whipping as the sole or additional punishment.

Ss. 32, 33.

Ss. 73, 74, Penal Code, thus provide for sentences of solitary confinement:—

Whenever any person is convicted of an offence for which under this Code the Court has power to sentence him to rigorous imprisonment, the Court may, by its sentence, order that the offender shall be kept in solitary confinement for any portion or portions of the imprisonment to which he is sentenced, not exceeding three months in the whole, according to the following scale, that is to say—

A time not exceeding one month if the term of imprisonment shall not exceed six months.

A time not exceeding two months if the term of imprisonment shall exceed six months and be less than a year.

A time not exceeding three months if the term of imprisonment shall exceed one year.—S. 73.

In executing a sentence of solitary confinement, such confinement shall in no case exceed fourteen days at a time, with intervals between the periods of solitary confinement of not less duration than such periods; and when the imprisonment awarded shall exceed three months, the solitary confinement shall not exceed seven days in any one month of the whole imprisonment awarded, with intervals between the periods of solitary confinement of not less duration than such periods.—S. 74.

S. 33 post, provides for the award of imprisonment in default of payment of fine.

Under certain circumstances the powers of Magistrates in passing sentence are enhanced. See S. 35, post.

33. The Court of any Magistrate may award such term of imprisonment in default of payment of fine as is authorized by law in case of such default: Provided that the term is not in excess of the Magistrate's powers under this Code:

Power of Magistrates to sentence to imprisonment in default of fine.

Provided also that in no case decided by a Magistrate where imprisonment has been awarded as part of the substantive sentence shall the period of imprisonment awarded in default of payment of the fine exceed one-fourth of the period of imprisonment which such Magistrate is competent to inflict as punishment for the offence otherwise than as imprisonment in default of payment of the fine.

The imprisonment awarded under this section may be in addition to a substantive sentence of imprisonment for the maximum term awardable by the Magistrate under section 32.

(S. 20, Expl. 309.)

Ch. III.

S. 33.

S. 64, Indian Penal Code, declares that, in default of payment of fine, it shall be competent to the Court to direct that an offender shall suffer imprisonment for a term, which shall be in excess of any other imprisonment to which he may have been sentenced, or to which he may be liable under a commutation of a sentence; and S 65 declares that, if the offence be punishable with imprisonment as well as fine, such imprisonment, "in default of payment of fine, shall not exceed one-fourth of the term of imprisonment which is the maximum fixed for the offence."

Thus in a case of theft (S. 379, Penal Code), the powers of a Magistrate of the first class would be imprisonment for two years and fine of 1,000 rupees, or, in default of payment, imprisonment for six months, i. e., one-fourth of two years, the maximum punishment that he could inflict. In cases regarding offences punishable with imprisonment as well as fine, Magistrate of the second class cannot, in default of payment of fine, pass a greater sentence of imprisonment than six weeks, i. e., one-fourth of six months—Phoolman Tewaree, 6. W. R., 51. Similarly, one week (i. e., one-fourth of one month) would be the maximum sentence in such cases for a Magistrate of the third class.

But if the convict be a European British subject, a Magistrate of the first class, a Justice of the Peace and himself a European British subject, can only pass a sentence not exceeding three months' imprisonment, or fine up to 1,000 rupees, or both. The imprisonment awarded on default of payment of fine cannot exceed one-fourth of three months.

Sections 64, 65 of the Indian Penal Code as originally enacted applied only to sentences passed for offences committed under the Indian Penal Code, but it has further been enacted by Act I, 1868 (General Clauses Act) section 5, passed on 3rd June 1868, that these sections "shall apply to all fines imposed under the authority of any Act hereafter passed unless such Act shall contain an express provision to the contrary," and this has been reproduced in Act VIII, 1882, S. 1. An earlier Act (V. of 1867) of the Bengal Council contains a similar provision for all Acts of that Council.

It should be noted that the last para. of section 309 of the Code of 1872 has not been reproduced. That para. declared that, "Where a person is sentenced to fine only, the Magistrate may award such term of imprisonment in default of payment of fine as is allowed by law, provided the amount does not exceed the Magistrate's powers under this Act." The present Code by omitting this seems to have made no alteration in the law. The powers of Criminal Courts would in the first instance be regulated by sections 64, 65 of the Penal Code or any special law on the subject, but those of Magistrates would next be restricted by the powers of each Magistrate under section 32 of this Code, that is to say, supposing that under the law first quoted a sentence of imprisonment for a certain term could be passed in default of payment of fine, a Magistrate's sentence would be limited by the term of imprisonment which as a substantive sentence he could pass under section 32. If, however, the sentence of fine is a sentence in addition to imprisonment, then the Magistrate's powers in awarding imprisonment in default of payment of fine are limited to one-fourth of his ordinary powers. There is no such restriction imposed where the sentence is one of fine only, and therefore it would seem that the period of imprisonment in such a case depends upon the terms of sections 64, 65 of the

- Ch. III. Indian Penal Code and the Magistrate's general powers under section 32 of this Code. See Darba and others, I. L. R. 1 All. 461 : Mahomed Saib, I. L. R., 1 Mad., 277.

S. 34. A sentence of fine cannot fix a term within which the fine shall be paid, such being contrary to S. 68 and the subsequent sections of the Penal Code.—Cal. H. Ct., 59 and 326, 1862.

The Government of Bengal (Circular 1060T, 1864) has enjoined especial caution on all Magistrates and Sub-Divisional Officers, that, in all cases in which a person is sentenced to imprisonment in default of payment of fine, if the fine be paid, immediate information thereof be given to the Officer in charge of the Jail, so that the prisoner be not kept in illegal confinement.

In a case in which the convict had undergone a sentence of imprisonment on default of payment of fine, notwithstanding that the fine had been paid, the Bombay High Court held that it had no power to order the fine to be refunded, but directed application to be made to Government.—Natha Mula, 4 Bomb., 37, Crown Cases.

If the offence be punishable with fine only, the term of imprisonment in default of payment of the fine cannot exceed two months when the fine does not exceed fifty rupees ; four months, when the fine does not exceed one hundred rupees ; six months in any other case.—S. 67, Penal Code ; and it can only be simple. Act VIII, 1882, S. 3.

The imprisonment in default of payment of a fine may be of any description to which the offender might have been sentenced for the offence.—S. 66, but for offences punishable with fine only, it shall be only simple, S. 67 as modified by Act VIII, 1882, S. 3. It shall terminate either on payment or levy by process of law.—S. 68. Or, if only a portion be paid or realised, the imprisonment shall be reduced proportionately, and terminate accordingly.—S. 69.

In Madras, the High Court holds the Chief Ministerial Officer of a Court personally responsible for giving immediate intimation to the Jail of the payment of a fine imposed on a convict under sentence of imprisonment in default of payment.—Pro. March 12, 1867. Weir, app. xxii.

34. The Court of a District Magistrate specially empowered under section 30 may pass any sentence of imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years, including such solitary confinement as is authorized by law, or of fine, or of whipping, or of any combination of these punishments authorized by law.

But any sentence of imprisonment for a term exceeding three years passed by any such Court shall be subject to the confirmation of the Sessions Judge.

See notes to sections 30, 31.

A District Magistrate cannot exercise these extensive powers in the case of a European British subject. (Section 446.)

35. When a person is convicted, at one trial, of two or more distinct offences, the Court may sentence him, for such offences, to the several punishments prescribed therefor which such Court is competent to inflict: such punishments, when consisting of imprisonment or transportation, to commence the one after the expiration of the other in such order as the Court may direct.

Ch. III.
S. 35.

Sentence in cases of conviction of several offences at one trial.

It shall not be necessary for the Court, by reason only of the aggregate punishment for the several offences being in excess of the punishment which it is competent to inflict on conviction of a single offence, to send the offender for trial before a higher Court:

Maximum term of punishment.

Provided as follows:—

(a) in no case shall such person be sentenced to imprisonment for a longer period than fourteen years:

(b) if the case is tried by a Magistrate (other than a Magistrate acting under section 34), the aggregate punishment shall not exceed twice the amount of punishment which he is, in the exercise of his ordinary jurisdiction, competent to inflict.

For the purpose of confirmation or appeal, aggregate sentences passed under this section in case of convictions for several offences at one trial shall be deemed to be a single sentence.

The last para. is new, being in accordance with the judgment in the case of Rama Bhivgoda, I. L. R., 1 Bomb., 223.

Except as provided by sections 234, 235, 236, 239 every distinct offence should form the subject of a separate charge and be tried separately (section 233). Many difficulties which have arisen under section 314 of the Code of 1872 now re-enacted in section 35 can be traced solely to a non-observance of this rule. If separate trials are held the sentence that a Magistrate can pass in each case is limited only by his general powers.—In the matter of Daulatia and another I. L. R., 3 All., 305. FULL BENCH. But where a Magistrate sentenced the accused in each of six successive trials to the maximum term of imprisonment he could award, the Madras High Court set the sentences aside and directed the accused to be committed for trial by the Sessions Court. (The facts of these cases are not given in the report, nor is it stated whether one trial should have been held.) Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Aug. 31st, 1874, Weir 243.

Ch. III.

S. 35.

In passing sentence under section 35, the terms of section 71, Penal Code, as amended by Act VIII of 1882, S. 4, should be borne in mind :—
 “ When anything which is an offence is made up of parts, any of which parts is itself an offence, the offender shall not be punished with the punishment of more than one of such his offences, unless it be so expressly provided. Where anything is an offence falling within two or more separate definitions of any law in force for the time being by which offences are defined or punished, or, where several acts, of which one or more than one would by itself or themselves constitute an offence, constitute, when combined, a different offence, the offender shall not be punished with a more severe punishment than the Court which tries him could award for any one of such offences.”

If the Court passing sentence under section 35 desires to convert a sentence or sentences of imprisonment into transportation (section 59, Penal Code), it should note that no sentence of transportation can be for less than seven years, and that to render the conversion legal, the punishment awarded for each offence must not be less than seven years' imprisonment.

A general sentence of transportation for two or more offences, where only one (or more) of the punishments awarded is seven years' imprisonment is illegal.—1 W. R., 1, C. L. ; Mootkee Kora, 2 W. R., 1 ; Krishto Soonder Deb, Ibid., 5 ; Toonooram Malee, 3 W. R., 44 ; Shonaollah and another, 5 W. R., 44, &c., &c.

The Calcutta High Court has held (736, 1864), that when there are in an indictment two separate offences, supported by distinct and separate evidence, a separate sentence should be passed for each offence ; the punishment under the second sentence to take effect on the expiry of the first. If, however, there are two or more offences supported by the same evidence, or very nearly so, a verdict of guilty should be entered on the offence covered by the greater portion of the evidence as the gravest in the eye of the law, and a verdict of not guilty on the other charges. The High Court can, on appeal, if it thinks fit, find the prisoner guilty of any offence of which he may have been charged and so acquitted, and reduce the punishment proportionately. And again (892, 1864) it has been held that if, after convicting a prisoner of several offences, a Sessions Judge thinks that a sentence of transportation for life should be passed as an aggregate punishment, but that, though a legal sentence for any one offence, it is too severe for any single offence committed by the prisoner, he may nevertheless pass such sentence for such offence, recording in the other cases that no sentence has been passed in consequence of the previous sentence.

The same rule was laid down in the case of Dalapati Rao (1 Mad., 83), in which the Madras High Court observed that, although the prisoner might have been properly charged in the first instance with both the criminal acts of fraudulently secreting and making away with a letter, and though either act is punishable, under Act XVII of 1854, S. 50, as an offence, without evidence of the other, still, as it appeared that both acts were connected and formed substantially a part of one and the same criminal transaction, and the evidence with reference to such acts was as necessary and material on the first charge as it was on the second, the prisoner must be considered to have been tried and in peril with respect of the whole transaction as one offence on the first charge. The evidence of the making away with the letter was properly a part of the case in support of the first charge and the strongest proof of it. There was, in fact, no part of the evidence on which the second conviction took place which was not properly evidence on the first charge.

Ch. III.

S. 35:

The most common instance in which the question arises whether separate sentences should be passed is when a man has been convicted of housebreaking by night with intent to commit theft (section 457 Penal Code) and also with theft in the house (section 380). The High Courts have not been concurrent in their opinions in this respect. The BOMBAY HIGH COURT (Westropp, C. J., Gibbs, Lloyd and Kembell, JJ.), has held that a separate sentence on each of such charges might be passed, provided that the aggregate amount of punishment awarded did not cover that which the case warrants for the greater of the two offences of which the accused persons have been convicted, and provided also that such aggregate punishment did not exceed the jurisdiction of the Court which has convicted the accused. Anwar Khan valad Gulkhan and another, 9 Bomb., 172. This case will of course overrule the authority of all previous cases in that Court. It is in accordance with S. 7, Penal Code as now amended by Act VIII, 1882, S. 4.

In MADRAS it has been held that separate sentences may be passed for house-trespass (section 448) and criminal force (section 352), Mad. H. Ct. Pro. April 10, 1872: 7 Mad. Jur., 299: and for dishonestly breaking into a house (section 461) and theft in the house (section 380.) Id. Pro. May 8, 1872: 7 Mad. Jur., 300.

In the CALCUTTA HIGH COURT the current of decisions has been against the passing of separate sentences. Tona Koch, 2 W. R., 63: Chyton Bowra, 5 L. R., 49: Jogun Polloi, 6 W. R., 49: Mussalir Daood, Id. 92. Also Ram Churn Kairee, 6 W. R., 39; per Peacock, C. J., Kemp, Norman, Seton-Karr, Campbell, JJ.

Similarly it has been held that a convict cannot at the same time receive two sentences for rioting (S. 147), and being a member of an unlawful assembly (S. 142), since he could not be guilty of rioting without being a member of an unlawful assembly—Meelan Khalifa, 1 W. R., 7; nor for culpable homicide (S. 304) and being a member of an unlawful assembly, the homicide having been committed by one of the members—Rubbecoollah, 7 W. R., 13; nor for rioting armed with a deadly weapon (S. 148) and causing hurt in that rioting—Durzoolla, 9 W. R., 83; nor for theft (S. 379) and mischief (S. 429)—Gunowree Bhoooya, 6 W. R., 70; Bichuk Aheer, Ibid. 5; Sahrae and others, 8 W. R., 31; (but see contra Narayan Krishna, 2 Bom., 416, in which the Bombay High Court held that, as the prisoner had cut down a tree, and then stole it, and that thus the mischief preceded the theft, a double sentence was not illegal); nor for kidnapping (S. 363), kidnapping to compel marriage (S. 366), and keeping in confinement a kidnapped person (S. 368)—6 W. R., 2, C. L.; nor for enticing away a married woman (S. 498) and adultery (S. 497)—5 Mad., xvi, App.; Pochun Chung, 2 W. R., 35; nor for abetment of abduction of a woman (Sections 109, 498) and wrongful confinement (S. 343)—Issur Chunder Jogee, Suth. Rep., 1864, p. 21; nor for dacoity (S. 395) or robbery (S. 392) and receiving stolen property (S. 412)—Bhoirub Seal, Suth. Rep., 1864, p. 27; Sheikh Muddon Ali, 1 W. R., 27. So where a per-

Ch. III. son was convicted of having committed theft of the property of two persons, the acts being simultaneous, a double sentence was held to be illegal.—Sheikh Mooneah, 11 W. R., 38.

S. 36. A conviction and separate sentences for using criminal force and escaping from lawful custody were also held to be illegal: also of using criminal force and rescuing from lawful custody. Kali Sankar Sandyal and others, 3 B. L. R., 14 Cr. Ca.

A man can, however, be convicted of giving false evidence (S. 193) and of making a false charge, &c. (S. 211), and be sentenced separately for each offence, since it has been held that they are not cognate offences, nor are they parts of one and the same offence.—Abdool Azeez, 7 W. R., 59. Nor are separate sentences illegal for rioting armed with deadly weapons, (Sections 148, 149), and stabbing the man on whose premises the riot took place (S. 324), since they are distinct offences.—Kalachand and others, 7 W. R., 60. Both these rulings seem to be opposed to the principles on which the cases above cited have been decided.

When a man at one time criminally intimidates more than one person, and each person brings a separate criminal charge against him, he may, on conviction, be sentenced separately for each offence—Goolzar Khan, 9 W. R., 30.

Similarly, when a person was convicted of having forcibly rescued prisoner from the lawful custody of one Police officer (S. 225) and of having used criminal force to the deter another officer from the discharge of his duty (S. 353), a double sentence was approved.—Assan Shurreef, 13 W. R., 75. When several seals of different persons were found in the possession of the prisoner with the intent to commit forgery, it was held that under S. 473 there was a distinct and separate offence committed with respect to each seal, and that a separate sentence might be passed in each instance unless it appeared that several seals were in the prisoner's possession for the purpose of committing one forgery.—Goluck Chunder, 13 W. R., 16.

Where a person refused to accompany a Police officer who had been directed to produce him, and also resisted his carrying away a pony which he was charged with having misappropriated, it was held that he could be sentenced separately under S. 183 and S. 353, Penal Code—Joy Mohun Chunder, 14 W. R., 19.

A separate sentence cannot be passed for an offence punishable under the Penal Code and also under a special law (the Cattle Trespass Act) for an act punishable under either. Hossein Ali, 5 All. 50; nor for having possession of forged documents (section 474) and also for using them (section 471). Nuzur Ali, 6 All., 39.

C.—Ordinary and Additional Powers.

36. All District Magistrates, Sub-divisional Magistrates and Magistrates of the first, second and third classes have the powers hereinafter respectively conferred upon them and specified in the third schedule. Such powers are called their “ordinary powers.”

(Ss. 22, 24, 26, 28, 30.)

37. In addition to his ordinary powers, any Sub-divisional Magistrate or any Magistrate of the first, second or third class may be invested by the Local Government or the District Magistrate, as the case may be, with any powers specified in the fourth schedule as powers with which he may be invested by the Local Government or the District Magistrate.

Additional powers conferred on Magistrates.

38. The power conferred on the District Magistrate by section 37 shall be exercised subject to the control of the Local Government.

Control of District Magistrates' investing power.

D.—Conferment, Continuance and Cancellation of Powers.

39. In conferring powers under this Code, the Local Government may by order empower persons specially by name or in virtue of their office, or classes of officials generally by their official titles.

Mode of conferring powers.

Every such order shall take effect from the date on which it is communicated to the person so empowered.

With reference to the last para., see In the matter of the petition of Mahomed Eshak, I. L. R., 6 Cal., 477.

40. Whenever any person holding an office in the service of Government who has been invested with any powers under this Code throughout any local area is transferred to an equal or higher office of the same nature within a like local area under the same Local Government, he shall, unless the Local Government otherwise directs, or has otherwise directed, continue to exercise the same powers in the the local area to which he is so transferred.

PART III.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

CHAPTER IV.

OF AID AND INFORMATION TO THE MAGISTRATES, THE POLICE AND PERSONS MAKING ARRESTS.

42. Every person is bound to assist a Magistrate or Police-officer reasonably demanding his aid, whether within or without the Presidency-towns,

Public when to assist Magistrates and police.

(a) in the taking of any other person whom such Magistrate or Police-officer is authorized to arrest ;

(b) in the prevention of a breach of the peace, or of any injury attempted to be committed to any railway, canal, telegraph or public property ; or

(c) in the suppression of a riot or an affray.

Chapter IX, Sections 127—133, relates to the dispersion of unlawful assemblies. Under section 91 of the Code of 1872 every person was bound to assist a Magistrate or Police-officer demanding his aid in certain specified contingencies ; section 42 of this Code has required such demand to be a “reasonable” demand. The refusal of a person to comply with such a demand on the ground that it was unreasonable might render him subject to prosecution under section 187, Penal Code, for intentional omission to give such assistance, when it would be determined whether the demand was reasonable or otherwise.

Intentional omission to give such assistance is punishable under S. 187, Penal Code, with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both. Ch. IV.

Persons acting on such demand made by a Magistrate or Police officer should be careful to protect themselves by stating the authority under which they act, or if they have authority in writing, by producing such authority if demanded (S. 99, Penal Code, Explanation 2), as otherwise the persons against whom they may act might offer resistance under the plea of the exercise of the right of private defence. Ss. 43, 44.

S. 151, Penal Code, declares that "whoever knowingly joins or continues in any assembly of five or more persons, likely to cause a disturbance of the public peace, after such assembly has been lawfully commanded to disperse, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine, or with both."

Explanation.—If the assembly is an unlawful assembly within the meaning of S. 141, the offender will be punished under S. 145,—that is, with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

Ss. 154, 155, 156, Penal Code, impose certain obligations on owners or occupiers of land on which unlawful assemblies are held, or riots committed, as well as on their agents or managers.

43. When a warrant is directed to a person other than a Police-officer, any other person may aid in the execution of such warrant, if the person to whom the warrant is directed be near at hand and acting in the execution of the warrant.

The assistance to be thus given to a private person is not as in the case of a Magistrate or Police-officer obligatory, but optional.

Sections 77, 78 provide for the issue of warrants of arrest directed to persons not Police-officers.

44. Every person, whether within or without the Presidency-towns, aware of the commission of, or of the intention of any other person to commit, any offence punishable under the following sections of the Indian Penal Code (namely) 121, 121A, 122, 123, 124, 124A, 125, 126, 130, 302, 303, 304, 382, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 402, 435, 436, 449, 450, 456, 457, 458, 459, and 460, shall, in the absence of reasonable excuse, the burden of proving which shall lie upon the person so aware, forthwith give information to the nearest Magistrate or Police-officer of such commission or intention.

Ch. IV. The offences specified in this section are the following :—

— 121. Waging or attempting to wage war against the Queen, or abetment of the same.

S. 44. 121a. Conspiring to commit certain offences against the State. Act XXVII, 1870.

123. Concealment of the existence of a design to wage war against the Queen with intent, &c., to facilitate the same.

124. Assaulting, &c., the Governor-General or certain specified high functionaries of State with intent to compel or restrain the exercise of lawful power.

458. Lurking-house trespass by night, or house-breaking by night after preparation made for causing hurt, &c.

459. Grievous hurt whilst committing lurking house-trespass by night, or house-breaking by night.

460. Being jointly concerned in the commission of lurking house-trespass by night, or house-breaking by night, death or grievous hurt being caused or attempted.

S. 154, Penal Code, requires the owner or occupier of land upon which an unlawful assembly (S. 141) is held, or a riot (S. 146) is committed, and also any person having or claiming an interest in such land, to give the earliest notice thereof to the principal officer at the nearest Police station, as well as to prevent it, or to disperse or suppress the riot or unlawful assembly under a penalty of fine of 1,000 rupees.

The intentional omission to give information on any subject, to any public servant on the part of any person, legally bound so to do, is made punishable by S. 176, Penal Code; and if such information respects the commission of an offence, or is required for the purpose of preventing the commission of an offence, or in order to the apprehension of an offender, the punishment is enhanced. Under S. 202, if any such person knows, or has reason to believe, that the offence has been committed, he is also made punishable for the omission to give information.

The meaning of the term "offence" in these sections was restricted by S. 40 to "a thing made punishable by the Indian Penal Code;" but Act XXVII of 1870, S. 2, has declared that it shall be construed as including anything made punishable also by any special or local law, when that thing is punishable with imprisonment for a term of six months or upwards, whether with or without fine.

45. Every village-headman, village-watchman,

Village-headmen, landholders and others bound

village-police-officer, owner or occupier of land, and the agent of any such owner or occupier, and every officer employed in the collection of revenue or rent of land on the part of Government or the Court of Wards, shall forthwith communicate to the nearest Magistrate, or to the officer in charge of the nearest Police-station, whichever is the nearer, any information which he may obtain respecting—

(a) the permanent or temporary residence of any notorious receiver or vendor of stolen property in any village of which he is headman, watchman or Police-officer, or in which he owns or occupies land, or is agent, or collects revenue or rent;

(b) the resort to any place within, or the passage through, such village, of any person whom he knows, or reasonably suspects, to be a thug, robber, escaped convict or proclaimed offender;

(c) the commission of or intention to commit any non-bailable offence in or near such village;

(d) the occurrence therein of any sudden or unnatural death or of any death under suspicious circumstances.

Ch. IV.

S. 45.

EXPLANATION.—In this section “village” includes village-lands.

(S. 90.)

Certain portions of this section which professes to reproduce section 90 of the Code of 1872 are new. (1) The Report should be made to the Magistrate or Police-station whichever is the nearer. (2) In the concluding portion of (a) the words “or is agent” have been added to obviate the difficulty pointed out in Achiraj Lall and another I. L. R., 4 Cal., 603, (3) To (b) the words escaped “convict or proclaimed” offender have been added.

It is not intended that a person, by the mere circumstance of his being the owner or occupier of land anywhere or the agent of such owner or occupier, would be bound to give information of any sudden or unnatural death occurring in a remote part of the country from where the land was owned and held. The mere occupation of the house in which such death took place as a residence is not what was contemplated as imposing an obligation to report. In the matter of Maddoosoodun Chuckerbutty, 23 W. R., 60.

A village accountant does not come within the terms of section 45 so as to make him bound to give the information specified therein. In the matter of Raminih Nayar, I. L. R., Mad., 266, nor does a Khazan-chi. Achiraj Lall and another, I. L. R., 4 Cal., 603; or even a Dewan unless his master be absent. Ibid., see also In the matter of Maddoosoodun Chuckerbutty, 23 W. R., 60.

The penalty for neglect to report under S. 45 should not be enforced against one who has omitted to give information to the Police of an offence of which the Police has already obtained information from other sources. Provided that one of several parties bound to give the information does give it, it is not reasonable that any one who may possibly also be bound to give that information should be prosecuted for not having done so. In re Shushi Bhushan Chuckerbutty, I. L. R., 4 Cal., 623.

In order to convict any person for non-performance of the obligation imposed by S. 45, it should appear what the offence is as to commission of which he wilfully omitted to give information; that the specified offence was committed by some one; and that he knew of its having been committed.—Ahmed Ali, 22 W. R., 42.

Further obligations are imposed on village headmen, village watchmen and owners or occupiers of land by S. 21, Act XXVII of 1871 (The Criminal Tribes Act), and a failure to fulfil these obligations is by S. 22 made punishable under the first part of S. 176 of the Penal Code. S. 176 of the Penal Code declares that whoever being legally bound to give any notice or to furnish any information on any subject to any public servant, as such, intentionally omits to give such notice or to furnish such information in the manner or at the time required by law shall be punished with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to five hundred Rupees, or with both; or, if the notice or information required to be given respects the commission of an offence, or is required for the purpose of preventing the commission of an offence, or in order to the apprehension of an offender, with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand Rupees, or with both.

The intentional furnishing of false information by any person bound to give information of this description to a public servant as such, is punishable under S. 177.

CHAPTER V.

OF ARREST, ESCAPE AND RETAKING.

A.—Arrest generally.

46. In making an arrest, the Police-officer or other person making the same shall actually touch or confine the body of the person to be arrested, unless there be a submission to the custody by word or action.

Arrest how made.

The substance of the warrant should be notified to the person to be arrested, and, if so required the warrant should be shown, section 80.

If such person forcibly resists the endeavour to arrest him, or attempts to evade the arrest, such Police-officer or other person may use all means necessary to effect the arrest.

Resisting endeavour to arrest.

Nothing in this section gives a right to cause the death of a person who is not accused of an offence punishable with death, or with transportation for life.

(Ss. 177, 178.)

The last para. is new.

Under S. 99, Penal Code, there is no right of private defence against an act which does not cause apprehension of death or grievous hurt, if done by a public servant acting in good faith under colour of his office; provided that a person is not deprived of the right unless he knew or had reason to believe that the person so acting is a public servant; or if acting under the direction of a public servant that unless he has reason to believe that he is acting under such direction or the person states such authority or if he has authority in writing unless he produces it if demanded.

Resistance or obstruction by a person, if it be to his own apprehension, are punishable under section 224, Penal Code; or, if it be to the lawful apprehension of another person, under section 225. Rescue from lawful custody is punishable under section 225.

It will be observed that the law (section 80) requires that, if so required, the person making the arrest shall show the warrant. It has been held in England that if he has not got the warrant and the person offers resistance, the latter cannot be convicted of resisting an officer in the execution of his duty. Codd v. Cabe, 1 Ex. D., 352.

47. If any person acting under a warrant of arrest, or any Police-officer having authority to arrest, has reason to believe that the person to be arrested is within, any place, the person in charge of, such place shall on person acting as aforesaid or such him free ingress thereto, and afford es for a search therein.

(Ss. 99, 179.)

Warrants of arrest may under sections 77, 78 be directed to persons not Police-officers.

Sections 54, 58 provide for arrest by a Police-officer without warrant.

Voluntarily obstructing a Police-officer in the discharge of his public functions is an offence punishable under S. 156, Penal Code; the intentional omission to render assistance under S. 187; the harbouring of an offender under Ss. 202—206; and the intentional resistance or illegal obstruction to the lawful apprehension of any other person for an offence under S. 225.

Persons not authorized to arrest without warrant are nevertheless specially empowered to act under section 47 for the purpose of arresting in any place in British India a person escaping or rescued from lawful custody. See sections 66, 67.

48. If ingress to such place cannot be obtained

under section 47, it shall be lawful in any case for a person acting under a warrant, and in any case in which a warrant may issue but cannot be obtained without affording the person to be arrested an opportunity of escape, for a Police-officer to enter such place and search therein, and in order to effect an entrance into such place, to break open any outer or inner door or window of any house or place, whether that of the person to be arrested or of any other person, if, after notification of his authority and purpose and demand of admittance duly made, he cannot otherwise obtain admittance :

Provided that, if any such place is an apartment

Breaking open sanana.

Breaking open sanas. in the actual occupancy of a woman (not being the person to be arrested) who, according to custom, does not appear in public, such person or Police-officer shall, before entering such apartment, give notice to such woman that she is at liberty to withdraw, and shall afford her every reasonable facility for withdrawing, and may then break open the apartment and enter it. Ch. V.

Ss. 49—52.

(Ss. 100, 180, 181.)

49. Any Police-officer or other person authorized to make an arrest may break open any outer or inner door or window of any house or place in order to liberate himself or any other person who, having lawfully entered for the purpose of making an arrest, is detained therein.

Power to break open doors and windows for purposes of liberation.

50. The person arrested shall not be subjected to more restraint than is necessary to prevent his escape.

No unnecessary restraint.

Every Police-officer who shall offer any unwarrantable personal violence to any person in his custody shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a penalty not exceeding three months' pay or to imprisonment with or without hard labour, for a period not exceeding three months or to both.—Act V, 1861, S. 29.

51. Whenever a person is arrested by a Police-officer under a warrant which does not provide for the taking of bail, or under a warrant which provides for the taking of bail, but the person arrested cannot furnish bail, and whenever a person is arrested without warrant, or by a private person under a warrant, and cannot legally be admitted to bail, or is unable to furnish bail, the officer making the arrest or, when the arrest is made by a private person, the Police-officer to whom he makes over the person arrested, may search such person, and place in safe custody all articles, other than necessary wearing apparel, found upon him.

(S. 387.)

Any seizure of property so made shall be reported forthwith to a Magistrate who is empowered to pass orders regarding it. Section 523.

52. Whenever it is necessary to cause a woman to be searched, the search shall be made by another woman, with strict regard to decency.

Mode of searching women.

Ch. V.

53. The officer or other person making any arrest under this Code may take from the person arrested any offensive weapons which he has about his person, and shall deliver all weapons so taken to the Court or officer before which or whom the officer or person making the arrest is required by this Code to produce the person arrested.

Ss. 53, 54. Power to seize offensive weapons.

This section is new. It seems to be covered by section 51.

B.—Arrest without Warrant.

54. Any Police-officer may, without an order from a Magistrate and without a warrant, arrest—

When police may arrest without warrant.

first—any person who has been concerned in any cognizable offence or against whom a reasonable complaint has been made, or credible information has been received, or a reasonable suspicion exists, of his having been so concerned;

secondly—any person having in his possession without lawful excuse, the burden of proving which excuse shall lie on such person, any implement of housebreaking;

thirdly—any person who has been proclaimed as an offender either under this Code or by order of the Local Government;

fourthly—any person in whose possession anything is found which may reasonably be suspected to be stolen property and who may reasonably be suspected of having committed an offence with reference to such thing;

fifthly—any person who obstructs a Police-officer while in the execution of his duty, or who has escaped, or attempts to escape, from lawful custody; and sixthly—any person reasonably suspected of being a deserter from Her Majesty's Army or Navy.

This section applies to the police in the towns of Calcutta and Bombay.

(S. 92.)

The second clause is new being a re-enactment of a power given under the Regulations in force before the Code of 1861.

Every person is bound to assist a Police-officer, demanding his aid, in making an arrest in any of the contingencies above specified. Section 42 (a).

Cl. 3. The proclamation under the Code here referred to would have been made under section 87.

Ch. V.

Cl. 4. Section 523 requires a Police-officer forthwith to report the finding of such property to a Magistrate who is empowered to pass proper orders regarding its disposal. The definition of stolen property section 410, Penal Code, as modified by Act VIII of 1882, S. 9, should be applied to this clause.

S. 54.

Cl. 6. Section 549 enables the Governor General in Council to make rules as to the cases in which persons subject to military law shall be tried by a Civil Court or by Court Martial and for the course to be taken by a Magistrate in such case.

Statute 42 and 43 Vic. c. 33 (the Army Discipline and Regulation Act 1879) S. 147 declares that,

"With respect to deserters, the following provisions shall have effect:—

"(1.) Upon reasonable suspicion that a person is a deserter, it shall be lawful for any constable, or if no constable can be immediately met with, then for any officer or soldier, or other person, to apprehend such suspected person, and forthwith to bring him before a Court of summary jurisdiction.

"(2.) Where a person is brought before a Court of summary jurisdiction charged with being a deserter under this Act, such Court may deal with the case in like manner as if such person were brought before the Court charged with an indictable offence, or in Scotland, 'an offence.'

"(3.) The Court if satisfied either by evidence on oath or by the confession of such person that he is a deserter, shall forthwith, as it may seem to the Court most expedient, with regard to his safe custody, cause him either to be delivered into military custody in such manner as the Court may deem most expedient, or until he can be so delivered, to be committed to some prison, police-station or other place, legally provided for the confinement of persons in custody, for such reasonable time as appears to the Court reasonably necessary for the purpose of delivering him into military custody.

"(4.) Where the person confessed himself to be a deserter, and evidence of the truth or falsehood of such confession is not then forthcoming, the Court shall remand such person for the purpose of obtaining information as to the truth or falsehood of the said confession, and for that purpose the Court shall transmit, if sitting in the United Kingdom, to a Secretary of State, and if in India, to the General or other officer commanding the forces in the military district or station where the Court sits, and if in a colony, to the General or other officer commanding the forces in that colony, a return (in this Act referred to as a descriptive return), containing such particulars and being in such form as is specified in the Fifth Schedule to this Act, or as may be from time to time directed by a Secretary of State."

In addition to the cases provided for by S. 34 of the Code any Police-officer or village watchman may arrest without a warrant and take before a Magistrate any person registered under Act XXVII of 1871 (The Criminal Tribes Act) who is found in any part of British India beyond the limits prescribed for his residence without such pass as is required, or in a place or at a time not permitted by his pass, or who escapes from a reformatory settlement.

Ch. V.

S. 54.

Whenever any person apparently a European vagrant refuses or fails to comply with any requisition made by a Police-officer under S. 4 of the European Vagrancy Act; whenever any person of European extraction commits an offence under S. 23 in view of a Police-officer; and whenever any Police-officer has reason to believe that such offence has been or is being committed, the person so refusing or failing or offending may be forthwith arrested without warrant by the Police-officer for the purpose of being produced in the usual manner before the officer empowered to deal with the case. (Rules prepared by the Governor General in Council under the European Vagrancy Act. Rule No. III.)

Any Police-officer may also arrest any person committing an offence under the Indian Railways Act (V of 1879) when there is reason to believe that he will abscond or whose name and address are unknown, concealed, or falsely given; but he should be released if he gives sufficient security to appear before a Magistrate, (Act V of 1879, S. 48): also any person committing certain specified offences under the Indian Railways Act (V of 1879), S. 49; also any person going armed and without a license in contravention of the Arms Act. (Act XI of 1873, S. 13).

Act V of 1861, section 34, gives Police-officers power to arrest in the following cases:—

“Any persons who, on any road or in any street or thoroughfare within the limits of any town to which this section shall be specially extended by the Local Government, commit any of the following offences, to the obstruction, inconvenience, annoyance, risk, danger, or damage of the residents and passengers, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to fine not exceeding fifty rupees, or to imprisonment not exceeding eight days; and it shall be lawful for any Police-officer to take into custody, without a warrant, any person who, within his view, commits any of such offences, namely:—

“First.—Any person who slaughters any cattle, or cleans any carcass; any person who rides or drives any cattle recklessly or furiously; or trains or breaks any horse or other cattle.

“Second.—Any person who wantonly or cruelly beats, abuses, or tortures any animal.

“Third.—Any person who keeps any cattle or conveyance of any kind standing longer than is required for loading or unloading, or for taking up or setting down passengers, or who leaves any conveyance in such manner as to cause inconvenience or danger to the public.

“Fourth.—Any person who exposes any goods for sale.

“Fifth.—Any person who throws or lays down any dirt, filth, rubbish, or any stones, or building materials; or who constructs any cowshed, stable, or the like; or who causes any offensive matter to run from any house, factory, dung-heap, or the like.

“Sixth.—Any person who is found drunk or riotous, or who is incapable of taking care of himself.

“Seventh.—Any person who wilfully and indecently exposes his person, or any offensive deformity or disease, or commits nuisance by easing himself, or by bathing or washing in any tank or reservoir not being a place set apart for that purpose.

“Eighth.—Any person who neglects to fence in, or duly to protect any well, tank, or other dangerous place or structure.”

The powers of a Local Government under this law have been conferred by the Governor-General in Council on the Chief Commissioners of Oude, the Central Provinces, and British Burmah.—Gazette of India, 1867, p. 1409.

Ch. V.

S. 54.

Act XV, 1873, section 35, empowers Police-officers in any Municipality in the N. W. PROVINCES and in OUDE, to which that Act has been extended, to exercise the powers given by Act V, 1861, section 34.

Police officers in BENGAL may also arrest in Calcutta or its suburbs or in any place to which Act I (Bengal Council) of 1869 (an Act for the prevention of cruelty to animals) has been extended any person committing in their view any offence under Act—Act III of 1869 (Bengal Council).

In BENGAL any Police-officer may arrest

(1) any person carrying or in possession of contraband salt. Act VII (Bengal Council) of 1864, S. 24 ;

(2) any native officer or Sepoy, except Subadars, Jamadars and Serangs, wearing their uniform coats when not employed on the public service, Reg. (Bengal) XX of 1817, S. 30 ; and, if so empowered by the Local Government, any person in possession of an unlicensed still or any excisable article liable to confiscation or engaged in the unlawful manufacture or sale of such excisable articles. Act VII (Bengal Council) 1878, Ss. 41, 39 ; also, the occupier of the house, boat or place, and all other persons concerned in the manufacture of such excisable articles or in the keeping or concealing of the same provided that an officer not below the grade of head constable of Police be present. Act VII (Bengal Council) 1878, Ss. 41, 40.

In CALCUTTA the Deputy Commissioner of Police is empowered to select Police-officers to exercise these powers under Act VII, 1878 (S. 42,) and in the town and suburbs of Calcutta or in Howrah any Police-officer above the rank of constable may arrest the owner or occupier of the premises of a chemist, druggist, apothecary, or keeper of a Dispensary who allows any spirituous or medicated liquor, not bonâ fide medicated, to be drunk on his business premises between sunset and sunrise by any person not employed in that business. S. 43.

In MADRAS, any Police-officer may take any person in possession of or carrying in any public street, thoroughfare, or place, or in any open shop any liquor requiring a pass and for which no valid pass is produced. Act III (Madras Council) 1864, S. 26. See also Act V (Madras Council) 1879, S. 4, cl. viii, ix.

An officer in charge of a Police-station in the presence of another Police-officer may between sunrise and sunset break into any house, boat or place believed to be used for the manufacture or concealment of contraband salt, if the delay in obtaining a warrant from a Magistrate will prevent such discovery and arrest all persons concerned in the manufacture, keeping or concealing of the salt. Act V, (Madras Council) 1871, S. 17.

In BENGAL, the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES, OUDH and ASSAM, in which Act I of 1882 (the Inland Emigration Act) is in force, the Police are required to take charge of a labourer who has deserted from his employer's service and been arrested by such employer, and to take him to the nearest Magistrate. S. 172.

Ch. V.

S. 54.

In a case in which it was held that the Police had abused their powers of arrest, the Calcutta High Court made the following remarks :—

“What is a reasonable complaint or suspicion must depend on the circumstances of each particular case, but it must be at least founded on some definite fact tending to throw suspicion on the person arrested, and not on mere vague surmise or information. Still less have the Police power to arrest persons, as they appear sometimes to do, merely on the chance of something being proved hereafter against them. Any wilful excess by a Police-officer of his legal powers of arrest is, by S. 220 of the Penal Code, an offence punishable by imprisonment for seven years.”—Behari Singh and others, 7 W. R., 3.

But proof of an unlawful commitment to confinement will not of itself warrant the legal inference of malice. Knowledge that such commitment is contrary to law is a question of fact and not of law, and must be proved in order to support a conviction of a Police officer under S. 220 of the Indian Penal Code.—Narayan Babaji, 9 Bomb., 346.

The following remarks of the Calcutta High Court, in the case of Behari Singh (7 W. R., 3) already cited, are deserving of attention in this place :—

“If, as is frequently the case, a Police officer, without arresting a person himself, directs some of the neighbours to take charge of him, the Police officer is responsible in the same way as if he had himself made the arrest, the person arrested by his order being in law in his custody.

“Even if a person be rightly arrested it does not rest with the discretion of the Police officer to keep the prisoner in custody where, and as long as, he pleases. Under no circumstances can he be detained without the special order of a Magistrate more than twenty-four hours; at the expiration of twenty-four hours, unless the special order has been obtained, the prisoner must either be discharged or sent in to the Magistrate, and any longer detention is absolutely unlawful; and though the Code is not so express upon the place, as the time of confinement, still we think it is perfectly clear that it was intended that where a Police officer has arrested any person, the prisoner should not be kept in confinement in any place which the subordinate officer might select, but that he should, if possible, be sent immediately to the Police station, and there kept in the custody of the officer in charge of the station, who is the person entrusted by the Act with the conduct of the inquiry.”

A Police officer detained a person while he consulted his superior officer whether he should take a recognizance. On being prosecuted by the person so detained, it was held that the confinement was without any justifiable ground, but, inasmuch as there was proof that the Police officer acted bonâ fide, though he might have exceeded the limits of his authority, the High Court found that facts did not amount to the criminal offence of wrongful restraint, for there was no malice, no intention of doing any act of the nature spoken of in S. 339 or S. 340, and no voluntary obstruction or restraint which would render the Police officer liable to penal consequences.—Budrool Hosein, 24 W. R., 51.

A village chowkeedar is not a Police officer within the terms of S. 54 of this Code. He is therefore not liable under S. 271, Penal Code, on refusal to arrest out of his jurisdiction a person charged with murder. Kallu and others, 1 L. R., 3 All., 60.

Early intimation of the arrest by the Police of any soldier, European or Native, should be given by the District Magistrate to the Officer commanding the regiment to which the man arrested may belong so as to enable any necessary measures to be taken for the defence.—Govt. of Bengal Cir. 88, Aug. 10, 1874. A similar order is, it is believed, in force throughout British India.

A deserter from Her Majesty's army when arrested by a Police officer should be brought without delay before the nearest Magistrate, or the nearest Military Commander, when no Magistrate is readily accessible. Act V of 1869, Part III (d).

Magistrates in the capacity of Justices of the Peace are required by S. 34 of the Mutiny Act to transmit to the nearest General or other Officer commanding a Descriptive Roll in a prescribed form to the end that such person may be removed by order of such officer and proceeded against according to law. The deserter should be forthwith conveyed to some public prison if the regiment or corps to which he is suspected to belong is not in India, but if the regiment or corps be in India, the Magistrate may deliver him into custody of the nearest military post, if within reasonable distance, although the regiment to which such person is suspected to belong may not be stationed at such military post. See Govt. Bengal Cir. 111, dated Sept. 12, 1873; see also Smyth, p. 145.

55. Any officer in charge of a Police-station may, in like manner, arrest or cause to be arrested—Arrest of vagabonds, habitual robbers, &c.

(a) any person found taking precautions to conceal his presence within the limits of such station, under circumstances which afford reason to believe that he is taking such precautions with a view to committing a cognizable offence; or

(b) any person within the limits of such station who has no ostensible means of subsistence, or who cannot give a satisfactory account of himself; or

(c) any person who is by repute an habitual robber, house-breaker or thief, or an habitual receiver of stolen property knowing it to be stolen, or who by repute habitually commits extortion or in order to the committing of extortion habitually puts or attempts to put persons in fear of injury.

The above powers of arrest can without a warrant be exercised only by an officer in charge of a Police-station, but such officer can under S. 56 authorize any subordinate officer to make any particular arrest by an order in writing.

• An arrest should be at once reported, and the necessary evidence in proof of the circumstances under which it was made, should be sent in to a Magistrate whose proceedings will be regulated by Ss. 109, 110.

Every Daroga or District Police officer is required to apprehend and send to the Magistrate persons found wandering at large within the district who are deemed to be lunatics and all persons believed to be dangerous by reason of lunacy.—Act XXXVI, 1858. S. 4.

The proper use of a Budmashi Register was discussed in the case of Baboo Lall and Duttee Lall v. Lieutenant N. M. T. Horsford, District Superintendent of Police, and Narain Singh Katwal, of Allahabad :—

“ We think it proper to state in this place the opinion which is entertained by us, and we believe we may say also by the other learned Judges of the Court, with respect to the legitimate use which may be made by the Police of Register No. 10, which is more generally known as the Budmash List. For the protection of the public, it has been found necessary in every civilized State to constitute certain persons, officers for the prevention and detection of crime, and to render them efficient, it has also been found necessary to confer on them powers of interfering with the liberties of their fellow-citizens, which, if exercised by private persons, would render them liable to civil proceedings. It is necessary for the efficiency of the Police that they should possess information of the names of persons who are likely to commit offences, and inasmuch as changes must of necessity constantly take place in the members who constitute the Police Force, it is also necessary that the information above mentioned should be preserved. To effect this, registers are ordinarily kept, showing the names of persons who have committed, or who, on strong grounds, are suspected of the commission of, offences. Such a register accurately compiled and strictly reserved for the purpose for which it is designed, the private use of the Police, may be of great advantage to the public in enabling the Police to perform their duties effectively. But if this register be a public register, or if the persons having the custody of it, allow its contents to be matter of public conversation, we can imagine no greater engine of injustice and oppression.

“ The matter recorded is not confined to facts which have been ascertained by fair and open investigation in Courts of Justice. It does, and necessarily must in a great measure, consist of the results of ex parte investigations made in private by the Police. It is, and necessarily must be, in great part, the fruit of rumour and suspicion, and sometimes it may be of malice. Were it permitted that such a register should be kept as a register to which the public might have access, or of which the entries were bruited about, the characters of honest men might be blasted, without redress, through the instrumentality of any enemy who could gain the ear or excite the suspicions of the Police. Very shortly after the establishment of this Court, the abuse of this register was on more than one occasion prominently brought to its notice. It had at that time (and we fear the evil has not even yet been cured) come to be regarded as a public register, and Magistrates not unfrequently passed orders, directing the entry of a person's name as a kind of punishment. The Court, on the 9th August 1866, addressed the Government of these Provinces on the subject, and pointed out the probabilities and magnitude of the evils of which we have above made mention, and the Government promptly passed an order that entries should only be made by the District Superintendent or the Magistrate in his capacity of Superintendent of Police, and directed that the register should be considered a private register, and should only be open to inspection by officers of Police. In the present case, had the orders of Government been obeyed in spirit as well as in letter, although the plaintiffs might have been unjustly recorded, they would not have been greatly damaged; but no sooner was the entry made than it became known that it had been made." Ch. V. Ss. 56—58.

56. When any officer in charge of a Police-station requires any officer subordinate to him to arrest without a warrant (otherwise than in his presence) any person who may lawfully be arrested without a warrant, he shall deliver to the officer required to make the arrest an order in writing, specifying the person to be arrested and the offence for which the arrest is to be made.

If the offence is a cognizable offence an arrest can be made by any Police-officer on his own responsibility, and without any warrant or order in writing S. 54, cl. (i): a warrant of arrest may be endorsed by one Police-officer for service by another (S. 80); but an order in writing under S. 56 is apparently personal.

57. When any person in the presence of a Police-officer commits or is accused of committing a non-cognizable offence, and refuses on demand of a Police-officer to give his name and residence, or gives a name or residence which such officer has reason to believe to be false, he may be arrested by such officer in order that his name or residence may be ascertained; and he shall, within twenty-four hours from the arrest, be forwarded to the nearest Magistrate, unless, before the expiration of that time, his true name and residence are ascertained, in which case he shall be released on his executing a bond for his appearance before a Magistrate if so required.

No Police officer can without special order from a Magistrate of the 1st or 2nd class investigate a non-cognizable offence, but, on complaint made of such an offence to an officer in charge of a Police-station, an entry of its substance should be made in the complaint book, and the complainant referred to the Magistrate. S. 155.

58. A Police-officer may, for the purpose of arresting without warrant any person whom he is authorized to arrest

Pursuit of offenders into other jurisdictions.

Ch. V. under this chapter, pursue such person into any place
Ss. 59, 60. in British India.

(S. 103.)

This section goes beyond the corresponding section (103) of the repealed Code of 1872 which gave this power of pursuit and arrest of any person accused of a cognizable offence. This power can now be exercised in any case in which the power to arrest without a warrant is conferred on a Police officer. See Ss. 54, 55.

59. Any private person may arrest any person who, in his view, commits a non-bailable and cognizable offence, or who has been proclaimed as an offender; and shall, without unnecessary delay, make over any person so arrested to a Police-officer; or, in the absence of a Police-officer, take such person to the nearest Police-station.

Procedure on such arrest.

If there is reason to believe that such person comes under the provisions of section 54, a Police-officer shall re-arrest him.

If there is reason to believe that he has committed a non-cognizable offence, and he refuses on the demand of a Police-officer to give his name and residence, or gives a name or residence which such officer has reason to believe to be false, he shall be dealt with under the provisions of section 57. If there is no reason to believe that he has committed any offence, he shall be at once discharged.

No person who has been arrested by Police-officer shall be discharged except on his own bond, or on bail, or under special order of a Magistrate. S. 63.

60. A Police-officer making an arrest without warrant shall, without unnecessary delay and subject to the provisions herein contained as to bail, take or send the person arrested before a Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, or before the officer in charge of a Police-station.

Person arrested to be taken before Magistrate or officer in charge of Police-station.

(S. 101.)

See note to S. 80 post for the orders of the Government of India regarding the arrest of Railway servants.

Ch. V.
S. 61.

61. No Police-officer shall detain in custody a person arrested without warrant for a longer period than under all the circumstances of the case is reasonable, and such period shall not, in the absence of a special order of a Magistrate under section 167, exceed twenty-four hours exclusive of the time necessary for the journey from the place of arrest to the Magistrate's Court.

(S. 124, para. 1.)

The course to be taken by the Police officer is thus prescribed by S. 167:—

Whenever it appears that any investigation under this chapter cannot be completed within the period of twenty-four hours fixed by section 61, and there are grounds for believing that the accusation is well-founded, the officer in charge of the Police-station shall forthwith transmit to the nearest Magistrate a copy of the entries in the diary hereinafter prescribed relating to the case, and shall at the same time forward the accused to such Magistrate.

Before a Magistrate can grant a remand under section 167, the accused must have been brought before him.—Shera, 2 Panj. Rec., 72. A remand to Police custody ought only to be granted in cases of real necessity, and when there is good reason to believe that the accused can point out property or do any thing that will assist in elucidating the case.—Panj. C. Ct. Cir. ix, March 15, 1868. The twenty-four hours during which the Village Police may detain an accused person under Act (Bombay) VIII, 1867, are not to be included in the time allowed to the District Police-officers by this Code.—Bom. H. Ct. Cir., 1260., 1869; Resn. in Chambers.

As to what constitutes a detention by the Police, the Calcutta High Court in the case of Behari Singh and others (7 W. R., 4), held that, if, as is frequently the case, a Police-officer, without arresting a person himself, directs some of the neighbours to take charge of him, he is responsible in the same way as if he had himself made the arrest, the person arrested being in law in his custody. In the case of Puran Kusam Narasaya Pantulu (2 Madras, 396), the Madras High Court held that the requiring of the attendance of a certain person by letter, and the deputing of two constables to accompany him, under the allegation that their duties were to prevent him from speaking to any one, amount to an arrest and imprisonment.

In the appeal of a Police-officer convicted of wrongful confinement (S. 340, Penal Code), the Calcutta High Court held that a Police-officer is not empowered to detain without question an accused person for a period not exceeding twenty-four hours, but rather he is in no case justified in detaining a person for one single hour, except on some reasonable grounds warranted by the circumstances of the case. The time during which a person is wrongfully confined by a Police officer is material only in fixing the punishment for the offence.—Sheoprosunno Ghosal, 6 W. R., 88. In another case, in which the Police officer had been punished under S. 29, Act V of 1861, for having detained an accused person more than twenty-four hours, the Calcutta High Court held that, as the detention was not continuous, the Police-officer had committed no offence.—Indrobee Shaha, 1 W. R., 5.

Ch. V.

Under no circumstances can an accused person be detained for more than twenty-four hours without the special order of a Magistrate; and, unless that special order be obtained, he must, at the expiration of that period, be either sent in to the Magistrate, or be discharged, any further detention being unlawful. As to the place of confinement, the Court remarked that, though the Code was not so express on this point as on the duration of the confinement, it was perfectly clear that it was intended that, when a Police officer arrested any person, the prisoner should not be kept in confinement in any place which the subordinate officer might select, but he should be sent immediately to the Police station, and there kept in the custody of the officer in charge of the station, who is the person entrusted by the law with the conduct of the inquiry.—Behari Singh and others, 7 W. R., 3.

Every prisoner must be forwarded from a Police station direct to the nearest Magistrate having jurisdiction, and must not be sent to the next superior officer of Police.—Bengal Govt. Resolution, dated 22nd Sept. 1862, para. 12.

In all heinous cases, when a single prisoner is sent in, he should be handcuffed; when two or more prisoners are sent, they should be handcuffed to each other, two and two. In cases not of a heinous nature, prisoners should not be handcuffed, unless violent, and then only by order of the officer in charge of the station not below the rank of Sub-Inspector.—Ben. Pol. Cir., 27, 1863.

A Magistrate is prohibited by S. 167 from remanding an accused person during the course of an inquiry or trial of warrant case (Chapters XV and XVII) for a period exceeding fifteen days, and this has been applied by the Bombay High Court as the limit of a Magistrate's power to authorize detention by the Police.—Surkya Valad Dhakn, 5 Bom., 31, Crown Cases.

62. Officers in charge of Police-stations shall Police to report apprehensions. report to the District Magistrate, or, if he so directs, to the Sub-divisional Magistrate, the cases of all persons arrested without warrant, within the limits of their respective stations, whether such persons have been admitted to bail or otherwise.

(S. 132, para. 1.)

The object of this section is that the judicial bench should promptly exercise authority, if necessary, with regard to all arrests by the Police; and it seems to have been framed with this view that, as no person can be released without the order of a Magistrate except on bail or recognizance, it shall be the Magistrate's responsibility as well as that of the Police if a person illegally arrested remains unnecessarily in custody.—Panj C. Ct. Cir. x, May 26, 1869; Smyth, p. 84.

63. No person who has been arrested by a Police-officer shall be discharged except on his own bond, or on bail, or under the special order of a Magistrate. Ch. V.
Ss. 63—67.

(S. 132, para. 2.)

64. When any offence is committed in the presence of a Magistrate within the local limits of his jurisdiction, he may himself arrest or order any person to arrest the offender and may thereupon, subject to the provisions herein contained as to bail, commit the offender to custody.

(S. 108.)

“Within the local limits of his jurisdiction.” Under S. 12 unless the jurisdiction of a Magistrate be specially restricted by the Local Government, or, subject to its control, by the District Magistrate, the jurisdiction and powers of every Magistrate extend throughout the District.

65. Any Magistrate may at any time arrest or direct the arrest, in his presence, within the local limits of his jurisdiction, of any person for whose arrest he is competent at the time and in the circumstances to issue a warrant.

(S. 166, para. 2.)

66. If a person in lawful custody escapes or is rescued, the person from whose custody he escaped or was rescued may immediately pursue and arrest him in any place in British India.

This is a re-enactment of a portion of S. 112 of the repealed Code (Act XXV) of 1861.

A general power of arrest is conferred by S. 54 (cl. v).

67. The provisions of sections 47, 48 and 49 shall apply to arrests under section 66, although the person making any such arrest is not acting under a warrant and is not a Police-officer having authority to arrest.

This is also a re-enactment of a portion of S. 112 of the repealed Code (Act XXV) of 1861.

CHAPTER VI.

OF PROCESSES TO COMPEL APPEARANCE.

A.—Summons.

68. Every summons issued by a Court under this Code shall be in writing in duplicate signed and sealed by the presiding officer of such Court, or by such other officer as the High Court may, from time to time, by rule, direct.

Form of summons.

Such summons shall be served by a Police-officer; or, subject to such rules consistent with this Code as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf, by an officer of the Court issuing it.

This section applies to the police in the towns of Calcutta and Bombay.

For the Form of summons see Sch. V, No. 1.

Every summons should be signed in full by the Magistrate by whom it is issued, with the name of his office or the capacity in which he acts. The practice of signing initials only, or of using a stamp, is objectionable, and must cease—Smyth, p 90. A summons should contain the name of the father of the person summoned, the caste or tribe to which he belongs, and his residence, so as to place his identity beyond doubt.—Ibid, p. 92.

A summons should state the place at which the person should attend. Mad. H. Ct., Pro. Nov. 30, 1874. Weir, 170.

One copy of the summons will ordinarily be left with the accused person, the other will probably be filed with the record, together with the return of the serving officer.

The Commanding officer of a Cantonment may send any process requiring service or execution by any means not immediately at his disposal to the Chief Police-officer in the Cantonment for service or execution through the Cantonment Police, and the said Police-officer shall serve or execute such process in the same manner as if it had been executed by the Cantonment Magistrate, and subject to the same rules. Act III, 1880, S. 11.

In BENGAL and ASSAM under the Court Fees Act, in non-cognizable cases, eight annas has been fixed as the fee for a summons in respect of one person, or of the first two persons residing in the same place, and four annas in respect of every additional person named therein. (Cal. Gaz., 1879, p. 305; Assam Gaz., 1879, p. 596.) The process is one whether one or more persons be named therein, and whether such persons reside in one place or not, but an additional fee of four annas is chargeable in respect of every additional person, not being the second person of more than two residing in the same village.

named in the summons: thus if the summons include one person residing in village A, and a second person residing in village B, the additional fee is chargeable in respect of such second person.—Cal. H. Ct., Cir. 13, May 12, 1874. In MADRAS the same rates are charged for a summons as in BENGAL and ASSAM except that, for a summons on every additional defendant or witness if applied for at the same time and if resident in the neighbourhood, an additional fee of four annas is charged; only half these rates are chargeable if the process is to be served within a radius of six miles from the Court-house, the villages within such radius to be determined by the Judge of each Court, and to be notified in a conspicuous place in the Court-house. Mad. Gaz., Aug. 1873, p. 1255. Power is given to a Magistrate to excuse indigent persons who may be unable to pay the prescribed fees.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Sept. 10, 1873. 9 Mad. Jur., 30.

portion of the year travelling except by boat is impracticable, boat-hire may, when it has to be incurred, be charged in addition to other fees. The rate of such boat-hire shall be fixed from time to time by the District Magistrate, (subject to approval by the Sessions Judge in Districts of Assam) and shall be sufficient only to cover on the whole the actual cost of such boat establishment as it may be necessary to maintain for the purpose of serving processes in cases not cognizable by the Police. Cal. Gaz., 1879, p. 305; Assam Gaz., 1879, p. 596. Wilkins, 84.

In BOMBAY the fee chargeable on a summons in a case under Chapters XIX, XX, XXI of the Penal Code is four annas, and one anna in every other non-cognizable case, and it is only in this latter case that the Magistrate may remit the fee on being satisfied that the complainant has not the means of paying it.—Gaz., 1874, p. 580.

In BRITISH BURMAH, in non-cognizable cases, a fee of eight annas is chargeable on a summons on a witness, and one rupee on a summons on an accused person; no further charge is to be made for boat-hire; a Magistrate who has power to entertain cases on complaint preferred directly to himself, can, on special grounds, to be recorded, remit the fee on any process issuing from his Court. No fee is chargeable on any process issued by a Criminal Court of its own motion.—Gaz., 1873, Part II, p. 183.

Ch. VI.

69. The summons shall if practicable be served personally on the person summoned by delivering or tendering to him one of the duplicates of the summons.

Every person on whom a summons is so served shall, if so required by the serving officer, sign a receipt therefor on the back of the other duplicate.

Signature of receipt for summons.

The refusal to give a receipt for a summons is not an offence under S. 173, Penal Code. In the matter of Bhobaneshwar Dutt, 2 Cal. L. R., 80; Kalya bin Fakir, 5 Bomb., 84 Cr. Ca.

70. Where the person summoned cannot by the exercise of due diligence be found, the summons may be served by leaving one of the duplicates for him with some adult male member of his family, or, in a Presidency-town, with his servant residing with him; and the person with whom the summons is so left shall, if so required by the serving officer, sign a receipt therefor on the back of the other duplicate.

Service when person summoned cannot be found.

S. 72 provides for the service of summons on a person in the service of the Government, or a Railway Company.

The mere showing of a summons is not sufficient service. Either the original should be left or exhibited, or a copy delivered or tendered. Karsandal Danatram, 5 Bomb., 20 Cv. Ca.

71. If the signature mentioned in sections 69 and 70 cannot by the exercise of due diligence be obtained, the serving officer shall affix one of the duplicates of the summons to some conspicuous part of the house or homestead in which the person summoned ordinarily resides; and thereupon the summons shall be deemed to have been duly served.

Procedure when receipt cannot be obtained.

72. Where the person summoned is in the active service of the Government or of a Railway Company, the Court issuing the summons shall ordinarily send it in duplicate to the head of the office in which such person is employed ; and such head shall thereupon cause the summons to be served in manner provided by section 69, and shall return it to the Court with the endorsement required by that section.

(S. 158 Proviso.)

The corresponding section of the repealed Code of 1872 made it optional with the Magistrate to make such special service. The present law declares that it shall be the ordinary mode of service in such cases.

Service should be made through the local head of the office ; thus, in the case of a Police-officer, summons should be served through the District Superintendent, or the Assistant District Superintendent in charge of the Subdivision to which the officer may belong. Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 14, Dec. 6, 1866. Wilkins, 98 : and in the case of a medical subordinate at a Subdivision, through the Magistrate or other executive head of the District in order to enable him, in communication with the Civil Surgeon, to make arrangements for the conduct of the medical duties. Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 1, Jan. 1, 1868. Wilkins, 98. Whenever it may be necessary to summon an Officer or Soldier in Military employ, the summons should be sent under cover to the officer in command of the Regiment or detachment with an application for his assistance to serve it. Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 24, June 24, 1878. Wilkins, 98.

B.—Warrant of Arrest.

75. Every warrant of arrest issued by a Court under this Code shall be in writing, signed by the presiding officer, or, in the case of a Bench of Magistrates, by any member of such Bench; and shall bear the seal of the Court.

Form of warrant of arrest.

Every such warrant shall remain in force until it is cancelled by the Court which issued it, or until it is executed.

Continuance of warrant of arrest.

See Sch. V, No. 2 for the form of a warrant of arrest.

Under the Court Fees Act, in non-cognizable cases, the following fees are chargeable on warrants:—in BENGAL and ASSAM, one rupee in respect of the arrest of one person (Cal. Gaz., 1879, p. 305: Assam Gaz., 1879, p. 596, Wilkins, 81:), and an additional fee of four annas is chargeable in respect of any person exceeding one named in a warrant (Cal. II. Ct. Cir. 13, May 12, 1874); in MADRAS, twelve annas (Gaz., August 5, 1873, p. 1255); but only half rates are chargeable in Madras if the process is to be executed within a radius of six miles from the Court-house; and it has further been ordered that, if the warrant remains unexecuted for fifteen days after its delivery to the officer entrusted with its execution, an additional fee of the same rate shall be levied for every fifteen days or portion of fifteen days until return is made, provided that such delay is not attributable to the officer of the Court. Magistrates may forego the collection of fees for the service of processes in non-cognizable cases, where the parties are unable to pay them.—Mad. Govt. Pro., Sept. 10, 1873, 9 Mad. Jur., 30. See note to S. 152, for the additional rates chargeable in certain districts and under certain circumstances in Bengal.

In BRITISH BURMAH the fee chargeable on a warrant of arrest in a non-cognizable case is two Rupees, the Magistrate having the power to remit the fee in any case for special reasons to be accorded.—Gaz., Sept. 27, 1873, p. 183.

In BOMBAY the fee chargeable on a warrant of arrest in a case under Chapters XIX, XX or XXI, Penal Code, is one rupee and in every other non-cognizable case four annas; in the last mentioned cases only, the Magistrate may remit the fee if he is satisfied that the complainant has not the means of paying it.—Gaz., 1874, p. 580.

Warrants issuing out of a Magistrate's Court should be written "in the language in ordinary use in the District in which it is held," that is to say (with certain exceptions) the language in which the proceedings of the several Courts are conducted. But where a warrant is sent for execution to the Magistrate of a District in which a different language is in ordinary use, the warrant should be accompanied by a translation, certified by the transmitting officer to be correct, into such other language or into English. In such cases it would also be proper that the warrant should always be accompanied by a letter in English requesting its execution.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 3, July 25, 1872.

Ch. VI.

Warrants should be signed with the full name and office of the Magistrate. Initials are no proper signature. Signature by stamp is prohibited.—Panj. C. Ct. Cir. 20, 1869.

The following observations were made by Sargent, J. (In re James Hastings, 9 Bom., 157), as to the necessity for sealing a warrant to ensure its validity, and certain particulars which should be specified therein:—

“Having regard to the opinion that has been generally entertained by the Judges in England that a seal was necessary at common law to the validity of a warrant, and that it is expressly provided by the Code of Criminal Procedure that a warrant shall be sealed, I should hesitate much before coming to the conclusion that a seal is not essential to the validity of a warrant issued under the Code. The reason for requiring a seal seems to be that the attaching of a seal shows that the instrument to which it is attached has not been issued without due deliberation, as well of course as to prove the authenticity of the instrument.”

“I think I am bound to follow the principle involved in the ruling of the Courts of England in Hood's case (1 Mood, Cr. Cas. 281), which is that a warrant shall contain a distinct and unequivocal intimation to the person that he is the individual in Court to be apprehended, and must surrender to the officers, and this too the more especially as the form of warrant provided in the Code requires that his residence should be inserted. The issuing of general warrants is, it is well known, illegal, and this though not, properly speaking, a general warrant which means a warrant to apprehend all persons committing a particular offence or class of offences, is however of such a general nature as to justify the Police in arresting any person of the name of James Hastings whoever he may be, or wherever he may be found, the number of persons to be arrested under it being limited only by the limit to the number of persons bearing that name. The warrant in this case is, in my opinion, far more general than was the warrant in Hood's case, and I am therefore of opinion that it is bad.”

The place where the Magistrate signs the warrant should appear on the face of it.—Ib., p. 160.

So in the Punjab it has been ordered that in all warrants and processes of every description, the father's name, the caste or tribe and the residence of the person to be arrested or summoned should be entered so as to place his identity beyond doubt. The warrant should also set forth the Court from which it issues and the name of the District.—Smith, p. 92.

Where it appeared that there was no sufficient evidence of the commission of an offence, since the criminal acts charged did not amount to an offence, without a certain specified intention, and that intention was not entered in the warrant, it was held that the warrant was bad and should be set aside.—Biddumukee Debee, 6 B. L. R., 129, App.

If the warrant be issued for the arrest of a European British subject

76. Any Court issuing a warrant for the arrest of any person may in its discretion direct by endorsement on the warrant that, if such person execute a bond with sufficient sureties for his attendance before the Court at a specified time and thereafter until otherwise directed by the Court, the officer to whom the warrant is directed shall take such security and shall release such person from custody.

Court may direct security to be taken.

The endorsement shall state (a) the number of sureties, (b) the amount in which they and the person for whose arrest the warrant is issued are to be respectively bound, and (c) the time at which he is to attend before the Court.

Whenever security is taken under this section, the officer to whom the warrant is directed shall forward the bond to the Court.

Recognizance to be forwarded.

Security may be provided by depositing a sum of money or Government Promissory Notes to the amount specified in the warrant. S. 513.

S. 170 provides for the taking of security by a Police-officer from an accused person for his appearance before a Magistrate whenever on investigation their appears to be reasonable ground of suspicion or sufficient evidence that he has committed a cognizable offence. S. 92 provides for the issue of a warrant of arrest if the person bound over to attend does not appear. Proceedings may also be taken to forfeit the bond. S. 514.

77. A warrant of arrest shall ordinarily be directed to one or more Police-officers, and, when issued by a Presidency Magistrate, shall always be so directed; but any other Court issuing such a warrant may, if its immediate execution is necessary and no Police-officer is immediately available, direct it to any other person or persons; and such person or persons shall execute the same.

Warrants to whom directed.

When a warrant is directed to more officers or persons than one, it may be executed by all, or by any one or more, of them.

Warrant to several persons.

(S. 161.)

S. 79 enables a Police-officer to whom a warrant is directed to endorse it for execution by another Police-officer. Ch. VI.

Warrants should be directed to the senior officer of Police in attendance at a Court, by whom they should be registered in a book kept for that purpose. He should then endorse on such warrant the name of the officer who is charged with its execution (generally the officer in charge of the Police Station), and should despatch it without delay. The officer receiving the warrant may again transfer it for execution to another Police-officer, but in every instance a regular endorsement must take place, so that the name of the officer executing the process may be apparent on the order.—Beng. Pol. Cir. 20, 1862; 12, 1864. Ss. 78, 79.

The Commanding officer of any Cantonment can send any process requiring service or execution by means not immediately within his power to the chief Police officer who is directed to act as if it had issued from the Cantonment Magistrate. Act III, 1880, S. 11.

division for the arrest of any escaped convict, proclaimed offender or person who has been accused of a non-bailable offence, and who has eluded pursuit.

Such landholder, farmer or manager shall acknowledge in writing the receipt of the warrant, and shall execute it if the person for whose arrest it was issued is in, or enters on, his land or farm, or the land under his charge.

When the person against whom such warrant is issued is arrested, he shall be made over with the warrant to the nearest Police-officer, who shall cause him to be taken before a Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, unless security is taken under section 76.

“Proclaimed offender.” S. 87 provides for the issue and publication of a proclamation for the appearance of any person against whom a warrant of arrest has been executed but cannot be executed. S. 54, Cl. ii, contemplates also a similar proclamation by order of the Local Government

The wilful neglect by a landholder or other person mentioned in S. 78 to execute a warrant directed to him, would be punishable under the latter part of S. 187, Penal Code, with simple imprisonment for six months, or fine of five hundred Rupees, or both.

Arrest is made by actually touching or confining the body of the person to be arrested, unless there be submission to custody by word or action. S. 46. The person making any arrest should have the warrant in his possession at the time of arrest, for if he has not got it, and the person to be arrested offers resistance, he cannot be convicted of resisting an officer in the execution of his duty. Codd v. Cabe, 1 Ex. D., 352.

The Government of India Regulation 206—3, June 20, 1877 has applied the terms of S. 72 ante to the execution of warrants for the arrest of a Railway servant. Such warrants should be directed to a Police-officer of a superior grade, who shall, if he finds on proceeding to execute it that the immediate arrest of the Railway servant would occasion risk and inconvenience to the public, make arrangements to prevent escape and apply to the proper quarter to have the accused relieved, deferring arrest until he is relieved. The Government orders were circulated by Bengal Pol. Cir., July 27, 1877.

is to be executed beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the same, he shall ordinarily take it for endorsement either to a Magistrate or to a Police-officer not below the rank of an officer in charge of a station, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the warrant is to be executed.

Such Magistrate or Police-officer shall endorse his name thereon, and such endorsement shall be sufficient authority to the Police-officer to whom the warrant is directed to execute the same within such limits, and the local police shall, if so required, assist such officer in executing such warrant.

Whenever there is reason to believe that the delay occasioned by obtaining the endorsement of the Magistrate or Police-officer within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the warrant is to be executed will prevent such execution, the Police-officer to whom it is directed may execute the same without such endorsement in any place beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which issued it.

This section applies to the police in the towns of Calcutta and Bombay.

C.—Proclamation and Attachment.

87. If any Court has reason to believe (whether after taking evidence or not) that any person against whom a warrant has been issued by it has absconded or is concealing himself so that such warrant cannot be executed, such Court may publish a written proclamation requiring him to appear at a specified place and at a specified time not less than thirty days from the date of publishing such proclamation.

The proclamation shall be published as follows :—

(a) it shall be publicly read in some conspicuous place of the town or village in which such person ordinarily resides ;

(b) it shall be affixed to some conspicuous part of the house or homestead in which such person ordinarily resides, or to some conspicuous place of such town or village ; and

(c) a copy thereof shall be affixed to some conspicuous part of the Court-house.

Ch. VI.

S. 88.

A statement by the Court issuing the proclamation to the effect that the proclamation was duly published on a specified day shall be conclusive evidence that the requirements of this section have been complied with, and that the proclamation was published on such day.

(Ss. 171, 353.)

See Sch. V, No. 4 for the form of proclamation for the appearance of a person accused, and No. 5 for the attendance of a witness.

In BOMBAY the fee for a proclamation is one Rupee, in cases falling under Chapters XIX, XX, XXI of the Penal Code, and in all other non-cognizable cases four annas. In the last-mentioned cases only the Magistrate may remit the fee if he is satisfied that the complainant has not the means of paying it.—Gaz., 1874, p. 580.

In BENGAL and ASSAM the fee for proclamation for an absconding party has been fixed at two Rupees: and for a witness at eight annas. Cal. Gaz., 1879, p. 304: Assam Gaz., 1879, p. 596. Wilkins, 81. If after proclamation an absent witness shall appear, and the Court shall be of opinion that such witness absconded or concealed himself for the purpose of avoiding the service of the warrant on him, such Court may order the witness to pay the costs of the proclamation.—Ibid.

In BRITISH BURMAH one Rupee has been fixed as the fee chargeable on a proclamation issued in a non-cognizable case, the Magistrate having the power to remit the fee for special reasons to be recorded.—Gaz., 1873, p. 197.

In BENGAL and ASSAM a fee of one Rupee is chargeable on a warrant of attachment, and when it is necessary to place officers in charge of property attached four annas per diem is chargeable for each officer so employed.—Cal. Gaz., 1879, p. 304: Assam Gaz., 1879, p. 596. Wilkins, p. 81.

If an accused person, against whom a warrant and proclamation have been issued, appears within the term specified in the proclamation, he is not liable to punishment under S. 172, Penal Code: but if he neglects to attend on the proclamation, he is liable to punishment under S. 174.—Omesh Chunder Bose, 5 W. R., 71.

The Magistrate of the District can under S. 78 direct a warrant or warrants to landholders, &c. for the arrest of any proclaimed offender, or person who has been accused of a non-bailable offence and who has eluded pursuit.

In BENGAL rewards for the apprehension of offenders may be offered at the following rates—by a District Superintendent of Police, up to Rs. 50: by the Inspector-General of Police, up to Rs. 500: by the District Magistrate, up to Rs. 200; by Commissioners up to Rs. 500. See Bengal Pol. Cir., Jan. 8, 1864: Cir. June 3, 1878.

88. The Court may, after issuing a proclamation under section 87, order the attachment of any property, moveable or immoveable, or both, belonging to the proclaimed person.

Attachment of property of person absconding.

Ch. VI.

S. 88.

Such order shall authorize the attachment of any property belonging to such person within the district in which it is made; and it shall authorize the attachment of any property belonging to such person without such district, when endorsed by the District Magistrate within whose district such property is situate.

If the property ordered to be attached be debts or other moveable property, the attachment under this section shall be made—

(a) by seizure; or

(b) by the appointment of a receiver; or

(c) by an order in writing prohibiting the delivery of such property to the proclaimed person or to any one on his behalf; or

(d) by all or any two of such methods, as the Court thinks fit.

If the property ordered to be attached be immovable, the attachment under this section shall, in the case of land paying revenue to Government, be made through the Collector of the District in which the land is situate, and in all other cases—

(e) by taking possession; or

(f) by the appointment of a receiver; or

(g) by an order in writing prohibiting the payment of rent or delivery of property to the proclaimed person or to any one on his behalf; or

(h) by all or any two of such methods, as the Court thinks fit.

The powers, duties and liabilities of a receiver appointed under this section shall be the same as those of a receiver appointed under Chapter XXXVI of the Code of Civil Procedure.

If the proclaimed person does not appear within the time specified in the proclamation, the property under attachment shall be at the disposal of Government; but it shall not be sold until the expiration of six months from the date of the attachment, unless it is subject to speedy and natural decay, or the Court considers that the sale would be for the benefit of the owner, in either of which cases the Court may cause it to be sold whenever it thinks fit.

See Sch. V, Form 6 for the form of orders of attachment.

The same fee is chargeable in BOMBAY on an attachment as on a proclamation.

In BENGAL and ASSAM one Rupee is charged for a warrant of attachment, and where it is necessary to place officers in charge of property attached, a daily fee of four annas is charged for each officer so employed. Cal. Gaz., 1879, p. 304: Assam Gaz., 1879, p. 596. Wilkins, 81.

If the property under attachment be a revenue paying estate the sale will be held by the Collector. Bengal Rev. Bd. Cir. No. 9, July 1878: Cal. H. Ct. Cir. No. 7, Aug. 17, 1878: Wilkins, 99.

Ch. VI.

S. 89.

89. If, within two years from the date of the attachment, any person whose property is or has been at the disposal of Government under the last paragraph of section 88 appears voluntarily or is apprehended and brought before the Court by whose order the property was attached, and proves to the satisfaction of such Court that he did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding execution of the warrant, and that he had not such notice of the proclamation as to enable him to attend within the time specified therein, such property, or, if the same has been sold, the nett proceeds of the sale, or if part only thereof has been sold, the nett proceeds of the sale and the residue of the property, shall, after satisfying thereout all costs incurred in consequence of the attachment, be delivered to him.

(Ss. 173, 354.)

A person whose application under S. 89 for the delivery of property or the proceeds of the sale thereof have been rejected has the right of appeal to the Court to which an appeal ordinarily lies. S. 405.

The maximum fine which may be imposed on an absconding witness is 1,000 rupees (S. 172, Penal Code), but regard must be had to the powers of the Magistrate passing the order.

A Magistrate fined a witness who failed to appear after proclamation and attachment of his property. The Sessions Judge, on appeal, reversed the order, on the ground that the appellant's answer to the charge should have been recorded, and that, not being so recorded, the fine was illegal. The Calcutta High Court declared that the Judge had taken a mistaken view of the law, for taking a witness's answer supposes that the man has made his appearance, whereas, as in the present case, if he did not come in, and his defence could not be recorded, he would escape punishment.—Rhedoy Nath Biswas, 2 W. R., 45.

The Magistrate should be most careful not to interfere with or disturb the possession of third persons; he has no authority to order the attachment of any property unless it belongs to the party absconding. The claimants are not barred by the sale, and may bring a suit in

- Ch. VI. the Civil Court against the purchasers to establish their rights. When claimants have held back for six months, a Magistrate possibly may be justified in presuming that the property was not theirs, leaving them to vindicate any right that they may have in the Civil Court. He may fairly say that he is not bound to try a question which is more properly one for the Civil Court.—Chamroo Roy, 7 W. R., 35 ; Chunder Bhon Singh, 17 W. R., 10.
- S. 90.

If the proceedings have been regularly conducted, a suit on the part of the absconding party will not lie.—Bakhowree Singh, 8 W. R., 207, Civil cases.

On his surrender he must be asked whether he absconded or concealed himself. Where the Magistrate failed to do this, the proceedings and sale were quashed as irregular.—Sheodyal Singh, 6 W. R., 79. It is for the accused person to show that he has not been evading justice. As he did not attempt to do so, the Magistrate was competent to declare his property to be at the disposal of Government, notwithstanding that through mistake or inadvertence such an order had not been passed, before his appearance within the six months specified in S. 88.—Bissonath Sircar, 3 W. R., 63.

D.—Other rules regarding processes.

90. A Court may, in any case in which it is empowered by this Code to issue a summons for the appearance of any person other than a juror or assessor, issue, after recording its reasons in writing, a warrant for his arrest—

(a) if, either before the issue of such summons, or after the issue of the same but before the time fixed for his appearance, the Court sees reason to believe that he has absconded or will not obey the summons ; or

(b) if at such time he fails to appear and the summons is proved to have been duly served in time to admit of his appearing in accordance therewith and no reasonable excuse is offered for such failure.

(S. 148, para. 2 ; Ss. 150, 156, 352, 355, 494, para. 1.)

Sch. V, No. 7 contains a form of warrant to be used under S. 90.

No fees are chargeable when the process is issued by a Court of its own motion solely for the purpose of taking cognizance of and punishing any act done, or words spoken, in contempt of its authority. Wilkins, 87.

Great care should be taken that a warrant which always implies personal arrest and restraint never goes forth when a summons would be sufficient for the ends of justice. Smyth, p. 92. Witnesses arrested under a warrant and brought before a Magistrate should not be treated as criminals, and put into irons ; they should be simply treated as

CHAPTER VII.

OF PROCESSES TO COMPEL THE PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS AND OTHER MOVEABLE PROPERTY AND FOR THE DISCOVERY OF PERSONS WRONGFULLY CONFINED.

A.—Summons to produce.

94. Whenever any Court, or, in any place beyond the limits of the towns of Calcutta and Bombay, any officer in charge of a Police-station, considers that the production of any document or other thing is necessary or desirable for the purposes of any investigation, inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code by or before such Court or officer, such Court may issue a summons, or such officer a written order, to the person in whose possession or power such document or thing is believed to be, requiring him to attend and produce it, or to produce it, at the time and place stated in the summons or order.

Any person required under this section merely to produce a document or other thing shall be deemed to have complied with the requisition if he cause such document or thing to be produced instead of attending personally to produce the same.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, sections 123 and 124, or to apply to a letter, post-card, telegram or other document in the custody of the Postal or Telegraph authorities.

A person summoned to produce a document does not become a witness by the mere fact that he produces it, and cannot be cross-examined unless or until he is called as a witness. Evidence Act (I, 1872), S. 139.

Ss. 123, 124 of the Indian Evidence Act 1872, relate to evidence derived from unpublished official records relating to affairs of State, and to communications made to a public officer in official confidence.

95. If any document in such custody is, in the opinion of any District Magistrate, Chief Presidency Magistrate, High Court or Court of Session, wanted for the purpose of any investigation, inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, such Magistrate or Court may require the Postal or Telegraph authorities, as the case may be, to deliver such document to such person as such Magistrate or Court directs.

Procedure as to letters

Ch. VII.
S. 96.

If any such document is, in the opinion of any other Magistrate, or of any Commissioner of Police or District Superintendent of Police, wanted for any such purpose, he may require the Postal or Telegraph Department, as the case may be, to cause search to be made for and to detain such document, pending the orders of any such District Magistrate, Chief Presidency Magistrate or Court.

(S. 369.)

B.—Search-warrants.

96. Where any Court has reason to believe that a person to whom a summons or order under section 94 or a requisition under section 95, paragraph one, has been or might be addressed will not or would not produce the document or other thing as required by such summons or requisition, or where such document or other thing is not known to the Court to be in the possession of any person, or where the Court considers that the purposes of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code will be served by a general search or inspection, it may issue a search-warrant; and the person to whom such warrant is directed may search or inspect in accordance therewith and the provisions hereinafter contained.

Nothing herein contained shall authorize any Magistrate, other than a District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate, to grant a warrant to search for a document in the custody of the Postal or Telegraph authorities.

(Ss. 336, 368, 369.)

If any person not being duly empowered on that behalf issues a search-warrant for a letter in the Post Office or a telegram in the Telegraph Department his proceedings are void (S. 530), that is to say, his orders will receive no attention.

Ch. VII. The provisions of Ss. 43, 75, 77, 79, 82, 83, 84 shall, so far as may be, apply to all search-warrants issued under this section. S. 101.

Ss. 97, 98.

97. The Court may, if it thinks fit, specify in the warrant the particular place or part thereof to which only the search or inspection shall extend; and the person charged with the execution of such warrant shall then search or inspect only the place or part so specified.

(S. 398, para. 2.)

Sch. V, No. 8 contains a form of warrant to search after information of a particular offence.

98. If a District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class, upon information and after such inquiry as he thinks necessary, has reason to believe that any place is used for the deposit or sale of stolen property, or for the deposit or sale or manufacture of forged documents, false seals or counterfeit stamps or coin, or instruments or materials for counterfeit coin or stamps or for forging, or that any forged documents, false seals or counterfeit stamps or coin, or instruments or materials used for counterfeiting coin or stamps or for forging, are kept or deposited in any place, he may by his warrant authorize any Police-officer above the rank of a constable—

(a) to enter, with such assistance as may be required, such place, and

(b) to search the same in manner specified in the warrant, and

(c) to take possession of any property, documents, seals, stamps or coins therein found which he reasonably suspects to be stolen, unlawfully obtained, forged, false or counterfeit, and also of any such instruments and materials as aforesaid, and

(d) to convey such property, documents, seals, stamps, coins, instruments or materials before a Magistrate, or to guard the same on the spot until the offender is taken before a Magistrate, or otherwise to dispose thereof in some place of safety, and

(e) to take into custody and carry before a Magistrate every person found in such place who appears to have been privy to the deposit, sale, or manufacture or keeping of any such property, documents, seals, stamps, coins, instruments or materials, knowing or having reasonable cause to suspect the said property to have been stolen or otherwise unlawfully obtained, or the said documents, seals, stamps, coins, instruments or materials to have been forged, falsified or counterfeited, or the said instruments or materials to have been or to be intended to be used for counterfeiting coin or stamps or for forging. *

Ch. VII.

Sch. V, No. 9 contains a form of warrant under S. 98.

The provisions of Ss. 43, 75, 77, 79, 82, 83 and 84 shall, so far as may be, apply to all search-warrants issued under this section. S. 101. Many of the expressions in S. 98 have special definitions in the Penal Code which apply equally to this Code.

STOLEN PROPERTY is thus defined in S. 410, Penal Code. Property, the possession whereof has been transferred by theft, or by extortion or by robbery, and property which has been criminally misappropriated, or in respect of which criminal breach of trust has been committed is designated "Stolen property." But if such property subsequently comes into the possession legally entitled to possession thereof, it ceases to be stolen property. See Act VIII of 1882.

"Theft," "extortion," "robbery," "criminal misappropriation," "criminal breach of trust" are also defined respectively in Ss. 378, 383, 390, 403, 405 of the Penal Code.

A FORGED DOCUMENT is a document made wholly or in part by forgery, S. 470, Penal Code, and S. 463 declares that whoever makes any false document or part of a document with intent to cause damage or injury to the public or any person, or to support any claim or title, or to cause any person to part with property, or to enter into any express or implied contract, or with intent to commit fraud or that fraud may be committed, commits forgery. "Making a false document" is defined by S. 464: "document" by S. 29; "public" by S. 12: "person" by S. 11: "injury" by S. 44, Penal Code.

COUNTERFEIT. A person is said to "counterfeit" who causes one thing to resemble another thing, intending by means of that resemblance to practice deception or knowing it to be likely that deception will thereby be practised. Explanation. It is not essential to counterfeiting that the deception should be exact. S. 28, Penal Code.

COIN is metal used for the time being as money and stamped and issued by the authority of some State or Sovereign Power in order to be used. Act XIX, 1872, S. 1: S. 280, Penal Code.

Ch. VII.

99. When, in the execution of a search-warrant at any place beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which issued the same, any of the things for which search is made are found, such things, together with the list of the same prepared under the provisions hereinafter contained, shall be immediately taken before the Court issuing the warrant, unless such place is nearer to the Magistrate having jurisdiction, therein than to such Court, in which case the list and things shall be immediately taken before such Magistrate; and, unless there be good cause to the contrary, such Magistrate shall make an order authorizing them to be taken to such Court.

(S. 373, para. 2; S. 374.)

C.—Discovery of persons wrongfully confined.

100. If any Presidency Magistrate, Magistrate of the first class or Sub-divisional Magistrate has reason to believe that any person is confined under such circumstances that the confinement amounts to an offence, he may issue a search-warrant, and the person to whom such warrant is directed may search for the person so confined; and such search shall be made in accordance therewith, and the person if found shall be immediately taken before a Magistrate, who shall make such order as in the circumstances of the case seems proper.

“Reason to believe.” A person is said to have reason to believe a thing if he has sufficient cause to believe that thing, but not otherwise. S. 26, Penal Code.

The definition of “wrongful confinement” is thus given in the Penal Code. Whoever voluntarily obstructs any person so as to prevent that person from proceeding in any direction in which that person has a right to proceed is said wrongfully to restrain that person (S. 339), and whoever wrongfully restrains any person in such a manner as to prevent that person from proceeding beyond certain circumscribing limits, is said wrongfully to confine that person. (S. 340.)

D.—General Provisions relating to searches.

101. The provisions of sections 43, 75, 77, 79, 82, 38 and 84 shall, so far as may be, apply to all search-warrants issued under section 96, section 98 or section 100.

(Ss. 370—373, para. 1; Ss. 375, 376.)

102. Whenever any place liable to search or inspection under this chapter is closed, any person residing in, or being in charge of, such place shall, on demand of the officer or other person executing the warrant and on production of the warrant, allow him free ingress thereto, and afford all reasonable facilities for a search therein. Ch. VII.
Ss. 102, 103.

If ingress into such place cannot be so obtained, the officer or other person executing the warrant may proceed in manner provided by section 48.

(Ss. 382, 383, 384.)

103. Before making a search under this chapter, the officer or other person about to make it shall call upon two or more respectable inhabitants of the locality in which the place to be searched is situate to attend and witness the search.

The search shall be made in their presence, and a list of all things seized in the course of such search and of the places in which they are respectively found shall be prepared by such officer or other person and signed by such witnesses, but no person witnessing a search under this section shall be required to attend the Court as a witness of the search unless specially summoned by it.

The occupant of the place searched, or some person in his behalf, shall, in every instance, be permitted to attend during the search, and a copy of the list prepared under this section, signed by the said witnesses, shall be delivered to such occupant or person at his request.

All search-warrants must be executed in daylight, i. e., between sunrise and sunset, unless there be special reasons demanding immediate search; but in such a case the reasons must be specially reported to the District Superintendent for the information of the Magistrate having jurisdiction.—Beng. Pol. Cir. 21, 1862.

The sending for shopkeepers selected arbitrarily by the Police and making them witnesses to the search of the houses of accused person is a fruitful source of oppression and extortion. It is difficult to prescribe rules for the selection of witnesses to the search of houses for stolen property, but District Superintendents can easily ascertain by

- Ch. VII. questioning the witnesses sent whether they have been unfairly selected, the respectable householder should not be summoned a second time until his neighbours have had their turn, unless good reason be given for their exemption. Suspected shopkeepers are just as liable to be summoned as other respectable inhabitants of a place.—Beng. Pol. Cir. 4, 1868.

S. 106.

E.—Miscellaneous.

104. Any Court may, if it thinks fit, impound any document or other thing produced before it under this Code.
(S. 367.)

105. Any Magistrate may direct a search to be made in his presence of any place for the search of which he is competent to issue a search-warrant.
(S. 378, para. 2.)

PART IV. PREVENTION OF OFFENCES.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF SECURITY FOR KEEPING THE PEACE AND FOR GOOD BEHAVIOUR.

A.—Security for keeping the Peace on Conviction.

106. Whenever any person accused of rioting, assault or other breach of the peace, or of abetting the same, or of assembling armed men or taking other unlawful measures with the evident intention of committing the same, or any person accused of committing criminal intimidation by threatening injury to person or property, is convicted of such offence before a High Court, a Court of Session or the Court of a Presidency Magistrate, a District Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class, and such Court is of opinion that it is necessary to require such person to execute a bond for keeping the peace,

Ch. VIII.
S. 106.

such Court may, at the time of passing sentence on such person, order him to execute a bond for a sum proportionate to his means, with or without sureties, for keeping the peace during such period, not exceeding three years, as it thinks fit to fix.

If the conviction is set aside on appeal or otherwise, the bond so executed shall become void.

(S. 489, para. 1; Ss. 490, 493, para. 1.)

Sch. V. No. 10 contains a form of bond to keep the peace.

Bonds in criminal cases are exempt from Stamp duty, Court Fees Act (VII, 1870) S. 19, Cl. xv. Sch. II, Art. 6 further declares that bail bonds and other instruments of obligation, not otherwise provided for by that Act, when given by direction of any Court shall bear a stamp fee of eight annas.

The words "or any person accused of committing criminal intimidation by threatening injury to person or property" are new and have been introduced in consequence of the judgment of Straight, J. in the case of Raghubar, I. L. R., 2 All, 351. It should be noted that these words do not express all the acts that amount to the offence of criminal intimidation as defined in S. 503, Penal Code, as "injury to reputation" is not specified in section 106.

The Calcutta High Court has refused to set aside an order requiring security to keep the peace on conviction of criminal trespass (not one of the offences specified in S. 106) on the ground that the conduct of the party bound over, as shown in the evidence on the trial, indicated an intention to commit a breach of the peace. Gendoo Khan, 7 W. R., 14; Jhapoo and others, 20 W. R., 37.

If a Magistrate of the second or third class requires a bond to be executed under S. 103 his proceedings are void (S. 530) but if, at the conclusion of the trial, he should be of opinion that the convict should also execute a bond to keep the peace as provided by S. 106 he should record his opinion to that effect and forward the accused to the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate to whom he is subordinate who can pass such order as he may think fit and as is according to law. S. 349.

If the person required to give security under S. 106 is under sentence of imprisonment, the period for which security is required will commence on expiration of that sentence (S. 120), and if the conviction and sentence are set aside on appeal, "the bond so executed shall become void," S. 106 (The order would become incapable of being enforced by requiring a bond to be executed.) S. 123 provides for the course to be taken if security is not given "on or before the date from which the period for which such security is to be given commences."

Under S. 106 which does not reproduce the last para. of S. 489 of the Code of 1872 it would seem that security to keep the peace

- Ch VIII. in consequence of proceedings on a criminal trial can be taken only by a Court before which the case may come judicially, either as a Court of first instance or of appeal, or in the case of a Magistrate on a reference by a subordinate Magistrate under S. 349 as already explained. See Bebheki Pathak, 21 W. R., 12.
- S. 107.

The difference between the procedure necessary in order to require security under S. 106 and under Ss. 107, 108 should be noted. In the former case, the order can be passed on conviction of any of certain specified offences; in the latter, formal proceedings must be taken, summons in the first instance being issued and evidence taken as in trials in summary cases, (S. 117), to prove that it is necessary for keeping the peace that the person summoned should execute a bond with or without sureties. The reason for the difference is obvious. In the one case the Magistrate has adjudicated on the evidence on the trial in the presence of the person to be bound over, that facts are established requiring security because he has convicted the accused of a breach of the peace or an intention to commit a breach of the peace, whereas in the other case the Magistrate proceeds on information, the value which must be tested in the presence of the person concerned who should also have an opportunity of showing that it is not reliable. In the matter of Umda Khanum, 3 Cal. L. R., 72; Raja Run Bahadoor Singh, 22 W. R., 79.

Although an order requiring security to keep the peace is not appealable, the District Magistrate may, at any time, for sufficient reasons to be recorded in writing, cancel any bond executed by the order of any Court not superior to his Court. S. 125. And a similar provision is made (S. 124) for the release of any person imprisoned on failure to give security, report to be made if such order was passed by a Court of Session or High Court.

B.—Security for keeping the Peace in other Cases and Security for Good Behaviour.

107. Whenever a Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, or Magistrate of the first class receives information that any person is likely to commit a breach of the peace, or to do any wrongful act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace, within the local limits of such Magistrate's jurisdiction, or that there is within such limits a person who is likely to commit a breach of the peace or do any wrongful act as aforesaid in any place beyond such limits, the Magistrate may, in manner hereinafter provided, require such person to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond, with or without sureties, for keeping the peace for such period not exceeding one year as the Magistrate thinks fit to fix.
(Ss. 491, 502, last para.)

The jurisdiction of the Magistrate should be noted. He may take proceedings to require security from a person likely to break the peace within his local jurisdiction, or from a person who is within his jurisdiction and is likely to commit a breach of the peace beyond it. The terms of the bond would be general so that it could be enforced on breach of its conditions in any part of British India. See S. 121 post.

The summons to show cause would be in the form prescribed by Schedule V, No. 12.

If a Magistrate not duly empowered in that behalf demands security to keep the peace, his proceedings are void. S 530 (j)

Inasmuch as the order to be made under S. 112, copy of which is to be delivered to the person summoned to show cause, should set forth the substance of the information received on which proceedings have been taken, the Magistrate should terminate the proceedings by refusing to pass any further order if he finds that that information is unfounded. The party summoned should not be called upon to furnish security on a perfectly distinct ground from that on which the proceedings were started without being afforded anew a full and complete opportunity of meeting and answering any further ground which in any sufficient way may have arisen for still suspecting that he was likely to commit a breach of the peace. Ram Kishen Acharjee Chowdhry, 21 W. R., 6.

It must appear, on the face of the Magistrate's order, that he has received credible information that the persons ordered to enter into their recognizances were likely to commit a breach of the peace, or to do an act that might probably occasion a breach of the peace.—Bire-shuree Prashad, 6 W. R., 93.

When a person appears before a Magistrate and swears that he is in fear of his life on account of the conduct of a person named, the Magistrate is competent to consider such to be credible information within the terms of S. 107, and may act thereupon (Tarinee Kant Lahory, 8 W. R., 79; Krishtendro Roy, 7 W. R., 30); but a mere petition, unsupported by any definite complaint or deposition on solemn affirmation, and which did not state that there was any probability of a breach of the peace, was held not to amount to credible information.—Chamaro Malo, 8 W. R., 85.

The report of a Subordinate Magistrate is credible information, upon which the Magistrate of the District is competent to act—Nellikel Edaththil Itti Pungy Achen, 2 Mad., 240; also the report of a Police officer—Bindabun Shaha, 10 W. R., 41.

The report of a Subordinate Magistrate, though it is credible information on which a Magistrate can issue a summons under S. 107, is not evidence on which he can arrive at a conclusion that the parties are likely to commit a breach of the peace—Napa bin Basapi, Bom. H. C., November 23, 1871; nor is a Police report legal evidence—Obhaya Chowdry, 6 B. L. R., 118, 4pp.

The act of which information is given and in respect of which security is required must be an act shown to have been in contemplation at the time the information was given, and not merely one a repetition of which may be apprehended from past misconduct of the kind without anything further. Thus the fact that certain persons were constantly creating disturbances in certain bazars is insufficient ground. Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Aug. 29, 1876. Weir, 298.

Ch. VIII.

S. 107.

Ch. VIII. The law now expressly declares that the act which may probably occasion a breach of the peace must be a wrongful act. This is in accordance with the opinion expressed in Kashi Chuander Dass, 19 W R., 47, where security was taken from a man who was building a wall on his own land merely because his neighbour objected to it on the ground that the droppings from that wall would probably fall on the thatch of his house and injure it, and a breach of the peace was consequently anticipated. ~~The High Court~~ held that it was never intended that a person should be prevented by a Magistrate from exercising his rights of property because another person is likely to commit a breach of the peace if he did so.

Similarly where a Ticcadar applied to the Police for protection while attaching the crops of ryots for arrears of rent, it was held that because a breach of the peace was likely to ensue was insufficient ground for requiring him to give security. In re Sheo Churn Lall, 3 Cal. L. R., 80.

108. When any Magistrate not empowered to proceed under section 107, or a Court of Session or High Court, has reason to believe that any person is likely to commit a breach of the peace or to do any wrongful act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace, and that such breach of the peace cannot be prevented otherwise than by detaining such person in custody, such Magistrate or Court may issue a warrant for his arrest (if he is not already in custody or before the Court), and may send him before a Magistrate empowered to deal with the case under section 107.

A Magistrate before whom a person is sent under this section may in his discretion detain such person in custody until the completion of the inquiry herein-after prescribed.

(S. 494 Proviso.)

Security for good behaviour for vagrants and suspected persons.

(a) that any person is taking precautions to conceal his presence within the local limits of such Magistrate's jurisdiction, and that there is reason to believe that such person is taking such precautions with a view to committing an offence, or

(b) that there is within such limits a person who has no ostensible means of subsistence, or who cannot give a satisfactory account of himself, such Magistrate may, in manner hereinafter provided, require such person to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond, with sureties, for his good behaviour for such period not exceeding six months as the Magistrate thinks fit to fix.

(S. 504, paras. 1 and 4; S. 515, para. 2.)

Schedule V, No. 11 contains the form of bond for good behaviour.

If a Magistrate not duly empowered in that behalf demands security for good behaviour, his proceedings are void. S. 530 (d).

An officer in charge of a Police-station can without warrant arrest any person conducting himself in the manner described by S. 109 (S. 55) and he can also by an order in writing direct any Police-officer to arrest such a person. (S. 56.)

Proceedings taken under S. 109 should be quite irrespective of any proceedings on account of any offence committed. 1 W. R. 14, C. L. : Shunder Bhim, Bomb. H. Ct. Sept. 17, 1869.

Proceedings should not be taken against more than one person in each case. The character of each person should form the subject of a separate inquiry. The evidence against one should not be mixed up with evidence against another. By such a course of proceeding there must be considerable danger of a man being prejudiced. In re Koikot Noshyo and another, Cal. H. Ct. June 14, 1877. See also Mad. H. Ct. Pro. March 17, 1863. Weir, 299.

110. Whenever a Presidency Magistrate, District

Security for good behaviour from habitual offender.

Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government receives information that any person within the local limits of his jurisdiction is an habitual robber, house-breaker or thief, or an habitual receiver of stolen property knowing the same to have been stolen, or that he habitually commits extortion, or in order to the committing of extortion habitually puts or attempts to put persons in fear of injury, such Magistrate may, in manner hereinafter provided, require such person to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond, with sureties, for his good behaviour for such period not exceeding three years as the Magistrate thinks fit to fix.

(Ss. 505, 506.)

If a Magistrate not duly empowered in that behalf demands security for good behaviour, his proceedings are void. S. 530, (d).

Sch. V, No. 11 gives a form of bond for good behaviour.

The object of this provision of the law is the prevention not the punishment of crime, and with that object it authorizes a Magistrate to

Ch. VIII.

S. 110.

- Ch. VIII. require from particular persons good and sufficient security for their good behaviour. But it is only for the purpose of securing future good
 S. 110. behaviour that this power should be used Any attempt for the purpose of punishing for past offences is wrong and not sanctioned by law. Umbica Prashad, 1 Cal. L. R., 268.

Because a person is by no means a reputable character is no sufficient ground for requiring him to furnish security for good behaviour. Kala-chand Dass, 1 L. R., 6 Cal., 14.

Where the charge upon which a person is tried is one of injury to the person, a Magistrate cannot require security for good behaviour on the ground that the accused is a person of violent or dangerous character. S. 110 solely relates to the calling upon persons of habitually dishonest lives, and in that sense "desperate or dangerous," to find security for good behaviour, as a protection to the public against repetition of crimes by them in which the safety of property is menaced and not the security of the person alone is jeopardised. The mere fact of a previous conviction or previous convictions of offences involving dishonesty is not sufficient to justify the putting in force the powers of S. 110 unless there is some additional evidence to show that the person complained against has done some act or resumed avocations that indicate on his part an intention to return to his former course of life and to pursue a career of preying upon the community. The greatest thief is entitled to a locus penitentie, when he has served out his punishment; it is only when he outrages that grace which is extended to him, and thereby shows that he is unreformed, that the machinery of the Code should be brought into operation, in order to obtain a substantial guarantee for society that he will not commit further depredations upon it. Nawab, 1 L. R., 2 All., 835; see also Narain Soobadhee, 6 W. R., 6. Haidrali J.L.R. 520.

Proceedings under S. 110 should not be taken while the person against whom they are directed is under trial for an offence committed by him as such a course is likely to prejudice him very seriously on his trial. The Calcutta High Court in the case of Umbica Prashad and another, 1 Cal. L. R., 268 strongly condemned such proceedings. In that case Umbica Prashad was committed on a charge of "receiving" (S. 411. Penal Code) and bail was refused by the Magistrate. On a motion made to it, the High Court ordered bail to be taken out. Before Umbica Prashad could reach his house, proceedings under S. 110 were instituted although at the same time his trial for a criminal offence was pending. He was required to give security for good behaviour or on default to suffer rigorous imprisonment, and on being committed for trial by the Court of Session was acquitted of the charge of dishonestly receiving stolen property. The order requiring security for good behaviour was set aside, the High Court observing that when, in the case of a man who has never been convicted of any offence, the Magistrate orders that security shall be given of a description which it is necessarily difficult to find and directs that in default of giving the security, the imprisonment shall be rigorous, the Magistrate has exercised his discretion in a manner wholly unreasonable and bad, and more especially when he indicates no reason why with a view to the prisoner's future good behaviour it is desirable that the imprisonment shall be of the more severe kind. The proceedings either were illegal and wrongly instituted for the sole purpose of securing at all hazards the punishment of the petitioner, or there was an utter and fatal want of discretion in their institution and in the order made. Ch. VIII.

After the expiration of the term of security, a second security cannot be demanded except on some new proof of bad livelihood, or that the person is not capable of following an honest calling. If, on being set at liberty, he should return to his former course of life, and it appears that he continues to be a person of such a character whom it is dangerous to the community to have at large, he may be brought before a Magistrate, and after evidence of his proceedings has been laid before such officer, a further order may be passed requiring him to give first security.—Sheikh Himayat, Cal H. Ct., July 29, 1862; Juswunt Singh, G W. R., 18; Danee, 4 Panj. Rec., 72.

111. The provisions of sections 109 and 110 do not apply to European British subjects in cases where they may be dealt with under the European Vagrancy Act, 1874. (S. 517.)

Proviso as to European vagrants.

Any Police-officer may within the limits of the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay require any person who is apparently a vagrant to accompany him or any other Police-officer to, and to appear before, the nearest Magistrate of Police; and may, without those limits, require any such person to accompany him or any other Police-officer to, and to appear before, the nearest Justice of the Peace exercising the powers of a Magistrate of the first class under the Code of Criminal Procedure. The European Vagrancy Act, (IX of 1874,) S. 4. A vagrant is defined to be a person of European extraction found asking for alms, or wandering about without any employment or visible means of subsistence.

Any European British subject, who upon the summary inquiry mentioned in section 5 (of the European Vagrancy Act 1874), has been determined to be a vagrant, or who has been convicted under section twenty-two or section twenty-three, shall, so long as he remains in India, be subject beyond the limits of the said towns to the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure (other than those contained in Chapter XXXVIII, now Chapter VIII of the same Code) applicable to an European not being a British subject. S. 30, Act IX of 1874. S. 22 refers to the conviction of a person who having entered into an agreement that he will not return to India for five years breaks that agreement and S. 23 to persons of European extraction asking for alms.

112. When a Magistrate acting under section 107, section 109 or section 110 deems it necessary to require any person to show cause under such section, he shall make an order in writing, setting forth the substance of the information received, the amount of the bond to be executed, the term for which it is to be in force, and the number, character and class of sureties (if any) required.

Order to be made.

(Ss. 492, 509, para. 1; S. 515, para. 1.)

Ch. VIII. S. 107 refers to security to keep the peace; Ss. 109, 110 to security for good behaviour.

S. 112. The Code of 1872, now repealed, required that these matters should be set forth in the summons. S. 112 of this Code directs that they shall be set forth in an order in writing made by the Magistrate. S. 115 requires that every summons or warrant issued in proceedings under this chapter shall be accompanied by a copy of this order which shall be delivered at the time of service of the summons or execution of the warrant of arrest.

The directions of the law in this respect should be carefully complied with, but an omission, unless it has prejudiced the party summoned, would not vitiate an order requiring security. Koonj Behari Chowdhry, 15 W. R., 43. But in the case of Abdoor Bari, 25 W. R., 50, it was held that unless this and other necessary particulars were stated in the summons, so as to give the party an opportunity to show cause, no order for security can be passed. (If any such irregularity has been committed it can easily be cured by proceeding under S. 113 and by giving the person concerned time to defend himself.)

For the expression "description of sureties" in the corresponding section (509) of the Code of 1872, S. 112 of this Code has substituted "character and class of sureties."

The sureties required need not necessarily be residents of the District. The Magistrate is not competent to reject as an unfit person a surety offered merely because he resides in another District, and more especially when his order does not place any limit with regard to the description of the sureties required; undue and unnecessary difficulties cannot be legally thrown in the way of persons attempting to furnish the required sureties. In re Sant Belas Singh, Cal. H. Ct., March 29, 1879.

A Magistrate required the sureties to be persons of "respectability and substance not related to him and residing within one mile of his house." It was found on inquiry that no person of respectability lived within that area. The High Court found that security should be demanded, but expunged the condition, remarking that the law does not enable a Magistrate to impose arbitrary conditions not essential to the object in view, viz., to restrain a party from infringement of the law, still less impossible conditions. To make such an order was equivalent to saying that the prisoner shall not furnish any security at all, but must go to jail.—Narain Soobhoo, 22 W. R., 37.

An order directing a person as security to "pledge all his proprietary rights in land worth Rs. 200" was held to be an improper order. As long as the security is good and sufficient, and the sureties are of a satisfactory character and class, they cannot be rejected. In re Ganni, All. H. Ct., 1875, p. 249

The following rule has been passed in British Burmah on this subject—

The Courts will reject as sureties all officials of the Courts and any relations of such officials, except in a case where they may be nearly related to or near neighbours of the persons called upon to give security.

The Courts will also reject as sureties all persons who the Court knows, or has reason so believe, are making a profession of becoming sureties for others in consideration of payment.

The officials of all Courts are prohibited, under pain of dismissal from receiving any commission on the amount of the surety bond in cases when they are admitted as sureties.—British Burmah Gaz., 1873, Ch. VIII. Part XII, p. 3.

✓ In fixing the amount of security, a Magistrate should consider the station of life of the person concerned, and should not go beyond a sum for which there is a fair probability of his being able to find security. The imprisonment is provided as a protection to society against the perpetration of crime by the individual and not as a punishment for a crime committed, and being made conditional on default of finding security, it is only just and reasonable that the individual should be afforded a fair chance at least of complying with the required condition of security.—4 Mad. xlv., App. Pro., April 16, 1869, Weir, 301. This has been quoted with approval by the Calcutta High Court in the case of In re Dedar Bukhsh and others, 1 Cal. L. R., 95; (S. C.) I. L. R., 1 Cal., 384, in which also it was held that where prima facie the amount of security required seems excessive and unreasonable the High Court is competent to call upon the Magistrate to state the grounds on which he paid that amount.

113. If the person in respect of whom such order is made is present in Court, it shall be read over to him, or, if he so desires, the substance thereof shall be explained to him.
(S. 492, Expl.)

This course should be taken whenever as in the case of Ram Kishen Acharjee Chowdhry, 21 W. R., 6 (See note to S. 107 ante) the information on which proceedings were originally taken is found to be unreliable or groundless, and facts subsequently transpire on which the Magistrate considers he should proceed.

114. If such person is not present in Court, the Magistrate shall issue a summons requiring him to appear, or, when such person is in custody, a warrant directing the officer in whose custody he is to bring him, before the Court :

Summons or warrant in case of person not so present.

Provided that, whenever it appears to such Magistrate, upon the report of a Police-officer or upon other information (the substance of which report or information shall be recorded by the Magistrate), that there is reason to fear the commission of a breach of the peace, and that such breach of the peace cannot be prevented otherwise than by the immediate arrest of such person, the Magistrate may at any time issue a warrant for his arrest.

(Ss. 494, 515, para. 1.)

Ch VIII.

Ss 115
—117.Copy of order under section 112 to accompany summons or warrant.

115. Every summons or warrant issued under section 114 shall be accompanied by a copy of the order made under section 112, and such copy shall be delivered by the officer serving or executing such summons or warrant to the person served with, or arrested under, the same.

The serving officer in certifying service should also certify delivery of the copy of the order. Ss. 70, 71 provide for the service of summons.

116. The Magistrate may, if he sees sufficient cause, dispense with the personal attendance of any person called upon to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond for keeping the peace, and may permit him to appear by a pleader.

(S. 495.)

Pleader in any proceeding under this Code before any Criminal Court means a pleader authorized under any law for the time being in force to practise in such Court and includes (1) an advocate, a vakil and an attorney of the High Court so authorized and (2) any mukhtar or other person appointed with the permission of the Court to act in such proceeding. S. 4 (n).

117. When an order under section 112 has been read or explained under section 113, to a person present in Court, or when any person appears or is brought before a Magistrate in compliance with, or in execution of, a summons or warrant issued under section 114, the Magistrate shall proceed to inquire into the truth of the information upon which he has acted, and to take such further evidence as may appear necessary.

Such inquiry shall be made as nearly as may be practicable, where the order requires security for keeping the peace, in the manner hereinafter prescribed for conducting trials in summons-cases; and where the order requires security for good behaviour, in the manner hereinafter prescribed for conducting trials in warrant-cases, except that no charge need be framed.

For the purposes of this section the fact that a person is an habitual offender may be proved by evidence of general repute or otherwise.

This section practically reproduces S. 491, Expl. 1 of the Code of 1872 which declared that a Magistrate cannot bind over a person until he has adjudicated on evidence before him. S. 117 of this Code requires the Magistrate to "proceed to inquire into the truth of the information upon which he has acted," that is, has passed the order under S. 112 and issued process for the attendance of the particular person. An opportunity should obviously be afforded to that person of disproving the truth of the information by cross-examination of the witnesses or by offering evidence on his own part.

Ch. VIII.

S. 117.

When the Magistrate who has commenced proceedings under this chapter has vacated office, his successor may continue them, but the party summoned or arrested may insist on having all the witnesses examined de novo. Baroda Kant Roy, 4 Cal. L. R., 452. See S. 350 post.

If witnesses are cited for the defence the law, (S. 244) in summons cases, leaves it to the discretion of the Magistrate, on application made, to issue process to compel the attendance of any witness, but he may before summoning any witness on such application require that his reasonable expenses incurred in attending for the purposes of the trial be deposited in Court.

A similar provision is made for the deposit of the expenses of witnesses in warrant cases (S. 257) but the Magistrate is not bound to issue such process unless he considers that such application should be refused on the ground that it is made for the purpose of vexation or delay, or for defeating the ends of justice, such ground being recorded in writing.

In summons cases it has been held that "under ordinary circumstances a Magistrate is bound to arrest both parties in bringing in their witnesses by issuing summons to attend." Cheyt Singh, 22 W. R., 70.

An inquiry should be conducted with due attention to the ordinary forms of justice. The party defendant should have every opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses produced against him, of making his own statements, and of calling witnesses on his own behalf. But evidence of character, good or bad, should be general not particular, it being of course of use to the other side to cross-examine as to particulars as to the party may seem necessary or prudent. It is for the presiding Magistrate in his discretion to put such questions to the witnesses on either side as he considers needed to inform his own conscience. Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Nov. 3, 1868, Weir, 300.

It is not sufficient for the Magistrate to say that there is suspicion. He should distinctly explain to the defendant what is proved against him. He should not put the defendant into hajut or close custody pending the final hearing. The fact that an officer in charge of the Police-station can arrest without a warrant, does not justify such an order, for a Magistrate is not competent to refuse bail unless the law specially sanctions such refusal, and when the Magistrate, by his final order has no power to commit the person to jail except on his failure to give recognizances or security he must do so in the like manner pending inquiry. Kookur Singh, 1 Cal. L. R., 130.

With reference to the last para. of S. 117 the terms of S. 54 of the Evidence Act should be borne in mind :—In criminal proceedings the fact that the accused person has been previously convicted of a criminal offence is relevant; but the fact that he has a bad character is

- Ch. VIII. irrelevant, unless evidence has been given that he has a good character, in which case it becomes relevant. Explanation. This section does not apply to cases in which the bad character of any person is itself the fact in issue. S. 54, Act 1, 1872, Evidence Act.
- S. 118.

Although where witnesses are examined as to general character, their testimony is not of much value as to the habits of a suspected person, unless they can in support of their opinion adduce instances of the misconduct imputed, when the question is only as to his repute the evidence of witnesses, if reliable, is not without value, though they may not be able to convict the accused person with the actual commission of crime. In re Pedda Swa Reddi and another, I. L. R., 3 Mad., 238.

118. If upon such inquiry, it is proved that it is necessary for keeping the peace or maintaining good behaviour, as the case may be, that the person in respect of whom the inquiry is made should execute a bond, with or without sureties, the Magistrate shall make an order accordingly :

Provided—

first—that no person shall be ordered to give security of a nature different from, or of an amount larger than, or for a period longer than, that specified in the order made under section 112 :

secondly—that the amount of every bond shall be fixed with due regard to the circumstances of the case and shall not be excessive :

thirdly—that when the person in respect of whom the inquiry is made is a minor, the bond shall be executed only by his sureties.

(S. 497.)

An order passed by any Magistrate other than the District Magistrate or Presidency Magistrate is appealable. S. 406.

In fixing the amount of security, a Magistrate should consider the station of life of the person concerned, and should not go beyond a sum for which there is a fair probability of his being able to find security. The imprisonment is provided as a protection to society against the perpetration of crime by the individual and not as a punishment for a crime committed, and being made conditional on default of finding security, it is only just and reasonable that the individual should be afforded a fair chance at least of complying with the required condition of security.—4 Mad. xlv., App. Pro., April 26, 1869, Weir, 301. Approved and followed In re Dedar Bukhsh, 1 Cal. L. R., 95. (S. C.) I. L. R. 1 Cal., 384.

If in fixing the amount of the sureties, the Magistrate appears to have exercised no discretion at all, or has exercised his discretion in a manner wholly unreasonable, the High Court, as a Court of Revision, will interfere. Juggut Chunder Chuckerbutty, 1 Cal. L. R., 48. When prima facie the amount of security required seems excessive and unreasonable the High Court is competent to call upon the Magistrate to state the grounds on which he fixed that amount. In re Dedar Bukhsh and others, 1 Cal. L. R., 95 : (S. C.) I. L. R., 1 Cal., 384.

Although in the case of a minor the bond shall be executed only by his sureties, he should appear and defend the case himself or if his attendance is excused by his pleader.

When any person is required by any Court or officer to execute a bond with or without sureties, such Court or officer may, except in the case of a bond for good behaviour, permit him to deposit a sum of money or Government Promissory Notes to such amount as the Court or officer may fix in lieu of executing such bond. S. 513. S. 514 lays down the procedure for forfeiture of a bond.

119. If, on an inquiry under section 117, it is not proved that it is necessary for keeping the peace or maintaining good behaviour, as the case may be, that the person in respect of whom the inquiry is made should execute a bond, the Magistrate shall make an entry on the record to that effect, and, if such person is in custody only for the purposes of the inquiry, shall release him, or, if such person is not in custody, shall discharge him.

The terms of S. 119 would not justify a detention in custody except on failure to furnish the bail required. See In re Kookur Singh, 1 Cal. L. R. 130 quoted in note to S. 118.

In other cases such period shall commence on the date of such order.

This is of course quite irrespective of the power of the District Magistrate as an Appellate Court under S. 406.

Sch. V, No. 15 gives the form of warrant to discharge a person imprisoned on failure to give security.

On such application being made, the Magistrate shall issue his summons or warrant, as he thinks fit, requiring the person for whom such surety is bound to appear or to be brought before him.

When such person appears or is brought before the Magistrate, such Magistrate shall cancel the bond, and shall order such person to give, for the unexpired portion of the term of such bond, fresh security of the same description as the original security. Every such order shall, for the purposes of sections 121, 122, 123 and 124, be deemed to be an order made under section 106 or section 118, as the case may be.

CHAPTER IX.

UNLAWFUL ASSEMBLIES.

127. Any Magistrate or officer in charge of a Police-station may command any unlawful assembly, or any assembly of five or more persons likely to cause a disturbance of the public peace, to disperse; and it shall thereupon be the duty of the members of such assembly to disperse accordingly.

This section applies to the police in the towns of Calcutta and Bombay.

(S. 480.)

An assembly of five or more persons is designated an "unlawful assembly" if the common object of the persons composing that assembly is—

First.—To overawe by criminal force, or show of criminal force, the Legislature or Executive Government of India, or the Government of any Presidency, or any Lieutenant-Governor, or any public servant, in the exercise of the lawful power of such public servant; or

Second.—To resist the execution of any law or of any legal process; or Third.—To commit any mischief or criminal trespass, or other offence; or Fourth.—By means of criminal force or show of criminal force, to any person, to take or obtain possession of any property, or to deprive any person of the enjoyment of a right of way, or of the use of water or other incorporeal right of which he is in possession or enjoyment, or to enforce any right or supposed right;—

Fifth.—By means of criminal force, or show of criminal force, to compel any person to do what he is not legally bound to do, or to omit to do what he is legally bound to do.

Explanation.—An assembly which was not unlawful when it assembled, may subsequently become an unlawful assembly. S. 141, Penal Code. Any person who being aware of facts which render any assembly an unlawful assembly, intentionally joins that assembly, or continues in it, is said to be a member of an unlawful assembly. S. 142.

The offence of being a member of an unlawful assembly is a cognizable offence and therefore under S. 54 of this Code any Police officer, may, without orders from a Magistrate, and without a warrant, arrest any person who is concerned in such offence, or against whom a complaint has been made or credible information has been received, or a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been a member of such assembly.

Being a member of an unlawful assembly is punishable with imprisonment, rigorous or simple, for a term not exceeding six months, or with fine or both, S. 143; and joining or continuing in an unlawful assembly, knowing that it has been commanded under S. 127 of this Code

Ch. IX. to disperse, is punishable with imprisonment, rigorous or simple, for a term not exceeding two years, or with fine, or both. S. 144, Penal Code.

Ss. 128, 129. If any part of the country be in a disturbed or dangerous state, it is lawful for the Inspector-General of Police, with the sanction of the Local Government to be notified by proclamation in the Government Gazette, and in such other manner as the Local Government shall direct, to employ any Police Force in excess of the ordinarily fixed complement to be quartered therein. The inhabitants of that part of the country will be charged with the cost of such additional Police Force, and the Magistrate of the District is to assess the proportion to be paid by them.—Act V, 1861, S. 15.

S. 17 of the same Act enacts that when it shall appear that any unlawful assembly or riot or disturbance of the peace has taken place, or may be reasonably apprehended, and that the Police Force ordinarily employed for preserving the peace is not sufficient for its preservation and for the protection of the inhabitants and the security of the property in the place where such unlawful assembly, or riot, or disturbance of the peace has occurred, or is apprehended, it shall be lawful for any Police officer not below the rank of Inspector, to apply to the nearest Magistrate to appoint so many of the residents of the neighbourhood as such Police officer may require to act as special Police officers for such time and within such limits as he shall deem necessary; and the Magistrate to whom such application is made shall, unless he see cause to the contrary, comply with the application.

128. If, upon being so commanded, any such assembly does not disperse, or if, without being commanded, it conducts itself in such a manner as show a determination not to disperse, any Magistrate or officer in charge of a Police-station, whether within or without the Presidency-towns, may proceed to disperse such assembly by force, and may require the assistance of any male person, not being an officer or soldier in Her Majesty's Volunteers Act, 1869, and acting as such, for the purpose of dispersing such assembly, and, if necessary, arresting and confining the persons who form part of it, in order to disperse such assembly or that they may be punished according to law.

Every person is bound to assist a Magistrate or Police officer personally demanding his aid in the prevention of a breach of the peace or in the suppression of a riot or affray. S. 42.

129. If any such assembly cannot be otherwise dispersed, and if it is necessary for the public security that it should be dispersed, the Magistrate of the highest rank who is present may cause it to be dispersed by military force. (S. 482.)

Duty of officer commanding troops required by Magistrate to disperse assembly.

Every such officer shall obey such requisition in such manner as he thinks fit; but in so doing he shall use as little force, and do as little injury to person and property, as may be consistent with dispersing the assembly and arresting and detaining such persons.

(S. 484.)

131. When the public security is manifestly endangered by any such assembly, and when no Magistrate can be communicated with, any Commissioned officer of Her Majesty's Army may disperse such assembly by military force, and may arrest and confine any persons forming part of it, in order to disperse such assembly or that they may be punished according to law; but, if while he is acting under this section, it becomes practicable for him to communicate with a Magistrate, he shall do so, and shall thenceforward obey the instructions of the Magistrate as to whether he shall or shall not continue such action.

(S. 487.)

 (d) no inferior officer, or soldier, or volunteer, doing any act in obedience to any order which under military law he was bound to obey, shall be deemed to have thereby committed an offence.

Nothing is said to be done or believed in good faith, which is done or believed without due care and attention. S. 52, Penal Code.

CHAPTER X.

PUBLIC NUISANCES.

133. Whenever a District Magistrate, a Subdivisional Magistrate or, when empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, a Magistrate of the first class, considers, on receiving a report or other information and on taking such evidence (if any) as he thinks fit, that any unlawful obstruction or nuisance should be removed from any way, river or channel which is or may be lawfully used by the public, or from any public place, or that any trade or occupation, or the keeping of any goods or merchandise, by reason of its being injurious to the health or physical comfort of the community, should be suppressed or removed or prohibited, or that the construction of any building, or the disposal of any substance as likely to occasion conflagration or explosion, should be prevented or stopped, or that any building is in such a condition that it is likely to fall and thereby cause injury to persons living or carrying on business in the neighbourhood or passing, by, and that in consequence its removal, repair or support is necessary, or that any tank, well or excavation adjacent to any such way or public place should be fenced in such a manner as to prevent danger arising to the public,— such Magistrate may make a conditional order requiring the person causing such obstruction or nuisance, or carrying on such trade or occupation, or keeping any such goods or merchandise, or owning, possessing or controlling such building, substance, tank, well or excavation, within a time to be fixed in the order, to remove such obstruction or nuisance; or to suppress or remove such trade or occupation; or to remove such goods or merchandise; or to prevent or stop the construction of such building; or to remove, repair or support it; or to alter the disposal of such substance; or to fence such tank, well or excavation, as the case may be; or to appear before himself or some other Magistrate of the first or second class, at a time and place to be fixed by the order, and move to have the order set aside or modified in manner hereinafter provided.

No order duly made by a Magistrate under this section shall be called in question in any Civil Court.

EXPLANATION.—A “public place” includes also property belonging to the State, camping grounds, and grounds left unoccupied for sanitary and recreative purposes.

(S. 521.)

Section V, No. 16 contains various forms of orders under this section.

In MADRAS all Magistrates of the first class have been empowered to act under S. 133 (Gaz., 1873, p. 717); a similar order has been issued in BOMBAY, provided that the Magistrate is not an Honorary Magistrate, when a special order in each case is necessary (Gaz., 1872, p. 1325; Ibid, 1873, p. 16); in the PUNJAB, all senior officers at headquarters, under the Magistrate of the District, being Magistrates of the first class, have been vested with powers under S. 133, to be exercised only when the Magistrate of the District is absent from headquarters. For such purposes the senior Assistant Commissioner being a Magistrate of the first class shall be deemed to be the senior officer under the Magistrate, and if there be no such officer, the senior Extra Assistant Com-

Ch X. missioner being a Magistrate of the first class, shall be so deemed.— Gaz., 1873, p. 75.

S. 133. If any Magistrate not being duly empowered by law in that behalf makes order under S. 133, his proceedings shall be void. S. 530 (g).

But though proceedings can be taken under S. 133 only by a District Magistrate, a Subdivisional Magistrate or a specially empowered Magistrate of the first class, any such officer can order the person against whom the conditional order is made to appear before a Magistrate of the first and second class who will have the conduct of all subsequent proceedings.

An important extension of this section has been made by the last clause of S. 4 under which all words and expressions used in this Code and defined in the Indian Penal Code and not specially defined in S. 4 of this Code shall be deemed to have the meanings attached to them respectively by the Penal Code. S. 11 of the Penal Code declares that the word "person" includes any Company or Association or body of persons whether incorporated or not.

From the terms of the second clause the nuisance would probably be held to be a public nuisance from the place in which it is committed. S. 268, Penal Code, declares that a "person is guilty of a public nuisance who does any act, or is guilty of an illegal omission, which causes any common injury, danger, or annoyance to the public or to the people in general who dwell or occupy property in the vicinity, or which must necessarily cause injury, obstruction, danger, or annoyance to persons who may have occasion to use any public right. A common nuisance is not excused on the ground that it causes some convenience or advantage."

A Magistrate having once commenced proceedings under S. 133 cannot take up the matter summarily under S. 145. He is bound to proceed in the manner laid down in S. 133, and the following sections in Chapter X of the Code. Pitti Singh, 8 W. R., 37. If he thinks that immediate measures should be taken to prevent imminent danger or injury of a serious kind to the public, he may, whether a jury is to be, or has been, appointed or not, issue an injunction, and on failure to comply with that injunction may himself take measures to obviate such danger or prevent such injury. S. 142.

An order under S. 133 regarding a nuisance should be confined to a direction to remove it. In the case of a tank the Magistrate cannot order the proprietor to excavate it, for the proprietor should have the discretion allowed him as to the manner in which he will remove the nuisance caused by the tank. If the Magistrate is compelled to direct the excavation of the tank, the actual cost of excavation can alone be charged against the proprietor, at whose disposal the soil taken out in the course of excavation must be placed.—Pal Doss, 10 W. R., 51.

Where a tank is merely a reservoir of water, the Magistrate's powers are limited to an order to have it fenced in to prevent accidents, but where it is only a half dry excavation into which people are in the habit of throwing rubbish, and from this cause it has become a public nuisance, the Magistrate would be justified in ordering it to be filled up if that were the only way of suppressing the nuisance.—Bisto Chunder Chuckerbutty, 10 W. R., 27.

It is only where there is no doubt that the place on which the unlawful obstruction or nuisance has been committed is a "way, river or channel which is or may be lawfully used by the public" or "a public place" that a Magistrate can take proceedings under S. 133, Pitambur Jogi, 25 W. R., 4. "It has been held by the Calcutta High Court under the Code of 1872 that when this is disputed by the persons against whom the conditional order under S. 521 of the Code of 1872 (now reproduced in S. 133) has been passed, the Magistrate should abstain from giving effect to his order until that has been decided by a Civil Court or by a Magistrate under S. 532 of the Code of 1872. If under a mistaken view of the law and in spite of the objection raising the question of the right of way the Magistrate should appoint a jury, then his order could not be found to be reasonable and proper, because at the outset of their inquiry the jury would be met by the bond fide objection that the road was private and not public property. In the matter of Chunder Nath Sen, 1 W. R., 5 Cal., 875; (S. C.) 6 Cal. L. R., 379; Roy Omesh Chunder Sen, 21 W. R., 67. See also Weir, pp. 304, 305. In re-enacting S. 532 of the Code of 1872 in S. 147 of this Code the Legislature has limited the action of the Magistrate to those cases only on which there is a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace. This means therefore of determining such an objection would rarely be available. How far a Civil suit will lie, will appear on reference to Rooke v. The Pearce Lall Coal Co., 11 W. R., 434; Baroda Pershad Moostafee v. Gorachand Moostafee, 12 W. R., 160; Moti Lall Sahoo v. Mohi Lall Roy, 7 Cal. L. R., 433.

Ch. X.

S. 133.

A Magistrate cannot interfere to re-open a private path leading from the house of a person to a public thoroughfare, as such path is not a thoroughfare or public place. The person affected was referred to the Civil Court.—Jankee Nath Bhattacharjee, 2 W. R., 36.

Nor can a Magistrate order the removal of an obstruction of a drain into which the sewage of certain premises fell.—In re Troylokhyonath Bose, 5 W. R., 58.

Where the public have an admitted right to use certain place as a burning ghaut, it is not competent for a Magistrate, on the complaint of a private individual, to prohibit it as a nuisance.—Becharam Ghorooee, 14 W. R., 177. But see contra Mun. Comrs Sub. Cal., 7 B. L. R., 499, in which the condition and conduct of an old established slaughter-house was proved to be an offensive nuisance and dangerous to the health of the neighbours, but the evidence did not show that it was in a worse condition than at any time since its establishment. The High Court held that no length of enjoyment can legalize a public nuisance, and that the Magistrate was justified in regarding it as a nuisance under S. 133.

A prosecution under S. 268, Penal Code, for a public nuisance, is not illegal on the ground that proceedings have not been previously taken under Chapter X of the Code of Criminal Procedure.—Sukh Lall and others, Bomb. H. Ct., Sep. 17 1869.

A party, feeling aggrieved by an order passed by a Magistrate under S. 133 cannot file a suit for damages against the persons who instituted proceedings before the Magistrate, unless he can show that in moving the Magistrate they were actuated by malicious motives against him, or intended wrongfully to injure him.—Chintamani Bapoohee v. Degumber Mitter, 2 B. L. R., 15, Short Notes.

134. The order shall, if practicable, be served on the person against whom it is made in manner herein provided for service of a summons.

If such order cannot be so served, it shall be notified by proclamation, published in such manner as the Local Government may by rule direct, and a copy thereof shall be stuck up at such place or places as may be fittest for conveying the information to such person.
(S. 522.)

Ss. 69 et seq. relate to the service of summons.

The mere absence of service of notice to remove a nuisance is not sufficient ground for interference with the order of a Magistrate when it appears that the parties did not take that objection before that Officer, but they rather admitted knowledge of the existence of the notice, and sought to excuse their failure to obey it.—Hochan v. Elliot, 5 W. R., 4.

135. The person against whom such order is made shall—

(a) perform, within the time specified in the order, the act directed thereby; or or show cause or claim jury.

accordance with such order, and either show cause against the same, or apply to the Magistrate by whom it was made to appoint a jury to try whether the same is reasonable and proper.

(S. 523, para. 1.)

The application for an order for the appointment of a jury should be written on a stamp paper of eight annas. Court Fees Act (VII, 1870) Sch. II, Art. 1 (b).

After such an application has been made the Magistrate is bound to appoint a jury. He cannot dispose of the matter by a local inquiry In re Mothoor Chunder Dass, 2 Cal. W. R., 509.

If the person against whom the order is made appears and shows cause, the Magistrate should proceed to take evidence as directed by S. 137.

136. If such person does not perform such act or appear and show cause or apply for the appointment of a jury as required by section 135, he shall be liable to the penalty prescribed in that behalf in section 188 of the Indian Penal Code; and the order shall be made absolute.

(S. 525.)

When the party against whom the order was passed did not appear within the time specified, but appeared before the hearing of the case, it was held that the Magistrate was bound to hear him. In re Bishto Chunder Chuckerbutty, 10 W. R., 27.

Ch. X.

S. 137.

S. 138 of the Indian Penal Code declares that "whoever, knowing that, by an order promulgated by a public servant lawfully empowered to promulgate such order, he is directed to abstain from a certain act, or to take certain order with certain property in his possession or under his management, disobeys such direction, shall, if such disobedience cause or tends to cause obstruction, annoyance, or injury, or risk of obstruction, annoyance, or injury, to any person lawfully employed, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or both; and if such disobedience causes or tends to cause danger to human life, health, or safety, or causes or tends to cause a riot or affray, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or both. Explanation.—It is not necessary that the offender should intend to produce harm, or contemplate his disobedience as likely to produce harm. It is sufficient that he knows of the order which he disobeys, and that his disobedience produces, or is likely to produce, harm."

Before proceedings under S. 138, Penal Code, can be taken, the sanction or complaint of the Magistrate who issued the particular order or of some officer to whom he is subordinate, that is, to whom appeals against his orders lie, must have been obtained; such sanction should specify the occasion on which the offence was committed. S. 195. The Court in contempt of whose authority or to whose notice the offence was brought in the course of a judicial proceeding is debarred from trying the case. S. 487.

137. If he appears and shows cause against the order, the Magistrate shall take evidence in the matter.

Procedure where he appears to show cause.

If the Magistrate is satisfied that the order is not reasonable and proper, no further proceedings shall be taken in the case.

If the Magistrate is not so satisfied, the order shall be made absolute.

(Ss. 525, 537.)

Evidence will probably be taken as in summons cases. Ss. 355 et seq.

If the order be for the removal of an unlawful obstruction or nuisance from a way or channel which is or may be lawfully used by the public or from any public place, and objection is taken that the place said to be obstructed or on which the nuisance is said to exist is not one of that description, the Magistrate will have to try that matter first before taking evidence whether his order is reasonable or proper—In re Chundernath Sen, 1 L. R., 5 Cal., 875; (S. C.) 6 Cal. L. R., 579; Roy Qmesh Chunder Sen, 21 W. R., 67. See also Weir, 304, 305. When

- Ch. X. the Magistrate took no evidence, notwithstanding the party appeared and showed cause, the order was set aside.—In re Mohur Mundir, 8 Cal. L. R., 431.

138. On receiving an application under section 135 to appoint a jury, the Magistrate shall—

Procedure where he claims jury.

(a) forthwith appoint a jury consisting of an uneven number of persons not less than five, of whom the foreman and one half of the remaining members shall be nominated by such Magistrate, and the other members by the applicant;

(b) summon such foreman and members to attend at such place and time as the Magistrate thinks fit; and

(c) fix a time within which they are to return their verdict.

(S. 523, paras. 2, 5; S. 524.)

Sch. V, No. 17 contains the form of a Magistrate's order constituting a jury.

A Magistrate acting under S. 138 should exercise his own independent discretion in selecting the members of the jury which the law requires him to appoint, and the persons selected should not be the nominees of the party interested in upholding the Magistrate's order. In a case in which the Magistrate appointed nominees, the proceedings were quashed—Raja Satyanund Ghosal, 21 W. R., 43.

The parties concerned should not be appointed members of the jury. It is not competent to any one to exercise the authority of a Court of Justice as judge in his own cause, and it is plainly against the most elementary principles of right and equity that an applicant for justice to a Criminal Court, or indeed to any other Court, should be compelled to submit his case to the arbitration of his adversary. On these grounds the order of a Magistrate was set aside, which was based on the report of a jury consisting of the petitioner in the case and two of his witnesses, notwithstanding the protest of the opposite party.—Brindabun Dutt, 22 W. R., 47.

Where one of the jurors was unavoidably absent and unable to investigate the matter, and the Magistrate appointed a fresh juror, he was bound to fix a fresh term for the submission of the finding of the jurors, since the fixing of time is a condition precedent to the exercise by the Magistrate of the power to decide the case himself if no report be sent in.—Shama Kant Bandopadhya, 14 W. R., 69.

Merely because a jury has failed to send in its report, a Magistrate is not competent to appoint a second jury, and to commit the matter afresh to the second jury. In the event of a jury duly appointed under S. 138 being unable for some good cause to entertain and determine the matter submitted to it, a Magistrate can appoint a fresh jury. Suppose, for instance, that before the jury had discharged its functions, one of its members died ; or, suppose the jury became perverse and refused to entertain the matter for which it was appointed, in such cases it may be well that the first order of appointment ought to be considered as having fallen through and become useless, and the Magistrate would then have power under S. 138, to appoint a fresh jury. But here it appeared that the first jury had considered the matter submitted to it and the individual members had given in their opinions to the Foreman to report to the Magistrate even before the second jury was constituted. The failure was that the Foreman omitted for a time to make the formal report to the Magistrate. But that report did eventually reach the Magistrate through the Foreman of the second jury before he made the order complained of. Under the circumstances, that was the report by which he was bound to guide himself, and the report of the second jury was, so far as regards the objects of S. 138, in itself a nullity.—In re Nozumuddy, 21 W. R., 54.

The jury having failed to report within the prescribed time, but having reported subsequently, it was held by the Bombay High Court that the Magistrate was bound to give due weight thereto, and should not have proceeded to enforce his order, at the same time refusing to permit the party concerned to show cause against it under S. 137. The Court remarked that the law evidently contemplates that considerations of justice and equity should form the rule of the Magistrate's conduct in such matters. The exercise of such summary powers requires both experience and discretion in a Magistrate, and a careful consideration of the rights of property.—Dalsukram Haribhai, 2 Bomb., 410.

Ch. X.

S. 139.

139. If the jury or a majority of the jurors find that the order of the Magistrate is reasonable and proper as originally made, or subject to a modification which the Magistrate accepts, the Magistrate shall make the order absolute, subject to such modification (if any).

In other cases, no further proceedings shall be taken.

If grounds of objection to the verdict of a jury are brought to the notice of the Magistrate, such as to justify the conclusion that it was not a proper verdict, then he ought to inquire into the validity of those grounds. The objection must be made as specifically as possible, and the objector must pledge himself to establish definitely such facts as would, when proved, suffice to render the verdict invalid and improper.—Brindabun Chunder Dutt, 23 W. R., 15.

The law requires every jurymen to exercise his own understanding on the case submitted to him and to decide on evidence. Where a jurymen who made the majority followed blindly the opinion of two of his fellows without exercising any discretion of his own and merely on verbal report made by them, the report was declared to be void. Petambar Jugi, 25 W. R., 4.

Ch. X.

S. 140.

Unless the report be some modification of his order, and it be otherwise open to no objection, the Magistrate is bound to accept the report of the jury; but if it be not clearly expressed, he may call upon the jury definitively to state whether his order was or was not a reasonable and proper order, Poholee Mullick, 12 W. R., 28.

under section 136, section 137 or section 139, the Magistrate shall give notice of the same to the person against whom the order was made, and shall further require him to perform the act directed by the order within a time to be fixed in the notice, and inform him that, in case of disobedience, he will be liable to the penalty provided by section 188 of the Indian Penal Code.

If such act is not performed within the time fixed, the Magistrate may cause it to be performed, and may recover the costs of performing it, either by the sale of any building, goods or other property removed by his order, or by the distress and sale of any other moveable property of such person within or without the local limits of such Magistrate's jurisdiction. If such other property is without such limits, the order shall authorize its attachment and sale when endorsed by the Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property to be attached is found.

No suit shall lie in respect of anything done in good faith under this section.

(Ss. 525, 526.)

See note 6, S. 136.

Sch. V, No. 18 contains a form of the Magistrate's notice and peremptory order after a finding by a jury.

S. 538 declares that no distress made under this Code shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any person making the same be deemed a trespasser on account of any defect or want of form in the summons, writ of distress or other proceedings relating thereto.

Nothing is said to be done in "good faith" which is done without due care and attention. S. 52, Penal Code.

The consequences of an interference by a Civil Court with an order passed by a Magistrate under this chapter are commented on in the case of Ujalmoni Dassee v. Chunder Koomar Neogi, 4 B. L. R., 24 Full Bench: (S. C.) 12 W. R., 18 (F. B.) "If when a Magistrate having entered into the question has determined that a nuisance does exist, he is to be restrained by a Court of Civil Judicature from carrying this order" into execution, it might be two or three years before the nuisance could be removed, by which time all the injury may have been sustained. While the suit is going on, persons may be poisoned by the malaria arising from the nuisance, or the conflagration may take place, or lives may be lost by the falling of a ruinous wall on passengers, or their cattle may be drowned in a tank or well which has not been properly fenced to prevent danger.

Ch. X.

"The object of the Act is to enable the Magistrate to make an order speedily, and speedily to carry that order into execution. It would be mere trifling with the Act if, when it says that no action shall be entertained by any Court in respect of anything necessarily or reasonably done to give effect to an order of this nature, we should hold that the Civil Court could interfere to restrain the Magistrate from giving effect to his order at all: for that is what is really sought to be done by such a suit. If the Magistrate had carried it into effect, no suit could have been brought against him or against any one acting under his order, and yet it is contended that suit will lie to prevent him from carrying his order into effect."

But though a suit will not lie to prevent any Magistrate from carrying out an order made under S. 133, or for damages on account of anything done by the Magistrate or any other person in carrying out such an order in the manner provided by law, the law does not prevent a person, against whom such an order has been carried into effect, from instituting a suit to prove that land declared by the Magistrate to be a public thoroughfare is his private property. Lalji Ukheda and others v. Jowba Dowba and another, 8 Bomb., 94 App. Civil Jur.: Mutty Ram Sahoo v. Mohi Lall Roy, 7 Cal. L. R., 443.

such further time as the Magistrate may in his discretion allow, the Magistrate may pass such order as he thinks fit, and such order shall be executed in the manner provided by section 140.

The jury having failed to report within the prescribed time, but having reported subsequently, it was held by the Bombay High Court that the Magistrate was bound to give due weight thereto, and should not have proceeded to enforce his order, at the same time refusing to permit the party concerned to show cause against it under S. 135. The Court remarked that the law evidently contemplates that considerations of justice and equity should form the rule of the Magistrate's conduct in such matters. The exercise of such summary powers requires both experience and discretion in a Magistrate, and a careful consideration of the rights of property.—Dalsukram Haribhai, 2 Bomb., 410.

Ss. 142, 143. ^{Injunction pending inquiry.}

142. If a Magistrate making an order under section 133 considers that immediate measures should be taken to prevent imminent danger or injury of a serious kind to the public, he may, whether a jury is to be, or has been, appointed or not, issue such an injunction to the person against whom the order was made as is required to obviate or prevent such danger or injury.

In default of such person forthwith obeying such injunction, the Magistrate may himself use, or cause to be used, such means as he thinks fit to obviate such danger or to prevent such injury.

No suit shall lie in respect of anything done in good faith by a Magistrate under this section.

(S. 528.)

Sch. V, No. 19 contains the form of an injunction under S. 142.

In BENGAL and in ASSAM the fee of one Rupee has been fixed for an injunction. Cal. Gaz. 1879, p. 301; Assam Gaz. 1879, p. 596, Wilkins, 82.

When a Magistrate after passing an order under S. 142 ordered a further inquiry to be made by the Police, it was held that he had abandoned that order, and should proceed under S. 133 to call upon the party affected to show cause why the order should not be carried into effect. Brijendro Lall, 20 W. R., 86.

143. A District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate, or any other Magistrate empowered by the Local Government or the District Magistrate in this behalf, may order any person not to repeat or continue a public nuisance, as defined in the Indian Penal Code or any special or local law.

(S. 519.)

Sch. V, No. 20 contains a form of the Magistrate's order prohibiting the repetition or continuance of a nuisance.

If any Magistrate, not being empowered by law on that behalf, prohibits the repetition or continuance of a public nuisance, his proceedings are void. S. 530 (h.)

The repetition or continuance of a public nuisance, as defined in S. 268, Penal Code, after having been enjoined by a Magistrate under S. 143 of this Code not to repeat or continue it, is punishable with simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine, or with both. S. 29, Penal Code.

An order under S. 143 is not open to appeal or revision. S. 435.

In BOMBAY, District Superintendents and Assistant District Superintendents of Police have been empowered to act under S. 143. Gaz. 1873, p. 439.

CHAPTER XI.

TEMPORARY ORDERS IN URGENT CASES OF NUISANCE.

144. In cases where, in the opinion of a District Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate or of any other Magistrate specially empowered by the Local Government or the District Magistrate to act under this section, immediate prevention or speedy remedy is desirable, such Magistrate may, by a written order stating the material facts of the case and served in manner provided by section 134, direct any person to abstain from a certain act or to take certain order with certain property in his possession, or under his management, if such Magistrate considers that such direction is likely to prevent, or tends to prevent, obstruction, annoyance or injury, or risk of obstruction, annoyance or injury, to any persons lawfully employed, or danger to human life, health or safety, or a riot or an affray.

Power to issue order absolute at once in urgent cases of nuisance.

An order under this section may, in cases of emergency or in cases where the circumstances do not admit of the serving in due time of a notice upon the person against whom the order is directed, be passed ex parte.

An order under this section may be directed to a particular individual, or to the public generally when frequenting or visiting a particular place.

Any Magistrate may rescind or alter any order made under this section by himself or any Magistrate subordinate to him or by his predecessor in office.

No order under this section shall remain in force for more than two months from the making thereof; unless, in cases of danger to human life, health or safety, or a likelihood of a riot or an affray, the Local Government, by notification in the official Gazette, otherwise directs.

(S. 508.)

Sch. V, No. 21 contains forms of a Magistrate's order under S. 144. The law requires that the written order shall state the material

- Ch. XI. facts of the case, but none of these forms states that in the opinion of the Magistrate immediate prevention for a speedy remedy is desirable, —
 S. 144. or the grounds for such opinion.

If a Magistrate, not being empowered by law in that behalf, makes an order under S. 144, his proceedings are void. S. 530 (i.)

In BENGAL and ASSAM a fee of one Rupee is chargeable for this written order. Cal. Gaz. 1879, p. 304: Assam Gaz. 1879, p. 596, Wilkins, 82. S. 435, last para, declares that orders under S. 144 are not proceedings within the meaning of that section, that is to say, they are not proceedings, the record of which a superior Court may call for and examine for the purpose of satisfying itself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of the order recorded or passed, and as to the regularity of the proceedings taken. The object is evidently to prevent the exercise of powers of revision by a superior Court. Where an order has been regularly passed under S. 144 the High Court under S. 15 of the Charter Act cannot interfere with it. In re Chundernath Sen, I. L. R. 2 Cal., 293; but if the order cannot properly be passed under S. 144 it does not fall within that exception and can be reconsidered. In re Krishna Mohun Bysack, 1 Cal. L. R., 58: In re Roopchand Parooee, Cal. H. Ct., July 25, 1877.

The High Court can, however, interfere if the order is beyond the Magistrate's jurisdiction, as, for instance, when the order forbids the holding of a certain "hât," and directs its removal to a specified distance from another "hât," for a Magistrate cannot say that a man shall not do what he has clearly a right to do, and pass an order forbidding this for an indefinite period. Shurat Chunder Banerjea v. Bama Churn Mookerjea, 4 Cal. L. R., 410.

But though it may not be open to a superior Court on the original proceedings to question the propriety of the order passed, still if a punishment is inflicted for disobedience of that order, the legality of the order may properly be questioned on the trial and determined by the Courts before whom the case may come. Surjee Narain Dass, I. L. R., 6 Cal., 88.

The party aggrieved should either petition the District Magistrate to recall the order, or if that fails he should petition the Government. Seení Nyna Mohidee, per Turner, C. J., Weir Sup. p. 17; see also Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Oct. 30, 1876, Weir, 310, where the High Court refused to interfere with an order under S. 144.

A private individual is not deprived of the redress which the law affords him by means of a Civil suit. Raj Kumar Singh v. Sahibzada Roy, I. L. R., 3 Cal., 20, Per Garth, C. J., Jackson, Macpherson, Markby and Ainslie, JJ.; Gopi Mohun Moulick v. Taramoni Chowdhraín, 4 Cal. L. R., 309, Per Garth, C. J. and eleven Judges.

The terms of para. 3 would seem to show that the order cannot ordinarily be made absolute until notice has been given to the person concerned. The object of this is apparently to enable that person to make such representation that he may think fit to induce the Magistrate to recall it and not to enforce it. In cases of emergency or where circumstances do not admit of proper service of the order peremptory obedience to the order may be enforced. See Hari Mohun Mala, 1 B. L. R., 20: Bhyro Dyal Singh, 11 W. R., 46: Rai Luchmeeput Singh, 14 W. R., 17.

The order must have reference to a particular occasion and not for a continuance. Thus an order not to drive cattle between certain hours along certain roads was held to be an illegal order; Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Aug. 17, 1875, Weir, 308: nor can an order relate to a course of conduct or an occupation involving a series of acts done at certain intervals and spread over an interval of time—for instance, an order prohibiting the practice of inoculation was pronounced to be illegal, and a conviction under S. 188, Penal Code, for disobeying it was set aside. Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Feb. 4, 1879, Weir, 310.

Ch. XI.

S. 144.

It is competent to a Magistrate to issue an order under this section to certain persons in possession and management of a Hindoo temple to widen the door, in order to give the necessary ventilation, and to afford proper means of ingress and egress to the pilgrims. Even if the temple were private property, the order could be passed, as the building was open to the Hindu public—Ramehunder Eknath, 6 Bomb., 36, Crown cases.

A Ghosain went forth to pay a visit accompanied by a body of retainers carrying horns which were blown for his glorification, and to the annoyance of another person with whom he was not on good terms. The Magistrate, under S. 144 ordered that neither party should use any musical instruments in the neighbourhood of the house of the other. This order was pronounced by the Calcutta High Court to be open to objection, and was modified, the parties being forbidden to use horns or other musical instruments for the purpose of mutual offence in the neighbourhood of each other's house.—Ram Chunder Geer Ghosain, 6 W. R., 40.

S. 144 does not authorise a Magistrate to direct the removal of an embankment in consequence of which adjacent lands are in danger of being flooded. Mad H. Ct. Pro. Feb. 22, 1870, Weir, 308.

A Magistrate can only order any person to take certain order with certain property in his possession, and is not empowered to pass any order which is irrevocable, such as the cutting down of trees—In re Uttam Chunder Chatterjea, 13 W. R., 72; (S. C.) 5 B. L. R., 131; nor is a Magistrate competent to order the owner of a tank in the dry bed of a river to destroy its banks, because they are an obstruction to the public in their lawful enjoyment of the river in the rainy season, and because, by stopping the water, the banks interfere with the drainage of the country, and affect the health of the villagers in the surrounding places, and tend to injure the crops and lessen the value of the land, since the owner of the tank had enjoyed it for six years.—Gholam Durbesh, 10 W. R., 36.

CHAPTER XII.

DISPUTES AS TO IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY.

145. Whenever a District Magistrate, Subdivisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class is satisfied from a police report or other information that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists concerning any tangible immoveable property, or the boundaries thereof, within the local limits of his jurisdiction, he shall make an order in writing, stating the grounds of his being so satisfied, and requiring the parties concerned in such dispute to attend his Court, in person or by pleader, within a time to be fixed by such Magistrate, and to put in written statements of their respective claims as respects the fact of actual possession of the subject of dispute.

Procedure where dispute concerning land, &c., is likely to cause breach of peace.

The Magistrate shall then, without reference to the merits of the claims of any of such parties to a right to possess the subject of dispute, peruse the statements so put in, hear the parties, receive the evidence produced by them respectively, consider the effect of such evidence, take such further evidence (if any) as he thinks necessary, and, if possible, decide whether any and which of the parties is then in such possession of the said subject.

Inquiry as to possession.

If the Magistrate decides that one of the parties is then in such possession of the said subject, he shall issue an order declaring such party to be entitled to retain possession thereof until evicted therefrom in due course of law, and forbidding all disturbance of such possession until such eviction.

Party in possession to retain possession until legally evicted.

Nothing in this section shall preclude any party so required to attend from showing that no such dispute as aforesaid exists or has existed; and in such case the Magistrate shall cancel his said order, and all further proceedings thereon shall be stayed.

(S. 530.)

Sch. V, No. 22 contains a form of order passed by a Magistrate declaring a party entitled to retain possession of land &c. in dispute. Ch. XII.

If any Magistrate not empowered by law in that behalf passes an order under S. 145, his proceedings are void. S. 530 (j) S. 145.

The Magistrate must be satisfied that "a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists concerning any tangible immoveable property." This expression is substituted for "any land or any houses, water, *fisheries, crops or other produce of land" in S. 530 of the Code of 1872. These last words appeared in S. 318 of the Code of 1861 which again repeated S. 4, Act IV of 1840. Whether this alteration will make any difference in the practice of the Courts will probably form the subject of judicial decision. The cases of Dewan Elabee Newaz Khan v. Suburunissa, 5 W. R. 14; and Sutherland v. Crowdy, 18 W. R., 11., (S. C.) 9 B. L. R., 229 may be consulted as expressing contrary views.

In order that the grounds of the Magistrate being satisfied that a dispute likely to induce a breach of the peace exists should be plainly apparent in the proceedings, information must be referred to and facts stated by the Magistrate as facts believed by him to exist, and these should be such as to afford on the face of the proceeding rational grounds for the belief that a dispute likely to induce a breach of the peace exists with regard to certain specified property. In arriving at an opinion, with regard to the facts which the Magistrate in his proceeding states as the ground of his belief, he must form his judgment by the exercise of a judicial discretion upon some sort of materials. The Code does not limit those materials to evidence given on oath; they must only be such as would in their nature justify a judicial officer in relying upon them; unless a Magistrate is in a position to present clear and rational grounds capable of being estimated according to their merits on the mere statement of them, he has no legal foundation on which to base his investigation inter partes, relative to possession.—Kishoree Mohun Roy, 19 W. R., 10.

There must be a reasonable apprehension that a disturbance of the peace is likely to occur rendering it necessary for the Magistrate to take immediate action. The High Court considered that the finding in the Magistrate's judgment, that it was probable that a breach of the peace would occur if proceedings were not taken, was not sufficient to give him jurisdiction and accordingly set aside the order passed. Damoodar Biddiadhur Mahapatro, 1. L. R., 7 Cal., 385, (S. C.) 8 Cal. L. R., 514. See also Chunder Madhub Ghose v. Juggesh Chunder Sen, 4 Cal. L. R., 493. There must be a present danger of a breach of the peace, not that it will probably be broken at some future time. Uma Churn Shantra, 7 Cal. L. R., 352.

The order in writing would probably be served as a summons under Ss. 68 et seq.

"Requiring the parties concerned in such dispute to attend his Court." This is a notice of a specific character to the parties concerned in the dispute, in consequence of which the proceedings have been instituted, and is not a general citation to the public. A third party cannot come in and claim to be made a party. But if the Magistrate is satisfied of the existence of a dispute between him and some of the parties likely to cause a breach of the peace, he can record a preliminary Ch. XII. proceeding to that effect and so include him. Raja Koomed Narain Bhoop v. Mohim Chunder, 3 Cal. L. R., 551; (S. C.) I. L. R. 4 Cal., 650. But if one of the parties dies, the Magistrate should postpone the case and make his representative a party. Where notwithstanding the death of one of the original parties, the Magistrate continued the proceedings, it was held that they were not necessarily bad, as the death had prejudiced no one. Ranee Anandamoyee Dabee, 2 Cal. L. R., 264.

The omission to record a preliminary proceeding to the effect that a dispute likely to induce a breach of the peace exists will not invalidate an order passed, unless it can be shown that the party was prejudiced by the omission—Mad. H. Ct., Aug. 9, 1870, Weir, 316. See also Nathu Manickchand, Bom. H. Ct., June 15, 1871. The practice of the Calcutta High Court has almost invariably been to hold that it absolutely invalidates all proceedings subsequently taken as will appear from the following cases;—(but see Gour Mohun Majee, 22 W. R., 81, contra.)

The omission to record a proceeding under S. 530 of the Code of 1872, that is, an order in writing under S. 145 of the present Code, is not a mere informality in procedure, which if no substantial injury were done, might be overlooked. The parties may have been, indeed one of them says that he has been, precluded from adducing all his evidence by this very omission. Harvey v. Brice, 4 W. R., 26.

A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to inquire into the matter of possession unless he is first satisfied that a breach of the peace is actually likely to occur in reference thereto. He must also record his reasons for being so satisfied. Perhaps it might be immaterial to the validity of the proceeding whether he finally recorded his reasons as required by the Code, but as the inconvenience of a breach of the peace constitutes the substantial ground for his interference being involved at all, it ought to be distinctly adjudicated on by him. Per Phear, J. Jackson, J. concurred that the proceedings were defective as the Magistrate had not recorded that he was satisfied of the evidence of a dispute likely to occasion a breach of the peace. The proceedings taken were accordingly quashed. Glover J. dis. Dewan Elahee Newaz Khan, 5 W. R., 14. See also Amritho Nath Jha, 6 W. R., 6; Per Peacock, C. J., Jackson, J. where Peacock, C. J. seems to suggest that the consent of parties to waive any such objection and to proceedings being taken to put an end to the dispute between them might remedy such an irregularity, but Jackson, J. regards the omission to record a proper proceeding as a want of jurisdiction. So also in the case of Musst. Anundee Koer v. Raneer Soonat Koer, 9 W. R., 64, the omission to record a proceeding was held to necessitate the quashing of the award made by the Magistrate. In Kashi Kishore Roy v. Tarini Kant Lahory, 8 B. L. R., 76, such an omission was regarded as showing that the Magistrate proceeded without jurisdiction.

The right to collect rents constitutes possession of land under S. 145 which does not necessarily refer to direct possession by actual cultivation. Both the actual cultivator and the person under whom he holds are considered to be in possession of land, and therefore S. 145 applies to a dispute between zemindars whose lands are let out to ryots which dispute relates to possession by exercising the right to collect rents. In re Joy Govind Roy, Cal. H. Ct. July 26, 1877 following Sonai Sirdar, 25 W. R., 45: See also Hurruck Narain Singh v. Luchmi, Bara Roy, 5 Cal. L. R., 287; Sutherland v. Crowdy, 18 W. R., 11; Ch. XII. Muddoosodun Shaha, 21 W. R., 55.

In MADRAS, however, the contrary practice apparently exists, for it has been held that constructive possession through tenants is not such a possession as is contemplated by S. 145. 4 Mad. xii App. Pro. May 15, 1869:—also Pro. July 13, 1868. S. 145.

A dispute between a zemindar and his lessee regarding the right to collect rent is not within S. 145. Mad. H. Ct Feb. 11, 1873, Weir, 317; nor a disputes regarding shares in joint undivided property, Cal. H. Ct., 420, 1863. Such a matter should be dealt with under Reg. (Bengal) V of 1812 S. 20 as modified by Reg. (Bengal) V of 1827; Goluk Chunder Roy, 17 W. R., 33: Ramrungleec Dasse, 18 W. R., 36: nor can a dispute regarding the amount of the share of the crop payable by the ryot be dealt with under S. 146. 4 Mad. xii App. Pro. July 13, 1868.

The fact that a certain party has obtained a certificate under Act XXVII of 1860 to collect debts due to a deceased person is not in itself conclusive proof of possession—Geerjamonee, Suth. Rep., 1864, p. 2. Nor does it entitle the holder to be put into possession of any property of the deceased person.—Sectaram Sahoo, 18 W. R., 35. Nor is a Magistrate justified by reason of the passing of such an order to interfere with the previous possession of another. The Civil Court should rather execute its own order.—Mohunt Dhanraj Giri Ghosami, 2 B. L. R., 27.

A Magistrate is bound to maintain possession given by a Civil Court, and not to make it necessary that a successful party should again have recourse to the same Court to recover what has already been given to him. Bholanath Ghose, 7 Cal. L. R., 516: Rai Mohun Rai v. J. P. Wise, 16 W. R. 24: Raneegunge Coal Association (Limited) v. Hera Lall Ghosamee, 24 W. R., 7: Sonai Sircar, 25 W. R., 46.

Similarly when the Code of Civil Procedure provides a remedy for persons objecting to orders passed by a Civil Court, the Magistrate should not interfere but should maintain the orders of that Court, referring any parties who may object to them to that Court for their remedy. Thus when possession of certain property was given by the Nazir of a Civil Court in execution of a decree, the objecting party should be referred to that Court and the Magistrate should decline to take cognizance of the dispute—In re Chatterput Singh, 5 Cal. L. R., 200: so also when a purchaser under a decree is resisted in getting actual possession of the property bought, the Magistrate should not interfere but should refer the purchaser to the Court.—Pryag Singh, 6 Cal. L. R., 206.

The fact that proceedings under the Bengal Land Registration Act are pending should make a Magistrate extremely careful not to make any order under S. 145, unless he is quite satisfied of the existence of a bond fide dispute, and that a breach of the peace is imminent. As the Magistrate knew that those proceedings only awaited formal completion, he should not have proceeded under S. 145. If he thought that a breach of the peace was imminent, he should have bound down the principal parties to keep the peace. Govind Chunder Moitro, I. L. R., 6 Cal., 835: (S. C.) 8 Cal. L. R., 217.

Evidence in cases under S. 145 should be recorded as in warrant cases in the manner prescribed by S. 856.

A Magistrate is bound to examine any witnesses who are tendered Ch. XII. by the parties in support of the respective claims to possession of the land in dispute.—6 Mad., iv, App., Pro., Nov. 28, 1870.

S. 145. S. 350 enables a Magistrate to act on evidence recorded by his predecessor in office as proceedings under S. 146 are an injury as defined by S. 4 (c).

When a person has been forcibly dispossessed of immoveable property, he can either bring a charge of a criminal offence and on conviction of his adversary he can obtain an order from the Court to be restored to the possession of that property (S. 522) ; or if he has been dispossessed without his consent and without due course of law he can institute a summary suit in a Civil Court within six months of the dispossession. Specific Relief Act, I of 1877, S. 9.

There must be some evidence from which the Magistrate may reasonably and fairly draw the conclusion of fact necessary in the case, and not merely on grounds derived from his own moral consciousness. Mad. H. Ct., May 15, 1869. Weir, 313.

The lands should be sufficiently identified in the order for possession, otherwise the order will be inoperative and only lead to injurious consequences. In re Sewart Tewary, Cal. H. Ct., April 5, 1879.

The possession which a Magistrate is to find and support, is possession at the time of the institution of the proceedings and not possession at the time of his passing final orders in the matter. Prithiram Chowdhry Rai Bahadoor, 20 W. R., 51. If it should appear that any person has been turned out of possession and has submitted to the ouster and the other party whether rightly or wrongly is in peaceable possession he should be retained in possession. But the mere fact of seizure and occupation of land while complaints are being made to the Police and proceedings are being held by the Criminal Courts cannot be said to be such peaceful possession as the Magistrate is bound to look to and maintain. A man cannot give himself a title to the aid of the Magistrate by his own wrong doing, except so far as it can be said to have been acquiesced in and to have gained for him the position of a peaceful occupant. In re Bunwaree Misser, 1 Cal L. R., 136. A party who has been forcibly dispossessed has, as has already been pointed out, his remedy in the Criminal Courts on conviction of the person who has dispossessed him (S. 522) and in the Civil Courts under S. 9 Specific Relief Act, I of 1877, S. 72) but it is doubtful whether the Magistrate under S. 145 can look to the manner in which possession existing at the time of those proceedings was acquired.

Although a Magistrate cannot decide a matter under S. 145 on evidence of title, he may use such evidence merely to guide and assist his mind in coming to a decision on the question of possession. Evidence of title may supplement direct evidence of possession, but it cannot, standing alone, be proof of possession. If there is substantial evidence of possession or a conflict of evidence on that point, a Magistrate is justified at looking at the evidence of title in combination with evidence of possession. In re Kali Krishto Thakur, 8 Cal. L. R., 245 ; (S. C.) I. L. R., 7 Cal., 46.

It will be observed that S. 145 enables certain Magistrates to interfere when they are "satisfied that a dispute likely to induce a breach of the peace exists concerning any tangible immoveable property or the boundaries of any land." In the North-Western Provinces of Bengal, this provision regarding boundary disputes will be almost inoperative, since Act I, 1847, S. 6, declares that Magistrates are prohibited from taking cognizance of boundary disputes of the nature therein provided for; but it further enacts that whenever any Magistrate has reason to apprehend any breach of the peace in consequence of a disputed boundary, he shall certify the circumstance to the Collector of Land Revenue, who shall be bound immediately to mark off the boundary in the manner indicated by that Act, and to uphold the possession of the parties according to the demarcation.

Ch. XII.

S. 146.

It should be noted that S. 535 of the Code of 1872 declared that no order under S. 530 of that Code (now re-enacted in S. 145) shall affect the power of a Collector or a person exercising the powers of a Collector or of a Revenue Court. S. 535 has not expressly been re-enacted but S. 1, para. 2 of this Code declares that in the absence of any specific provisions to the contrary nothing contained in this Code shall affect any special or local law or any special jurisdiction or power conferred by any law now in force, so that the powers of a Collector are saved and cannot be interfered with.

An order under S. 145 declares that a certain person shall be entitled to retain possession of the particular immoveable property until evicted in due course by law. A suit to set it aside brought by a person bound by an order under S. 145 must be brought within three years from the date of the passing of the final order in the case. Limitation Act (XV of 1877) Sch. II, Art. 47.

146. If the Magistrate decides that none of the parties is then in such possession, or is unable to satisfy himself as to which of them is then in such possession, of the subject of dispute, he may attach it until a competent Civil Court has determined the rights of the parties thereto, or the person entitled to possession thereof.
(S. 531.)

Power to attach subject of dispute.

Sch. V, No. 23 gives the form of a warrant of attachment under this section.

If a Magistrate not being empowered by law in that behalf passes any order under this chapter his proceedings are void. S. 530 (7).

It is only when after instituting a proceeding under S. 145, and taking evidence a Magistrate finds that neither party is in possession or that he is unable to satisfy himself as to which of them is in possession of the subject of dispute that he can attach the immoveable property. Ram Soonder Debee, 1 Cal. L. R., 86; In the matter of Leelanund Singh, 1 Cal. L. R., 273; Mad., H. Ct. Pro., Nov. 28, 1870, Weir, 318.

A Magistrate, after notices issued under S. 145 to two parties, finding himself unable to determine who was in possession, attached the property in dispute under S. 146. On this, a third party represented that he, as landlord, had taken possession on the death of the person to whom it had been leased. The Magistrate observed that the death of a holder of a tenure which was not transferable does not necessarily imply assumption of possession by the landlord, and he apparently inferred that the landlord's possession was without colour of law, for he

- Ch. XII. held that the attachment under S. 146 signified that the Government — had stepped into the position of the late owner, as trustee, and was S. 147. bound to pay rent for the tenure. The High Court held that it was the duty of the Magistrate to have withdrawn his order under S. 146, if he found that the landlord was actually in possession of the land, and that order was set aside.—Joy Kissen Mookerjee, 24 W. R., 40.*

147. Whenever any such Magistrate is satisfied Disputes concerning as aforesaid that a dispute likely to easements, &c. cause a breach of the peace exists concerning the right to do or prevent the doing of anything in or upon any tangible immoveable property situate within the local limits of his jurisdiction, he may inquire into the matter; and may, if it appears to him that such right exists, make an order permitting such thing to be done, or directing that such thing shall not be done, as the case may be, until the person objecting to such thing being done or claiming that such thing may be done obtains the decision of a competent Civil Court adjudging him to be entitled to prevent the doing of, or to do, such thing, as the case may be :

Provided that no order shall be passed under this section permitting the doing of anything where the right to do such thing is exercisable at all times of the year, unless such right has been exercised within three months next before the institution of the inquiry; or, where the right is exercisable only at particular seasons unless the right has been exercised during the season next before such institution.

(S. 532.)

Sch. V, No. 24 contains a form of order under S. 147, prohibiting the doing of anything on land or water.

If any Magistrate not being duly empowered by law on that behalf passes an order under S. 147 his proceedings are void. S. 530 (j.)

S. 147 professes generally to re-enact S. 532 of the Code of 1872 the terms of which are in more familiar language and describe the dispute to be "concerning the right of use of any land or water or any right of way." These terms have been used by the Legislature since Act IV of 1840 but are now replaced by language which may not generally be intelligible. The law, however, has been altered in that, proceedings under S. 147 cannot be taken unless the Magistrate is satisfied that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists whereas the existence of a dispute was sufficient under the now repealed law which reproduced the law since 1840. This alteration will prevent Magistrates trying whether a right of way made the subject of an order under S. 133 is public or private on objection raised that it is private. See in the matter of Chondronath Sen, 1. L. R., 5 Cal., 875, (S. C.) 5 Cal., L. R., 579; Roy Omesh Chunder Sen, 21 W. R., 67; Weir, 304, 305. Ch. XII. S. 148.

The alteration of the language at the end of this section is also important. S. 532 concluded thus—"unless such right has been exercised during the last of such seasons before the complaint" whereas S. 147 provides, "unless the right has been so exercised during the season next before such institution." It not unfrequently happens that a right is not exercised annually but during exceptional seasons; such cases would no longer be cognizable under S. 147.

A dispute regarding the obstruction of a drain into which the sewage of certain premises fell is not a matter to be adjudicated under S. 147.—Troylokhyonath Bose, 5 W. R., 58.

Because a person has another means of ingress, and egress, a Magistrate should not order that he should not make use of one passing through another person's land. A Magistrate is bound to inquire into and decide when the latter road was open to use in the manner specified in S. 147.—Troylokhyanath Sircar, 2 W. R., 64.

A right of way, or a right to the flow of water across the land of another, is a right of use of land within the meaning of S. 147.—Mad. H. Ct., Feb. 18, 21, 1867, Weir, 304, 305; June 1, 1868, Weir, 318. Because some of the parties set up the right to use at all times would not preclude a Magistrate from finding that they had the lesser right to use in the way at particular seasons. The jurisdiction given by S. 147 to decide for a time the right to enjoyment of property should not be exercised except on clear and satisfactory proof. Where the only evidence is user, it should be such as to show satisfactorily acts of enjoyment exercised as a matter of right and permitted uninterruptedly for some considerable length of time.—4 Mad., xxiv, App, Pro., Jan. 4, 1869. (S. C.), Weir, 319.

S. 147 does not enable a Magistrate to pass a purely declaratory order. It enables him to prevent arbitrary interruptions by any person of rights actually enjoyed, which have been exercised by the public or a person or class of persons. In the matter of the Maharaja of Burdwan, 1. L. R., 5 Cal., 194: (S. C.) 4 Cal., L. R., 324.

the purposes of this chapter, any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate may depute any Magistrate subordinate to him to make the inquiry, and may furnish him with such written instructions consistent with the law for the time being in force as may seem necessary for his guidance, and may declare by whom the whole or any part of the necessary expenses of the inquiry shall be paid.

The report of the persons so deputed may be read as evidence in the case.

Order as to costs.

When any costs have been incurred by any party to a proceeding under this chapter for witnesses' or pleaders' fees, or both, the Magistrate passing a decision under section 145, section 146 or section 147 may direct by whom such costs shall be paid, whether by such party or by any other party to the proceeding, and whether in whole or in part or proportion. All costs so directed to be paid may be recovered as if they were fines.

(S. 533.)

A local inquiry under this chapter can be held only by a Magistrate and his report under S. 148 is evidence in the case.

When an inquiry under S. 148 is instituted, it becomes part of the proceedings in the case, and the party affected by it is entitled to be acquainted with the results of it and to have an opportunity of rebutting the deputed Magistrate's report, if he thinks necessary to do so.—Meer Dhunoo, 21 W. R., 25.

The last para. regarding the payment of costs is new. Ss. 386, 387 provide for the realisation of fines.

CHAPTER XIII.

PREVENTIVE ACTION OF THE POLICE

149. Every Police-officer may interpose for the purpose of preventing, and shall to the best of his ability prevent, the commission of any cognizable offence.

Police to prevent cognizable offences.

(S. 95.)

This duty may be performed without reference to local jurisdiction, and if otherwise unable to prevent the offence, the Police officer may arrest the offender (S. 151). His further action should be regulated by S. 60. An officer in charge of a Police station can proceed to investigate into such offences only when they have been committed within the limits of such station (except under any of the special circumstances stated in Ss. 179—188. See S. 156). He should, however, when a complaint is made to him, reduce such to writing and enter the substance thereof in the diary whether the occurrence which is the subject of the complaint or information took place within his jurisdiction or not.—Bengal Police Circular.

(S. 97.)

152. A Police-officer may of his own authority interpose to prevent any injury to public property. attempted to be committed in his view to any public property, moveable or immoveable, or the removal or injury of any public land-mark, or buoy or other mark used for navigation.

(S. 98, para. 1.)

These acts are punishable under Ss. 430—434, Penal Code. If such injury or removal be done in opposition to the Police officer, he can, under S. 54, cl. v, arrest the offender, but for all the offences mentioned except for that punishable under S. 434, Penal Code, the offender can be arrested without a warrant, so that if any of these acts be committed in the sight of the Police officer, he can immediately arrest the perpetrator, otherwise he should proceed under S. 24, Act V of 1861.

153. Any officer in charge of a Police-station may, without a warrant, enter any place within the limits of such station for the purpose of inspecting or searching for any weights or measures, or instruments for weighing, used or kept therein, whenever he has reason to believe that there are in such place any weights, measures or instruments for weighing which are false.

If he finds in such place any weights, measures or instruments for weighing which are false, he may seize the same, and shall forthwith give information of such seizure to a Magistrate having jurisdiction.

PART V.

INFORMATION TO THE POLICE AND THEIR POWERS TO INVESTIGATE.

CHAPTER XIV.

Police officers superior in rank to officers in charge of a Police station may exercise the same powers, throughout the local area to which they are appointed, as may be exercised by officers in charge of Police stations within the limits of their respective stations. S. 550.

154. Every information relating to the commission of a cognizable offence, if given orally to an officer in charge of a Police-station, shall be reduced to writing by him or under his direction, and be read over to the informant; and every such information, whether given in writing or reduced to writing as aforesaid, shall be signed by the person giving it, and the substance thereof shall be entered in a book to be kept by such officer in such form as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf.

An information to a Police officer should not be made on oath. If it is false, it cannot, therefore, be made the subject of a charge under S. 193, Penal Code, but it might come under S. 182 or 211 — Calcutta Sudder Court, 324, 1862. See also Subbana Gaundan, 1 Mad., 30; Bonomalce Sahai, 5 W. R., 32.

The complaint or information reduced to writing forms part of the first information report. The diary in which the substance of the complaint is to be entered is the station diary kept under S. 44, Act V, 1861.

Any Criminal Court may send for Police diaries of a case under inquiry or trial in such Court, and may use such diaries to aid it on such inquiry or trial, but neither the accused nor his agents shall be entitled to call for them nor shall have they be entitled to see them merely because they are referred to by the Court, but if they are used by the Police officer to refresh his memory, or if the Court uses them for the purpose of contradicting such Police officer the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, Sections 145, 16, shall apply. S. 172.

The wilful giving false information with intent to cause a public servant to use his lawful power to the injury of another person is an offence punishable under S. 182, Penal Code.

If the person giving the information shall refuse to sign the statement made by him, when required to sign that statement by the Police officer, he shall be punished with simple imprisonment which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred Rupees or with both. S. 180, Penal Code.

The following form of a first-information report has been prescribed for the Bengal Police.

The first information of a cognizable crime reported at Police Station Subdistrict . . . under Section 154 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

1	2	3	4	5	6
Date and hour of receipt at Police station of first information.	Name of informant and parties concerned.	Crime reported, and value and details of property stolen.	Date of occurrence of the crime.	Place of occurrence, direction and distance from Police station.	Steps taken by officer in charge of station.

155. When information is given to an officer in charge of a Police-station of the commission within the limits of such station of a non-cognizable offence, he shall enter in a book to be kept as aforesaid the substance of such information and refer the informant to the Magistrate.

No Police-officer shall investigate a non-cognizable case without the order of a Magistrate of the first or second class having power to try such case or commit the same for trial, or of a Presidency Magistrate.

Any Police-officer receiving such order may exercise the same powers in respect of the investigation (except the power to arrest without warrant) as an officer in charge of a Police-station may exercise in a cognizable case.

(Ss. 110, 113.)

If a Magistrate not empowered by law erroneously in good faith orders a Police officer under S. 155 to investigate a non-cognizable case the proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered. S. 529 (b).

S. 155.

Ch. XIV.

A complaint to the Police, or to heads of villages or the village Police, in Madras or Bombay, if presented by written petition, may be on plain paper.—Act VII, 1870. S. 19, Cl. xvi. When petty complaints are made to a Police station, the usual first-information-report should be submitted with a remark to the effect that no inquiry has been made. The number of these cases will be noted in the column of remarks attached to the District Monthly Return of Crime. In these cases no final report need be sent. They should be entered on its monthly return as true cases in which no person charged and no arrest is made.—Ben. Pol. Cir. 38, 1867 ; 4, 1868.

Investigation includes all proceedings under this Code for the collection of evidence conducted by the Police or by any other person other than a Magistrate or a Police officer who is authorized by the Magistrate on that behalf. S. 4 (b).

A Police officer can arrest a person for a non-cognizable offence only when it is committed in his presence by a person who refuses to give his name and residence or gives a name and residence which the Police officer has reason to believe is false. S. 57.

156. Any officer in charge of a Police-station may, without the order of a Magistrate, investigate any cognizable case which a Court having jurisdiction over the local area within the limits of such station would have power to inquire into or try under the provisions of Chapter XV relating to the place of injury or trial.

No proceeding of a Police-officer in any such case shall at any stage be called in question on the ground that the case was one which such officer was not empowered under this section to investigate.

Thus, an officer in charge of a Police station within whose local jurisdiction a person is who has been charged with being a thief, or with being a thug and committing murder, or with dacoity, or with dacoity with murder, or with having belonged to a gang of dacoits, or with having escaped from custody, may investigate the offence although it may have been committed beyond the local jurisdiction. S. 181. So also with regard to a theft, if any of the property stolen was possessed by the thief, or by any person who received or retained it knowing, or having reason to believe it to be stolen, within his local jurisdiction, (S. 181), or when the place of the commission of the cognizable offence is doubtful or it has been committed partly in his and partly in another local jurisdiction (S. 182) : or the cognizable offence has been committed in the course of performing a journey or voyage, and the offender or the person against whom, or the thing in respect of which, that offence was committed passed through or into his local jurisdiction in the course of that journey or voyage. S. 183.

commission of an offence which he is empowered under section 156 to investigate, he shall forthwith send a report of the same to a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of such offence upon a police report, and shall proceed in person, or shall depute one of his subordinate officers to proceed, to the spot to investigate the facts and circumstances of the case and to take such measures as may be necessary for the discovery and arrest of the offender :

(a) when any information as to the commission of any such offence is given against any person by name and the case is not of a serious nature, the officer in charge of a Police-station need not proceed in person or depute a subordinate officer to make an investigation on the spot :

(b) if it appear to the officer in charge of a Police-station that there is no sufficient ground for entering on an investigation, he shall not investigate the case.

In each of the cases mentioned in clauses (a) and (b), the officer in charge of the Police-station shall state in his said report his reasons for not fully complying with the requirements of the first paragraph of this section.

(Ss. 114, 116, 117.)

“Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of such offence upon a Police report.” This would be any Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate and any other Magistrate specially empowered in that behalf by the local Government or by the District Magistrate. S. 191.

S. 157 of the Code of Criminal Procedure requires that immediate intimation of every complaint or information preferred to an officer in charge of a Police-station of the commission of a cognizable offence be sent to the Magistrate having jurisdiction. The object of this provision is obvious, and it involves more than a mere technical compliance with the law. The Magistrate is primarily responsible for the condition of the District as regards repressible crime, and he is not at liberty to divest himself of that responsibility or to relax that supervision over crime which the law intends that he should exercise. It is his duty to know and consider each cognizable case as soon after its occurrence as possible. He should not rest content with reading the challan when the case comes

Ch. XIV.

S. 157.

Ch. XIV. up for trial, but he should watch the various steps taken by the Police and advise them in all cases whenever it may be necessary.

Ss. 158, 159. Moreover, it is for the Magistrate, by the continuous study of diaries, to acquaint himself with what is going on of the salient and special kind referred to in the Code as matters for his attention and possible interference. It is for the Police to keep the Magistrate constantly informed of them.—Panj. Ct. Cir., x. 171, 26th May, 1869. Smyth, p. 83.

S. 159 declares how a Magistrate shall proceed on receipt of such a report.

158. Every report sent to a Magistrate under section 157 shall, if the Local Government so directs, be submitted through such superior officer of police as the Local Government, by general or special order, appoints in that behalf.

Such superior officer may give such instructions to the officer in charge of the Police-station as he thinks fit, and shall, after recording such instructions on such report, transmit the same without delay to the Magistrate.

(S. 117.)

159. Such Magistrate, on receiving such report, may, if he thinks fit, at once proceed, or depute any Magistrate subordinate to him to proceed, to hold an investigation or preliminary inquiry into, or otherwise to dispose of, the case in manner provided in this Code.

Power to hold investigation or preliminary inquiry.

If a Magistrate acting under S. 159 proceeds to hold the inquiry regarding the commission of an offence, and subsequently tries the case, it is most important that he should bear in mind the observations of the Calcutta High Court (per Phear, J.) in the case of Hurro Chunder Pal and others (20 W. R., 76) to the following effect:

“The Deputy Magistrate states: ‘In this, as in that case, I was the chief actor and investigator. I have in this, as in that, to separate, and so far as in me lies to banish from the record, and if it were possible, from my own recollection facts which I have seen and known, and confine myself strictly to the evidence on the record. In fact, I have to do that most difficult of all things—to, as it were, change my identity, and speak, write, and think, not in the first, but third person.’

“What was the particular obligation under which the Deputy Magistrate supposed himself to have laboured, and which constrained him to 'change,' as he says, 'his identity,' it is perhaps difficult to understand. It has been held by this Court, and is accordant with the general principles which govern the conduct of an English Court of Criminal Justice, that while a person is not necessarily disqualified from presiding as a Judge or acting as a juryman upon an inquiry into or investigation of facts, because he may have been himself a witness of some of the facts which are the subject of the inquiry or investigation, if he does do so, he, so far from being under any such obligation as that which the Deputy Magistrate seems to have referred to, is bound to state to the prisoner or other person concerned, or to make known to him, so far as he can, what are the facts which he himself observed, to which he himself can bear testimony. And, moreover, the prisoner, who is being tried by a Judge in this situation, has a right, if he thinks it desirable, to cross-examine the Judge, who, under these circumstances, and to this extent, must be viewed as a witness, and his evidence should be recorded. It is quite erroneous, in our opinion, to suppose, on the contrary, as the Deputy Magistrate appears to have supposed, that he was bound to keep out of sight altogether the part which he had played in the matter and to pretend (we cannot use any other word than that) that he knew nothing about the facts excepting so much as the witnesses told him in Court. It is always dangerous for any man in whose right conduct others are concerned to set up and endeavour to carry out a fiction such as this. It is most specially dangerous for a Judge, who is under the grave responsibility which attaches to the office of a criminal Judge, to attempt anything of the kind. The Deputy Magistrate, if he thought it right, as he did, to take upon himself the duty of trying the prisoners in this case, ought to have made no pretence whatever of any sort; he ought to have frankly avoided and openly stated in his Court all the part which he had taken, and the facts which he had observed, and made his own evidence part of the record in the case. The awkwardness of a criminal Judge being the principal witness in the case which he has to try, is no doubt most apparent; this, however, is a reason for his declining to try the case, not for his endeavouring to assume an unreal character."

The proceedings, if held by a Magistrate, would not be an investigation within the terms of the definition given in S. 4 (b) but would be an inquiry (c) or a trial. The nature of the proceedings held by a subordinate Magistrate would apparently depend on the terms of the order passed by the Magistrate who received the Police report.

160. Any Police-officer making an investigation under this chapter may, by order in writing, require the attendance before himself of any person being within the limits of his own or any adjoining station who, from the information given or otherwise, appears to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case; and such person shall attend as so required.

(S. 118.)

Ch. XIV. The persons so ordered to attend are bound to attend to the order; but in no case, can a Police-officer compel a witness by force to attend before him.—Behari Singh, 7 W. R., 3.

Ss. 161, 162.

Disobedience should be reported to the Magistrate, by whom it is punishable under S. 174, Penal Code.—Ben Pol. Cir., 19, 1867.

Police officers, when causing the attendance of Railway employees, must send immediate information to the Head of the Department under whom such persons are serving.—Ben. Govt., 6355, November 13, 1865. Probably in such cases the rule laid down in the proviso to S. 72 would be followed.

161. Any Police-officer making an investigation under this chapter may examine orally any person supposed to be acquainted with the facts and circumstances of the case, and may reduce into writing any statement made by the person so examined.

Such person shall be bound to answer truly all questions relating to such case put to him by such officer, other than questions the answers to which would have a tendency to expose him to a criminal charge or to a penalty or forfeiture.

The person who gives information of a cognizable offence at the Police-station is bound to sign his statement when reduced to writing (S. 154), but no other statement if reduced to writing shall be signed by the person making it (S. 162). An examination by a Police officer would not be on oath or affirmation.

S. 161 declares that any person examined by a Police officer making an investigation shall be bound to answer truly all questions relating to the case put to him other than questions likely to criminate himself. If therefore he answers falsely he commits the offence of intentionally giving false evidence as defined in S. 191, Penal Code. This is an amendment of the previously existing law under which it was held that it was not obligatory on a person under examination by a Police officer to tell the truth. See In re Karim Khan, 8 Cal. L. R., 300.

162. No statement, other than a dying declaration, made by any person to a Police-officer in the course of an investigation under this chapter shall, if reduced to writing, be signed by the person making it, or be used as evidence against the accused.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the provisions of section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872.

(Ss. 119, para. 3; S. 121.)

The information on which the investigation proceeded must be reduced to writing and signed by the person giving it (S. 154), and a dying declaration made to a Police-officer in the course of an investigation if reduced to writing should also be signed by the declarant whenever possible (S. 162), but no other statement made to a Police officer, if reduced to writing, shall be signed by the person making it. If any such statements are reduced to writing they are regarded as private memoranda to aid the Police in the cause of the investigation, but though such a statement may not be used against the accused, it may be used against him should he be charged with having intentionally given false evidence (see note to S. 161). The investigating Police-officer when under examination as a witness may moreover refer to any such statement for the purpose of refreshing his memory (S. 159 Evidence Act) in which case the statement must be produced and shown to the adverse party if he requires it, and may be made the subject of cross-examination (S. 161). But such statement in writing could not be used to contradict any witness who made it to a Police officer (S. 157) because that would be using it as evidence against the accused.

Where a witness before a Court contradicts his statements previously made to the Police, the accused is entitled to cross-examine him with respect to his former statements: if he denies it, he may be contradicted: and one of the ways in which he may be contradicted is by calling the Police officer before whom he made that statement who may refresh his memory from his diary (or any statement of the witness reduced by the Police officer to writing.) But the prisoner has no right to insist that the Diary (or such statement) not in Court shall be sent for, or, if it be in Court, that it shall be referred to for the purpose of refreshing the memory of the Police officer. A witness cannot be compelled to refresh his memory from any document, unless it is in the possession of the party who desires to put it to the witness, or is, at least, such as he can insist on having produced. In re Kali Churn Chumari, 10 Cal. L. R., 51; (S. C.) 1. L. R., 8 Cal. 156.

But when a statement is not reduced to writing, it is not inadmissible as evidence since the law does not profess to provide for such a case. The Police officer may therefore be questioned as to such statement by the pleader for the defence, as also any other person who may have heard it made. And even when it is reduced to writing the law does not say that the Police officer or such other person shall not be liable to be questioned regarding it, or bound to state the truth when so questioned, but that the statement so reduced to writing shall not be used as evidence against the accused. Consequently the Police officer and such other person, if any, continue as liable to be questioned with regard to such statement as they were before the enactment of the prohibition, and may make use of such writing to refresh their memories..... This is not inconsistent with S. 91 of the Evidence Act as the statement made to the Police officer is not a matter required by law to be "reduced to the form of a document," so as, under that section to exclude out evidence thereof from the mouth of the Police officer, or such other person. Uttamchand Kapurchand, 11 Bomb., 120.

Ch. XIV.

S. 162.

A dying declaration must be taken in the presence of the accused person to be admissible as evidence: if not so taken it must be proved in the ordinary way by some one who heard it made, and the writing

Ch. XIV. may be used for the purpose of refreshing the witness's memory.—
Samiruddin, I. L. R., 8 Cal, 211.

S. 163. S. 27 of the Evidence Act declares that when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a Police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved.

163. No Police-officer or person in authority shall offer or make, or cause to be offered or made, any such inducement, threat or promise as is mentioned in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, section 24.

But no Police-officer or other person shall prevent, by any caution or otherwise, any person from making in the course of any investigation under this chapter any statement which he may be disposed to make of his own free will.

The following sections of the Evidence Act (I, 1872), are of importance in connection with this section :

24. A confession made by an accused person is irrelevant in a criminal proceeding, if the making of the confession appears to the Court to have been caused by any inducement, threat or promise having reference to the charge against the accused person, proceeding from a person in authority and sufficient, in the opinion of the Court, to give the accused person grounds, which would appear to him reasonable, for supposing that by making it he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil of a temporal nature in reference to the proceedings against him.

25. No confession made to a Police officer shall be proved as against a person accused of any offence.

26. No confession made by any person whilst he is in the custody of a Police-officer, unless it be made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate, shall be proved as against such person.

27. Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a Police officer, so much of such information whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved.

28. If such a confession as is referred to in section twenty-four is made after the impression caused by any such inducement, threat or promise has, in the opinion of the Court, been fully removed, it is relevant.

29. If such a confession is otherwise relevant, it does not become irrelevant merely because it was made under a promise of secrecy, or in consequence of a deception practised on the accused person for the purpose of obtaining it, or when he was drunk, or because it was made in answer to questions which he need not have answered, whatever may have been the form of those questions, or because he was not warned.

that he was not bound to make such confession, and that evidence of it might be given against him. Ch. XIV.

The High Court has held that the mere standing by of a Magistrate when confessions are being made to and recorded by the Police for their own use, will not make those confessions evidence, for S. 26 refers to cases where the Magistrate is himself conducting the investigation, and then, although the prisoner may be in the custody of the Police at the time, such prisoner, making a confession, is liable to have that confession used against him.—Domun Kahar, 12 W. R., 82.

S. 163.

Obtaining a disclosure or confession, by hurt, grievous hurt or criminal intimidation is punishable under Ss. 330, 331, 506, Penal Code.

In all cases where the Police are accused of extorting confessions or maltreating persons arrested, the District Superintendent will immediately proceed to the spot and thoroughly investigate the matter, reporting the circumstances fully, not only to the District Magistrate, but to the Inspector-General of Police and the Deputy Inspector-General of the Circle. Should it appear that there is any foundation for the charge, the Deputy Inspector-General will lose no time in proceeding to the District in which the occurrence has taken place, and reporting the action of the superior officers of Police in the matter.—Ben. Pol. Cir., 60, 1865.

In the case of Dhurmo Dutt Ojha (8 W. R., 13,) it appeared that the prisoners confessed on being told by the Police officer that he would get them released if they told the truth. The Calcutta High Court severely condemned such conduct as highly improper and illegal, holding that no part of the Police officer's evidence as to the discovery of facts in consequence of the confessions was legally admissible. See also Bechoo Manjee, 9 W. R., 16.

The following judgment of the Calcutta High Court states the law regarding the admissibility of statements made to the Police—(Nobodeep Chunder Ghosamee and another, 1 B. L. R., 15, Original Side, Criminal.)

“PEACOCK, C. J.—Upon the questions argued before us I entertain no doubt.

“The first relates to the answer given to the Police constable when he arrested the prisoner. The answer did not amount to a confession of guilt, but was a statement of facts, which, if true, showed that the prisoner was innocent. It is not a confession obtained under an inducement of hope or fear. The only objection to the statement being admissible in evidence is, that it was made in answer to a question put by the Police officer.

“The cases upon this subject in England are conflicting, but the later cases seem to show that statements made by a prisoner in answer to a question put by a Police-officer are admissible in evidence. In the case of R. v. Beriman, 6 Cox, C. C., 388, Erle, C. J., refused to admit as evidence an answer given by a prisoner to a question put to him by a Magistrate; and a similar ruling by Wilde, C. J., is to be found in the case of R. v. Pettitt, 4 Cox. C. C., 164. But in a later case, the Queen v. Cheverton, 2 F. & F., 833, Erle, C. J., admitted as evidence against the prisoner a statement which she had made in answer to questions put to her by a Police officer. In that case it appeared that Baxter, the Police officer, had said to the prisoner, ‘you had better tell all about it, it will save trouble;’ and then put certain questions to the

Ch. XIV. prisoner, which she answered. It was held that the answers given to Baxter were inadmissible, because they had been made under the influence of something in the nature of a threat or inducement. Afterwards, another Policeman put questions to the prisoner, which she answered, and it was objected that those answers were inadmissible, as they had been made under the inducement held out by the former Police officer. Erle, C. J., after consulting Wightman, J., admitted the statements made to the second Police officer, holding, as I suppose, that the answers were not given in consequence of the inducement held out by the first officer. That is a distinct authority that statements made by a prisoner in answer to questions put by a Police officer are admissible; and it may be remarked that in that case the answers were held to be admissible, though the prisoner had not been cautioned.

“In the case of R. v. Mick, 3 F. F., 342, it was held by Miller, J., that the confession made by a prisoner in answer to a question put to him by a Police officer was admissible. A similar decision will be found in 1 Moody, C. C., 27, in which it was held that a confession obtained without threat or promise from a boy, fourteen years old, by questions put to him by a Police officer, in whose custody the boy was on a charge of felony, and when the boy had had no food for nearly a whole day, was properly received as evidence against him. That was held by six Judges to three upon a point reserved. The majority held that the confession was rightly received, as no threat or promise had been made.

“Having these conflicting decisions before us, I should be disposed to act upon the decisions given in the case reserved, even if it were not borne out by every principle of common sense. If an inducement is held out to a prisoner to make a confession, by telling him he will be better off if he makes a confession, he may be induced, if he knows that circumstances are strong to lead to a presumption of guilt, to make a confession, though he is innocent.

“There may be reasonable ground against the admission of such a confession, though perhaps it would be better to admit it, and to leave those who have to determine as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner to judge of the weight which ought to be attached to it.

“The object of the Criminal Law is to punish the guilty, for the purpose of deterring them and others from committing offences. The object of the Law of Procedure, including the Law of Evidence, is, or ought to be, that the innocent shall be protected, and the guilty punished. I cannot, therefore, at all agree with the remarks of Miller, J., and in the expression of his disapproval of the conduct of the Police officer in asking questions, provided he does not hold out hope or fear as an inducement to confess.

“Some cases have gone to the extent of saying that a statement is not admissible if it is obtained by telling the prisoner he had better tell the truth. For my own part, I cannot see any objection to telling every man that he had better tell the truth; but that is very different from telling a man that he had better confess, when you do not know whether he is innocent or guilty.

“Though it has been held in some cases that confessions obtained by asking questions are not admissible, and although law is said to be the perfection of reason, it has been distinctly ruled in England—and I believe without a dissentient voice—that confessions obtained by artifice or deception are admissible. Therefore, where a confession was obtained by a person who took an oath that he would never mention what the prisoner told him, the statement made when disclosed was held to be admissible; so where it appeared that one of the prisoners had made a statement to a constable whilst he was drunk, and it was imputed to the constable that had given him liquor to cause him to do so, the statement was held to be admissible evidence against the statement not having been made under the inducement of hope or fear. See the cases collected in Roscoe on Evidence in Criminal Cases, 47. It is high time, I think, that we should decide according to principles which are founded in reason and good sense. I therefore hold that what the prisoner said in answer to questions put to him by the Police officer was admissible, no threat or deception having been used or any false hope held out.”

Ch. XIV.

S. 164.

The law in this respect was also discussed by the Bombay High Court in the case of Reg. v. Navroji Dadabhai, 9, Bomb. 358 where the question of how far a person was “in authority” over the confessing person came also under consideration. Sarjent, C J. said: The test would seem to be, had the person authority to interfere in the matter; and any concern or interest in it would appear to be sufficient to give him that authority as in the Queen v. Warningham (2 Den. C. C. 447 n) where Baron Parke held that the wife of one of the prosecutors and concerned in the management of their business was a person in authority, and the rule is so laid down in Archbold’s Criminal Practice.

164. Any Magistrate not being a Police officer
Power to record statement and confessions. may record any statement or confession made to him in the course of an investigation under this chapter, or at any time afterwards before the commencement of the inquiry or trial.

Such statements shall be recorded in such of the manners hereinafter prescribed for recording evidence as is in his opinion best fitted for the circumstances of the case. Such confessions shall be recorded and signed in the manner provided in section 364, and shall then be forwarded to the Magistrate by whom the case is to be inquired into or tried.

No Magistrate shall record any such confession unless, upon questioning the person making it, he has reason to believe that it was made voluntarily; and when he records any confession he shall make a memorandum at the foot of such record to the following effect:—

Ch. XIV.

S. 164.

"I believe that this confession was voluntarily made. It was taken in my presence and hearing, and was read over to the person making it and admitted by him to be correct, and it contains a full and true account of the statement made by him.

"(Signed) A. B.,

"Magistrate."

(S. 122.)

The terms 'any Magistrate,' must be restricted to any person exercising any of the powers of a Magistrate within the particular place where the statement or confession is recorded. Thus a Magistrate having jurisdiction in the Suburbs of Calcutta was held to have no jurisdiction to act under S. 164 in Calcutta.—Hurribole Chunder Ghose, 1 L. R., 1 Cal., 207.

S. 164 applies to a case in which some Magistrate takes a confession and forwards it to the Magistrate by whom the inquiry or trial is held, and not to a confession taken by the Magistrate who is conducting the inquiry and examining the witnesses preparatory to commitment.—Jetoo and others, 23 W. R., 16. The fact that it may afterwards be the duty of a Magistrate to hold the inquiry under chapter XVIII, does not prevent him from recording the statement of an accused person under S. 164. Bomb. H. Ct. Resn. in Chambers, March 31, 1877. It is not because a case is still under Police investigation, and the final report has not been sent in, that a confession recorded by a Magistrate must be recorded under S. 164 and not under S. 364. If the Magistrate who records such a confession has authority to hold the inquiry or trial without any order from a superior Magistrate (S. 192) the confession would be the commencement of the inquiry or trial and would therefore be recorded under S. 364 rather than under S. 164. Krishno Monee, 6 Cal. L. R., 289: Anunt Ram Singh and others 1 L. R., 5 Cal., 954 (Full Bench).

The practice of taking prisoners before Magistrates not having jurisdiction in the case for the purpose of getting a confession recorded is not generally desirable, but such a confession is legally admissible.—Vahala Jetha, 7 Bom, 56, Crown Cases.

It is not necessary to caution an accused person before recording his statement.—5 Mad. xi, App., Pro. Dec. 9, 1869.

The Police officer who brought the prisoner should not be present while a confession is taken, nor should he be allowed to suggest questions to be put. Though a confession so taken would be admissible as evidence, a Court would not attach much weight to it, as such a course suggests that the Magistrate was not conducting the inquiry himself.—Cal. H. Ct., Cir. 7, July 30, 1873.

A Magistrate should especially record the circumstances under which a confession taken under S. 122 was made, and under whose custody the person was at the time.—Bom. H. Ct., Circular, 257.

S. 164 declares that a confession recorded by a Magistrate under its provisions "shall be recorded and signed in the manner provided by S. 364." S. 364 requires that the whole of the examination including every question put and every answer given shall be recorded in full, in the language in which the accused is examined, or, if that is not practicable, in the language of the Court or English, and that such record shall be shown or read to the accused, or if he does not understand the language in which it is written, that it shall be interpreted to him in a language which he understands, the accused being at liberty to explain or add to his answers—that when the whole is made conformable to what the accused declares to be the truth, the record shall be signed by the accused and by the Magistrate or Judge who shall certify under his own hand that the examination was taken in his presence and hearing, and that the record contains a full and true account of the statement made by the accused.

Any omission on the part of a Magistrate to comply fully with the provisions of section 164 or section 364 may be cured by taking evidence that such person duly made the statement recorded; and notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Evidence Act S. 91, such statement shall be admitted if the error has not injured the accused as to his defence on the merits. S. 533. This section supersedes the effect of many judgments of the several High Courts which have distinguished between confessions recorded under S. 164 and under S. 364, and have laid down that an omission to comply with a confession of the former nature cannot be remedied by evidence subsequently taken.

The reason for requiring the signature of an accused person to the record of his confession is probably to furnish a new and strong test whether the confession was voluntary and free from controlling influences, and to afford him a locus poenitentiae—an ultimate opportunity, before the final completion of the record, of indicating that the confession was not voluntary, or was made under improper influence, if such were the case, and also an additional opportunity of denying the accuracy of the record of that confession. . . . The error of the Magistrate in omitting to ask her to sign was, having regard to the probable intention of the Legislature in requiring the signature of the accused, of such a nature as may have seriously prejudiced her, and, therefore, this imperfect record of the confession is inadmissible in evidence against her.—Bai Ratan, 10 Bomb, 366. (S. 533 of this Code would now probably provide a remedy for this omission.)

The Magistrate or Court before which such statement or confession shall come shall presume that the document is genuine; that any statements as to the circumstances under which it was taken, purporting to be made by the person signing it, are true; and that such evidence, statement or confession was duly taken.—S. 80, Act I, 1872.

As the village headman in MADRAS is a village servant employed on Police duties (Act IV, (Madrass) 1864, S. 7) he would no longer be competent to record a confession under S. 164 which requires the officer recording a statement or confession to be a Magistrate not being a Police officer. The alteration in the law has therefore superseded the orders contained in 4 Mad. ii App. Pro. Feb. 14, 1868; Pro. July 7, 1869, 8 Mad. Jur., 149.

production of any document or other thing is necessary to the conduct of an investigation into any offence which he is authorized to investigate, and there is reason to believe that a person to whom a summons or order under section 94 has been or might be issued will not or would not produce such document or other thing as directed in the summons or order, or when such document or other thing is not known to be in the possession of any person, such officer may search, or cause search to be made, for the same, in any place within the limits of the station of which he is in charge, or to which he is attached.

Such officer shall, if practicable, conduct the search in person.

If he is unable to conduct the search in person, and there is no other person competent to make the search present at the time, he may require any officer subordinate to him to make the search, and he shall deliver to such subordinate officer an order in writing, specifying the document or other thing for which search is to be made, and the place to be searched; and such subordinate officer may thereupon search for such thing in such place.

The provisions of this Code as to search-warrants shall, so far as may be, apply to a search made under this section.

(S. 379.)

Except under special circumstances the search must be made between sunrise and sunset. If for any reason this rule be not observed, the fact must be reported to the District Superintendent for the information of the Magistrate having jurisdiction. If a search is required in any place within the limits of another station, it can be made only through the officer in charge of the latter, on the requisition, oral or written, of the former—Bengal Police Circular.

Bengal Police officers in charge of Police stations in Bengal may also institute searches for contraband salt, &c.—Act VII (B. C.), 1864.

Any Police officer, above the rank of a head constable, may institute a search for excisable articles liable to confiscation.—Act VII (Bengal Council) 1878. S. 40.

Police officers of all grades may, without a warrant, enter and inspect (1) any drinking shop, gaming-house, or other place of loose and disorderly characters (Act V, 1861, S. 23); (2) any salt work or any warehouse or any premises in which salt is stored (Act VII, (B. C.), 1864, S. 23); any shop or premises of licensed manufacturers and retail.

vendors of excisable articles.—Section 37.—Special provision is also made Ch. XIV. by S. 153 of this Code for the inspection of weights and measures.

The provisions of the Code relating to search-warrants are contained in Ss. 166, 167, 96 et seq.

166. An officer in charge of a Police-station may require an officer in charge of another Police-station, whether in the same or a different District, to cause a search to be made in any place, in any case in which the former officer might cause such search to be made within the limits of his own station.

When officer in charge of Police station may require another to issue search-warrants.

Such officer, on being so required, shall proceed according to the provisions of section 165, and shall forward the thing found, if any, to the officer at whose request the search was made.

(S. 380.)

167. Whenever it appears that any investigation under this chapter cannot be completed within the period of twenty-four hours fixed by section 61, and there are grounds for believing that the accusation is well-founded, the officer in charge of the Police-station shall forthwith transmit to the nearest Magistrate a copy of the entries in the diary hereinafter prescribed relating to the case, and shall at the same time forward the accused to such Magistrate.

Procedure when investigation cannot be completed in twenty-four hours.

The Magistrate to whom an accused person is forwarded under this section may, whether he has or has not jurisdiction to try the case, from time to time authorize the detention of the accused in such custody as such Magistrate thinks fit, for a term not exceeding fifteen days. If he has not jurisdiction to try the case or commit it for trial, and considers further detention unnecessary, he may order the accused to be forwarded to a Magistrate having such jurisdiction.

A Magistrate authorizing under this section detention in the custody of the police shall record his reasons for so doing.

If such order be given by a Magistrate other than the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate, he shall forward a copy of his order, with his reasons

Ch. XIV. for making it, to the Magistrate to whom he is immediately subordinate.

s. 167.

(S. 124, paras. 2, 3, 4.)

Before a Magistrate can grant a remand under this section, the accused must have been brought before him. Shera, 2 Panj. Rec., 72. A remand to Police custody ought only to be granted in cases of real necessity, and when there is good reason to believe that the accused can point out property or do something that will assist in elucidating the case. Panj. C. Ct. Cir. ix., March 15, 1868. The twenty-four hours during which the village Police may detain an accused person under Act (Bombay) VIII, 1867, are not to be included in the time allowed to the District Police officers by this Code.—Bom. H. Ct. Cir., 1260., 1869; Resn. in Chambers.

As to what constitutes a detention by the Police, the Calcutta High Court, in the case of Behari Singh and others (7 W. R., 4), held that, if, as is frequently the case, a Police officer, without arresting a person himself, directs some of the neighbours to take charge of him, he is responsible in the same way as if he had himself made the arrest, the person arrested being in law in his custody. In the case of Puran Kusam Narasaya Pantulu (2 Madras, 396), the Madras High Court held that the requiring of the attendance of a certain person by letter, and the deputing of two constables to accompany him, under the allegation that their duties were to prevent him from speaking to any one, amounts to an arrest and imprisonment.

In the appeal of a Police officer convicted of wrongful confinement (S. 340, Penal Code), the Calcutta High Court held that a Police officer is not empowered, by S. 167 of this Code, to detain without question an accused person for a period not exceeding twenty-four hours, but rather he is in no case justified in detaining a person for one single hour, except on some reasonable grounds warranted by the circumstances of the case. The time during which a person is wrongfully confined by a Police officer is material only in fixing the punishment for the offence.—Sheoprosunno Ghosal, 6 W. R., 88. In another case, in which the Police officer had been punished under S. 29, Act V of 1861, for having detained an accused person more than twenty-four hours, the Calcutta High Court held that, as the detention was not continuous, the Police officer had committed no offence.—Indrobee Shaha, 1 W. R., 5.

Under no circumstances can an accused person be detained for more than twenty-four hours without the special order of a Magistrate; and, unless that special order be obtained, he must, at the expiration of that period, be either sent in to the Magistrate, or be discharged, any further detention being unlawful. As to the place of confinement, the Court remarked that, though the Code was not so express on this point as on the duration of the confinement, it was perfectly clear that it was intended that, when a Police officer arrested any person, the prisoner should not be kept in confinement in any place which the subordinate officer might select, but he should be sent immediately to the Police station, and there kept in the custody of the officer in charge of the station, who is the person entrusted by the law with the conduct of the inquiry.—Behari Singh and others, 7 W. R., 3.

Every prisoner must be forwarded from a Police station direct to the nearest Magistrate having jurisdiction, and must not be sent to the next superior officer of Police.—Bengal Govt. Resolution, dated 22nd Sept., 1862, para. 12.

In all heinous cases, when a single prisoner is sent in, he should be handcuffed; when two or more prisoners are sent, they should be handcuffed to each other, two and two. In cases not of a heinous nature prisoners should not be handcuffed, unless violent, and then only by order of the officer in charge of the station not below the rank of Sub-Inspector. Bengal Pol. Cir. 27, 1863.

Para. 2 of this section now provides for a limit for the term of a remand order making it correspond with that fixed by S. 344 for trials in accordance with the rule laid down in the case of Sarkya Valad Dhaku, 5 Bomb., 31. Crown Cases.

Copies of all orders of remand with reasons for the same shall be transmitted by subordinate Magistrates to Sub-Divisional or District Magistrates within twenty-four hours from their date. Mad. H. Ct. Pro. May 6, 1878. Weir, App. xvii.

169. If, upon an investigation under this chapter, it appears to the officer in charge of the Police-station that there is not sufficient evidence or reasonable ground of suspicion to justify the forwarding of the accused to a Magistrate, such officer shall, if such person is in custody, release him on his executing a bond, with or without sureties, as such officer may direct, to appear, if and when so required, before a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence on a police report and to try the accused or commit him for trial.

Sch. V, No. 25 contains a form of a bond with sureties under this section.

 offence is bailable and the accused is able to give security, shall take security from him for his appearance before such Magistrate on a day fixed and for his attendance from day to day before such Magistrate until otherwise directed.

When the officer in charge of a Police-station forwards an accused person to a Magistrate or takes security for his appearance before such Magistrate under this section, he shall send to such Magistrate any weapon or other article which it may be necessary to produce before him, and shall require the complainant, if any, and so many of the persons who appear to such officer to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case as he may think necessary, to execute a bond to appear before the Magistrate and prosecute or give evidence (as the case may be) in the matter of the charge against the accused.

If the Court of the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate be mentioned in the bond, such Court shall be held to include any Court to which such Magistrate may refer the case for inquiry or trial, provided reasonable notice of such reference be given to such complainant or persons.

The day fixed under this section shall be the day whereon the accused person is to appear, if security for his appearance has been taken, or the day on which he may be expected to arrive at the Court of the Magistrate, if he is to be forwarded in custody.

The officer in whose presence the bond is executed shall deliver a copy thereof to one of the persons who executed it, and shall then send to the Magistrate the original with his report.

(S. 123, para. 1; S. 127, para. 1; S. 130.)

Sch. V, No. 26 contains a form of bond to prosecute or give evidence.

"To a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence upon a Police report." This would be to a Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate and any other Magistrate so empowered by the Local Government or District Magistrate (S. 191) provided that he had power to inquire into or try the particular offence. The evidence obtained by the Police should be sent up as found and not kept until it is all complete. Kodai Kahar, 5 W. R., 6. Ch. XIV.

 The practice of sending up accused persons by instalments in order to find out whether the conviction holds with the Court of Session is strictly forbidden. The Police should rather exert themselves to arrest at once all persons who are accused and against whom the case is ascertained or proved. Ben. Pol. Cir. 64, 1866. S. 171.

The complainant and witnesses should be required to attend on an early date. An interval of one month was seriously censured. Bhim Manjee, 6 W. R., 52.

In the Panjab the Police are required to provide for the diet of witnesses up to and inclusive of the day on which the charge sheet is handed over to the Judicial Court, and also the diet of the prisoner up to and inclusive of the day on which he is made over to the judicial lock-up. For this purpose District Superintendents of Police receive a permanent advance from the Treasury. On presenting the charge sheet, the Police officer should move the judicial officer to pass the sums disbursed in the particular case. The Police will however have nothing to do with the diet of witnesses or of accused persons in cases which are instituted in the Judicial Court on the petition of parties or on the motion of the Court.—Smyth, p. 122.

When a District Superintendent of Police, on looking into a case, finds that any witnesses have been unnecessarily sent in, he should at once report the circumstances to the Magistrate in order that they may be discharged before the trial, should the Magistrate think proper.
 When such witnesses are dismissed, the District Superintendent should inform the Police officer who sent up the case, and point out the reasons of their not being required, thereby instructing him in his duty.—Bengal zances is a proceeding resorted to when persons who have undertaken should give them an opportunity of justifying their default.—Dassoo

172. Every Police-officer making an investigation under this chapter shall day by day enter his proceedings in the investigation in a diary, setting forth the time at which the information reached him, the time at which he began and closed his investigation, the place or places visited by him, and a statement of the circumstances ascertained through his investigation.

Any Criminal Court may send for the police diaries of a case under inquiry or trial in such Court, and may use such diaries, not as evidence in the case but to aid it in such inquiry or trial. Neither the accused nor his agents shall be entitled to call for such diaries, nor shall he or they be entitled to see them merely because they are referred to by the Court; but if they are used by the Police-officer who made them to refresh his memory, or if the Court uses them for the purpose of contradicting such Police-officer, the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, section 161 or section 145, as the case may be, shall apply.

A list of any articles found on the person of the accused on his arrest must be forwarded with the daily diary or final report of the case.—S. 51, post.

The last para. of S. 172 is an important provision.

Criminal Courts may use Police diaries to aid them in an inquiry or trial, but Police diaries are not substantive evidence in a case concerning the offence under investigation nor can they be read to the Jury on a trial. Hurdutt Surma, 8 W. R., 68. The mode in which they should be employed has been indicated by the Punjab Chief Court in the following Circular X, dated May 21, 1869 :—

“The law requires that besides reporting a case in the first instance, all action taken by the Police officers and proceedings generally in each case should, from day to day, be entered in a diary (S. 172, Criminal Procedure Code). The Chief Court has several times had occasion to animadvert on the imperfect character of the daily record of their proceedings made by the Police when conducting enquiries. The provision of S. 172 that such diary shall not be evidence of the facts stated therein, except against the officer who made it, must not be understood to relate to the very valuable evidence of a negative character afforded by diaries, nor to prohibit Criminal Courts from tracing” from these proceedings the various stages through which an inquiry may have passed, the intervals that may have elapsed in it, and the steps by which a confession may have been elicited or some other important piece of evidence obtained.

Ch. XIV.

S. 173.

"These diaries, although they are not evidence to prove the facts stated therein, except in the cases mentioned in the Act, are often when regularly kept, of the very greatest use in enabling Criminal Courts to test the value of the testimony of witnesses, especially those belonging to the Police, to establish dates, and to ascertain particulars which enable such a Court to judge of the weight to be attached to the evidence given at the trial. Moreover, being indicative, though not of probative effect, they may furnish the means of directing appropriate questions or supply the basis of a cross-examination. The Court accordingly requests that Magistrates of Districts will enforce a strict compliance on the part of Police officers with the requirements of the Code on this point.

"The Court further observes that, although these diaries are not sent to Magistrates, they are entitled to call for and inspect them whenever they may consider necessary. They should make it a uniform rule to do so in cases where the Police investigation has extended over several days and the credibility of any of the witnesses is doubtful and their calling for them occasionally at other times would have the best possible effect in checking the frequent irregularities committed by the subordinate Police officials. The Magistrate of the District also should not only notice that the diary is regularly kept ostensibly, but he should see that each day's diary has been forwarded to, and has regularly reached the District Superintendent in course of post: this being the only security against the contents being antedated."

Although Police diaries may be referred to by a Court to aid it in investigating a charge, they should not be acted on as strict proof save in so far as they go to contradict or qualify subsequent evidence of the persons who made them. It requires the utmost discrimination and discretion to make a proper use of such records, and while they may fairly be appealed to for the history of the several stages through which the Police investigation into a crime has passed, they afford no safe or certain material from which conclusions of guilt should be drawn. Kallun (1 Leg. Rem., 26).

A Police diary is not substantive evidence.

The Magistrate of the District should see that the diary is regularly kept up by the Police, and that last day's diary has been forwarded to, and has regularly reached, the District Superintendent in course of post: this being the only security against the contents being antedated.—Smyth, p. 84.

See note to S. 162 regarding the manner in which Police diaries should be used.

173. Every investigation under this chapter shall be completed without unnecessary delay, and, as soon as it is completed, the officer in charge of the Police-station shall Report of Police-officer.

Ch. XIV. forward to a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance
 S. 174. of the offence on a police report a report in the form prescribed by the Local Government, setting forth the names of the parties, the nature of the information and the names of the persons who appear to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case, and stating whether the accused person has been forwarded in custody, or has been released on his bond, and if so, whether with or without sureties.

Where a superior officer of police has been appointed under section 158, the report shall be submitted through him, and he may, pending the orders of the Magistrate, direct the officer in charge of the Police-station to make further investigation.

Whenever it appears from a report forwarded under this section that the accused has been released on his bond, the Magistrate shall make such order for the discharge of such bond or otherwise as he thinks fit.

(Ss. 125, 127.)

174. Every officer in charge of a Police-station, Police to inquire and on receiving information that a report on suicide, &c. person—

- (a) has committed suicide, or
- (b) has been killed by another, or by an animal, or by machinery, or by an accident, or
- (c) has died under circumstances raising a reasonable suspicion that some other person has committed an offence, shall immediately give intimation thereof to the nearest Magistrate empowered to hold inquests, and, unless otherwise directed by any rule prescribed by the Local Government, or by any general or special order of the District or Sub-divisional Magistrate, shall proceed to the place where the body of such deceased person is, and there, in the presence of two or more respectable inhabitants of the neighbourhood, shall make an investigation, and draw up a report of the apparent cause of death, describing such wounds, fractures, bruises and other marks of injury as may be found on the body, and stating in what manner, or by what weapon or instrument (if any), such marks appear to have been inflicted. Ch. XIV.

S. 174.

The report shall be signed by such Police-officer and other persons, or by so many of them as concur therein, and shall be forthwith forwarded to the District Magistrate or the Sub-divisional Magistrate.

When there is any doubt regarding the cause of death, or when for any other reason the Police-officer considers it expedient so to do, he shall, subject to such rules as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf, forward the body, with a view to its being examined, to the nearest Civil Surgeon, or other medical officer appointed in this behalf by the Local Government, if the state of the weather and the distance admit of its being so forwarded without risk of such putrefaction on the road as would render such examination useless.

In the Presidencies of Fort St. George and Bombay, investigations under this section may be made by the head of the village, who shall then report the result to the nearest Magistrate authorized to hold inquests.

The following Magistrates are empowered to hold inquests; namely, any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate, and any Magistrate specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government or the District Magistrate.

(S. 133.)

If a Magistrate, not duly empowered by law on that behalf, holds an inquest erroneously and in good faith, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered. S. 529 (c.)

HOSPITAL, }
The 18 . } [Cal. Sud. Ct. Cir. 90, April 30, 1857, Wilkins, 95.]

The following rules and orders under this section are in force in Lower Bengal.

At every Division of a District where there is a Sub-Assistant Surgeon or European Medical officer, the post mortem in all cases of violent or suspicious deaths occurring in that Division should be held by such officer.

Where there is only a Native Doctor, whenever the state of the dead body, the distance, the weather, or the condition of the roads renders it improbable that the body will reach the Sudder Station in such condition as to enable the Civil Surgeon satisfactorily to hold a post mortem examination on it, the body must be sent to the Subdivisional Medical officer. A copy of the report of such officer will, however, be submitted to the Civil Surgeon, who will make any remarks he thinks proper on the margin of the report, for the information of the Sub-divisional officer. When the body has external marks of violence as in the case of hanging, fractures or severe cuts, the Subdivisional Magistrate should himself, if possible, view the body in the presence of the Native Doctor.

Ch. XIV.

S. 174.

When, on the other hand, circumstances permit, the body should be sent to the Sudder Station for examination by the Civil Surgeon, and at such examination the Sub-Assistant Surgeon or the Native Doctor of the Sudder Station should be present, so that he may be able to attend, if required, at the Subdivisional Court, and give evidence as to the causes of death in cases in the which the absence of the Civil Surgeon on his duty would be attended with serious inconvenience to those under his medical charge. Resolution, Bengal Government, October 10, 1863.

The following Circulars have been issued, for the guidance of the Bengal Police, by the Inspector General :—

The Principal Inspector General, Medical Department, having brought to notice that, owing to the very meagre information collected, and the imperfect manner in which, in cases of poisoning or death, the first investigations are frequently conducted, much important medico-legal evidence is often lost,—the following hints, drawn up by the Civil Surgeon of Patna, are circulated for general information :—

I.—In cases of suspected poisoning,—

1. Bring away under seal any food (especially átá or sweetmeats), drink, tobacco, or drugs, which may be in the house or near the body.

2. If vomiting has occurred, swab up with a clean rag any vomited matter which may be on the person or bed, and seal up the rag in a packet.

3. Bring away, under seal, any clothing, matting, wood, or mud flooring into which any vomited matter has soaked.

4. As carefully bottle and seal the contents of any vessel containing vomited matter.

Ascertain the exact time between the receipt of food, drink, or medicine, the appearance of symptoms, and occurrence of death.

II.—In cases of hanging or strangulation,—

1. Note, if possible, before cutting down the body, or removing the strangulating medium, any lividity of face, especially of lips and eyelids, any projection of the eyes the state of the tongue, whether enlarged and protruded, or compressed between the lips, the escape of any fluid from mouth and nostrils, and direction of its flow.

2. On cutting down the body or removing the strangulating medium, note particularly the state of the neck, whether bruised along line of strangulation.

3. Note the direction of the mark, whether circular or oblique.

4. Note the state of the thumbs, whether crossed over the palm.

5. If possible, bring away the materials by which hanging or strangulation have been effected.

III.—On finding a body in a tank or well,—

1. Note any marks of blood around the mouth, or on the sides of the well or tank.

Ch. XIV.

S. 174.

2. On removing the body, carefully examine for, and note any external marks of injury, especially about head and neck.
3. Note state of skin, whether smooth or rough.
4. Examine the hands, and carefully remove any thing they may hold.

IV.—In the case of a body found murdered in an open field,—

1. Note the number, character, and appearance of any injuries.
2. Should a weapon be found, cover with paper and seal any marks of blood, and especially note and preserve any adherent hairs.
3. In the case of an exposed infant, note the state of the chord, especially if tied, and any marks of violence.

V.—In a case of presumed murder and burial of the remains,—

1. Examine for, and note any marks of violence, about skull especially.
2. Note carefully any indications of sex ; especially bring away a jaw and the bones of the pelvis.
3. If any suspicious of poisoning, bring away (sealed) the earth from where the stomach would have been.
4. If a body, presumed to have been murdered, has been burned, collect and bring in any fragments of bones which may be found among the ashes.

VI.—In rape or unnatural offence,—

Send in the lower garments worn by the person when assaulted.

Ben. Pol. Cir., No. 29 ; 1865

In all cases of sending in a corpse for post mortem, it should be accompanied by a challan containing an accurate description of the corpse, a statement of the apparent cause of death, and the circumstances, if any, which give rise to a suspicion of foul play. It should be filed by the Medical officer who examines the body. A copy should be sent direct to the District Superintendent by the quickest possible means. On receipt of this the District Superintendent should write a letter to the Medical officer in the prescribed form requesting him to examine the body and submit his report, which, when received, should be forwarded in original to the Magistrate having jurisdiction, a copy being kept by the District Superintendent.

The corpse should be sent in the charge of a trustworthy constable, whose name, together with those of the bearers or others accompanying it, should be recorded in the report of the inquest held under S. 133, such precautions being necessary to prevent the corpse being changed in transit, or in case of such change being alleged to have taken place of fresh proof of the identity of the corpse. Ben. Pol. Cir., 33, 1867.

The following rules for the guidance of Medical officers in conducting post mortem examinations and examining wounded persons have been issued by the BOMBAY GOVERNMENT :

1. The Medical officer shall, immediately on receiving from any person for examination a corpse or any other substance, inquire and note down the name and residence of such person, and if he be a District Police officer, his number and rank, and shall, without delay, grant to such person a receipt for the corpse or other substance delivered by him. The receipt so granted shall contain a list of the articles or substances received by the Medical officer and the name of the person from whom they were received, and to whom the receipt is given. It shall be the duty of the Medical officer to examine all bodies sent to him as soon as practicable after arrival.

Ch. XIV.

S. 174.

2. In cases where the body is sent to him, the Medical officer should note the time of its arrival, the date and hour of the post mortem examination, the sex and height and apparent age of the deceased, the state of the body, whether well nourished or otherwise, the existence or absence of any caste or other marks not of recent origin, such as cicatrices, deformities, and the like, and whether the marks upon it correspond with those mentioned in the Police report.

3. In cases where he has been taken to the place where the body lies, besides the above, he should note the place and nature of the soil (if out in the open country), where he found the body, also its position and the state of the clothes, if any. He should also note in cases of death from violence, the position of the body in reference to surrounding objects, such as sharp stones and the like, contact with which, it may be alleged, has produced the injury, also whether any blood-stains are visible on such objects or anywhere near the corpse, and whether any weapons are lying near it. In cases of suspected death from poisoning, he should note whether any appearance as if of vomited matters, &c., is present in the neighbourhood of the body.

4. In every case he should describe the condition in which he found the body, noting the degree of coldness, warmth, rigidity and putrefaction, and the amount and nature of the clothing or covering on it.

5. Commencing at the skull and terminating at the feet, he should examine the bones to determine whether any of them are fractured or dislocated, and inspect the vertebral column throughout, also the teeth, hair, orifices, of the body, and general surface, and also note the state of the pupils, whether contracted or otherwise, and whether any substances are grasped in the hands.

6. If there be any wound or contusion on the body, he should describe its position, length and breadth. He should note the depth and direction of all wounds, whether there are any cuts on the clothes corresponding to them, and examine the wounds carefully for the presence of foreign bodies, preserving such as are found. He should also state whether in his opinion the wound was mortal, giving his reasons for such opinion, and he should be especially careful to examine the neck for marks of compression.

7. He should state his opinion as to whether the wounds, if any, could have been self-inflicted, or whether they might have been the result of accident giving reasons for his opinion.

8. He should carefully examine any gun, sword, blood-stained instrument, stick or stone, by which the wounds may have been inflicted, and mark such instrument so as to be able to recognize it, if asked to do so. He should also compare the weapon with the wound alleged to have been caused by it, and state whether in his opinion it was possible for the wound to have been produced by it.

9. He should commence his dissection of the body by removing the top of the skull in the usual way with a saw, and note anything that appear unusual.

Ch. XIV.

S. 174.

10. He should then make an incision from the chin down to the pubes, so as to be able to examine the wind-pipe, heart, lungs, liver, stomachs, spleen, kidneys and intestines, also the urinary bladder, and note whether any of these organs appear diseased, and whether any wound on the outside of the body communicates with the contents of the chest or abdomen.

11. In making his examination, he should disturb as little as possible any organ which may communicate with an external wound, if he has reason to think that the body may be re-examined by another medical man.

12. In the case of females he should examine the ovaries and uterus, bearing in mind that abortion is sometimes caused by the introduction into the uterus of pointed instruments which may cause death. He should note the presence or absence of pregnancy, the probable period to which pregnancy had advanced, and examine the external generative organs for marks of violence.

13. In the case of infants, he should note the condition of the umbilicus and cord, if any of the latter remain. He should also remove the lungs, and try whether they sink or nearly sink in or float in water.

14. In cases of suspected poisoning, he should not neglect to examine every organ of the body, and should pay special attention to the rules laid down in Circular No. 1353, dated the 23rd April 1868, issued by the Inspector-General, Indian Medical Department.

15. He should bear in mind that death may possibly have been the result of starvation, exposure to cold or heat, smothering, drowning, lightning, strangulation, poisoning or disease, and state whether death was due to any of these causes, giving his reasons. He should also bear in mind the instructions already published for the guidance of Police officers in cases of death from drowning, hanging and the like.

16. He should keep all his original notes, even though he may make a fair copy of them afterwards, and should not lend them to any one to read.

17. In all cases the examination of the body should be thorough, and the notes of the appearances discovered should be as minute as possible.

18. Full notes should also be made in cases of examination of wounded persons.

19. When summoned to give evidence in any case in which he has made a post mortem examination, or examined a wounded person, the Medical officer should bring with him to Court the original notes made by him at the time of conducting such examination.

20. The notes of the examination in all cases, or a fair copy of them in the handwriting of Medical officers, should be at once made in a book kept at the Hospital or Dispensary for the purpose and should be signed by him. Bom. Gaz., 1873, p. 947. The Hospital Assistant in charge of the Dispensaries at Supa, Halial, Yelapur, Mundagod, and Hanore, have been appointed Medical officers under section 174 to conduct post mortem examinations. Bom. Gaz., 1874, p. 338.

In the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES, the following orders are in force :

Magistrates should be careful that, in every case of suspected death, the body is taken direct to the Civil Surgeon by the Police, who should lose no time in despatching it, with such information as to the history of the case, symptoms, &c., as can be procured without the occurrence of delay. After the Civil Surgeon, on completion of the post mortem examination, and preparation of the subjects for despatch to the Chemical Examiner, has communicated the necessity for such despatch to the Magistrate, the latter will prepare the report of the circumstances attending the death as they can be ascertained. The Magistrates should instruct the Police that, after the despatch of the body with the requisite information to the Civil Surgeon, they are to abstain from further communication with that officer, except through the Magistrate. Agra Sudder Court Cir. 11, 1866.

Ch. XIV.

S. 174.

In cases of suspected poisoning, the following points should be inquired into, and their answers embodied in the reference to the Chemical Examiner:—

1. What interval was there between the last eating or drinking, and the first appearance of the symptoms of poisoning?
2. What interval was there between the last eating and drinking, and death (if this occurred)?
3. Did the person move, and if so, how far from the place when the first symptoms were noticed?
4. What were the first symptoms?
5. Did vomiting or purging occur?
6. Did the person become drowsy, or fall asleep?
7. Were cramps or twitching of the limbs observed; or was tingling in the skin or throat complained of?
8. Any other symptom noticed should be mentioned. Agra Sudder Court Cir., 11, 1866.

The following Rules have been prescribed by the Governor General in Council (India Gaz., May 10, 1879, Sup. p. 454) for inquiring into, and reporting on, serious accidents on State Railways:

Serious accidents are accidents attended with loss of life or limb or other serious injury or danger of such loss or injury to persons travelling, or being upon the Railway; or accidents that have, or might have, caused large loss of public or private property.

2. In the case of any State Railway passing through Native States, the Government of India will, from time to time, direct what official shall, for the purposes of these Rules, be regarded as the Magistrate of the District in respect of the portions of the Railway situate in each such State.

3. Throughout these Rules, the words, "nearest District Superintendent of Police" shall be substituted for the words "Railway Police Superintendent" in respect of State Railways, whereon a Railway, Police Superintendentship has not been established.

SECTION I.

Duties of Managers and Railway Officers.

4. On the occurrence of any serious Railway accident, it shall be the duty of the nearest Station Master to give immediate notice thereof in writing, or by telegraph, when possible—

Ch. XIV.

S. 174.

- (a) to the nearest Magistrate ;
- (b) to the Railway Police Superintendent ;
- (c) to the officer in charge of the Police station in the jurisdiction of which the accident occurred.

5. It shall be the duty of the Manager to give notice of the accident—

- (a) in the case of accidents on Railways open for public traffic only, to the Consulting Engineer to Government for Guaranteed Railways, who has been authorized by Government to investigate and report on such accidents, and who, for the purposes of these Rules, is hereinafter called the Government Inspector ;
- (b) to the Director of the Railway System, in as full detail as practicable ;
- (c) to the Secretary to the Local Government in the Judicial Department within 12 hours after the occurrence, in order that the Local Government may, if necessary, watch over the investigation.

6. The Manager shall, in cases of serious personal injury, afford medical aid to the sufferers, and pay all their expenses while in hospital.

7. The Manager shall cause departmental enquiry to be held promptly for the thorough investigation of the causes of every serious accident, and shall require the Superintendent of Railway Police to be present at the inquiry if possible ; in his unavoidable absence, an officer of Police should be present ; also he shall communicate the result of the inquiries to the Magistrate mentioned in Rule 4, and if an open line, to the Government Inspector, with a statement of the persons, if any, whom the Railway authorities intend to prosecute, unless the matter should form the subject of a Magisterial inquiry under Rule 8.

8. It shall be the duty of the Manager to bring to justice all Railway subordinates guilty of crime, or of breaches of the Railway Act or Rules and Regulations calculated to cause serious accident, and to require the Superintendent of Railway Police to make a report of all cases in which there appears to be ground for suspecting Railway subordinates of such misconduct. Also he shall require the Superintendent of Railway Police to prosecute all persons whom it may be decided should be prosecuted.

9. The Manager shall facilitate the movements of the Medical officers, the Police, the Magistrate, the Government Inspector and others concerned, in reaching promptly the scene of the accident. And he shall assist these authorities in conducting inquiries, and depute some responsible and intelligent officer to aid them in obtaining evidence and securing the attendance of the Railway subordinates.

10. In cases in which it is the duty of the Railway officers to arrest any offender under Section 24 of Act XVIII of 1854, or otherwise, the Manager shall see that he is at once arrested, or when such offender is himself a Railway officer whose removal would cause danger or grave inconvenience, that precautions are taken to prevent his escape pending the arrival of a substitute.

11. He shall arrange for the attendance at the Court or place of inquiry of any officer or servant of the Railway upon the requisition of the Magistrate or other Civil officer.

12. He shall maintain at each Railway station a list of Magistrates, or other officers (such list to be furnished by the Magistrate having jurisdiction over the place where the station is situate), to whom reports of accidents should be made; and he shall furnish Magistrates with a list of Railway officers to whom any summons may be sent for service on subordinate Railway servants.

13. In the case of judicial inquiries, he shall report the result to the Director of State Railways, and forward copy of the decision of the Court.

14. He shall report monthly to the Director of State Railways all Railway accidents of a serious nature, whether happening on the open or unopen line, and report what steps have been, or are being taken, in order to prevent recurrence of similar accidents.

15. He shall issue such detailed instructions as will give effect to the foregoing Rules, and furnish the Director of State Railways with copy of all such detailed instructions as issued.

SECTION II.

Duties of the Railway and District Police.

16. An investigation may be made by the Railway Police in the case of any Railway accident.

17. Where there is no Railway Police, the duties imposed by these Rules on Railway Police must be discharged by the District Police, in addition to their duties as such.

18. In the case of serious accidents, the Railway Police Superintendent, if any, or the District Superintendent of Police, shall proceed without delay to the scene of the accident. If either officer be himself unable so to proceed, he shall depute a subordinate, who, in the case of the District Police, shall be an Assistant Superintendent of Police. The officer unable to proceed shall also at once inform his departmental superior and the Magistrate of the District.

19. Such accident shall forthwith be investigated by the Railway Police, or the District Police, as the case may be. If the investigation be made by the Railway Police, immediate information shall be given to the District Police, either direct or through the Magistrate of the District. The result of the Police investigation, prescribed by this Rule shall be reported to the Manager of the Railway, and to the Magistrate of the District.

20. When the investigation is made by the Railway Police, and officers of the District Police arrive on the scene of the accident, the latter shall afford all necessary assistance, and shall if occasion arise, carry the investigation beyond the limits of the Railway premises. But the Railway Police Superintendent, if present, is primarily entrusted with the duty of investigation within such limits. Subject to any provisions elsewhere contained in these Rules, the further prosecution of the case on the conclusion of the preliminary local Police investigation shall rest with the Railway Police.

SECTION III.

Duties of Civil Officers.

21. It shall be in the discretion of the Magistrate of the District, on receiving information of the occurrence of a serious Railway accident, within the meaning of Rule 1, either—

(a) himself to proceed to the scene of such accident and make any inquiry ;

(b) to depute a subordinate Magistrate to make inquiry ; or

(c) to direct investigation to be made by the District Police.

22. In all serious cases, it will be the duty of the Superintendent of Railway Police, if any, to proceed without delay to the scene of the accident to conduct this inquiry. If unable to go, he will at once report the fact to the Magistrate.

23. The Magistrate or other officer shall summon any servant of the Railway, and all other persons whose presence he may think necessary, and, after taking the evidence and completing this inquiry, shall, if he consider there are sufficient grounds for judicial investigation, take the requisite steps to bring to trial any person he may consider criminally liable for the accident.

24. The Manager, or the Magistrate of the District, or the District Superintendent of Police, may require the Civil Surgeon of the District or any District Medical officer to proceed to the scene of any Railway accident attended with personal injury, for the purpose of rendering medical aid, and of making before the investigating authorities any professional statements that may be required ; and it shall be the duty of such Civil Surgeon or Medical officer to proceed accordingly.

25. In cases where technical points are involved, the Magistrate or other officer should be careful to call for and take the opinion of professional persons.

26. The result of this preliminary local inquiry will be communicated by the Magistrate to the Manager of the Railway.

27. Should the Magistrate have delayed judicial action until receipt of the Railway Departmental report, he will then decide whether to discharge the persons accused, or to proceed with the case.

28. If the Manager of the Railway do not prosecute the persons considered liable by the Civil officer, the Magistrate will arrange for their prosecution.

29. If, in the course of the judicial inquiry, the Magistrate wishes for the assistance of the Government Inspector, or Manager of the Railway, or for the attendance of any officer of the Railway, to explain or give evidence upon any matter relating to Railway supervision, management, or working, he will issue a requisition to such officers to attend the Court.

30. On the conclusion of the judicial inquiry, the Magistrate will, if necessary, report the result for the information of the Local Government, and he will send a copy of his decision to the Manager of the Railway.

31. Magistrates, through whose jurisdiction a State Railway passes, shall maintain a list of Railway officers (such list to be furnished by the Manager), to whom summons may be sent for service on subordinate Railway servants, and shall furnish the Manager with a list of Magistrates or other officers to whom reports of accidents should be made.

SECTION IV.

Government Inspector's duties.

32. On receiving notice of a serious accident, the Government Inspector shall proceed himself, or by deputy, to the scene of the accident, shall note the facts, watch the proceedings, and make such inquiries and investigations as he may think fit, calling upon the Manager or officer in charge of the Line for any assistance needed, and shall form his own conclusions.

33. He shall send his report with any notes he may desire to record to the Government concerned, forwarding copy to the Manager of the Railway, or to the Magistrate having jurisdiction in British or in Native Territory as the case may be.

34. He shall assist the Magistrate so far as he can in person or by deputy in the judicial inquiry whenever called upon to do so.

35. In important cases, where a remedy or change of system appears necessary, he shall inform the Government of India what steps have been or are proposed to be taken by the Railway to prevent a recurrence of similar accidents, and whether in his opinion further action in the matter is desirable.

Other rules on the same subject and generally to the same effect have been issued by several Local Governments. (See Oude Gaz. 1874, Part II, p. 20 for rules relating to the Oude and Rohilkund Railway. Bengal Govt. Cir. 42, April 4, 1873, relating to Railways where a special Railway Police Force has been established.) Of these it will be sufficient to quote the following instructions issued by the Government of Bengal regarding the duties of the District Superintendents of Police and Magistrates on the occurrence of a Railway accident :—

The District Superintendent will himself proceed to the scene of every serious accident of the nature likely to have endangered life or caused serious loss of property. If, for any unavoidable reason, he is unable to go himself, he will at once report the fact to the Magistrate, who will either himself undertake the inquiry, or depute his Assistant or the Assistant Superintendent of Police.

The officer conducting the inquiry shall summon all officers of the Railway Department whose presence he considers necessary; and if he is of opinion that sufficient ground exists for a judicial investigation, he shall bind all parties to appear before the Magistrate on a day to be fixed by that officer.

The Magistrate on receiving the report of the officer holding the inquiry, shall fix a time and place for the judicial investigation of the case. Ordinarily, the investigation into serious accidents of a nature likely to endanger life, or cause serious loss of property, shall be held at the Railway station nearest to scene of the accident; but if the officer holding the inquiry have reason to think that the ends of justice will be promoted by his so doing, he may, on the application of the Railway Company, or of the Consulting Engineer to Government, appoint any other place within his jurisdiction for the hearing of the case; or may, with the sanction of the High Court, transfer the case for judicial investigation to any other Magistrate having jurisdiction on the line. Such other Magistrate shall thereupon proceed to inquire into the case in the same manner as if it had happened in his own District.

The Magistrate will, whenever he wishes for the assistance of the Consulting Engineer, either in aiding the Police inquiry, or in prosecuting the case before him, or in giving evidence on matters relating to

Ch. XIV. Railway administration, issue a requisition to that officer to attend. He will report the result of his inquiries into all serious accidents to the Ss. 175, 176. Commissioner for the information of Government.

He will insist upon the attendance of all officers of the Railway Company, of whatever rank, if he considers such attendance necessary.

He will enforce the provisions of the Railway Act against the high officers of the Railway Company, in the event of their omitting to prosecute their subordinates for breaches of railway law. Bengal Government Order, dated 8th Sept., 1865.

175. An officer in charge of a Police-station may, by order in writing, summon two Power to summon persons. or more persons as aforesaid for the purpose of the said investigation, and any other person who appears to be acquainted with the facts of the case. Every person so summoned shall be bound to attend and to answer truly all questions other than questions the answers to which would have a tendency to expose him to a criminal charge, or to a penalty or forfeiture.

If the facts do not disclose a cognizable offence to which section 170 applies, such persons shall not be required by the Police-officer to attend a Magistrate's Court.

(S. 134.)

Non-attendance in obedience to such an order by a Police officer is punishable under, S. 174, Penal Code.

Refusal to answer questions other than those of a criminating tendency is punishable under S. 179, Penal Code.

If the answers given are false the person making them would be liable to punishment for intentionally giving false evidence as defined in S. 191 and punishable under S. 193, Penal Code.

176. When any person dies while in the custody of the police, the nearest Magistrate empowered to hold inquests shall, and, in any other case mentioned in section 174, clauses (a), (b) and (c), any Magistrate so empowered may, hold an inquiry into the cause of death, either instead of, or in addition to, the investigation held by the Police-officer; and, if he does so, he shall have all the powers in conducting it which he would have in holding an inquiry into an offence. The Magistrate holding such an inquiry shall record the evidence taken by him in connection therewith in any of the manners hereinafter prescribed, according to the circumstances of the case.

Whenever such Magistrate considers it expedient to make an examination of the dead body of any person who has been already interred, in order to discover the cause of his death, the Magistrate may cause the body to be disinterred and examined.

(S. 135.)

This section, it should be noted, declares that when a person dies while in the custody of the Police, the nearest Magistrate empowered to hold inquests, shall hold an inquiry into the cause of death.

Proceedings under S. 176 are not open to revision as they are specially excepted from the operation of S. 435.

In BOMBAY, all Magistrates have been authorized to hold inquests under S. 176 (Gaz., 1872, p. 1325) ; provided that they are not Honorary Magistrates, in which case a special order on each occasion is necessary (Gaz., 1873, p. 16). District Superintendents and Assistant District Superintendents have also been empowered to hold inquests, (Gaz., 187, p. 4339).

PART VI.

PROCEEDINGS IN PROSECUTIONS.

CHAPTER XV.

OF THE JURISDICTION OF THE CRIMINAL COURTS IN INQUIRIES AND TRIALS.

A.—Place of Inquiry or Trial.

177. Every offence shall ordinarily be inquired into and tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction it was committed.

Ordinary place of inquiry and trial.

(S. 63, para. 1.)

The Code does not affect any special jurisdiction or power conferred by any other law now in force (S. 1) and therefore S. 177 would not affect the jurisdiction of a Court under the Mutiny Act over British soldiers committing offences. That jurisdiction is, however, only permissive and therefore when the Civil authorities have got possession of the investigation of the offence, and the Military authorities have not availed themselves of the alternative procedure of trying the offenders by a General Court-Martial, the Magistrate is competent to proceed

Ch. XV. in the manner directed by the Code unless the Governor General in Council has under S. 530 issued rules to the contrary. Empress v. Ss. 178, 179. Maguire, I. L. R., 5 Cal., 124: (S. C.) 4 Cal. L. R., 432.

178. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 177, the Local Government may direct that any cases or class of cases committed for trial in any district may be tried in any Sessions Division :

Power to order cases to be tried in different Sessions Division.

Provided that such direction be not repugnant to any direction previously issued under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, section 15, or under this Code, section 526.

(S. 63, para. 2.)

Under 24 and 25 Vic. c. 104 s. 15 a High Court has the superintendence over all Courts subject to its Appellate jurisdiction, and has power to direct the transfer of any suit or appeal from such Court to any other Court of equal or superior jurisdiction. S. 526 empowers a High Court under certain circumstances to transfer a case or try it itself. In all cases transferred by the High Court to itself for trial, the trial may, if the High Court so direct, be by Jury. S. 267.

179. When a person is accused of the commission of any offence by reason of anything which has been done, and of any consequence which has ensued, such offence may be inquired into or tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any such thing has been done, or any such consequence has ensued.

(a) A is wounded within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court X and dies within the local limits of jurisdiction of Court Z. The offence of the culpable homicide of A may be inquired into or tried either by X or Z.

(b) A is wounded within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court X, and is, during ten days within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court Y, and during ten days more within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court Z, unable in the local limits of the jurisdiction of either Court Y or Court Z to follow his ordinary pursuits. The offence of causing grievous hurt to A may be inquired into or tried by X, Y or Z.

(c) A is put in fear of injury within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court X, and is thereby induced, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court Y, to deliver property to the person who put him in fear. The offence of extortion committed on A may be inquired into or tried either by X or Y.

When jurisdiction over an offence is given by Ss. 179 et seq. to the Magistrates of more than one District, it is often doubtful where the inquiry or trial should be held. The following rules have been issued for the guidance of Magistrates in the N. W. Provinces and the Punjab on this point:

A Magistrate should act under S. 179 and the following sections solely with reference to the convenience of the public: ordinarily the proper district for the inquiry and trial of offences falling under those sections would be that where the witnesses could, with the least inconvenience, attend. In such cases, therefore, the Magistrate to whom the complainant or prosecutor may apply, should commence the investigation, and proceed with the inquiry and trial, unless he find, in the course of inquiry, that the case can be more conveniently tried in another district. In the event of the latter contingency, he should suspend further proceedings, and place himself in communication with the Magistrate of such other district, recommending that the case be removed to that district. If the Magistrate of this district should concur, but not otherwise, the proceedings and the accused should be forwarded to such other Magistrate, and the prosecutor directed to attend and prosecute his complaint. If the other Magistrate differ from him in his opinion as to the district in which the investigation and trial can be most conveniently held, the first Magistrate should either proceed with the inquiry and trial, or refer the question of venue for the determination of the Sudder Court.—Agra Sudder Court Circular 21, 1864; Also Judicial Commissioner, Punjab, Circular 24, December 24, 1864; Chief Court, Punjab, Cir., Oct. 23, 1873; Smyth, Chap. II, S. 31. If the transfer of a case to another district is proposed by a Subordinate Magistrate, the application should be submitted through the Magistrate of the District, who will, if he considers the transfer desirable, forward it with his own recommendation to the Magistrate of the District in which he thinks the case should be tried.—Smyth, ibid.

A girl was sold at Mirzapore by her mother to a prostitute, who took her to Benares. The Sessions Judge of Benares tried and sentenced the latter woman, under S. 373, Penal Code, for "buying a minor with intent that she shall be employed for purposes of prostitution," overruling the plea of want of jurisdiction, on the ground that possession of the girl was a consequence by reason of which she was accused of an offence. On appeal, the Agra Sudder Court allowed the plea, holding the purchase with intent, &c., which took place at Mirzapore was the offence, and that no "consequence," such as is contemplated by S. 179, had ensued. The Court further ruled that the terms "anything which has been done" mean some act constituting the offence, or part of it; and that the terms "any consequence which has ensued" mean some consequence modifying or completing that act.—Mussamut Jowahir, 6 Agra, 46; Begum, alias Elahee Jan, ibid, 136.

Under S. 156 any officer in charge of a Police station, without the orders of a Magistrate, is competent to investigate any cognizable case which the Magistrate to whom he is subordinate can inquire into or try under section 179.

180. When an act is an offence by reason of its relation to any other act which is also an offence, or which would be an offence if the doer were capable of committing an offence, a charge of the first-mentioned offence may be inquired into or tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction either act was done.

(a) A charge of abetment may be inquired into or tried either by the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the abetment was committed, or by the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the offence abetted was committed.

(b) A charge of receiving or retaining stolen goods may be inquired into or tried either by the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the goods were stolen, or by any Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any of them were at any time dishonestly received or retained.

(c) A charge of wrongfully concealing a person known to have been kidnapped may be inquired into or tried by the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the wrongful concealing, or by the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the kidnapping took place.

The term "act" includes also an illegal omission. S. 4 last cl.

With reference to III. (b) see Reg. v. Sakhya Gorund and another, I. L. R., 1 Bomb., 50 in which it was held that the theft having been committed in foreign and not in British territory the conviction for that offence could not be sustained under S. 180; but the prisoners could be properly convicted of retaining stolen property in British territory. This was followed on Sunker Gope, I. L. R., 6 Cal., 307. See also Reg. v. Adivigada, I. L. R., 1 Mad., 171. But it has been held by the Madras H. Ct. that when the act by which the accused has become possessed of the property has been committed out of British India, no Court of British India has jurisdiction in respect of subsequent acts in remaining in possession of the property because the question whether such subsequent acts amount to an offence under the Penal Code requires proof of the commission of the substantive offence in the doing of the act by which the accused when out of British India became possessed of the property. This has, however, been remedied by Act VIII of 1882, S. 9 which has amended the definition of stolen property in S. 410, Penal Code, by making it immaterial whether the transfer has been made within or without British India.

In the absence of compliance with the provisions of the Extradition Act no Court of British India can recognize, as offences, acts over which by virtue of S. 2, Penal Code, they have no territorial jurisdiction. Mad. H. Ct., Pro., Oct. 2, 1877, Weir, 151.

The offence of criminal misappropriation or of criminal breach of trust may be inquired into or tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any part of the property which is the subject of the offence was received by the accused person, or the offence was committed.

The offence of stealing anything may be inquired into or tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such thing was stolen or was possessed by the thief or by any person who receives or retains the same knowing or having reason to believe it to be stolen.

Any officer in charge of a Police station may, without an order of a Magistrate investigate such an offence, if it be a cognizable offence, provided that he be subordinate to the Magistrate who has jurisdiction to inquire into or try it. S. 156.

When it is uncertain in which of several local areas an offence was committed, or where an offence is committed partly in one local area and partly where an offence is a continuing one, and continues to be committed in more local areas than one, or where it consists of several acts done in different local areas, it may be inquired into or tried by a Court having jurisdiction over any one of such local areas.

(S. 67.)

- Ch. XV. When jurisdiction over an offence is given to the Magistrates of more than one District, it is often doubtful where the inquiry or trial should be held. The following rules have been issued for the guidance of Magistrates in the N. W. Provinces and the Panjáb on this point:
- S. 183.

A Magistrate should act solely with reference to the convenience of the public: ordinarily the proper district for the inquiry and trial of offences falling under those sections would be that where the witnesses could, with the least inconvenience, attend. In such cases, therefore, the Magistrate to whom the complainant or prosecutor may apply should commence the investigation, and proceed with the inquiry and trial, unless he find, in the course of inquiry, that the case can be more conveniently tried in another district. In the event of the latter contingency, he should suspend further proceedings, and place himself in communication with the Magistrate of such other district, recommending that the case be removed to that district. If the Magistrate of this district should concur, but not otherwise, the proceedings and the accused should be forwarded to such other Magistrate, and the prosecutor directed to attend and prosecute his complaint. If the other Magistrate differ from him in his opinion as to the district in which the investigation and trial can be most conveniently held, the first Magistrate should either proceed with the inquiry and trial, or refer the question of venue for the determination of the Sudder Court.—Agra Sudder Court Circular 21, 1864; Also Judicial Commissioner, Panjab, Circular 24, December 24, 1864; Chief Court, Panjab, Cir., Oct. 23, 1873; Smyth, Chap. II, S. 31. If the transfer of a case to another district is proposed by a Subordinate Magistrate, the application should be submitted through the Magistrate of the District, who will, if he considers the transfer desirable, forward it with his own recommendation to the Magistrate of the District in which he thinks the case should be tried.—Smyth, ibid.

183. An offence committed whilst the offender is in the course of performing a journey or voyage may be inquired into or tried by a Court through or into the local limits of whose jurisdiction the offender, or the person against whom, or the thing in respect of which, the offence was committed, passed in the course of that journey or voyage.

An officer in charge of a Police station may, without an order of a Magistrate, investigate such an offence, if it be a cognizable offence, provided that he is subordinate to the Magistrate who has jurisdiction to inquire into or try it. S. 156.

The journey spoken in S. 183 of must be a continuous journey from one terminus to another in all its conditions. It appeared distinctly from the evidence that the journey was interrupted at Allahabad both on the part of the complainant and the accused, and therefore it was held that the Magistrate of Howrah had no jurisdiction to entertain the charge of an offence which was committed near Allahabad, on a journey which was broken by both parties at that place. The Court remarked that the illustration "affords relief by giving jurisdiction to the local tribunal at the place where the offender either stops or is made to stop, or at the place where the complainant stops," and that "this means where either of them first stops or breaks his journey or voyage." The stoppage was also one not due to the nature of the journey itself.—In re Hiramun Ayah, 21 W. R., 64; (S. C.) 13 B. L. R., 4, App. Ch. XV. Ss. 184, 185.

The case of (Reg. v. Malony, 1 Madras, 193.) is also important on the matter of jurisdiction. In that case a Railway Guard was charged under S. 27 of the Railway Act with drunkenness whilst in charge of a train, &c. He was removed from that train and detained at a place beyond the local jurisdiction of the High Court, but he broke away and continued his journey to Madras. The High Court held that it had no jurisdiction to try the offence, since the proper effect and construction of S. 35, Act XVIII of 1862, is that, if a person be accused of an offence committed whilst a journey or voyage is going on, he may be tried if any part of that journey or voyage during which the offence is alleged to have been committed lies within the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction. Here the journey on which the offence was alleged to have been committed ended, so far as regarded the person accused, and the offence, at a place beyond those limits.

184. All offences against the provisions of any law for the time being in force relating to Railways, Telegraphs, the Post-office or Arms and Ammunition may be inquired into or tried in a Presidency-town, whether the offence is stated to have been committed within such town or not: Provided that the offender and all the witnesses necessary for his prosecution are to be found within such town.

The law relating to Railways in India is contained in Act IV of 1879; to Telegraphs in Act I of 1876; to the Post-office in Act XIV of 1866; and to Arms and Ammunition in Act XI of 1878.

185. Whenever any doubt arises as to the Court by which any offence should under the preceding provisions of this chapter be inquired into or tried, the High Court within the local limits of whose appellate criminal jurisdiction the offender actually is may decide by which Court the offence shall be inquired into or tried.

In British Burmah, when the offender is an European British subject, the Recorder of Rangoon, and in all other cases the Judicial Commissioner, shall for the

Ch. XV. purposes of this section be deemed to be the High
 s. 186. Court.

See note to S. 182.

186. When a Presidency Magistrate, or District Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate or, if he is specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government, a Magistrate of the first class, sees reason to believe that any person within the local limits of his jurisdiction has committed without such limits (whether within or without British India) an offence which cannot, under the provisions of sections 177 to 181 (both inclusive), or any other law for the time being in force, be inquired into or tried within such local limits, but is under some law for the time being in force triable in British India, such Magistrate may inquire into the offence as if it had been committed within such local limits, and compel such person in manner hereinbefore provided to appear before him, and send such person to the Magistrate having jurisdiction to inquire into or try such offence, or, if such offence is bailable, take a bond with or without sureties for his appearance before such Magistrate.

Magistrate's procedure on arrest.

When there are more Magistrates than one having such jurisdiction and the Magistrate acting under this section cannot satisfy himself as to the Magistrate to or before whom such person should be sent, or bound to appear, the case shall be reported for the orders of the High Court.

(Ss. 157, 174.)

In MADRAS all Magistrates of the first class have been authorized to act under S. 186, (Gaz., 1873, p. 717); also in Oude (Gaz., 1873, p. 3); also in BOMBAY (Gaz., 1872, p. 1325); provided that in Bombay such Magistrates, are not Honorary Magistrates, when a special order is necessary in each case (id., 1873, p. 16).

In the PANJAB all senior officers at head-quarter stations under the Magistrate of the District, who are Magistrates of the first class, have been empowered to act under this section, but only in the absence of the Magistrate of the District from the station. For this purpose it has been declared that the senior Assistant Commissioner, who is a Magistrate of the first class, shall be deemed the senior officer under the Magistrate, and if there be no such officer, the senior Extra Assistant Commissioner, being a Magistrate of the first class, shall be so deemed.—Gaz., 1873, p. 75. Ch. XV.

Ss. 187, 188.

The inquiry held by the Magistrate who takes cognizance of the offence is evidently not an inquiry under Chapter XVIII of this Code, but to satisfy himself that there are prima facie good grounds for sending the person believed to have committed the offence to a Magistrate having jurisdiction to inquire into (Chapter XVIII) or to try such offence.

The Extradition Act (XXI of 1879, Ss. 11—17) provides for the trial of offences committed out of British India. S. 15 of that Act confers on a Magistrate in British India, the power to arrest a person charged with the commission of any certain specified offences beyond British India and in a foreign State in alliance with Her Majesty and S. 16 provides for the course to be followed after such arrest.

A Political agent, who is also a Magistrate in an adjoining District, is competent to issue a warrant for the arrest of a person in that District for an offence committed in the State of which he is the Political Agent. The fact that at the time of issuing that warrant he was not in that District but in foreign territory does not affect the legality of the warrant. Lacha Kalu, I. L. R., 1 Bomb., 141.

warrant issued under section 186 by a Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate, such Magistrate shall send the person arrested to the District Magistrate to whom he is subordinate, unless the Magistrate having jurisdiction to inquire into or try such offence issues his warrant for the arrest of such person, in which case the person arrested shall be delivered to the Police-officer executing such warrant, or shall be sent to the Magistrate by whom such warrant was issued.

If the offence which the person arrested is alleged or suspected to have committed is one which may be inquired into or tried by any Criminal Court in the same district other than that of the Magistrate acting under section 186, such Magistrate shall send such person to such Court.

Provided also that any proceedings taken against any person under this section which would be a bar to subsequent proceedings against such person for the same offence if such offence had been committed in British India shall be a bar to further proceedings against him under the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879, in respect of the same offence in any territory beyond the limits of British India.

Power to direct copies of depositions or exhibits to be received in evidence

(Act XXI, 1869, S. 10.)

Ss. 503 et seq. provide for the issue of a Commission to take the evidence of witnesses in an inquiry or trial. A commission can be issued only by a Presidency Magistrate, a District Magistrate, a Court of Session or the High Court, when it appears that the examination of a witness is necessary for the ends of justice and that the attendance of such witness cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case would be unreasonable. S. 503. Under such circumstances copies of the depositions made or exhibits produced before the Political Agent or judicial officer in a foreign State would, under the orders of Government, be receivable as evidence. Ch. XV. Ss. 190, 191.

190. In sections 188 and 189 the expression "Political Agent" means and includes—

(a) the principal officer representing the British Indian Government in any territory beyond the limits of British India ;

(b) any officer in British India appointed by the Governor-General in Council, or the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Fort St. George or Bombay, to exercise all or any of the powers of a Political Agent under the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879, for any territory not forming part of British India.
(Act XXI of 1879, S. 3.)

B.—Conditions requisite for Initiation of Proceedings.

191. Except as hereinafter provided, any Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, and any other Magistrate specially empowered in this behalf, may take cognizance of any offence—

(a) upon receiving a complaint facts which constitute such offence ;

(b) upon a police report of such facts ;

(c) upon information received from any person other than a Police-officer, or upon his own knowledge or suspicion, that such offence has been committed.

The Local Government, or the District Magistrate subject to the general or special orders of the Local Government, may empower any Magistrate to take cognizance under clause (a) or clause (b) of offences for which he may try or commit for trial.

The Local Government may empower any Magistrate of the first or second class to take cognizance under clause (c) of offences for which he may try or commit for trial.

Ch. XV.

S. 191.

Complaint means an allegation made to a Magistrate with a view to institute proceedings under this Code that some person whether known or unknown has committed an offence: but does not include the report of a Police officer. S. 4 (a).

A complaint may be made by the person against whom the offence has been committed; or by the public servant or his superior in a case of contempt of his lawful authority S. 195 (a): or by a Court in which or in relation to the proceedings of which, any of certain offences against public justice or relating to documents has been committed or of some Court to which such Court is subordinate, S. 195 (b), (c); or, in cases of offences against the State, by order of, or under authority from, the Governor-General in Council, the Local Government or some officer empowered by the Governor-General in Council in that behalf (S. 196.)

S. 141 (c) of the Code of 1872 expressly provided that "any person acquainted with the facts of a case may make a complaint." This has not been re-enacted, but will probably be accepted where the absence of the person aggrieved is accounted for or the offence is of a serious nature, as it is only for any offence under Chapter XIX or XXI of the Penal Code or under Ss. 493—498 that a complaint of the person aggrieved by the offence is specially required. Ss. 198, 199.

A Police report of the facts on which a Magistrate specially empowered to act may take cognizance of any offences would be (1) when after investigation a Police officer forwards an accused person for inquiry or trial on sufficient evidence or reasonable ground for suspicion that he has committed a cognizable offence (S. 170); or when the Police officer has reported that in his opinion no sufficient evidence or reasonable ground for suspicion exists, and the accused has been released on bail (S. 169): or when for reasons reported a Police officer has abstained from investigating into a cognizable offence (S. 157) or into a non-cognizable case when complaint has been made to the officer in charge of a Police station and been merely entered in his diary (S. 155); or after investigation into a non-cognizable case specially ordered by a Magistrate of the first or second class (S. 155).

The Government of Bengal, Cir. 16, March 25, 1880, has authorized the District Magistrate to nominate (? appoint) any single member or members of a Bench or any salaried Magistrate to receive complaints of cases triable by the Bench and which the Magistrates nominated are themselves empowered to try or commit for trial.

If any Magistrate, not especially empowered by law so to act, takes cognizance of an offence under S. 191 (a) or (b) erroneously in good faith, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered, S. 529 (e); but if he acts under S. 191 (c) his proceedings shall be void. S. 530 (k).

Act V, 1861, S. 24, declares that it shall be lawful for any Police officer to lay any information before a Magistrate and to apply for a summons, warrant, search-warrant or such other legal process as may by law issue against any person committing an offence and to prosecute such person up to final judgment.

A petition containing a complaint or charge of any offence other than an offence for which Police officers may under this Code arrest without warrant, or of wrongful restraint or wrongful confinement and presented to any Criminal Court, must bear a stamp of eight annas.—

Act VII of 1870 (Court Fees' Act), Sch. II, Art. 1, (b.) If complaint of such offence is not made by written petition, the complainant shall pay a fee of eight annas, unless the Court thinks fit to remit such payment, when his examination is reduced to writing.—S. 18. If the person accused is convicted, the Criminal Court, in addition to the penalty imposed upon him, is bound to order him to repay to the complainant the fee paid on such application or petition or at the time of the complainant's examination, and also any fees for serving processes that may have been paid, and such sums are recoverable as if they were fines imposed by the Court.—S. 31. When a complaint of a non-cognizable offence resulted in a conviction of a cognizable offence, it was held that the complainant was entitled to be recouped by the accused to the amount of the stamp fee paid upon his complaint, the test by which to determine whether the recoupment should be made being the nature of the complaint, not of the conviction.—Bomb. H. Ct., January 15, 1875. Bom. H. Ct., In re Chunya bin Shevaya, Nov. 27. Complaints of a public servant (as defined in the Penal Code), a municipal officer, or an officer or servant of a Railway Company, are exempt from stamp duty.—S. 19, cl. xviii.

Ch. XV.

S. 192.

In BOMBAY all Magistrates of the first class have been empowered to act under this section, unless they be Honorary Magistrates, when a special order is necessary in each case.—Gaz., 1872, p. 1325; Id., 1873 p. 16.

In the PANJAB all Senior Officers at head-quarter stations under the Magistrate of the District, who are Magistrates of the first class, have been empowered to act under this section, but only in the absence of the Magistrate of the District from that station. For this purpose it has been declared that the Senior Assistant Commissioner, who is a Magistrate of the first class, shall be deemed the Senior Officer under the Magistrate, and if there be no such Officer, the senior Extra Assistant Commissioner, being a Magistrate of the first class, shall be so deemed.—Gaz., 1873, p. 75.

192. Any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional

Transfer of cases by Magistrates. Magistrate may transfer any case, of which he has taken cognizance, for inquiry or trial to any Magistrate subordinate to him.

Any District Magistrate may empower any Magistrate of the first class who has taken cognizance of any case, to transfer it for inquiry or trial to any other specified Magistrate in his District who is competent under this Code to try the accused or commit him for trial; and such Magistrate may dispose of the case accordingly.

(Ss. 44, 141, paras. 2 and 3.)

All Magistrates in a District or in a Sub-division are respectively subordinate to the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate, S. 17.

Ch. XV.

S. 192.

In MADRAS all Magistrates of the first class have been invested with powers under S. 192 (Gaz, 1873, p. 717); but in BENGAL the Lieutenant-Governor has stated that he will empower Magistrates to act under this section only on special applications and on special reason shown. The system introduced is for the Magistrate of the District to empower his subordinate Magistrates to receive complaints either generally or for only certain specified offences within certain local limits and to try these cases themselves throughout, without any transfer, except under any special order of the Magistrate of the District, though it is open to any Magistrate of a District to reserve to himself any classes of complaints and receive and distribute them, there being some classes of cases, such as defamation, which, in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor, most Magistrates should not be allowed to entertain. At large stations one Court should sit regularly as the Police Court, and take up ordinary Police cases as they are sent in by the Police.—Cal. Gaz., 1873, p. 63.

In the N. W. PROVINCES all Joint or Assistant Magistrates or Assistant Commissioners holding their Courts at the head-quarters of a District, being Magistrates of the first class and next in seniority to the Magistrate of the District, have been vested with powers under S. 192, to be exercised only when the Magistrate of the District is absent from head-quarters.—Gaz, 1873, p. 903.

If any Magistrate not empowered by law in that behalf erroneously in good faith transfers a case under S. 192, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered. S. 529 (f.)

There are certain cases which a Magistrate must transfer to another Magistrate as he is himself not competent to try them (See S. 487). There are other cases which it is exceedingly undesirable that he should try either because he has himself initiated the prosecution, or is, from his personal knowledge of the facts, one of the witnesses, or has some strong interest in the result. S. 555 declares that no Magistrate shall, except with the permission of the Court to which an appeal lies try or commit for trial any case to or in which he is a party, or personally interested. Explanation. A Magistrate shall not be deemed to be a party to, or personally interested in, any case merely because he is a Municipal Commissioner.

A Magistrate is not incapacitated from dealing with a case judicially, merely because in the character of Magistrate, it may have been his duty to initiate the proceedings, but it is wrong that the District Magistrate should deal with such a case judicially when there was no necessity for his doing so, when he had himself discovered the alleged fraud and initiated the prosecution, and when he was one of the principal witnesses against the prisoner. The mere fact that the Magistrate was one of the witnesses for the prosecution was a most cogent reason why he should not have been a member of the Bench by which the trial was to be held. Bholanath Sen, I. L. R., 2, Cal., 35.

The interest which disqualifies a Judge is not merely a pecuniary interest; that would be too limited a way of describing such an interest; but in describing it we ought rather to use the language of Norman, J. in the case of the Queen v. Mehta Singh, 4 B. L. R., 15, that is to say, "a personal or a pecuniary interest." A Magistrate could not try a person for an assault on himself; and without defining precisely what amounts to personal interest, it appears to me that there must be either a personal or pecuniary interest in order to disqualify a Judge or Magistrate from exercising the general jurisdiction which the law confers upon him." In this case the proceedings were instituted by the Sub-Registrar who was also the Magistrate who held the trial. On this point the Court further remarked "I cannot suppose that because an officer in this position sanctions the institution, his mind is made up as to the guilt of the party, and that he is not willing to consider the evidence that may be produced before him, when he comes to try the case. In this case there appears to be no such interest as would prevent the case from going before the Magistrate as the trying authority; but as I have already said, it would be better, where it can be avoided, that this should not be done, and it may very well be that the Court, in its discretion, would in similar cases, direct the transfer of the case, in order that it should be tried by some other officer." Hiralall Dass, 8 B. L. R., 422. Full Bench.

Ss. 487, 555 prescribe certain rules for the disqualification of Judges and Magistrates in holding inquiries or trials or trying appeals.

193. Except as otherwise expressly provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, no Court of Session shall take cognizance of any offence as a Court of original jurisdiction, unless the accused has been committed to it by a Magistrate duly empowered in that behalf.

Additional Sessions Judges and Joint Sessions Judges shall try such cases only as the Local Government by general or special order directs them to try, or as the Sessions Judge of the Division makes over to them for trial.

Assistant Sessions Judges shall try such cases only as the Sessions Judge of the Division by general or special order makes over to them for trial.

(Ss. 17, 18, 231.)

The following Magistrates are empowered to make commitments to a Court of Session, any Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, Magistrate of the first class or any Magistrate specially empowered in that behalf by the Local Government. S. 206. See note.

If, however, a commitment is made by any Magistrate or other authority purporting to exercise such powers duly conferred but not being duly conferred, the Court to which the commitment is made may, after perusal of the proceedings, accept the commitment of it considers that the accused has not been prejudiced, unless objection was made on

- Ch. XV. behalf of either the accused or of the prosecution to the jurisdiction of such Magistrate or other authority during the inquiry and before the order of commitment. The Court is competent to quash the commitment and direct a fresh inquiry by a competent Magistrate, if it consider that the accused has been prejudiced or an objection was so made. S. 532.
- S. 194.

A Court of Session as a Court of original jurisdiction can take cognizance of certain "contempts" committed in its view or presence and pass sentence. S. 480.

A commitment by the Court of Session can also be made by that Court itself for one of the offences specified in S. 195, if that offence be committed before it or be brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding. S. 477. A Civil or Revenue Court is also competent to commit for the same offences under the same circumstances. S. 478.

In the case, however, in which an European British subject is one of the accused, the proceedings can be taken only by a Magistrate of the first class who is also a Justice of the Peace and an European British subject, S. 413, and in such a case also the powers conferred by S. 477 on a Court of Session can be exercised only if the Sessions Judge be himself an European British subject, or if the presiding officer be an Assistant Sessions Judge, he is an European British subject, has also held that office for at least three years and has been specially empowered by the Local Government in that behalf. S. 444.

194. The High Court may take cognizance of any offence upon a commitment made to it in manner hereinafter provided.

Cognizance of offences by High Court.

Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect the provisions of any letters patent granted under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104. (S. 145.)

A Presidency Magistrate is competent to commit direct to the High Court (S. 206), but in cases inquired into by a Magistrate outside the limits of a Presidency town, such commitment can be made only where the accused or one of the accused is an European British subject, and the offence which appears to have been committed is punishable with death or transportation for life (S. 447), the Magistrate, however, in such a case must also be a Justice of the Peace and an European British subject. S. 443.

S. 23 of the Letters Patent granted under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104 gives the High Court of Calcutta extraordinary original jurisdiction over all persons residing in Bengal and Assam and authority to try at its discretion any such persons brought before it on charges preferred by the Advocate General, or by any Magistrate or other officer specially empowered by the Government on that behalf and S. 28 empowers it to direct the transfer of any criminal case or appeal to any Court of equal or superior jurisdiction, or also to direct the preliminary inquiry or trial of any criminal case by any officer or Court otherwise competent to investigate or try it.

195. No Court shall take cognizance—previous sanction, or on the complaint, of the public servant concerned, or of some public servant to whom he is subordinate ;

(b) of any offence punishable under sections 193, 194, 195, 196, 199, 200, 205, 206,

Prosecution for certain offences against public justice.

207, 208, 209, 210, 211 or 228 of the same Code, when such offence is committed in, or in relation to, any proceeding in any Court, except with the previous sanction, or on the complaint, of such Court, or of some other Court to which such Court is subordinate.

or 476 of the same Code, when such offence has been committed by a party to any proceeding in any Court in respect of a document given in evidence in such proceeding, except with the previous sanction, or on the complaint, of such Court, or of some other Court to which such Court is subordinate.

The sanction referred to in this section may be expressed in general terms, and need not name the accused person ; but it shall, so far as practicable, specify the Court or other place in which, and the occasion on which, the offence was committed.

When sanction is given in respect of any offence referred to in this section, the Court taking cognizance of the case may frame a charge of any other offence so referred to which is disclosed by the facts.

Any sanction given or refused under this section may be revoked or granted by any authority to which the authority giving or refusing it is subordinate ; and no such sanction shall remain in force for more than six months from the date on which it was given.

For the purposes of this section, every Court, other

Ch. XV. than a Court of Small Causes, shall be deemed to be
 S. 195. subordinate only to the Court to which appeals from the former Court ordinarily lie.

The Courts of Small Causes in the Presidency-towns shall be deemed to be subordinate to the High Court, and every other Court of Small Causes shall be deemed to be subordinate to the Court of Session for the Sessions Division within which such Court is situate.

(Ss. 465, 467, 468, 469, 470.)

S. 230 declares that where a fresh charge has been made or a charge has been altered so as to include an offence for the prosecution of which a previous sanction is necessary, the case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction has been obtained, unless the case is covered by S. 195, cl. 5, but S. 537 provides that except as before provided in this Code no finding, sentence or order passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be reversed or altered under Chapter XXVII (i. e., in a case submitted to a superior Court for confirmation of a sentence passed), or on appeal or revision on account of the want of any sanction required by S. 195 unless such omission has occasioned a failure of justice.

When any Civil, Criminal or Revenue Court is of opinion that there is ground for inquiring into any offence referred to in section 195, and committed before it or brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding, such Court, after making any preliminary inquiry that may be necessary, may send the case for inquiry or trial to the nearest Magistrate of the first class, and may send the accused in custody, or take sufficient security for his appearance, before such Magistrate; and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such inquiry or trial. S. 476.

The distinction between a complaint and sanction to prosecute should be noted.

A complaint, which means "an allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate, with the view to his taking action under this Code, that some one, whether known or unknown, has committed an offence"—S. 4 (a), when made by a public servant or a Court implies a public prosecution, whereas sanction is given to a private person who may desire himself to complain as aggrieved by the particular act which constitutes the offence, and this would make the prosecution of a private character. This distinction and the consequences of action so taken have been pointed out in the case of Baijoo Lall, 1 L. R., 1 Cal., 450. It is no means in any case in which a party fails to prove his case, that the Judge, who has decided against such party, is justified in exercising the power given to him by this section. So long as it is a case as to which there is any possible doubt, or in which it is not perfectly certain that the Judge's decision must be upheld in the event of there being an appeal in the Civil suit, the Judge acts indiscreetly and wrongly, if, the moment he has given judgment in the Civil suit, he exercises the power to him by this section. At the same time, if, in the course of the Civil trial, the Judge has before him clear and unmistakeable proof of a criminal offence, and if, after the trial is over, he, on consideration, thinks it necessary to proceed at once, of course it may be right to do so. Judges should, however, bear in mind that criminal prosecutions are frequently suggested by successful litigants merely to prevent an appeal in the Civil suit and they should be careful not to lend themselves to such suggestions too readily. They should also recollect that when they proceed to make a complaint, the responsibility rests on the Judge entirely, such a prosecution being a very different thing from a prosecution instituted on the complaint of a private party and wrongly sanctioned by the Court.

Ch. XV.

S. 195.

Before sanction to prosecute can be properly given, it is necessary that the proceedings on the original complaint should have terminated in a regular manner. Bishoo Barik, 16 W. R., 77; Surbhanna Gaundau and others, 1 Mad. 30; but see contra Mohan Lall, 1 Leg. Rep., 144. The Court should then consider as has been pointed out in the Queen v. Mahomed Hosein (16 W. R., 37) and Kasheennath Banerjee v. Kangalee Molla (Marshall, 407) whether there are good grounds for the application made to it or whether it has been made solely for the purpose of oppressing and harassing an adversary and preventing him from taking any further legal steps to which he may be entitled. In the matter of Gyan Chunder Roy, I. L. R., 7 Cal., 208.

The Calcutta High Court has in several cases condemned the practice of ordering the criminal prosecution of a complainant whose case has been dismissed under S. 203 on the report of the Police and without giving him an opportunity of establishing his complaint before the Magistrate. In nearly all these cases the complainant had challenged the correctness or impartiality of the Police investigation and asked to have his witnesses summoned and examined by the Magistrate but was refused. The High Court has pointed out the unfairness of such a course to the complainant, and the injurious effect of placing such power in the hands of the Police. At the same time the High Court has held that if the complainant does not, after sufficient interval of time, appear and dispute the Police report or ask to have his witnesses examined a prosecution may be ordered or sanction to a private prosecution may be given. Gour Mohun Singh, 16 W. R., 44; Ashroff Ali, I. L. R., 5 Cal., 281; In re Russick Lall Mullick, 7 Cal. L. R., 382; Choolhai Telee, 2 Cal. L. R., 315; Biyogi Bhagut, 4 Cal. L. R., 134; Gyan Chunder Roy, I. L. If it is intended to charge a person with false evidence on two contradictory statements, the sanction of the Court before which each of those statements was made should be obtained. Babaji Setaram, 11 Bomb., 34.

It is not intended that the sanction should be expressed with so little definitiveness as equally to provide for the prosecution of any person for any offence in any Court whatever. It must refer to the Court in which the false statement was made, and to the occasion on which it was given, in order that the trying Court may inform itself as to the investigation or trial on which it is really authorized to enter. Ibid. See also Baijoo Lall, I. L. R. 1 Cal., 450; Kali Prosunno Bagchee, 22 W. R., 39.

196. No Court shall take cognizance of any offence punishable under Chapter VI of the Indian Penal Code, except the Indian Penal Code, except section 127, or punishable under section 294A of the same Code, unless upon complaint made by order of, or under authority from, the Governor General in Council, the Local Government, or some officer empowered by the Governor General in Council in this behalf.

(S. 465.)

Chapter VI of the Indian Penal Code relates to offences against the State.

S. 127, Penal Code, relates to the receipt of property, knowing the same to have been taken in war against an Asiatic power in alliance or at peace with the Queen, or by depredation on the territories of such power.

S. 294A of the Indian Penal Code enacted by Act XXVII of 1870, relates to the keeping of a Lottery Office, or publishing proposals regarding Lotteries.

197. When any Judge, or any public servant not removable from his office without the sanction of the Government of India or the Local Government, is accused as such Judge or public servant of any offence, no Court shall take cognizance of such offence, except with the previous sanction of the Government having power to order his removal, or of some officer empowered in this behalf by such Government, or of some Court or other authority to which such Judge or public servant is subordinate, and whose power to give such sanction has not been limited by such Government.

Prosecution of Judges and public servants.

Such Government may determine the person by whom, and the manner in which, the prosecution of such Judge or public servant is to be conducted, and may specify the Court before which the trial is to be held.
(S. 466.)

Ch. XV.
S. 197.

Power of Government as to prosecution.

The power of the Government to specify the Court before which the Judge or public servant shall be tried is not subject to the exercise of any general power of the High Court to transfer a criminal case under S. 526 which expressly declares that nothing in that section shall be deemed to affect any order made under S. 197.

The terms "Judge" and "public servant" are thus defined in sections 19 and 21 of the Penal Code:—

19. The word "Judge" denotes not only every person who is officially designated as a Judge, but also every person who is empowered by law to give, in any legal proceeding, civil or criminal, a definitive judgment, or a judgment which, if not appealed against, would be definitive, or a judgment which, if confirmed by some other authority, would be definitive, or who is one of a body of persons, which body of persons is empowered by law to give such a judgment.

(b.) A Magistrate exercising jurisdiction in respect of a charge on which he has power to sentence to fine or imprisonment, with or without appeal, is a Judge.

(c.) A Member of a Panchayet which has power, under Regulation VII, 1816 of the Madras Code, to try and determine suits, is a Judge.

(d.) A Magistrate exercising jurisdiction in respect of a charge on which he has power only to commit for trial to another Court, is not a Judge.

21. The words "public servant" denote a person falling under any of the descriptions hereafter following (namely):—

First.—Every covenanted servant of the Queen;

Second.—Every commissioned officer in the Military or Naval Forces of the Queen while serving under the Government of India or any Government;

Third.—Every Judge;

Fourth.—Every officer of a Court of Justice whose duty it is, as such officer, to investigate or report on any matter of law or fact, or to make, authenticate, or keep any document, or to take charge or dispose of any property, or to execute any judicial process, or to administer any oath, or to interpret, or to preserve order in the Court; and every person specially authorized by a Court of Justice to perform any of such duties;

Eighth.—Every officer of Government whose duty it is, as such officer, to prevent offences, to give information of offences, to bring offenders to justice, or to protect the public health, safety, or convenience ;

Ninth.—Every officer whose duty it is, as such officer, to take, receive, keep, or expend any property on behalf of Government, or to make any survey, assessment, or contract on behalf of Government, or to execute any revenue process, or to investigate or to report on any matter affecting the pecuniary interests of Government, or to make, authenticate, or keep any document relating to the pecuniary interests of Government, or to prevent the infraction of any law for the protection of the pecuniary interests of Government ; and every officer in the service or pay of Government or remunerated by fees or commission for the performance of any public duty ;

Tenth.—Every officer whose duty it is, as such officer, to take, receive, keep, or expend any property to make any survey or assessment or to levy any rate or tax for any secular common purpose of any village, town or district, or to make, authenticate, or keep any document for the ascertaining of the rights of any village, town or district.

A Municipal Commissioner is a public servant.

EXPLANATION 1.—Persons falling under any of the above descriptions are public servants, whether appointed by the Government or not.

EXPLANATION 2.—Wherever the words “public servant” occur, they shall be understood of every person who is in actual possession of the situation of a public servant, whatever legal defect there may be in his right to hold that situation.

S. 132 declares that no prosecution against any Magistrate, Military officer, Police officer, soldier or volunteer for any act purporting to be done under chapter IX, (Dispersion of unlawful assemblies) shall be instituted in any Criminal Court except with the sanction of the Governor General in Council.

Section 197 by implication vests in the Court or authority to whom the Judge or public servant not removable, &c., is subordinate, the power of sanctioning or directing such prosecution. It does not say that the Government must give the power, but that it shall exist unless limited or reserved. Every Court or authority therefore has it, unless there is a limitation. If there has not been sanction, it does not follow that the objection could have availed the prisoner after trial and decision. The objection is not one going to the root of the Court's jurisdiction, but something (like notice of action in certain civil cases) needed to justify a Court in going on, and preventing it from going on, if the objection is taken. There are objections which prevail ipso jure, others ope exceptionis. Moreover, there are many objections which can be of avail only if taken in due time. In the celebrated case, Reg. v. Frost (9 C. & P., 129—187), the distinction came out very prominently.—B. Krishna Rau, 7 Mad., 58.

The Madras Government has restricted to the Board of Revenue the power to direct or sanction the entertainment of complaints of offences committed in their public capacity by subordinate Magistrates, Tehsildars, Deputy Tehsildars, and Talook Tehsildars (Gaz., 1873, pp. 1437, 1544; 9 Mad. Jur., 31), but in regard to all other officers this power has been reserved to Government.—Gaz., 1873, p. 1437; 9 Mad. Jur., 31.

A principal Sudder Ameen, exercising the powers of a Judge of a Small Cause Court, is not a subordinate of the District Judge as regards proceedings in the Small Cause Court, because it is necessary that he should be vested specially by Government with those powers; but a Moonsiff, by virtue of his very appointment, is vested with such jurisdiction, and is ordinarily a subordinate of the District Judge, therefore he must, for the purposes of S. 197 be considered to be a subordinate of the District Judge.—Narayanasami Ayyar, 7 Mad., 183; (S. C.) 8 Mad. Jur., 296. See also ex parte Makalingaiyan, 6 Mad., 191. Having regard to the terms of the Code of Civil Procedure of 1877, since passed, under which Judges of Small Cause Courts are subordinate to District Judges (see S. 2, Defs., District, District Court) probably this ruling would be superseded (see also S. 195 last para. ante.) A Municipal Corporation is not a public servant within the meaning of S. 21, Penal Code, and therefore it may be prosecuted without the sanction of Government. Empress v. Municipal Corporation of Calcutta, I. L. R., 3 Cal., 758.

The sanction for the prosecution of a Kulkarni for making a false report as a public servant required by S. 197 may be given by the Mamlutdar or by the Patel to whom such Kulkarni is subordinate. The sanction of the Collector is not necessary for that purpose, though it may not be desirable that the prosecution of such hereditary officers as Kulkarni should be sanctioned by officers who themselves have such subordinate positions as those of Mamlutdar or Patel.—Mathoor Ramchundur, 7 Bomb., 64, Crown Cases.

The sanction of Government is necessary for the prosecution of any Judge, if complaint is made against him as Judge. The terms "not removable from his office without the sanction of Government" refer only to public servants.—6 Mad, xxii, App, Pro., March 29, 1870.

When the Government directed that a certain public servant should be prosecuted before the Magistrate of the District upon such charges as Mr. C. might be prepared to prefer, and the prosecution was not conducted by Mr. C., nor did Mr. C. prefer any charges, the conviction was quashed as without jurisdiction.—Venayak Divakar, 5 Bomb., 32, Crown Cases.

The Calcutta High Court has held (Cir. 20, Oct. 4, 1864; Wilkins, 114,) that this section relates to the offences specified in Chapter IX of the Indian Penal Code, and to no other. Offences committed against the person or property of individuals by one who happens to be a public servant, are not necessarily committed by him as such public servant in the sense in which these words are issued in the Penal Code; and unless committed in that character, must be regarded as the acts of individuals in their private capacity; charges, therefore, founded on such acts, do not need the sanction of Government, or other competent authority, before they can be entertained by a Criminal Court, but should be dealt with in the same way as charges against individuals ordinarily are.

Ch. XV.

The Bombay High Court, however, refused to follow this rule.

The Court observed :—"It seems to us impossible to hold that S. 197 does not relate to offences such as those specified in Ss. 217—223 of the Indian Penal Code, which are not contained in Chapter IX of that Code. But we agree with the view, which was no doubt intended to be expressed in that Circular, viz, that S. 197 relates only to those acts and omissions which are declared in the Penal Code to be offences when they are committed by a public servant."—Paishram Keshav, 7 Bomb., 61, Crown Cases.

198. No Court shall take cognizance of an offence

Prosecution for breach of contract, defamation and offences against marriage.

falling under Chapter XIX or Chapter XXI of the Indian Penal Code or under sections 493 to 496 (both inclusive) of the same Code, except upon a complaint made by some person aggrieved by such offence.

Chapter XIX relates to criminal breaches of contract :

Chapter XXI to defamation ; S. 493 to deceitfully causing a woman to cohabit with a man in the belief that she is lawfully married to him : S. 494 to bigamy ; S. 495 to bigamy with concealment of the former marriage : S. 496 to fraudulently going through a mock marriage.

Offences under chapters XIX, XXI, Penal Code, may be compounded. See S. 345.

199. No Court shall take cognizance of an offence

Prosecution for adultery or enticing a married woman.

under section 497 or section 498 of the Indian Penal Code, except upon a complaint made by the husband of the woman, or, in his absence, by some person who had care of such woman on his behalf at the time when such offence was committed.

(Ss. 478, 479.)

S. 497 relates to adultery and S. 498 to enticing away a married woman. These offences may be compounded by the person entitled to complain. S. 345.

Where, after the commitment of the woman on a charge of adultery, the husband died, the Madras High Court remarked that though it is no doubt desirable that on the death of the husband, the aggrieved party, the charge of adultery should be withdrawn, it cannot be said that the death necessarily puts an end to the prosecution.—4 Mad., lv., App., Pro. July 13, 1864. As S. 345 of this Code expressly allows a charge of adultery to be compounded by the person entitled to complain, this opinion may be modified.

It is immaterial whether the woman is an adult or a minor.—Jud. Commr., Panjab, 3637, August 6, 1862 A charge of the house trespass with intent to commit adultery may be inquired into without the husband's sanction.—Mad. H. Ct., June 1, 1868 ; Nov. 15, 1869.

OF COMPLAINTS TO MAGISTRATES.

S. 200.

200. A Magistrate taking cognizance of an Examination of com- offence on complaint shall at once plainant. examine the complainant upon oath, and the substance of the examination shall be reduced to writing and shall be signed by the complainant, and also by the Magistrate :

Provided as follows—

(a) when the complaint is made in writing, nothing herein contained shall be deemed to require a Magistrate to examine the complainant before transferring the case under section 192 :

(b) where the Magistrate is a Presidency Magistrate, such examination may be on oath or not as the Magistrate in each case thinks fit, and need not be reduced to writing ; but the Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, before the matter of the complaint is brought before him, require it to be reduced to writing :

(c) when the case has been transferred under section 192 and the Magistrate so transferring it has already examined the complainant, the Magistrate to whom it is so transferred shall not be bound to re-examine the complainant.

(Ss. 44, 144.)

Any Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate or any other Magistrate specially empowered by the Local Government or District Magistrate may take cognizance of any offence upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence.
 S. 191.

In BOMBAY all Magistrates of the first class have been empowered to act under S. 200, but if they are Honorary Magistrates, a special order in each case is necessary.—Gaz., 1872, p. 1325 ; id., 1873, p. 16.

A complaint means the allegation made orally or in writing to a Magistrate with a view to his taking action under the Code, that some person, whether known or unknown, has committed an offence ; but it does not include a report of a Police officer, S. 4 (a) ; a complaint in writing regarding a cognizable offence, made to a Magistrate need bear no stamp. Bomb. H. Ct., Resn. in Chambers, April 4, 1873.

- Ch. XVI. A petition containing a complaint or charge of any non-cognizable offence presented to any Criminal Court must bear a stamp of eight annas—Act VII of 1870 (Court Fees' Act) Sch. II, Art. 1, (b.) (Complaints of a public servant (as defined in the Penal Code), a municipal officer, or an officer or servant of a Railway company are exempted from stamp duty—S. 19, Cl. xviii.) If complaint of a non-cognizable offence or of wrongful confinement, or of wrongful restraint is not made by written petition, the complainant shall pay a fee of eight annas, when his examination is reduced to writing, unless the Court thinks fit to remit such payment. S. 18. If the person accused is convicted, the Criminal Court, in addition to the penalty imposed upon him, is bound to order him to repay to the complainant the fee paid on such application or petition or at the time of the complainant's examination, and also any fees for serving processes that may have been paid, and such sums are recoverable as if they were fines imposed by the Court. S. 31.
- S. 200.

Complaints should be received at a fixed hour each day, and should be immediately numbered in the order of their receipt. They should then be entered in a book to be kept under the special control of the Magistrate himself.

[Cal. H. Ct., Cir. 5A. Sept. 7, 1868 ; Wilkins, 1.]

If any Magistrate not empowered on that behalf erroneously in good faith (that is, acting with due care and attention,) takes cognizance of an offence on complaint, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered. S. 529, (e).

Any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate, or any Magistrate of the first class specially empowered by the District Magistrate who has taken cognizance of an offence may transfer it for inquiry or trial to any specified Magistrate in the District, (S. 192), and if any Magistrate, not being so empowered by law, erroneously in good faith transfers a case, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered. S. 529 (f). A case may be transferred at any stage of the proceedings, but not without good and sufficient reason if evidence has been taken in it, and after its transfer to another Magistrate the parties may require the evidence to be taken de novo.

The examination of the complainant is not to be a mere form, but an intelligent inquiry into the subject matter of the complaint, carried far enough to enable the Magistrate to exercise his judgment, or to determine whether there is, or is not sufficient ground for proceeding. Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 4, Feb. 25, 1873, Wilkins, 66. Ch. XVI. — Ss. 201, 202.

The examination of the complainant is no mere formality. It is the result of the examination which ought to lead the Magistrate to determine whether he will put the machinery of the Criminal Courts in motion by the issue of a process to cause the accused person to appear before him. The preliminary examination of a complainant, if properly made, will frequently result in the summary dismissal of a complaint, and save an innocent person from the trouble and annoyance of appearing at the bar of a Criminal Court. In the interests of the public as well as with a view to the rapid despatch of work, the careful observance of the law in this particular is incumbent on Magistrates. —Smyth, p. 89.

The examination of a complainant should not be confined to generally asking him if the circumstances set forth in the complaint are true, and what evidence he has to prove it. An intelligent inquiry into the subject-matter of the complaint should be held, further proceedings would therefore frequently become unnecessary, and there would be a consequent diminution of inquiries which end in a discharge. Bom. H. Ct. Cir., p. 43.

S. 200 (c) enables a Magistrate to whom a case has been transferred after examination of the complainant to issue process on such examination, as he is not bound to re-examine the complainant.

201. If the complaint has been made in writing and the Magistrate is not competent to take cognizance of the case, he shall return the complaint for presentation to the proper tribunal with an endorsement to that effect.

Procedure by Magistrate not competent to take cognizance of the case.

(S. 145.)

A Magistrate may not be competent to take cognizance of a case on complaint (a) because he may not be empowered to receive a complaint (S. 191); or (b) the case may be regarding an offence committed beyond his local jurisdiction; or (c) it may be regarding an offence which he is not competent to try under Sch. II, Col. 8, (d), or to inquire into from his not being empowered to commit. The fact that the accused is an European British subject would not debar a Magistrate from taking cognizance of an offence although he might not be competent (S. 443) to try or inquire into the case, provided that he could take cognizance of a like offence if committed by another person. In such a case he is competent to issue process to compel the attendance of the European British subject before a Magistrate having jurisdiction to inquire into or try the case. S. 445.

202. If the Chief Presidency Magistrate, or any other Presidency Magistrate whom the Local Government may from

Postponement of issue of process.

Ch. XVI. time to time authorize in this behalf, or any Magistrate
 S. 203. of the first or second class, sees reason to distrust the truth of a complaint of an offence of which he is authorized to take cognizance, he may, when the complainant has been examined, record his reasons for distrusting the truth of the complaint, and may then postpone the issue of process for compelling the attendance of the person complained against, and either inquire into the case himself or direct a previous local investigation to be made by any officer subordinate to such Magistrate, or by a Police-officer, or by such other person, not being a Magistrate or Police-officer, as he thinks fit, for the purpose of ascertaining the truth or falsehood of the complaint.

If such investigation is made by some person not being a Magistrate or a Police-officer, he shall exercise all the powers conferred by this Code on an officer in charge of a Police-station, except that he shall not have power to arrest without warrant.

This section applies to the police in the towns of Calcutta and Bombay. *
 (S. 146.)

It will be seen that no Magistrate below the second class can order a local investigation under this chapter, the reason probably being that only non-cognizable cases or petty cases would be transferred for trial to a Magistrate of the third class which from their nature would not require investigation. It may, however, occasionally be necessary to order an investigation into a non-cognizable offence. S. 155 declares that no Police officer shall investigate such a case without the order of a Magistrate of the first or second class having power to try or commit such case for trial, or of a Presidency Magistrate. A Police officer not in charge of a Police station acting under S. 155 would have no power to arrest without a warrant, but if ordered by a Magistrate under S. 202, (that is, when the Magistrate has reason to distrust the truth of the complaint) he would apparently be competent to arrest without warrant as such power is expressly withheld from any person making the investigation other than a Magistrate or Police officer. If a Magistrate not being empowered by law on that behalf erroneously in good faith orders, under S. 155, the Police to investigate a non-cognizable offence his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered—S. 529 (b).

203. The Magistrate before whom a complaint is made or to whom it has been transferred may dismiss the complaint if, after examining the complainant and considering the result of the investigation (if any) made under section 202, there is in his judgment no sufficient ground for proceeding.

(S. 147, para. 1.)

Ch. XVI.

S. 202.

In dismissing complaints under this section of the Code, Magistrates will generally act in accordance with the terms of S. 95 of the Penal Code which declares that—

“Nothing is an offence by reason that it causes, or that it is intended to cause, or that it is known to be likely to cause, any harm, if that harm is so slight that no person of ordinary sense and temper would complain of such harm.”

There is no appeal against an order dismissing a complaint under S. 203. The dismissal of a complaint under S. 203 is not an acquittal (S. 403, Explan.) but a complaint so dismissed cannot be reheard except on an order made under S. 437 which provides that the High Court or Court of Session may direct the District Magistrate by himself or by any of the Magistrates subordinate to him to make, and the District Magistrate may himself make, or direct any subordinate Magistrate to make further inquiry into any complaint which has been dismissed under section 203, or into the case of any accused person who has been discharged.

After complaint made and issue of warrants, the Magistrate of the District is not competent to withdraw the case to his own file, suspend the warrants and dismiss the complaint on the ground that, in his executive capacity, he had previously made some inquiry into the matter out of which the complaint arose, and that, on information so gained, he was of opinion that the complaint ought to be rejected. After issue of warrants, the case ought to go on in due course according to the procedure prescribed by the Code, unless something arises to show that the Magistrate who had issued the warrants had, from some cause or other, made a wrong exercise of his discretion. The Magistrate of the District ought to have proceeded with the case from the stage at which he found it, and by not doing so he was held to have committed a material error. His order was accordingly set aside.—Rughoo Parirah, 19 W. R., 28; (S. C.) 10 B. L. R., 26 App.

A complaint cannot be dismissed, because it was distrusted, without the preliminary examination of the complainant—not even on the report of the Police to whom it may have been referred.—Dullalee Bewa, 3 B. L. R., 53. The correctness of this opinion seems doubtful under the present Code.

A Magistrate is competent to dismiss a complaint on persual of the record and without taking further evidence, if he has first regularly withdrawn it from a Magistrate subordinate to him.—Niamutoolla, 14 W. R., 63. But he cannot, without dismissing the case regularly before him, commence a prosecution for false complaint after the Police have reported the case to be false. The original case must first be finally dismissed.—Bolilias, 12 W. R., 53; 2 B. L. R., 151, App. In re Gyan Chunder Roy, 8 Cal. L. R., 267; 1 L. R., 7 Cal., 203.

A Magistrate is bound to examine, and reduce to writing the examination of the complainant before dismissing a complaint. He

- Ch. XVII. should not return the complaint which forms part of the records of his office except under S. 201. Mad. H. Ct., Pro. June 10, 1869, Weir, 165.
- S. 204. But if the complaint made is, on the face of it no offence, the Magistrate may refuse to entertain it. Id., Pro. July 24, 1865, Weir, 167. See also Sheikh Erad Ali, 4 Cal. L. R., 534 where it was held that a complaint had been improperly dismissed on a Police report, the Magistrate having refused to examine the complainant who appeared before him and applied to have the witnesses examined to establish his complaint. A complaint should not be dismissed merely because it has been made to a Magistrate having jurisdiction rather than to the head of a village. Mad. H. Ct., Pro. Dec. 18, 1873, Weir, 165. After a complaint has once been dismissed, no other Magistrate can entertain it without an order made under S. 437. Mad. H. Ct., Pro. March 28, 1878, Weir, 167.

How far after a case has been dismissed on a Police report under S. 203 a Magistrate can order the prosecution of the complainant on a charge under S. 211, Penal Code, has formed the subject of many judgments of the High Courts. See note to S. 195.

CHAPTER XVII.

OF THE COMMENCEMENT OF PROCEEDINGS BEFORE MAGISTRATES.

204. If in the opinion of a Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence there is sufficient ground for proceeding and the case appears to be one in which according to the fourth column of the second schedule a summons should issue in the first instance, he shall issue his summons for the attendance of the accused. If the case appears to be one in which according to that column a warrant should issue in the first instance, he may issue a warrant, or, if he thinks fit, a summons, for causing the accused to be brought or to appear at a certain time before such Magistrate or some other Magistrate having jurisdiction.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the provisions of section 90.

(Ss. 147, 148, 149.)

In BENGAL and in ASSAM a fee of eight annas is charged for a summons in respect of one person, or of the first two persons residing in the same place, and four annas for every additional person named there n. Bengal Gaz., 1879, p. 304; Assam Gaz., 1879, p. 596; Wilkins, 811.

In MADRAS, in non-cognizable cases, the same fee has been fixed for a Ch. XVII. summons as in Bengal. Mad. Gaz., Aug. 5, 1873. S. 204.

The process is one whether one or more persons be named therein, and whether such persons reside in one place or not, but an additional fee of four annas is chargeable in respect of every additional person not being the second person of more than two residing in the same village named in the summons: thus if the summons include one person residing in village A, and a second person residing in village B, the additional fee is chargeable in respect of such second person.—Cal. H. Ct., Cir. 13, May 12, 1874. But in MADRAS only half these rates are chargeable if the process is to be served within a radius of six miles from the Court-house, the villages within such radius to be determined by the Judge of each Court, and to be notified in a conspicuous place in the Court-house. Power is given to a Magistrate to excuse indigent persons who may be unable to pay the prescribed fees. Mad. Gaz., Sept. 10, 1873.

which a process has to be executed at a distance of more than 25 miles from the Court from which it is issued, an additional fee of one-fourth is chargeable; and if more than 50 miles, the fee is increased by one-half. Bengal Gaz., 1879, p. 304: Assam Gaz., 1879, p. 596, Wilkins, 83.

ASSAM.

In BOMBAY the fee chargeable on a summons in a case under Chapters XIX, XX, XXI of the Penal Code is four annas, and one anna in every other non-cognizable case, and it is only in this latter case that the Magistrate may remit the fee on being satisfied that the complainant has not the means of paying it. Gaz., 1874, p. 580.

In BRITISH BURMAH, in non-cognizable cases, a fee of eight annas is chargeable on a summons on a witness, and one rupee on a summons on an accused person; no further charge is to be made for boat-hire; a Magistrate who has power to entertain cases on complaint preferred directly to himself, can, on special grounds, to be recorded, remit the fee on any process issuing from his Court. No fee is chargeable on any process issued by a Criminal Court of its own motion. Gaz., 1873, Part II, p. 197.

travelling except by boat is impracticable, boat-hire may, when it has to be incurred, be charged in addition to other fees. The rates at which such boat-hire shall be charged shall be fixed from time to time by the District Magistrate (in Assam subject to approval by the Sessions Judge) and shall be sufficient only to cover on the whole the actual cost of such boat establishment as

- Ch. XVII. it may be necessary to maintain for the purpose of serving processes in cases not cognizable by the Police. Bengal Gaz., 1879, p. 304; Assam Gaz., 1879, p. 596; Wilkins, 84.

For warrants of arrest the following fees are charged: in BENGAL and ASSAM one rupee in respect of each person named therein.—Bengal Gaz., 1879, p. 304; Assam Gaz., 1879, p. 596; Wilkins, 81: in MADRAS twelve annas (Gaz., Aug. 5, 1873).

But only half rates are chargeable in Madras if the process is to be executed within a radius of six miles from the Court-house; and it has further been ordered that, if the warrant remains unexecuted for fifteen days after its delivery to the officer entrusted with its execution, an additional fee of the same rate shall be levied for every fifteen days or portion of fifteen days until return is made, provided that such delay is not attributable to the officer of the Court. Magistrates may forego the collection of fees for the service of processes in non-cognizable cases, where the parties are unable to pay them—Mad. Govt. Pro., Sept. 10, 1873, 9 Mad. Jur., 30.

In BRITISH BURMAH two rupees is the fee chargeable on a warrant of arrest in a non-cognizable case. Gaz., 1873, p. 197.

205. Whenever a Magistrate issues a summons, he may, if he sees reason so to do, dispense with the personal attendance of the accused, and permit him to appear by his pleader.

Magistrate may dispense with personal attendance of accused.

But the Magistrate inquiring into or trying the case may, in his discretion, at any stage of the proceedings, direct the personal attendance of the accused, and, if necessary, enforce such attendance in manner hereinbefore provided.

(S. 151.)

It is not only in summons cases that a Magistrate may dispense with the personal attendance of the accused, and permit him to appear by his pleader, but whenever he issues a summons, which it will be seen from S. 205 he can, in the exercise of his discretion, do in warrant cases.

This also appears from the latter part of S. 205 which enables a Magistrate to direct the personal attendance of the accused in an inquiry or trial, for it rarely happens that in an inquiry a summons will ordinarily issue.

“Pleader” used with reference to any proceeding in any Court, means a pleader authorized under any law for the time being in force to practice in such Court, and includes (1) an advocate, a pleader and an attorney of a High Court so authorized and (2) any mookhtar or other person appointed with permission of the Court to act in such proceeding S. 4 (n).

If the personal attendance of the accused be dispensed with, he should be represented by an agent, who should be provided with a mookhtarnamah bearing a stamp of eight annas.

CHAPTER XVIII.

OF INQUIRY INTO CASES TRIABLE BY THE COURT OF SESSION OR HIGH COURT.

206. Any Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, or Magistrate of the first class or any Magistrate empowered in this behalf by the Local Government may commit any person for trial to the Court of Session or High Court for any offence triable by such Court.

But save as herein otherwise provided, no person triable by the Court of Session shall be committed for trial to the High Court.

(S. 143.)

Except a Presidency Magistrate no Magistrate can commit direct to the High Court unless the person charged is an European British subject, or charged jointly with an European British subject, with an offence punishable with death or transportation for life. S. 447. Only a Magistrate of the first class who is also a Justice of the Peace and an European British subject can commit such a case. Commitments should be made ordinarily to the Court of Session. S. 447.

In BENGAL all Magistrates of the second class have been empowered to commit to the Court of Session (Gaz., 1873, p. 79) ; so also in the PUNJAB (Gaz., 1878, p. 75). In MADRAS this power has been conferred on all Magistrates (Gaz., 1873, p. 717).

207. The following procedure shall be adopted in inquiries before Magistrates where the case is triable exclusively by a Court of Session or, High Court, or, in the opinion of the Magistrate, ought to be tried by such Court.

(S. 189.)

208. The Magistrate shall, when the accused appears or is brought before him, proceed to hear the complainant (if any), and take in the manner hereinafter provided all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution or in behalf of the accused, or as may be called for by the Magistrate.

Ch. XVIII. If the complainant or officer conducting the prosecution, or the accused, applies to the Magistrate to issue process to compel the attendance of any witness or the production of any document or other thing, the Magistrate shall issue such process unless, for reasons to be recorded, he deems it unnecessary to do so.

S. 208.

Process for production of further evidence.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to require a Presidency Magistrate to record his reasons.

(Ss. 190, 357, 362, para. 1.)

The fees for a process are stated in the note to S. 204. The first application for the summons of a witness or other person to attend either to give evidence or to produce a document is exempt from stamp duty,—Court Fees' Act (VII, 1870); S. 19, cl. xiv; otherwise it should bear a stamp of eight annas, Id. Sch. II, Art. 1 (b).

The following orders have been issued by the Cal. High Court regarding the examination of witnesses before Magistrates:—

(a) The evidence of witnesses should invariably be recorded as soon as possible after their attendance. If from unavoidable causes an adjournment is indispensable, there should be no unnecessary delay. Witnesses remaining over from one day should, as a rule, be examined at the first sitting of the Court on the following day. By this means the public will be put to no inconvenience, and justice will be administered in a prompt and satisfactory manner.

(b) Chief Magistrates of districts should carefully supervise the returns of their subordinates, as they will be held responsible for the correction of irregularities. Cal. II. Ct., Cir. 12, Nov. 27, 1865. Wilkins, 70.

(c) Every witness shall be examined viva voce in open Court.

(d) A Magistrate or Judge shall not be engaged in any other business whilst the examination of a witness is going on, or whilst any documentary evidence is being read.

(e) If, after the examination of a witness has commenced, the Magistrate or Judge is compelled to attend to any other business, the examination of the witness shall be suspended as long as such other business is being attended to.

(f) The examination of a witness shall not be interrupted for the purpose of enabling the Magistrate or Judge to attend to other business unless such business is of an urgent nature.

(g) It shall be the duty of every Appellate Court subordinate to the High Court to examine the Memorandum of the evidence made by the Subordinate Court, and to report to the High Court cases in which it shall appear that the above Rules have not been strictly and properly attended to.

(h) The evidence of every witness shall invariably be recorded in the presence of the officer who may decide the case, except in cases otherwise specially provided for it under sections 349, 350 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in which the recalling and re-examination of the witnesses is optional.

(i) After the examination of witnesses has commenced, the trial or inquiry should be proceeded with until all the witnesses in attendance have been examined, those for the prosecution being first examined; and if any witness be detained for a longer period than two days, the Magistrate should record a Memorandum, stating the reasons of such detention. Ch. XVII.
S. 208.

(j) When it is deemed necessary to adjourn the hearing of a case, the adjournment shall be for as short a time as possible, and no person accused of any offence shall be remanded for any period exceeding fifteen days (section 344 Code of Criminal Procedure).

(k) Every Magistrate shall sit daily and punctually at the hour appointed for the opening of his Court, unless prevented by circumstances which are to be recorded in the proceedings of the Court. Cal. H. Ct., Cir. 6, May 16, 1864. Wilkins, 77.

All Magisterial officers shall, in the examination of prosecutors, witnesses, and prisoners, record in each deposition, statement, or defence the following particulars, which are indispensably necessary for the future identification of the parties examined, viz., the name of the person examined, the name of his or her father, and if a married woman, the name of her husband, the religion, caste, profession, and age of the party or witness, and the village and pergunnah in which he or she resides. Cal. H. Ct., Cir. 19, Sept. 17, 1864; Wilkins, 78. Bomb. H. Ct. Dec. 27, 1872; Bomb. Gaz. 1873, p. 20.

Where an accused is brought before a Magistrate, that officer has no authority further to detain him in custody or to remand him to prison, without some reason made manifest to him, either in the shape of sworn testimony given before him or in some other form which can be put on the record, and which is sufficient to justify him in sending the accused to prison.—Abdool Kadir. 11 B. L. R., 8, App.

Any Magistrate inquiring into or trying any case may permit any person other than an officer of Police below the rank of Police Inspector to conduct the prosecution; but no person other than the Advocate General, Standing Counsel, Government Solicitor, Public Prosecutor or other officer generally or specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf shall be entitled to do so without such permission. Any person conducting the prosecution may do so personally or by a pleader. S. 495.

Every person accused before any criminal Court may of right be defended by a pleader. S. 340.

The evidence would be recorded in the manner provided by Ss. 356, 357, 359, 360. Special provision in this respect is made by S. 362 for evidence taken in the Court of a Presidency Magistrate.

If from the absence of a witness or any other reasonable cause it becomes necessary or advisable to postpone the commencement of, or adjourn any inquiry or trial, the Court may, by order in writing, stating the reasons therefor, from time to time postpone or adjourn the same on such terms as it thinks fit, for such time as it considers reasonable, and by a warrant remand the accused, if in custody. Provided that no Magistrate shall remand an accused person to custody under this section

Ob. XVII. for a term exceeding fifteen days at a time. Every order made under this section by a Court other than a High Court shall be in writing signed by the presiding Judge. S. 344.

S. 209.

In a serious case a Magistrate is not only justified but bound to adjourn the inquiry or trial if further evidence, i. e., the evidence of the man robbed, is necessary. It is obvious that if the administration of justice in serious cases depended on the party injured choosing to appear, the procedure of the Court would encourage acts of concealment of crimes which are themselves criminal offences. Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Sept. 12, 1864; Weir, 177.

209. When the evidence referred to in section 208, paragraphs 1 and 2, has been taken, and he has examined the accused for the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him, such Magistrate shall, if he finds that there are not sufficient grounds for committing the accused person for trial, discharge him, unless it appears to the Magistrate that such person should be tried before himself or some other Magistrate, in which case he shall proceed accordingly.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent a Magistrate from discharging the accused at any previous stage of the case if, for reasons to be recorded by such Magistrate, he considers the charge to be groundless.

(S. 195.)

It should be noted that the purpose for which an accused is to be examined is limited, viz. to enable him to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him. S. 364 prescribes the manner in which the examination of an accused person shall be recorded.

“I have for some time felt from examination of criminal trials, that many Magistrates are too hasty in making commitments, or rather that they do not make the thorough inquiry which, I think, they ought to make previous to commitment. In a case of murder more especially, there can be no doubt that it is the duty of the Magistrate to sift every fact bearing on the case, in order to ascertain whether the accused is guilty or innocent and to examine the accused on the facts which bear against him. One of the points of the evidence in this case which led to presumption of the accused's guilt was, that he had been absent about the time the murder was committed. His statement as to where he was at that time should have been recorded, and should also have been thoroughly enquired into. It is not sufficient to say that the accused might bring witnesses to prove his innocence at the trial. It is possible the accused may not know the names of the witnesses; and if the witnesses can give evidence in his favour to exculpate him, he should not be committed. A long time elapses before a trial at the Sessions comes on, and witnesses cannot then give as clear evidence, more especially as to time and duty, as when the facts have only lately occurred. I think every enquiry should have been made previous to commitment, to ascertain not only whether there was presumption of the guilt of the accused, but also whether he was innocent. It is the duty of the Police and the Magistrate not to bring the parties suspected of being guilty to trial, but also to ascertain whether the suspected can clear themselves from the crime of which they are accused. There is a clause in the Procedure Code which empowers Magistrates to commit without inquiry into the defence of the accused. I believe the discretion given by this clause is much abused. It may be applied in certain cases, but in serious charges of murder, when the life of the accused is at stake, I think this clause should not be acted upon, because no certainty of the accused's guilt can arise until his defence is negatived, and proof that his defence is false is frequently very strong evidence in favour of the prosecution. If the result of the inquiry into the defence leaves the matter in doubt, it is the duty of the Magistrate to commit and leave the Sessions Court to decide which is the true story."

The following are the terms of a Circular, 13, July 28, 1864, issued by the Calcutta High Court to the Magistrates subordinate to it:

"Although the Code of Criminal Procedure does not make it imperative on a Magistrate to examine an accused person at any stage of the inquiry before committing him to stand his trial at the Court of Session, the Court think it necessary to impress upon all Magistrates the expediency of the general adoption of this course at some stage or other of the enquiry. In those few and exceptional cases in which the guilt of an accused may be beyond reasonable doubt, the practice in force may be permitted without risk; but inasmuch as by S. 209 it is discretionary with a Magistrate to discharge or to commit an accused person, according as he finds that the evidence is, in his opinion, sufficient for his conviction by the Court of Session or otherwise, it is obvious that the truth of any ordinary case will be best elicited, and obscure points will be cleared away, by any explanation that an accused may wish to give, when, after hearing all the evidence against him, or at any other time in the discretion of the Magistrate, he may be subjected to an examination before the Magistrate on points requiring elucidation, it being clearly explained to the accused that it is at his option to answer such questions or not. The Court, however, desire to explain that, in issuing these directions, they in no way sanction any proceedings of an inquisitorial nature."

The Calcutta High Court (Cir. 3, May 24, 1880; 65 Wilkins.) has ordered that the examination of an accused shall contain his or her name, that of his or her father, and if a married woman, that of her husband, the religion, caste, profession, and age of the accused person and the village or pergunnah in which he or she resides. Also Bomb. H. Ct., Gaz., 1873, p. 20.

S. 210.

The examination of the accused should not be recorded until a complaint has been made. A criminal trial cannot properly be commenced by such examination (Cal. H. Ct., 627, 1869), but an admission of crime, fairly made, and after due warning, is not inadmissible, because at the time it was made no formal accusation had been made against the party making it.—Ramchurn Chamar and others, 4 W. R., 10.

When an accused person wishes to make a statement the Magistrate is bound to record it. In re Abdool Guffoor, 10 Cal. L. R., 51.

When death appears to have resulted from injuries voluntarily inflicted by the party accused, a Magistrate ought to be very careful and not take it upon himself to absolve the accused from the graver charge of culpable homicide or murder and to convict of hurt or grievous hurt only, unless it is quite clear that there is not sufficient evidence to warrant a commitment to the Sessions Court on such charge.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 9, Sept. 6, 1869. Wilkins, 103.

An order of discharge may be passed at any stage of the case if, for reasons to be recorded by him, the Magistrate considers the charge to be groundless, otherwise the Magistrate must examine "all such evidence as may be produced by the prosecution." S. 208.

An order of discharge does not operate as an acquittal. S. 403.

If in the opinion of the Court of Session or District Magistrate, the case is triable exclusively by the Court of Session and the accused has been improperly discharged by an inferior Court, the Court of Session or District Magistrate may order him to be arrested and after notice to the accused to the same either order a fresh inquiry to be held or the accused to be committed for trial of the offence of which he has been improperly discharged. S. 436.

But in a warrant case, which may be a case regarding an offence triable exclusively by a Magistrate, or by a Magistrate and a Court of Session, in which any accused person has been discharged, the High Court, Court of Session or District Magistrate may order further inquiry to be made. S. 437. This is a new provision of the law in the consequence of several judgments of the High Court holding that after an order of discharge in a warrant case, the trial could not be re-opened except by order of the High Court as a Court of Revision. See Mohesh Mistree, 1. L. R., 1 Cal., 282; Mary Donelly, 1. L. R., 2 Cal., 405; Gowdapa bin Venkugowda, 1. L. R., 2 Bomb., 534 &c., &c. The law as now enacted in S. 437 places no restriction on the exercise of the power to order fresh inquiry in a case in which the accused has been discharged, and that inquiry can be held by whomsoever the Court directing it may order it to be held.

210. When, upon such evidence being taken and such examination (if any) being made, the Magistrate finds that there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial, he shall frame a charge under his hand, declaring with what offence the accused is charged.

As soon as the charge has been framed, it shall be read and explained to the accused and a copy thereof shall, if he so requires, be given to him free of cost.

(Ss. 195, 196, Expl. III; S. 198, para. 1; S. 199.)

Sch. V, No. 28 contains various forms of charges. Under S. 35 of the Court Fees Act (VII of 1870) the Governor General of India in Council has remitted the fees payable on a copy of a charge furnished under S. 210. India Gaz. 1873, p. 520.

S. 350 provides for the case of a Magistrate vacating his office before concluding an inquiry commenced by him and enables his successor to continue the proceedings, or under certain circumstances requires him to recommence the inquiry and rehear the evidence.

211. The accused shall be required at once to give in, orally or in writing, a list of the persons (if any) whom he wishes to be summoned to give evidence on his trial.

The Magistrate may in his discretion allow the accused to give in any further list of witnesses at a subsequent time; and, where the accused is committed for trial before the High Court, nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude the accused from giving, at any time before his trial to the Clerk of the Crown a further list of the persons whom he wishes to be summoned to give evidence on such trial.

S. 216 lays down the course to be taken by the Magistrate in summoning fresh witnesses.

212. The Magistrate may in his discretion sum-under section 211.

in a list under section 211 has declined to do so, or when he has given in such list and the witnesses (if any) included therein whom the Magistrate desires to examine have been summoned and examined under section 212, the Magistrate may make an order committing the accused for trial by the High Court or the Court of Session (as

- Ch. XVII. the case may be), and (unless the Magistrate is a Presidency Magistrate) shall also record briefly the reasons
 S. 213. for such commitment.

The reasons for commitment should set forth with exactness the proof against each particular prisoner and the manner in which the offence has been substantiated.—Kodai Kahar, 5 W. R., 6.

A Magistrate should not commit the accused person for trial but should discharge him, if the act or omission charged does not amount to an offence on account of the existence of any of the general exceptions contained in Chapter IV of the Penal Code (Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 1, Feb. 12, 1867); but this rule does not apply to cases in which it may appear that the accused person has committed an act amounting to an offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session, at a time when by reason of unsoundness of mind he was incapable of knowing the nature of that act, or that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law. Such cases should be committed for trial if the accused appears to be sane at the time of inquiry. S. 469.

The duty of a committing Magistrate is to ascertain whether by the evidence of the prosecution a prima facie case has been made out against the accused. Magistrates are apt to suppose that it is incumbent on them to satisfy themselves fully of the guilt of the accused before making a commitment. The idea is erroneous. Where there is sufficient ground for putting an accused person on his trial, the Magistrate should make a commitment.—Moha Singh, 3 All., 27.

A Magistrate should, on no account, commit a person for trial by a Court of Session, unless there be good ground on the evidence for expecting a conviction (3 W. R., 10, C. L.); but if he is in doubt, where the evidence for the defence is nearly as strong as that for the prosecution, he should commit. If the evidence for the prosecution is manifestly false, of course there should be no commitment. 8 W. R., 12, C. L.

When an offence falls under two sections of the Penal Code, the one general and cognizable by a Magistrate, the other specifying aggravated circumstances and cognizable by the Sessions Court only, the jurisdiction of the Magistrate is not necessarily ousted. The Magistrate must determine whether he will dispose of the case under the general section, or commit the accused to the Court with a discreet regard to the gravity of the circumstances of the particular case.—Mad. H. Ct. July 19, 1871; March 18, 1868; Nov. 26, 1867; Nov. 4, 1865.

When death appears to have resulted from injuries voluntarily inflicted by the party accused, a Magistrate ought to be very careful and not take it upon himself to absolve the accused from the graver charge of culpable homicide or murder and to convict of hurt or grievous hurt only, unless it is quite clear that there is not sufficient evidence to warrant a commitment to the Sessions Court on such charge.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 9, Sept. 6, 1869.

When the offence charged is triable by a Magistrate as well as by a Court of Session, the Magistrate should exercise his own discretion in deciding whether the case should be committed, or whether the justice of the case will be fully satisfied by a sentence which he himself is authorized to pass. The amount of property stolen is one very proper point for consideration in determining this question.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Ch. XVII. July 23, 1866. Weir, 134.

If two or more persons are jointly indicted, and the jurisdiction of the Magistrate is ousted in the case of one, the Magistrate should hold a preliminary inquiry and commit both or all for trial before the Court of Session.—Mad. H. Ct., March 18, 1868. S. 214.

When several persons are charged with offences of various degrees, arising out of the same act or transaction, all implicated therein, against whom sufficient evidence is forthcoming, should be committed to the Court of Session, if any of the accused is charged with an offence beyond the cognizance of a Magistrate, or one which, in the opinion of the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, ought to be tried by the Court of Session.—Agra Sud. Ct. Cir. 14, 1862; Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 16, May 27, 1862; Cir. 13, Aug. 29, 1870, Wilkins, 100. The term transaction here used must not be understood to extend to a riot in which different parties are concerned not having the same "common object." Thus when a riot is charged, and the Magistrate is about to commit the contending parties for trial, not only should separate charges be drawn up against each party, but separate trials should be held, since the offences of each party are distinct and separate. Durzoolla Khan, 9 W. R., 83; Hosein Buksh Sheikh and others, 6 Cal. L. R., 521. Similarly, a separate trial should be held on each charge of "giving false evidence," although the statements forming the basis of the charge may relate to the same subject-matter. Two persons cannot be joined in one indictment.—10 W. R., 2, C. L.; Mad. H. Ct., March 15, 1867. Weir, 268; Chand Khan, 2 Leg. Rem., 183.

When more persons than one are accused of the same offence, or if different offences committed in the same transaction, or when one person is accused of committing any offence, and another of abetment of, or attempt to commit, such offence, they may be tried together or separately, as the Court thinks fit, and the provisions contained in Ss. 221—238 shall apply to all such charges. S. 239. The illustrations to that section show the meaning to be put on the expression "same transaction."

A Magistrate having committed a person who appeared before him by agent [S. 205], the Calcutta High Court (Huronath Rai, 2 W. R., 50) held that the commitment was not necessarily illegal; but as the agent had not been required to give in a list of the witnesses whom he wished to have summoned for his principal, the Court directed the Magistrate to make the demand.

A Magistrate who is about to go on leave, exercises an improper discretion in committing to the Court of Session, a case properly triable by the Magistrate, merely on the ground that the witnesses for the defence are not in attendance, and that it would be inconvenient for his successor to commence the trial anew, but in doing so he does not commit an illegality such as would justify the High Court in quashing the commitment.—Bomb. H. Ct. Resn. in Chambers, 25th July, 1876.

214. If any person (not being an European British subject) is accused before a Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate of having committed an Person charged outside Presidency-towns jointly with European British subject.

Ch. XVII. offence conjointly with an European British subject Ss. 215, 216. who is about to be committed for trial, or to be tried, before the High Court on a similar charge arising out of the same transaction, and the Magistrate finds that there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial, he shall commit him for trial before the High Court, and not before the Court of Session.

An European British subject can be committed to the High Court direct by a Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate only when the offence charged is punishable with death or transportation for life
 (S. 447), but the trial of an European British subject arising out of a commitment to a Court of Session may be held by a High Court either by express order of that Court, or if it be referred by the Sessions Judge because in his opinion he cannot pass an adequate sentence. S. 449.

Whether one or separate trials would be held would entirely depend on the action taken by the accused, when before the High Court. S. 452.

215. A commitment once made under section Quashing commitments 213 or section 214 by a competent under section 213 or 214. Magistrate can be quashed by the High Court only, and only on a point of law.
 (S. 197, last para. and Expl.)

These words are not used in an exclusive sense so as to deprive a High Court of its powers of revision to cancel a commitment made other than by a competent Magistrate. Luchman Singh, I. L. R., 2 All.
 308; per Stuart, C. J. (Spankie, J. dis.)

But if a commitment has been made by a Magistrate or other authority without jurisdiction in that respect, and the Sessions Court considers that the accused has been prejudiced or if an objection to the proceedings of the committing officer as being without jurisdiction has been made before the order of commitment, the Sessions Court can quash the commitment and direct fresh inquiry by a competent Magistrate. S. 532.

If in the opinion of a Sessions Judge, a commitment made to his Court is illegal, he should refer the case for the orders of the High Court (Cal. H. Ct., Cir. 7, June 20, 1864); but the insufficiency of legal evidence against the prisoner is no ground for such reference.—Gokul Bandari, 1 W. R., 8.

216. When the accused has given in any list of Summons to witnesses witnesses under section 211 and for defence when accused has been committed for trial, the is committed. Magistrate shall summon such of the witnesses included in the list as have not appeared before himself, to appear before the Court to which the accused has been committed :

Ch. XVII.

S. 217.

Provided that where the accused has been committed to the High Court, the Magistrate may in his discretion leave such witnesses to be summoned by the Clerk of the Crown, and such witnesses may be summoned accordingly :

Provided also that if the Magistrate thinks that any witness is included in the list for the purpose of vexation or delay, or of defeating the ends of justice, the Magistrate may require the accused to satisfy him that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the evidence of such witness is material, and, if he is not so satisfied, may refuse to summon the witness (recording his reasons for such refusal), or may before summoning him require such sum to be deposited as such Magistrate thinks necessary to defray the expense of obtaining the attendance of the witness.

The accused person, on commitment to the Court of Session, gave in his list of witnesses. Among these two did not appear, the summons not being served on one, and no summons having been issued on the other. On the trial, the pleader for the defence asked for an adjournment on account of the absence of these witnesses, but was refused. The High Court, on appeal, held that accused was entitled, as a matter of right, to have these two witnesses examined, and accordingly, under S. 428 directed their evidence to be taken.—Prosunno Coomar Moitro, 23 W. R., 56.

S. 216 does not permit a Magistrate to inquire generally into what the defence of the accused person is to be, and to consider whether, on hearing the nature of the defence, he is absolutely to abstain from summoning the whole of the witnesses of the accused. It is intended rather to provide, that when among the persons named by the accused as witnesses for the defence, the Magistrate considers that any particular witness is included for the purposes of vexation or delay, he is to exercise his judgment and inquire whether such a witness is material. Raj Coomar Singh and others, 2 Cal. L. R., 62.

217. Complainants and witnesses for the prosecution and defence, whose attendance

Bond of complainants and witnesses. before the Court of Session or High Court is necessary, and who appear before the Magistrate, shall execute before him bonds binding themselves to be in attendance when called upon at the Court of Session or High Court, to prosecute or to give evidence, as the case may be.

Ch. XVII.

S. 218.

Detention in custody in case of refusal to attend or to execute bond.

If any complainant or witness refuses to attend before the Court of Session or High Court, or to execute the bond above directed, the Magistrate may detain him in custody until he executes such bond, or until his attendance at the Court of Session or High Court is required, when the Magistrate shall send him in custody to the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be.

(S. 360.)

A Magistrate cannot require recognizances for the attendance at the Sessions or High Court of witnesses cited for the defence who have never appeared before him. Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Oct. 19, 1876 ; Weir, 252.

It will be the duty of the Magistrate, in order prevent hardship and unnecessary detention to such persons, so to arrange the coming on of cases before the Court of Session that such parties may not be brought from their homes to the Sudder Station before they are actually required, and they should have written notice of the specific date on which their attendance will be necessary, and it should be carefully explained that failure to attend will be severely dealt with.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 4, dated May 6, 1868.

218. When the accused is committed for trial, the Magistrate shall issue an order to such person as may be appointed by the Local Government in this behalf, notifying the commitment, and stating the offence in the same form as the charge, unless the Magistrate is satisfied that such person is already aware of the commitment and the form of the charge ; and shall send the charge, the record of the inquiry and any weapon or other thing which is to be produced in evidence, to the Court of Session or (where the commitment is made to the High Court) to the Clerk of the Crown or other officer appointed in this behalf by the High Court.

When the commitment is made to the High Court and any part of the record is not in English, an English translation of such part shall be forwarded with the record.

(Ss. 198, 202.)

Sch. V. No. 27 contains a form of notice of commitment by a Magistrate to the Government Pleader. Ch. XVII.

The following rules issued by the Calcutta High Court (Cir. 4, S. 218. May 6, 1868) should be read with S. 218:—

“The Judge will, in the first week of December in each year, fix the number of Sessions to be held in the year following, and the dates on which respectively they are to begin (the number varying with the estimated or average number of trials, and not being less than six or more than ten in each year); and the Magistrate of the District, in communication with all the Subordinate Magistrates who exercise the power of committing to the Sessions and obtaining from them the particulars of all cases committed by them, will prepare and submit to the Zillah Judge, two days before the commencement of each Sessions, a calendar of all such cases in the form annexed:—

Sessions of 187

No. of Case.	Committing Officer	Number and Name of Accused.	Charges and Section I. P. C.	Date of Offence.	Date of apprehension or appearance to summons.	Date of Commitment.	In Jail or on Bail.
--------------	--------------------	-----------------------------	------------------------------	------------------	--	---------------------	---------------------

“The names of the witnesses should be placed on the back of the charge sheet. The Magistrates will be careful to arrange their commitments with a view to the trials taking place at the earliest or next ensuing Session, in order to avoid the needless detention of accused persons for prolonged periods.

“Whenever a commitment is made, intimation will be immediately given to the Court of Session, through the Magistrate of the District, by a letter in the annexed form:—

Form of letter to be sent by Committing Officers, through the Magistrate of the District, to the Judge.

“It will be unnecessary for the Court of Session to send any answer fixing a date for the trial. But the Judge will be guided by the information which he thus receives in estimating the time which it will

Ch. XVII. be necessary to devote to the Criminal Sessions, and consequently at what period he will be able to take up civil business thereafter.

S. 218. "Prosecutors and witnesses will be bound over to appear 'at the next Criminal Sessions commencing on....."

"The directions herein contained for committing Magistrates are to be observed, so far as they are applicable, by Civil Courts and other authorities committing persons for trial at the Sessions.

"The names of the witnesses should be entered at the back of the charge sheet."—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 5, Oct. 14, 1879, Wilkins, 101.

In Madras, under orders of the High Court, a Register of Preliminary Inquiries is kept by Magistrates of every grade in committing an accused person for trial before the Court of Session, and the Magistrate is directed to place with the record an extract of the case taken from the Register of Preliminary Enquiries.

In the Panjab the fixing of the date and place of trial of a case is with the Sessions Judge, due notice being sent to the committing Magistrate.—Smyth, p. 96. But jail deliveries of each District should be held at intervals of not more than ninety days, if there are prisoners awaiting trial, the selection of the time being left to the Judge.—Id., p. 98.

The following form of Calendar for commitments to Courts of Session in the Panjab has been issued by the Chief Court [Book Cir. 1—87 of 1873, Gaz., 1873, Part III, p. 41,] the model form being filled in as an illustration.

- Ch. XVII. The following instructions have also been issued on the subject :—
 S. 218. The reasons for commitment required by the Code of Criminal Procedure may be written either in the Calendar Sheet or on a separate sheet as may be most convenient.

The papers, which, upon commitment being made, will have to be transmitted to the Court of Session, will be—

- (a.) Copy of the charge.
- (b.) Calendar.
- (c.) Reasons for commitment.
- (d.) Record of original inquiry.

Besides these any weapon or other article of property necessary to produce in evidence must be sent.

The papers to be transferred to the Sessions file from the record of original inquiry are briefly those received in evidence by the Sessions Court. Smyth, p. 95.

The following is a list of the papers which will ordinarily have to be transferred :—

- (a.) Evidence of Medical witness.
- (b.) Report of Chemical Examiner.
- (c.) Examination of accused before Magistrate.
- (d.) Evidence of present witness recorded at preliminary inquiry when Sessions Judge grounds his judgment thereon.
- (e.) Certificate of previous acquittal or conviction.
- (f.) Confession of accused when relevant.
- (g.) Statement of persons who cannot be called as witnesses including dying declaration.

Such papers will be transferred to the Sessions Court, and an endorsement to that effect will be made upon each.

In cases of commitments by Native Magistrates, the Calendar shall be written in the vernacular of the Court, and so submitted.

The Calcutta High Court has directed (8 B. L. R., 5, Rules, &c.; Wilkins, 100) that the record referred to in this section, which is to be forwarded to the Court of Session, shall include—

First.—The proceedings by which the case has been originated in the Magistrate's Court.

Second.—All papers showing the steps taken under the authority of the Magistrate upon the complaint; the summons (if any) and if returned; the warrant, and the return, or other documents showing how and when it has been executed; also any such warrant and the report showing how it has been executed.

Third.—The report, if any, on such inquiry as that under S. 205.

Fourth.—The orders, if any, sanctioning the prosecution, when such sanction is necessary.

Fifth.—The order, if any, withdrawing or transferring the case from one Court to another.

When a confession or examination of accused person made before a Magistrate forms part of the evidence against the persons committed for trial to the Court of Sessions, it should be accompanied by a translation into English fairly written out. Cal. H. Ct. Cir., 4, Aug. 10, 1862. Wilkins, 105.

219. The Magistrate may summon and examine Ch. XVII.

Power to summon supplementary witnesses. supplementary witnesses after the commitment and before the commencement of the trial, and bind them over in manner hereinbefore provided to appear and give evidence. Ss. 219, 220.

Such examination shall, if possible, be taken in the presence of the accused, and, where the Magistrate is not a Presidency Magistrate, a copy of the evidence of such witnesses shall, if the accused so require, be given to him free of cost.

A witness so examined, not in the presence of the accused person, must attend before the Court of Session or High Court. If he should die or cannot be found, or is incapable of giving evidence, or is kept out of the way by the adverse party, or if his presence cannot be obtained without unreasonable delay or expense, his deposition so taken before the Magistrate, but in the absence of the accused person, will not be evidence before the Court of Session or High Court, because the accused person had not the opportunity to cross-examine (S. 33, Act I, 1872), so that every endeavour should be made to examine all such witnesses in the presence of the accused person.

If any person affected by an order passed by a Criminal Court desires to have a copy of any order or deposition or other part of the record, he shall, on applying for such copy, be furnished therewith; provided that he pay for the same, unless the Court for some special reason, thinks fit to furnish it free of cost, S. 548.

220. Until and during the trial, the Magistrate shall, subject to the provisions of this Code regarding the taking of bail, commit the accused, by warrant, to custody.

Custody of accused pending trial.

If it is a bailable offence the Magistrate should admit the accused to bail, unless he thinks fit instead of taking bail to discharge him on executing a bond without sureties for his appearance, S. 496; but if a person is accused of a non-bailable offence he shall not be released on bail if there are reasonable grounds for believing that he is guilty of the offence of which he is accused, (S. 497); there would be such grounds after he has been committed for trial by a High Court or Sessions Court. The High Court or Sessions Court may, however, in any case, direct that any person may be admitted to bail. S. 498.

CHAPTER XIX.

OF THE CHARGE.

In the trial of summons cases no formal charge shall be framed (S. 242) but the accused shall be asked to show cause why he should not be convicted of the offence of which he is accused, the particulars of that offence being stated to him. In warrant cases after the evidence for the prosecution has been taken and the accused examined, if the Magistrate is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence which the Magistrate is competent to try and can be adequately punished by him, a charge shall be framed. S. 254.

In cases regarding security for good behaviour in which the procedure should be as in warrant cases, it is especially provided that no formal charge shall be framed. S. 117.

In summary trials no formal charge need be recorded. Ss. 262, 263.

In inquiries when the evidence affords sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial a charge should be drawn up. S. 210.

No finding or sentence pronounced or passed shall be deemed invalid merely on the ground that no charge was framed, unless, in the opinion of the Court of appeal or revision, a failure of justice has been occasioned thereby. If the Court of appeal or revision thinks that a failure of justice has been occasioned by an omission to frame a charge, it shall order that a charge shall be framed, and that the trial be re-commenced from the point immediately after the framing of the charge. S. 535.

No error, omission or irregularity in the charge shall necessitate the reversal or alteration of a finding, sentence or order coming before a Court of confirmation appeal or revision unless it has occasioned a failure of justice. S. 537. And on a commitment made without a charge or with an imperfect or erroneous charge, the Sessions Court, or, in the case of a High Court, the Clerk of the Crown, may frame a charge or add to or otherwise alter it. S. 226.

Form of Charges.

221. Every charge under this Code shall state the offence with which the accused is charged.

Charge to state offence.

If the law which creates the offence gives it any specific name, the offence may be described in the charge by that name only.

Specific name of offence sufficient description.

If the law which creates the offence does not give it any specific name, so much of the definition of the offence must be stated as to give the accused notice of the matter with which he is charged.

The law and section of the law against which the offence is said to have been committed shall be mentioned in the charge.

The fact that the charge is made is equivalent to a statement that every legal condition required by law to constitute the offence charged was fulfilled in the particular case.

In the Presidency-towns the charge shall be written in English; elsewhere it shall be written either in English or in the language of the Court.

If the accused has been previously convicted of any offence, and it is intended to prove such previous conviction for the purpose of affecting the punishment which the Court is competent to award, the fact, date and place of the previous conviction shall be stated in the charge. If such statement is omitted, the Court may add it at any time before sentence is passed.

Illustrations.

(a) A is charged with the murder of B. This is equivalent to a statement that A's act fell within the definition of murder given in sections 299 and 300 of the Indian Penal Code; that it did not fall within any of the general exceptions of the same Code; and that it did not fall within any of the five exceptions to section 300, or that, if it did fall within Exception 1, one or other of the three provisos to that exception applied to it.

(b) A is charged, under section 326 of the Indian Penal Code, with voluntarily causing grievous hurt to B, by means of an instrument for shooting. This is equivalent to a statement that the case was not provided for by section 335 of the Indian Penal Code, and that the general exceptions did not apply to it.

(c) A is accused of murder, cheating, theft, extortion, adultery or criminal intimidation, or using a false property-mark. The charge may state that A committed murder, or cheating, or theft, or extortion, or adultery, or criminal intimidation, or that he used a false property-mark, without reference to the definitions of those crimes contained in the Indian Penal Code; but the sections under which the offence is punishable must, in each instance, be referred to in the charge.

Ch. XIX.

S. 221.

(d) A is charged, under section 184 of the Indian Penal Code, with intentionally obstructing a sale of property offered for sale by the lawful authority of a public servant. The charge should be in those words.

(S. 439.)

With reference to para. 5 and Illustration (a), S. 105 of the Evidence Act (I of 1872) should be read—

“When a person is accused of any offence, the burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within any of the General Exceptions in the Indian Penal Code, or within special exception or proviso contained in any other part of the same Code, or in any law defining the offence, is upon him, and the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances.

“Illustrations.

“(a.) A, accused of murder, alleges that, by reason of unsoundness of mind, he did not know the nature of the act.

“The burden of proof is on A.

“(b.) A, accused of murder, alleges that, by grave and sudden provocation, he was deprived of the power of self-control.

“The burden of proof is on A.

“(c.) Section three hundred and twenty-five of the Indian Penal Code provides that whoever, except in the case provided for by section three hundred and thirty-five, voluntarily causes grievous hurt, shall be subject to certain punishments.

“A is charged with voluntarily causing grievous hurt under section three hundred and twenty-five.

“The burden of proving the circumstances bringing the case under section three hundred and thirty-five lies on A.”

In the last para. the law as now enacted is slightly altered from S. 439 of the Code of 1872 which it replaces. The latter ran thus: and “if it is intended to prove such previous conviction for the purpose of affecting the punishment which is to be awarded.” For the words in italics S. 221 of the present Code has substituted “which the Court is competent to award,” so that it would seem that although a previous conviction brought against the accused might influence a Magistrate in passing sentence, the accused would not necessarily be called upon formally to plead to it if the sentence is one which the Magistrate “is competent to award.” It will probably nevertheless be considered necessary to give the accused an opportunity of showing that he was not the person so convicted. A previous conviction apparently would not form part of the formal charge unless the Magistrate makes it the ground of commitment to the Sessions or High Court or of referring the case in certain Districts to the District Magistrate invested with extraordinary powers under S. 30. S. 348.

Where the previous conviction did not form part of the charge, the enhanced sentence was set aside, and the Sessions Judge directed to reopen the trial with the same set of jurors on that charge, giving the accused an opportunity of making a fresh defence to it. The High Court remarked that the question of proof of previous conviction is one of fact which ought to have gone to, and been determined by a jury.—Eshan Chunder Dey, 21 W. R., 40.

222. The charge shall contain such particulars Ch. XIX.

Particulars as to time, as to the time and place of the place and person. alleged offence, and the person (if any) against, or the thing (if any) in respect of which, it was committed, as are reasonably sufficient to give the accused notice of the matter with which he is charged.

the particulars mentioned in sections 221 and 222 do not give the accused sufficient notice of the matter with which he is charged, the charge shall also contain such particulars of the manner in which the alleged offence was committed as will be sufficient for that purpose.

Illustrations.

(a) A is accused of the theft of a certain article at a certain time and place. The charge need not set out the manner in which the theft was effected.

(b) A is accused of cheating B at a given time and place. The charge must set out the manner in which A cheated B.

(c) A is accused of giving false evidence at a given time and place.
The charge must set out that portion of the evidence given by A which is alleged to be false.

(d) A is accused of obstructing B, a public servant, in the discharge of his public functions at a given time and place. The charge must set out the manner in which A obstructed B in the discharge of his functions.

(e) A is accused of the murder of B at a given time and place.
The charge need not state the manner in which A murdered B.

(f) A is accused of disobeying a direction of the law with intent to save B from punishment. The charge must set out the disobedience charged and the law infringed.

(Act XVII 1862, S. 82.)

Ch. XIX.

S. 225.

Effect of errors.

225. No error in stating either the offence or the particulars required to be stated in the charge, and no omission to state the offence or those particulars, shall be regarded at any stage of the case as material, unless the accused was misled by such error or omission.

Illustrations.

(a) A is charged, under section 242 of the Indian Penal Code, with "having been in possession of counterfeit coin, having known at the time when he became possessed thereof that such coin was counterfeit," the word "fraudulently" being omitted in the charge. Unless it appears that A was in fact misled by this omission, the error shall not be regarded as material.

(b) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge, or is set out incorrectly. A defends himself, calls witnesses, and gives his own account of the transaction. The Court may infer from this that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating is not material.

(c) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge. There were many transactions between A and B, and A had no means of knowing to which of them the charge referred, and offered no defence. The Court may infer from such facts that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating was, in this case, a material error.

(d) A is charged with the murder of Khoda Baksh on the 21st January 1882. In fact, the murdered person's name was Haidar Baksh, and the date of the murder was the 20th January, 1882. A was never charged with any murder but one, and had heard the inquiry before the Magistrate, which referred exclusively to the case of Haidar, Baksh. The Court may infer from these facts that A was not misled and that the error in the charge was immaterial.

(e) A was charged with murdering Haidar Baksh on the 20th January, 1882, and Khoda Baksh (who tried to arrest him for that murder) on the 21st January 1882. When charged for the murder of Haidar Baksh, he was tried for the murder of Khoda Baksh. The witnesses present in his defence were witnesses in the case of Haidar Baksh. The Court may infer from this that A was misled, and that the error was material.

Unless otherwise specially provided for no finding, sentence or order passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be reversed or altered under Chapter XXVII (on submission for confirmation) or on appeal or revision on account of any error, omission or irregularity in the charge unless such error, omission or irregularity has occasioned a failure of justice. S. 537.

In Baban Khan Valad Mhaskoji, I. L. R., 2 Bomb., 142 the conviction and sentence were set aside on the ground that the charge did not give to the accused the information which the law intended him to have of the particular offence, expressed circumstantially, to which he was called upon to answer. The High Court remarked :—The description of crimes in the Penal Code must of necessity be expressed in abstract terms, but the very object of a trial is to determine whether particular acts or omissions on the part of an accused fall or do not fall within the rule thus abstractedly stated. Conformably to the principle all the models of charges given in Sch. V of the Code of Criminal Procedure contain or imply the setting forth with reasonable particularity of the matters alleged to constitute the offence.

Ch. XIX.

perfect or erroneous charge, the Court, or, in the case of a High Court, the Clerk of the Crown, may frame a charge, or add to or otherwise alter the charge, as the case may be, having regard to the rules contained in this Code as to the form of charges.

(S. 446.)

When the accused was charged under S. 217, Penal Code, without any statement of the direction of law which he disobeyed and how he disobeyed it, it was held that the charge being thus expressed in such vague terms, the prosecution, on the appeal against the conviction, should be limited to the particular sense in which the charge had been understood at the trial. Baban Khan Valad Mhaskoji, I. L. R., 2 Bomb. 142.

in the case of trials before the Court of Session or High Court, before the verdict of the jury is returned or the opinions of the assessors are expressed.

Every such alteration shall be read and explained to the accused.

228. If the charge framed or alteration made under section 226 or section 227 is with the trial is not likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused in his defence or the prosecutor in the conduct of the case, the Court may in its discretion, after such charge or alteration has been framed or made, proceed with the trial as if the new or altered charge had been the original charge.

(S. 447.)

Ch. XIX. The object of the law is to secure to a prisoner a preliminary inquiry which affords him an opportunity of becoming acquainted with the circumstances of the offence imputed to him so as to enable him to prepare his defence. Consequently a Sessions Judge is not competent to add a charge regarding which no evidence was taken by the Magistrate. He should have adjourned the trial and directed further inquiry. Kovilghatha Rama Varma Raja, I. L. R., 3 Mad., 351.

The fact that the accused defended by a competent pleader when the charge was altered during the trial, never asked for a new trial, goes to show that he was not prejudiced by the proceedings subsequently taken. It is only in the case of charges closely related that a trial goes on forthwith after an amendment of the charge by the addition of a charge of another offence. Thus, where the prisoner was charged with murder, the addition of a charge of abetment of murder, though it had the effect of making the statement of another prisoner also being tried in the same trial admissible against him, was held to be no ground for holding that the trial should have been adjourned, or a fresh trial held. Govind Babli Raul, 11 Bomb., 278.

229. If the new or altered charge is such that When new trial may be directed, or trial suspended. proceeding immediately with the trial is likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused or the prosecutor as aforesaid, the Court may either direct a new trial or adjourn the trial for such period as may be necessary.

(S. 448.)

230. If the offence stated in the new or altered charge is one for the prosecution of which previous sanction is necessary, the case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction is obtained, unless sanction has been already obtained for a prosecution on the same facts as those on which the new or altered charge is founded.

Stay of proceedings if prosecution of offence in altered charge require previous sanction.

The cases regarding which previous sanction to prosecute is necessary are specified in Ss. 132, 195, 197.

S. 230 declares that such a case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction is obtained unless &c. &c., but S. 537 provides that no finding, sentence or order shall be reversed or altered under Chapter XXVII (in a case submitted for confirmation of sentence) or on appeal or revision on account of the want of any sanction required by S. 195 unless such want has occasioned a failure of justice. S. 537 does not however apply to cases requiring sanction under other sections than S. 195, e. g. under S. 132, S. 196, or S. 197.

231. Whenever a charge is altered by the Court Recall of witnesses when charge altered. after the commencement of the trial, the prosecutor and the accused shall be allowed to re-call or re-summon, and examine with reference to such alteration, any witness who may have been examined. Ch. XIX.

Ss. 232, 233.

(S. 449.)

232. If any Appellate Court, or the High Court in the exercise of its powers of revision or of its powers under Chapter XXVII, is of opinion that any person convicted of an offence was misled in his defence by the absence of a charge or by an error in the charge, it shall direct a new trial to be had upon a charge framed in whatever manner it thinks fit.

If the Court is of opinion that the facts of the case are such that no valid charge could be preferred against the accused in respect of the facts proved, it shall quash the conviction.

Illustration.

A is convicted of an offence under section 196 of the Indian Penal Code, upon a charge which omits to state that he knew the evidence which he corruptly used or attempted to use as true or genuine was false or fabricated. If the Court thinks it probable that A had such knowledge, and that he was misled in his defence by the omission from the charge of the statement that he had it, it shall direct a new trial upon an amended charge; but if it appears probable from the proceedings that A had no such knowledge, it shall quash the conviction.

(S. 451.)

No finding or sentence shall be invalid merely on the ground that no charge was framed unless, in the opinion of the Court of appeal or revision, a failure of justice has been occasioned thereby. If the Court of appeal or revision thinks that a failure of justice has been occasioned by an omission to frame a charge, it shall order the charge to be framed, and that the trial be recommenced from the point immediately after the framing of the charge. S. 535.

Joinder of Charges.

233. For every distinct offence of which any person is accused there shall be a separate charge, and every such charge shall be tried separately, except in the cases mentioned in sections 234, 235, 236 and 239.

Separate charges for distinct offences.

Ch. XIX.

Illustration.

Ss. 234, 235. A is accused of a theft on one occasion, and of causing grievous hurt on another occasion. A must be separately charged and separately tried for the theft and the causing grievous hurt.

(S. 452.)

Thus, two persons tried for intentionally giving false evidence (S. 193, Penal Code) in the same trial, must be separately charged and separately tried. Mad. H. Ct., March 15, 1867; Weir, 268; 10 W. R., 2 Cal. Chand Khan, 2 Leg. Rem., 183.

234. When a person is accused of more offences than one of the same kind, committed within the space of twelve months from the first to the last of such offences, he may be charged with, and tried at one trial for, any number of them not exceeding three.

Three offences of same kind within year may be charged together.

Offences are of the same kind when they are punishable with the same amount of punishment under the same section of the Indian Penal Code, or of any special or local law.

(S. 453.)

The offences must be committed against the same person to be joined in one trial under S. 234. Thus, where M was accused of cheating G on two occasions and K on a third, it was held that although the three offences were of the same kind and were all committed within the space of twelve months they should not have been joined in the same trial. Murari, I. L. R., 4 All., 147.

When certain persons had been tried in one case and convicted of various offences committed between 1872 and 1876, it was held that the trial was irregular, and therefore the hearing of appeals against the conviction and acquittal of such offences would also be irregular. The High Court consequently restricted the appeal in respect of offences committed in 1874-5 only, having regard to S. 234, as it appeared that this course did not prejudice the accused persons who had been fairly tried for those offences. Harmanta Madhaji Khadke and others, Bomb. H. Ct., Feb. 26, 1877.

S. 234 does not mean that if, at one time, or within one year or more a man commits fifty distinct offences of the same kind, he shall not in one day be prosecuted for more than three such offences. This is clear from S. 235 (d). It only restricts the number of offences charged in one trial. In the matter of Ram Manickyo Chuckerbutty, 1 Cal. L. R., 478.

235. I.—If, in one series of acts so connected together as to form the same transaction, more offences than one are committed by the same person, he may be charged with, and tried at one trial for, every such offence.

I.—Trial for more than one offence.

Ch. XIX.

S. 235.

II.—If the acts alleged constitute an offence falling within two or more separate definitions of any law in force for the time being by which offences are defined or punished, the person accused of them may be charged with and tried at one trial for each of such offences.

III.—Acts constituting one offence, but constituting when combined a different offence.

III.—If several acts, of which one or more than one would by itself or themselves constitute an offence, constitute when combined a different offence, the person accused of them may be charged with and tried at one trial for the offence constituted by such acts when combined, or for any offence constituted by any one, or more, of such acts.

Nothing contained in this section shall affect the Indian Penal Code, section 71.

(b) A commits house-breaking by day with intent to commit adultery, and commits, in the house so entered, adultery with B's wife. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under sections 454 and 497 of the Indian Penal Code.

(c) A entices B, the wife of C, away from C, with intent to commit adultery with B, and then commits adultery with her. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under Ss. 498 and 497 of the Indian Penal Code.

(d) A has in his possession several seals knowing them to be counterfeit and intending to use them for the purpose of committing several forgeries punishable under S. 466 of the Indian Penal Code. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, the possession of each seal under S. 473 of the Indian Penal Code.

(e) With intent to cause injury to B, A institutes a criminal proceeding against him, knowing that there is no just or lawful ground for such proceeding; and also falsely accuses B of having committed an offence, knowing that there is no just or lawful ground for such charge. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, two offences under S. 211 of the Indian Penal Code.

(f) A, with intent to cause injury to B, falsely accuses him of having committed an offence, knowing that there is no just or lawful ground for such charge. On the trial, A gives false evidence against B, intending thereby to cause B to be convicted of a capital offence. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under S. 211 and 194 of the Indian Penal Code.

(h) A threatens B, C and D at the same time with injury to their persons with intent to cause alarm to them. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, each of the three offences under S. 506 of the Indian Penal Code.

(j) Several stolen sacks of corn are made over to A and B, who know they are stolen property, for the purpose of concealing them. A and B thereupon voluntarily assist each other to conceal the sacks at the bottom of a grain-pit. A and B may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under Ss. 411 and 414 of the Indian Penal Code.

(k) A exposes her child with the knowledge that she is thereby likely to cause its death. The child dies in consequence of such exposure. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under Ss. 317 and 304 of the Indian Penal Code.

(l) A dishonestly uses a forged document as genuine evidence, in order to convict B, a public servant, of an offence under S. 167 of the Indian Penal Code. A may be charged separately with, and convicted of, offences under Ss. 471 (read with 466) and 196 of the same Code.

to paragraph III—

(m) A commits robbery on B, and, in doing so, voluntarily causes hurt to him. A may be separately charged with, and convicted of, offences under Ss. 323, 392 and 393 of the Indian Penal Code.

(S. 454.)

S. 71, Penal Code, should be read with this section :—

When anything which is an offence is made up of parts, any of which parts is itself an offence, the offender shall not be punished with the punishment of more than one of such his offences unless it be so expressly provided.

Illustrations.

(a.) A gives Z fifty strokes with a stick. Here A may have committed the offence of voluntarily causing hurt to Z by the whole beating, and also by each of the blows which make up the whole beating. If A were liable to punishment for every blow, he might be imprisoned for fifty years, one for each blow. But he is liable only to one punishment for the whole beating.

(b.) But if, while A is beating Z, Y interferes, and A intentionally strikes Y, here, as the blow given to Y is no part of the act whereby A voluntarily causes hurt to Z, A is liable to one punishment for voluntarily causing hurt to Z, and to another for the blow given to Y.

The judgment of the Madras H. Ct. in the case of Noujan, 7 Mad. 375; (S. C.) Weir, 271; is very instructive and may well be consulted with respect to S. 235 though it proceeds on an illustration to S. 454 of the Code of 1872 which has not been reproduced. It was there held that a person cannot be punished for abducting a child with intent dishonestly to take moveable property, and also for the theft of a part of the moveable property which he intended dishonestly to take by means of the abduction.

Ch. XIX.

S. 236.

The Allahabad High Court (Mungroo and another, 8 All., 293) similarly set aside a conviction and sentence under S. 346, Penal Code, (wrongful confinement in secret) holding that the prisoner could not also be convicted of attempt to kidnap out of British India (Ss. 511, 363), since the latter offence necessarily implies confinement or restraint of some kind.

As a general rule, when in the same penal statute there are two clauses applicable to the same act of an accused, the punishments are not to be considered as cumulative, unless it be so expressly provided. So separate convictions and sentences under S. 435 and S. 436, Penal Code, were disapproved, the sentence under S. 435 being set aside.—Bom. H. Ct, Dodbasaya, Feb. 12, 1874. S. 235, para. 2 has omitted the concluding words of S. 454, para. 2 which it professes to re-enact, viz., “but he must not receive a more severe punishment than could be awarded by the Court which tries him, for either.”

236. If a single act or series of acts is of such a nature that it is doubtful which of several offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, the accused may be charged with having committed all or any of such offences, and any number of such charges may be tried at once; or he may be charged in the alternative with having committed some one of the said offences.

Illustration.

A is accused of an act which may amount to theft, or receiving stolen property, or criminal breach of trust or cheating. He may be charged with theft, receiving stolen property, criminal breach of trust and cheating; or he may be charged with having committed theft, or receiving stolen property, or criminal breach of trust or cheating.

(S. 455.)

S. 72, Penal Code, declares that in all cases in which judgment is given that a person is guilty of one of several offences specified in the judgment, but that it is doubtful of which of these offences he is guilty, the offender shall be punished for the offence for which the lowest punishment is provided if the same punishment is not provided for all.

The distinction between section 236 and the first para. of S. 235 should be noted. In the former it is the application of the law to

Ch. XIX. the facts that is doubtful, whereas S. 235, para. 1, refers to the commis——— sion of a series of acts, each of which taken separately constitutes a Ss. 237, 238. distinct offence.

237. If, in the case mentioned in section 236, the accused is charged with one offence, and it appears in evidence that he committed a different offence for which he might have been charged under the provisions of that section, he may be convicted of the offence which he is shown to have committed, although he was not charged with it.

[When a person is charged with one offence, he can be convicted of another.]

Illustration.

A is charged with theft. It appears that he committed the offence of criminal breach of trust, or that of receiving stolen goods. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust, of receiving stolen goods (as the case may be), though he was not charged with such offence.

(S. 456.)

On a trial for abetment and attempt to commit criminal breach of trust, it was held that the prisoner might and should have been convicted of attempt to cheat and abetment of that offence. The High Court remarked that the legal character of the acts done by the accused might well be considered ambiguous, but the evidence given would apply to the one offence as to the other. The prisoners had been acquitted by the Sessions Judge, though he found facts sufficient to convict them of attempt and abetment of cheating, and a new trial was ordered by the High Court on the appeal of Government.—Government of Bombay, 12 Bomb., 1.

238. When a person is charged with an offence consisting of several particulars, a combination of some only of which constitutes a complete minor offence, and such combination is proved but the remaining particulars are not proved, he may be convicted of the minor offence, though he was not charged with it.

When offence proved included in offence charged.

When a person is charged with an offence and facts are proved which reduce it to a minor offence, he may be convicted of the minor offence although he is not charged with it.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize a conviction of any offence referred to in section 198 or section 199 when no complaint has been made as required by that section.

Illustrations.

Ch. XIX.

S. 239.

(a) A is charged, under S. 407 of the Indian Penal Code, with criminal breach of trust in respect of property entrusted to him as a carrier. It appears that he did commit criminal breach of trust under S. 406 in respect of the property, but that it was not entrusted to him as a carrier. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust under S. 406.

(b) A is charged under S. 325 of the Indian Penal Code with causing grievous hurt. He proves that he acted on grave and sudden provocation. He may be convicted under S. 335 of that Code.

This section applies to cases in which the charge is of an offence which consists of several particulars, a combination of only some of which constitutes a complete minor offence. The grave charge in such a case gives to the accused notice of all the circumstances going to constitute the minor one of which he may be convicted. The latter is arrived at by mere subtraction from the former. But this is not the case where the circumstances embodied in the major charge do not necessarily, and according to the definition of the offence imputed by that charge, constitute that minor offence also; the principle no longer applies, because notice of the former does not necessarily involve notice of all that constitutes the latter. The section was not intended to apply to a collateral offence. It is not open to a Court to find a man guilty of the abetment of an offence on a charge of the offence itself.—Chand Nur and another, 11 Bomb., 240.

S. 238 enables a verdict to be given on some of the facts which are a component part of the original charge, provided that those facts constitute a minor offence. Thus when the prisoners were charged with being members of an unlawful assembly in prosecution of the common object of which grievous hurt was committed by some member, it was held that they could be convicted of voluntarily causing grievous hurt. Mahuddi, 6 Cal. L. R., 319.

So where the prisoner was charged with culpable homicide (S. 304) and voluntarily causing grievous hurt without grave or sudden provocation (S. 325), he was convicted under S. 335 of having caused that hurt on grave and sudden provocation. Lukhinarain Agoori, 23 W. R., 61.

The offence of criminal house-trespass, S. 445, Penal Code, is not part of the offence of dacoity, or of riot, and, therefore, without a specific charge, a person under trial for dacoity and riot cannot be convicted of criminal house-trespass.—Salamat Ali, 23 W. R., 59. But the retaining stolen property acquired by dacoity, S. 412, Penal Code, is included in the more comprehensive charge of dacoity.—Lakhya Govind, 1 L. R., 1 Bomb., 50.

239. When more persons than one are accused of the same offence, or of different offences committed in the same transaction, or when one person is accused of committing any offence, and another of abetment of, or attempt to commit, such offence, they may be charged

(a) A and B are accused of the same murder. A and B may be charged and tried together for the murder.

(b) A and B are accused of a robbery, in the course of which A commits a murder with which B has nothing to do. A and B may be tried together on a charge, charging both of them with the robbery, and A alone with the murder.

(c) A and B are both charged with a theft and B is charged with two other thefts committed by him in the course of the same transaction. A and B may be both tried together on a charge, charging both with the one theft, and B alone with the two other thefts.

(S. 458.)

If two or more persons are jointly charged with an offence and the jurisdiction of the Magistrate is ousted as to one, the Magistrate should hold an inquiry and either discharge or commit all for trial by the Sessions Court. Mad. H. Ct. Pro. March 18, 1868; Weir, 135.

When several persons are charged with offences of various degrees arising out of one act or transaction, all implicated therein, against whom sufficient evidence is forthcoming, should be committed to the Court of Session, if any of the accused is charged with an offence beyond the cognizance of a Magistrate, or one which, in the opinion of the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, ought to be tried by a Court of Session.—Agra Sudder Court Cir. 64, 1862; Cal. H. Ct. Cir., May 19, 1862.

A person purchasing stolen articles from a thief or receiver of stolen property cannot be said to be engaged in the same transaction with another who purchases a different article. There is no privity whatever between the two and they should therefore be tried separately. Manik, 1 Leg. Rem., 216.

Persons charged with having, as witnesses, intentionally given false evidence on the same trial or proceedings should be charged and tried separately. 10 W. R., 2 Cal.; Mad. H. Ct., March 15, 1867; Weir, 268; Chand Khan, 2 Leg. Rem., 183. So should the persons composing the contending parties in a riot. Durzoola Khan, 9 W. R., 83; Hosein Buksh Sheikh, 6 Cal. L. R., 521.

240. When more charges than one are made against the same person, and when a conviction has been had on one or more of them, the complainant, or the officer conducting the prosecution, may, with the consent of the Court, withdraw the remaining charge or charges, or the Court of its own accord may stay the inquiry into, or trial of, such charge or charges. Such withdrawal shall have the effect of an acquittal on such charge or charges, unless the conviction be set aside, in which case the said Court (subject to the order of the setting aside the conviction) may proceed with the inquiry into or trial of the charge or charges so withdrawn. Ch. XX.

Ss. 241, 242.

S. 240 it should be noted is general and not like the corresponding section, 459, of the Code of 1872, restricted in its application to trials before a High Court or Court of Session.

Chapter XXXVIII relates to Public Prosecutors, S. 495 of which empowers a Magistrate to permit any person other than an officer of Police below the rank of Police Inspector to conduct a prosecution. S. 494 further provides that a Public Prosecutor with consent of the Court may withdraw from a prosecution in cases tried by jury before the return of the verdict, and in other cases before the judgment is pronounced.

CHAPTER XX.

OF THE TRIAL OF SUMMONS-CASES BY MAGISTRATES.

241. The following procedure shall be observed by Magistrates in the trial of summons-cases.

Procedure in summons-cases.

(S. 203, para. 1.)

A summons-case means a case regarding an offence not punishable with death, transportation or imprisonment for a term exceeding six months, S. 4 (t) that is, an offence punishable with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or with fine or with whipping or any of these punishments combined.

242. When the accused appears or is brought before the Magistrate, the particulars of the offence of which he is accused shall be stated to him, and he shall be asked if he has any cause to show why he should not be convicted; but it shall not be necessary to frame a formal charge.

Substance of accusation to be stated.

(Ss. 203, para. 2; S. 206, para. 1.)

When a Magistrate issues a summons, he may if he sees reason to do so, dispense with the personal attendance of the accused and permit him to appear by pleader, but he may, in his discretion, at any stage of the proceedings, direct the personal attendance of the accused, and if necessary enforce his attendance. S. 205.

Ch. XX.

It is necessary that the accused should have a clear statement made to him (1) that he is about to be put on his trial and (2) as to the offence or facts constituting the offence with the commission of which he is accused. Where certain persons had been brought before the Magistrate for other purposes while he was in camp, and these circumstances were not made known to them, they were released as having been improperly convicted. In the matter of Acharjee Lall and another, 3 Cal. L. R., 87.

243. If the accused admits that he has committed the offence of which he is accused, his admission shall be recorded as nearly as possible in the words used by him; and if he shows no sufficient cause why he should not be convicted, the Magistrate shall convict him accordingly.

Conviction on admission of truth of accusation.

244. If the accused does not make such admission, the Magistrate shall proceed to hear the complainant (if any), and take all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution and also to hear the accused and take all such evidence as he produces in his defence.

The Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, on the application of the complainant or accused, issue process to compel the attendance of any witness or the production of any document or other thing.

The Magistrate may, before summoning any witness on such application, require that his reasonable expenses, incurred in attending for the purposes of the trial, be deposited in Court.

(Ss. 207, 361.)

In summons-cases tried before a Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate, the Magistrate shall make a memorandum of the substance of the evidence of each witness as the examination of the witness proceeds. Such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate with his own hand and shall form part of the record. If such Magistrate is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so, and shall cause such memorandum to be made from his dictation in open Court, and shall sign the same; and such memorandum shall form part of the record. S. 355. But if the Magistrate thinks fit, he may take down the evidence of any witness as in a warrant case. S. 355.

S. 362 provides for the record of evidence in Presidency Magistrates' Courts.

245. If the Magistrate upon taking the evidence referred to in section 244 and such further evidence (if any) as he may, of his own motion, cause to be produced, and (if he thinks fit) examining the accused, finds the accused not guilty, he shall record an order of acquittal.

Acquittal.

Ch. XX.

S. 245.

If he finds the accused guilty, he shall pass sentence upon him according to law.

Sentence.

See Chapter XXVI, Ss. 366—372 for the rules regarding the delivery and recording of judgments.

Magistrates of the second and third classes should submit to the Magistrate of the District a calendar of every case in which conviction takes place, within 24 hours from the sentence being passed, in order to enable a District Magistrate at once to take measures towards rectifying injury done by an illegal sentence.—Bomb. H. Ct. Cir., 43.

Whenever any officer, enlisted soldier or sepoy is sentenced in any Criminal Court to fine of Rs. 200 or upwards, or to imprisonment otherwise than in default of paying a fine not amounting to Rs. 200, the Court should proprio motu send a copy of its final order to the superior of the person convicted—Govt. of India, 1632, Oct. 3, 1871; Govt. of Bengal Cir. 58, Oct. 30, 1871; Smyth, p. 148.

Whenever any person serving under Government in the Military Department is convicted in a Criminal Court, information should be given to the Officer Commanding the Regiment or Corps to which he belongs; and if the person convicted be serving under the Government of India in the Military Department, a copy of the conviction and sentence should be provided to that Department.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 6, July 17, 1871.

Whenever any Government officer is judicially convicted of any offence, a copy of the decision should be sent to the head of the department in which he is employed, in order that such action as may be deemed proper may be taken at once.—Govt. of India, Aug. 7, 1868; Govt. of Bengal, 4589, Aug. 22, 1868.

Ordinarily cases tried under this Chapter are non-cognizable cases; complaints or charges of cases of that class are liable to stamp-duty of eight annas under the Court Fees' Act (VII, 1870), Sch. II, Art. 8, (b); or if no written but a verbal complaint has been preferred, the complainant is required to pay a fee of eight annas on his examination (S. 18). Magistrates, on convicting persons accused of such offences should bear in mind that, under S. 31 of the same Act, they are bound, in addition to the penalty imposed upon an accused, to order him to repay to the complainant the fee paid on such application or petition or for such examination as well as any fees for serving processes—Such fees "may be recovered as if they were fines imposed by the Court," i. e., under S. 387 of this Code.

If sentence of imprisonment is passed the warrant of commitment to Jail should be in the form prescribed by Sch. V, No. 29.

Ch. XX.

246. A Magistrate may, under section 243 or section 245, convict the accused of any offence triable under this chapter which from the facts admitted or proved he appears to have committed, whatever may be the nature of the complaint or summons.
(S. 203, para. 2.)

247. If the summons have been issued on complaint, and upon the day appointed for the appearance of the accused or any day subsequent thereto to which the hearing may be adjourned the complainant does not appear, the Magistrate shall, notwithstanding hereinbefore contained, acquit the accused, unless for some reason he thinks proper to adjourn the hearing of the case to some other day.

(Ss. 205, 208, para. 3; S. 212.)

The discretion given by this section to dismiss a complaint on non-appearance of the complainant is not applicable to a case falling under S. 195, that is, a case requiring special sanction for its institution. Where therefore sanction had been given by a Court to prosecute a person for resisting the authority of one of the bailiffs of that Court, the non-appearance of the bailiff does not justify a Magistrate in dismissing the complaint.—Bomb. H. Ct. Empress v. Ramchunder Sidheshwar, Oct. 21, 1878. See also Muse Ali Adam, I. L. R., 2 Bomb., 653.

Where the order for adjournment was not made in the presence and the hearing of the parties, and the case was subsequently dismissed on account of the absence of the complainant, the proceedings were set aside as illegal.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Feb. 24, 1875; 8 Mad., 6, App.

An adjournment is within the discretion of the Magistrate. In the case of Bhekka Roy (10 W. R., 36), the Calcutta High Court would not interfere, because the Magistrate had refused to grant an adjournment for the purpose of summoning the witnesses for the defence; and in the case of Dinoo Roy (16 W. R., 21), the same Court held that an adjournment for this purpose was not wrong in law. But the Magistrate should not dismiss a case on the day fixed for the attendance of the witnesses for the defence merely because the complainant did not appear, unless his attendance has been specially required at that adjourned date, for he has done all that is necessary for him to do to establish his case. Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Nov. 5, 1874, Weir, 184.

An adjournment of the trial may be granted by an order in writing stating the reasons therefor, on account of the absence of a witness or any other reasonable cause, on such terms as the Magistrate may think fit and for such time as he may consider reasonable, provided that it is not for a term exceeding fifteen days. S. 344.

Where a case was dismissed in consequence of the non-appearance of the complainant, and it appeared that he had not been informed of the day fixed for the trial, it was held that a grave irregularity had been committed such as to make the proceedings held amount to no trial, and that therefore there was no acquittal of the accused. Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Aug. 17, 1875, Weir, 189.

Ch. XX.

250.

248. If a complainant, at any time before a final order is passed in any case under this chapter, satisfies the Magistrate that there are sufficient grounds for permitting him to withdraw his complaint, the Magistrate may permit him to withdraw the same, and shall thereupon acquit the accused.

Withdrawal of complaint.

(S. 210.)

S. 345 provides for the compounding of certain offences, under Ss. 341, 352, 436, 447, 490, 491, 492, Penal Code, some of which are summons-cases, without permission of the Court, and abetments of, or attempts to, commit such offences may be similarly dealt with.

Where a prosecution can be instituted only with the sanction of a particular officer or Court, it cannot be withdrawn without such sanction. In re Muse Ali Adam, I. L. R., 2 Bomb., 653.

249. In any case instituted otherwise than upon complaint, a Presidency Magistrate, a Magistrate of the first class, or, with the previous sanction of the District Magistrate, any other Magistrate, may, for reasons to be recorded by him, stop the proceedings at any stage without pronouncing any judgment either of acquittal or conviction, and may thereupon release the accused.

Power to stop proceedings when no complainant.

(new.)

250. If, in any case instituted upon complaint, a Magistrate acquits the accused under section 245 or section 247, and is of opinion that the complaint was frivolous or, vexatious, he may, in his discretion, by his order of acquittal direct the complainant to pay to the accused, or to each of the accused where there are more than one, such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees, as the Magistrate thinks fit.

Frivolous or vexatious

ment to be awarded shall be simple, and for such term, not exceeding thirty days, as the Magistrate directs.

At the time of awarding compensation in any subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter, the Court shall take into account any sum paid or recovered as compensation under the section.

S. 545 enables a Court to apply the whole or any part of a fine which has been rendered to the payment of the expenses of a complainant or as compensation for the injury sustained.

In BENGAL and in ASSAM on an application for the recovery of compensation under S. 250 a fee of eight annas is charged for the warrant for its levy. Bengal Gaz. 1879, p. 304: Assam Gaz. 1879, p. 596. Wilkins, 82.

When a Magistrate allows a complaint to be withdrawn he cannot allow compensation to the accused. Amanut Khan v. Khoda Buksh, 1 Leg. Rem., 148.

There is a wide difference between the procedure necessary, when a person is charged with an offence under S. 211, Penal Code (making a false charge with intent to injure, &c.), and that laid down in S. 250, Code of Criminal Procedure. Under the latter by the order of dismissal, if his complaint be frivolous and vexatious, the complainant might be ordered to pay to the person against whom the charge was brought, such amends, not exceeding 50 rupees, as the Magistrate might consider just and reasonable; but in order to make him liable to the penalty provided by S. 211, Penal Code, for a false complaint, it would be necessary to hold a regular trial.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 19, July 22, 1863, adopted by the Agra Sud. Ct., 23, 1863 and by the Judicial Commissioner, Cen. Prov., 37, 1863.

It is not necessary that any charge should be preferred before a person can be fined for making a frivolous or vexatious complaint. The Magistrate should simply call upon the complainant to show cause why he should not be fined.—Cal. H. Ct., 672, 1863. Contra Muthoor Ghose, 11 W. R., 10.

Compensation can be awarded only in summons cases. When the complaint made was house-trespass with intent to rob and murder, compensation cannot be awarded, although the Magistrate may treat the case as an ordinary case of house-trespass and try it as a summons case.—Gurningapa, 7 Bomb., 48, Crown Cases.

But the Calcutta High Court has held that where the complaint was made of various offences, some triable as warrant cases and others as summons cases, the Magistrate can in the latter award compensation.—Muddoosoodun Ghose, 13 W. R., 39.

As opposed to the rule laid down by the Calcutta High Court in the case of Muddoosoodun Ghose, 13 W. R., 39, see Hurree Dutta 18 W. R., 6, in which it was held that when the complaint was of criminal force and theft or robbery, compensation could not be awarded, because the case was not altogether a summons case. But when the complaint was improperly made as one of theft, whereas the offence really committed was mischief or using criminal force, both summons cases, a Magistrate is not prevented from awarding compensation. Cal. H. Ct. Lalla Baneshwar Sahai, Aug. 20, 1877.

Simultaneously with awarding compensation, the Magistrate may give permission to the accused person to institute a prosecution on a charge of intentionally giving false evidence or instituting a false case with intent to injure.—Rupon Rai, 6 B. L. R., 296. The award is no ground for the abandonment of such a prosecution; but, if the Magistrate thinks that by the fine imposed sufficient punishment has been imposed, he can refuse to give leave to prosecute—Cal. H. Ct. 111, 1863. Nor does an award of compensation deprive the accused of any right of suit for damages in the Civil Court.—Adram, 1 N. W. P., 58, but in such a suit the Court shall take into account any sum paid or recovered as compensation. S. 250, last para.

Where a master made a complaint on behalf of his servant which was dismissed as frivolous and vexatious, it was held that compensation could not be awarded as the complainant had no locus standi and the complaint should have been dismissed without investigation. Corbyn, Panj. Rec. 1869, p. 51.

A karkun on the establishment of a Sub-Judge reported that he had been obstructed in the execution of his duty, whereupon the Sub-Judge instituted criminal proceedings before the Magistrate, who found that no obstruction to the attachment had been offered by the accused, and accordingly acquitted him, directing the karkun to pay Rs. 5 as compensation under S. 250. The High Court set aside this order of compensation as illegal, remarking that the Sub-Judge, and not the karkun, must be regarded as the complainant, that the Sub-Judge would not be liable to this penalty as he acted judicially, and that the karkun might be punished for making a false report, or giving false evidence, but he was not liable under S. 250, because he was not the complainant.—In re Keshav Lakhsman, I. L. R., 1 Bomb. 175.

The jurisdiction to award compensation is limited to cases in which the accused is not called upon to make a defence. The complaint is then dismissed, and if it appears frivolous and vexatious, the Magistrate can award compensation. But when the evidence for the complainant is such that the case requires an answer, and evidence is thereupon given on the part of the defendant, then, even though the accused is acquitted, the jurisdiction of the Magistrate to award compensation is ousted. It is very obvious that the complaint cannot have been frivolous or vexatious since the Magistrate has seen fit after hearing the complainant's case, to require the accused to answer it. Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Nov. 22, 1879; Weir, 13 Sup.

An order under S. 250 awarding compensation cannot be passed by an Appellate Court, which revises the sentence passed.—8 Mad. 7, App.; Pro. Feb. 27, 1875, Weir, 186.

The simultaneous issue and currency of warrants of distress and imprisonment in the Civil Jail as the alternative of non-realisation of the fine, are illegal. It is only when the person fined admits that he has no goods and thereby waives the right to have the amount levied by distress, that the Magistrate may at once proceed to imprison him in the Civil Jail.—Bisheshwar Shaha, 23 W. R., 65.

Compensation cannot be awarded as a fine, in default of payment

Ch. XX.
S. 250.

Ch. XXI. of which, imprisonment will be undergone. That follows on default of realization of the fine by distress —Gopal, 2 All., 430; Pfabhoo Dyal, Panj. Rec., 1869, p. 58. But imprisonment cannot be awarded in anticipation of default of distress.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Dec. 28, 1871; 7 Mad. Jur., 137.

S. 388 enables a Court to suspend execution of a sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of a fine, when the sentence is of fine only. (Ss. 386, 387 provide for the levy of a fine.)

CHAPTER XXI.

OF THE TRIAL OF WARRANT-CASES BY MAGISTRATES.

251. The following procedure shall be observed by Magistrates in the trial of warrant-cases.

(S. 213.)

Warrant-case means a case relating to an offence punishable with death, transportation or imprisonment for a term exceeding six months. S. 4 (s).

252. When the accused appears or is brought before a Magistrate, such Magistrate shall proceed to hear the complainant, if any, and take all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution.

The Magistrate shall ascertain, from the complainant or otherwise, the names of any persons likely to be acquainted with the facts of the case and to be able to give evidence for the prosecution, and shall summon to give evidence before himself such of them as he thinks necessary.

(Ss. 190, 362.)

Ss. 356 et seq. provide for the manner in which evidence of witnesses in warrant cases shall be recorded.

See note to S. 208 for the rules prescribed by the Calcutta High Court for the duty of the Court in recording evidence.

Where an accused is brought before a Magistrate, that officer has no authority further to detain him in custody or to remand him to prison without some reason made manifest to him, either in the shape of sworn testimony given before him or in some other form which can be put on the record, and which is sufficient to justify him in sending the accused to prison.—Abdool Kadir, 11 B. L. R., 8, App.

Whenever a Magistrate issues a summons he may, if he sees fit to do so, dispense with the personal attendance of the accused and permit him to appear by pleader, but he can at any stage of the proceedings direct the personal attendance of the accused, and if necessary, enforce his attendance. S. 203.

If the personal attendance of the accused person be dispensed with, he should be represented by an agent, who should be provided with a mukhtarnama bearing a stamp of eight annas.

Ch XXI.

S. 253.

253. If upon taking all the evidence referred to in section 252, and making such examination (if any) of the accused as the Magistrate thinks necessary, he finds that no case against the accused has been made out which if un rebutted would warrant his conviction, the Magistrate shall discharge him.

Discharge of accused.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent a Magistrate from discharging the accused at any previous stage of the case if, for reasons to be recorded by such Magistrate, he considers the charge to be groundless.

(S. 215.)

An illegal arrest by the Police, without a warrant issued, on complaint for non-cognizable offence is no valid ground for an order of discharge by a Magistrate. He cannot pass an order of discharge until he has heard the evidence against the accused.—Bomb. H. Ct., Sangapa San-krapa, May 21, 1873.

“All the evidence required to in S. 252”, that is, “all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution” and “such witnesses as the Magistrate may think necessary to summon” but this is modified by the last para. of S. 253 which is new. The Calcutta High Court has in numerous cases held that where a Magistrate terminates a trial without examining all the witnesses tendered by the prosecution he cannot direct the complainant to be prosecuted for making a false complaint under S. 211, Penal Code. In the matter of Ganjoo Singh and others, 2 Cal. L. R., 389. But under S. 215 Explanation III of the Code of 1872 then in force an order of discharge could not be passed until the evidence of the witnesses for the prosecution had been taken. This is now within the discretion of a Magistrate. S. 476, however, states that before directing such a prosecution, the Court should make any preliminary inquiry that may be necessary, and if a Magistrate under the last para. of S. 253 summarily discharges an accused, it will probably be necessary that before directing the complainant to be prosecuted, he should in a preliminary inquiry examine whatever witnesses may be tendered on behalf of that person.

There is no restriction put by this section on the power to examine the accused. In the corresponding section (S. 209) relating to inquiries, it is stated that where the evidence has been taken and the Magistrate Ch. XXI. has "examined the accused for the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing in evidence against him" &c., S. 289 relating to Sessions trials is like S. 253 general in its terms regarding the examination of the accused. But see S. 342 which requires a Court, for the purpose of enabling an accused to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him, to question him generally on the case after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined and before he is called on for his defence.

S. 254.

Under the Code of 1872 it was held that after an order of discharge passed by a Magistrate in any case except a Sessions case, that is, a case triable exclusively by a Court of Session, no Magistrate could re-open the proceedings and commence a new trial unless evidence be forthcoming which was not before the Magistrate in the first proceedings. See Mohesh Mistree, I. L. R., Cal., 282; Mary Donelly, I. L. R., 2 Cal., 405; Gowdapa bin Venkugowda, I. L. R., 2 Bomb., 534 &c., &c. But S. 437 of this Code has altered the law by enabling a High Court, Sessions Court, or District Magistrate to direct further inquiry to be made into the case of any accused person who has been discharged.

254. If, when such evidence and examination have been taken and made, the Magistrate is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence triable under this chapter, which such Magistrate is competent to try, and which, in his opinion, could be adequately punished by him, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused.

Charge to be framed when offence appears proved.

Sch. V, No. 28 contains various forms of charges.

It is unnecessary for a Magistrate to examine more witnesses than are sufficient to convince him of the truth of the charge, and in that view he is competent under S. 342 to put questions to the accused. The answers given to these questions, if any are given, will generally have as great effect as to the witnesses necessary to be examined on the part of the prosecution; and if, after the complainant has been examined, questions put to the accused elicit answers which leave no doubt as to the commission of the offence, there seems to be no reason why the Magistrate should not then frame the charge and call upon the accused to plead.—Mad H. Ct., Sept. 12, 1864; Dec 18, 1864.

In framing a charge a Magistrate is not restricted to the offences stated in the complaint. If on the evidence he should find that an offence different from that which had been specially charged in the complaint has been committed, he is competent to inquire into and proceed against the accused with regard to the other offence.—Dhonduram Ramchandra, 5 Bomb., 100, Crown Cases.

The examination of an accused is by S. 342 declared to be for the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing on the evidence against him, and a Magistrate is accordingly empowered at any stage of the trial without previously warning him to put him such questions as he may consider necessary, and also for the same purpose Ch. XXI.

question him generally on the case after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined and before he is called upon for his defence. Ss. 255, 256.

255. The charge shall then be read and explained to the accused, and he shall be asked whether he is guilty or has any defence to make.

If the accused pleads guilty, the Magistrate shall record the plea, and may in his discretion convict him thereon.

(S. 217.)

No inference can be drawn from a plea, if it does not amount to a distinct confession of the charge; the charge must be proved.—Mad H. Ct. Pro., Dec. 14, 1871; 7 Mad. Jur., 136.

256. If the accused refuses to plead or does not plead, or claims to be tried, he shall be called upon to enter upon his defence and to produce his evidence, and shall, at any time while he is making his defence, be allowed to recall and cross-examine any witness for the prosecution present in the Court or its precincts.

If the accused puts in any written statement, the Magistrate shall file it with the record.

(S. 218.)

The examination of an accused person which may have been made before the preparation of a charge, will not dispense with the necessity for putting him on his defence after the charge has been prepared.—Golab Roy, 3 Agra, 156.

A Magistrate held that, by simply pleading not guilty, the accused had made no defence such as to entitle him to recall and cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution; but this order was set aside by the High Court, who held that the accused was entitled to prove that he was not guilty by cross-examining the witnesses.—Belilios, 19 W. R., 53.

The terms of S. 256 remove many of the difficulties experienced from the corresponding section (218) of the Code of 1872. The accused "shall, at any time while he is making his defence be allowed to recall and cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution present in the Court or its precincts;" the words in italics are new. The accused has of course the right to cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution after they have been examined in chief, that is, examined by the party who called them, the cross-examination relating to relevant facts, (S. 138, Evidence Act), and the exercise of this right will not prevent his asking to have the witnesses recalled and cross-examined after he has been called upon to enter upon his defence provided that such witnesses

Ch. XXI. are present in the Court or its precincts.—A Magistrate has the discretion under certain circumstances (see S. 257) to refuse to require the re-attendance of witnesses for the prosecution for purposes of cross-examination or he may first require the deposit of their reasonable expenses so that the accused can no longer insist on the witnesses being re-summoned. This alteration in the law will no doubt if judiciously carried out prevent the abuses felt under the former law.

The object of the section is to secure to the accused the opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses for the prosecution after he has been informed as to the nature of the specific charge which he is required to answer. Until he knows this, he is not in a position to decide on what points the evidence for the prosecution is material. If this opportunity be secured, he has no further right of recalling the witnesses for the prosecution. If he refuses to exercise this right, after he has entered on his defence, he cannot demand as a right to recall the witnesses for the prosecution, if the case be adjourned, because he has not produced his witnesses. What his own witnesses may have to say, can have little or no bearing on the cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution who are called to support the charge but not to refute the evidence for the defence. Baldeo Sahai, I. L. R., 2 All., 253.

When, as frequently happens, it becomes necessary to summon witnesses for the defence from a distance, and consequently to adjourn the hearing for some days, the necessity of retaining in attendance the witnesses for the prosecution must occasion considerable inconvenience to the witnesses and expense to the public. Therefore, the Magistrate should in all cases before granting an adjournment inquire of the accused if he desires to exercise his rights of recalling the witnesses for the prosecution or consents to the discharge of any or all of them. If the accused consents to their discharge, and they are discharged accordingly, he is not entitled to have them re-summoned as a matter of right, but it would be in the discretion of the Magistrate to re-summon them. Whether, if the Magistrate before granting an adjournment called upon the accused to exercise his right of recalling the witnesses for the prosecution, and the accused refused to do so at that time, the Magistrate would thereupon be at liberty to discharge the witnesses, for the prosecution need not now be determined. In the present instance the Magistrate did not call upon the accused to exercise his rights and there is no sufficient proof that the accused consented to the discharge of the witnesses, he was probably not aware that he had any option in the matter, and therefore it would be an unsound inference from his silence that he consented to it. The accused was entitled to have the witnesses whom he desired to cross-examine re-summoned.—Lall Mahomed, 6 All., 284.

An accused person in a warrant case has an undoubted right to have the witnesses for the prosecution recalled for the purpose of cross-examination after the charge has been framed against him, unless he has waived that right; he may no doubt either waive it by express words, or he may waive it by allowing the proper time in the course of the trial to go by without availing himself of that right. As a rule the proper and convenient time in the course of the trial is at the commencement of the defence of the accused person. But the law does not lay down any rigid rule on the subject, and unless the accused person has waived the right, he is entitled to recall and cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution ever after he has called and examined the witnesses for his defence. If a trial is likely to continue over many days or a lengthened period, it may be great harassment and vexation to the witnesses that they should all be compelled to remain at the place of trial until its termination, and it is right and proper that the Court should permit them to go home as soon as their attendance at Court has become unnecessary. But it is incumbent on the Court before it discharges a witness from the duty of attendance before the trial is ended, to ascertain from the accused person whether he has, or is likely to have, any need of the witness's testimony, and if he has such need then to take such steps for insuring the presence of the witness at the required time as may be necessary. If a Magistrate before discharging a witness obtains the assent of the accused person to his going away without any order for his re-appearance, then no doubt such assent would be the best possible evidence of waiver of the accused person's right to cross-examine. Nothing having been shown to have been done or omitted to be done on the part of the accused, which could possibly be construed into a waiver of his right to cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution, though that right was not claimed until the witnesses for the defence had been examined, the Calcutta High Court held that the Magistrate was not competent to refuse to recall them, and setting aside the conviction ordered the trial to be re-opened at this point.—Khurruckdharee Singh, 22 W. R., 44. See also Ram Kishen Halwai, 25 W. R., 48.

Ch. XXI.

S. 256.

In the case of Thakoor Dyal Sen, 17 W. R., 57 the following judgment was delivered by COUCH, C. J., (AINSLIE, J., concurring.)

"It does not clearly appear whether it was intended by the Code that there should be, previous to the preparation of the charge, a full cross-examination by the accused or by his pleader; it would rather seem, that that was not contemplated, and that the Magistrate should, in the first instance, examine the witnesses with a view to seeing whether there was a prima facie case against the accused person, and then that he should prepare the charge.

"Now I do not say that if an accused person or his pleader went into a full cross-examination before the preparation of the charge, and were told that if he did that, he might be waiving his right to a further cross-examination after the charge had been prepared, that he would not be precluded from the subsequent cross-examination. It is possible that if put to it, he might be obliged to elect between the two, and not to have the inconvenient proceeding of the whole of the cross-examination being again repeated.

"But here that does not seem to have been done. The Magistrate appears to have allowed a cross-examination before the charge was prepared; but when the accused was put upon his defence, it might be very important that some further question should be put to the witnesses for the prosecution in order to elicit facts which might constitute a defence for him. I think that the Magistrate had no power to say that this should not be done, and that the cross-examination, which had been already had, should be the only cross-examination in the case. If the privilege of cross-examination had been abused and questions which had been put before and appeared to have been answered (the witnesses Ch. XXI. understanding the questions), were repeated, the Magistrate might have stopped that and confined the cross-examination to its proper limits.

 Ss. 257, 258. I think it was not competent to him to refuse to allow the witnesses to be recalled and cross-examined after the accused had been upon his defence.

"Also, the subsequent section would entitle the accused person to call the witnesses as his own. Of course, he would be in a different position then, and would not be allowed to cross-examine them and treat them as witnesses for the prosecution. What he really required, and what he was entitled to, was to have them recalled and to cross-examine them, treating them as witnesses for the prosecution."—Thakoor Dyal Sen, 17 W. R., 57.

257. If the accused applies to the Magistrate to issue any process for compelling the attendance of any witness (whether he has or has not been previously examined in the case) for the purpose of examination or cross-examination, or the production of any document or other thing, the Magistrate shall issue such process unless he considers that such application should be refused on the ground that it is made for the purpose of vexation or delay, or for defeating the ends of justice. Such ground shall be recorded by him in writing.

The Magistrate may, before summoning any witness on such application, require that his reasonable expenses incurred in attending for the purposes of the trial be deposited in Court.

By the terms of this section an accused by summoning a witness for the prosecution for the purpose of cross-examination would not make him his witness. The prosecution will of course be entitled to re-examine such a witness. Evidence Act (I of 1872), S. 138.

A person summoned to produce a document does not become a witness by the mere fact that he produces it, and cannot be cross-examined unless and until he is called as a witness. Evidence Act (I of 1872), S. 189.

When a Magistrate refused to summon witnesses cited by an accused person without assigning any reasons, and convicted him, the conviction was set aside and he was ordered to proceed according to law. In re Satnarain Singh, I. L. R., 3 All., 392. A Magistrate is not at liberty to refuse such an application except for the reasons specified in the law. In re Deela Mahtoon, 8 Cal. L. R., 72.

258. If in any case under this chapter in which a charge has been framed the Magistrate finds the accused not guilty, he shall record an order of acquittal.

Acquittal.

If in any such case the Magistrate finds the accused guilty, he shall pass sentence upon him according to law.
 (S. 220.)

Conviction.

Ch. XXI.

S. 259.

If, however, before signing judgment it appears to a Magistrate at any stage of the proceedings that the case is one which ought to be tried by the Court of Session or High Court and he is empowered to commit, he shall stay further proceedings and commit the accused. If he is not empowered to commit, the Magistrate will submit the case with a brief report explaining its nature to any Magistrate to whom he is subordinate, or to such other Magistrate having jurisdiction as the District Magistrate directs. Ss. 347, 346.

Chapter XXVI, Ss. 366—372 provide for the recording and delivery of judgments of acquittal or conviction. Where a complete trial had been held except that no formal charge had been drawn and the prisoner had been acquitted, it was held that the mere absence of a formal charge would not prevent the order from operating as an acquittal unless it be shown that the absence of a charge has been in itself the cause of a failure of justice (see S. 537). In the matter of Joga Pershad, 3 Cal. L. R., 131.

Sch. V. No 28 gives the form of warrant for commitment on a sentence of imprisonment or fine.

If the accused is convicted of an offence which is a non-cognizable offence, the Court shall in addition to the penalty imposed upon him, order him to repay to the complainant the fee paid on his application or petition viz., eight annas—(S. 18, Court Fees' Act, VII of 1870) or the same amount paid on his examination (S. 18) and, when he has paid fees for serving processes, also the amount paid therefor: all such fees to be recovered as if they were fines imposed by the Court—Court Fees' Act, VII 1870, S. 31.

259. When the proceedings have been instituted upon complaint and upon any day fixed for the hearing of the case the complainant is absent and the offence may be lawfully compounded, the Magistrate may, in his discretion, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, at any time before the charge has been framed, discharge the accused.

Absence of complainant.

(S. 215.)

S. 345 declares that certain offences may be compounded by certain persons without and with the permission of the Court before which the prosecution of such offence is pending. Sch. II, Col. 6 also specifies the offences which are compoundable.

260. Notwithstanding anything contained in this Code.

Provided that no case in which a District Magistrate exercises the special powers conferred by section 34 shall be tried in a summary way. Ch. XXII.
S. 260.

(Ss. 222, 223, 224.)

In the N. W. Provinces, all Magistrates of the first class who are or who have officiated as Joint Magistrates, and also all Assistant Commissioners who are or who have officiated in the first class, have been invested with powers to act under S. 260.—Govt. Not., Dec. 24, 1873.

In Madras, every Magistrate of a Division of a District exercising powers of a Magistrate of the first class has been vested with the power of holding summary trials under S. 260.—Mad. Gaz., 1874, p. 1136.

To the list contained in S. 222 of the Code of 1872 the offence specified in (f) has been added and both to it as well as to (e) receiving or retaining stolen property a limitation has been placed on the jurisdiction to hold a summary trial only where the value of the property does not exceed fifty Rupees as in case of theft.

If any Magistrate, not being empowered by law on that behalf, tries an offender summarily, his proceedings shall be void. S. 530 (g).

Ss. 15, 16 relate to the powers and constitution of Benches of Magistrates and for the making of rules for their business.

It should be noted that S. 262 declares that no sentence of imprisonment for a term exceeding three months shall be passed in the case of any conviction in a summary trial, and as S. 414 provides that there shall be no appeal by a convicted person in cases tried summarily in which a Magistrate empowered to act under S. 260 passes a sentence of imprisonment not exceeding three months only, or of fine not exceeding two hundred Rupees only, or of whipping only, an appeal would lie against a sentence passed in a summary trial held under S. 260 only where the sentence passed is a combination of any two or more punishments.

If, however, the trial be held by a Bench of Magistrates under S. 261, an appeal would lie to the District Magistrate against any sentence passed. S. 407.

The restriction placed in the Magistrates' powers in summary trials by S. 262 will no doubt to a great extent remove the temptation to adopt this easier mode of trial rather than the procedure and the additional labour of recording evidence as in warrant cases. It is not unusual to find that in a case in which the offence really committed is one that cannot be tried summarily, a summary trial is held for a minor offence which forms one of the component parts of the offence actually committed and this minor offence being one within the list of offences specified in S. 260, the summary trial is apparently legal. This practice has been condemned in many judgments of the High Court.

The case of Chunder Seekor Thakoor, 22 W. R., 29 will serve as an illustration of the practice. The complaint was made of theft of property valued at Rs. 884, and after Police investigation was reported to be house-breaking by night in order to commit theft (S. 457, Penal Code) neither of these offences being triable summarily. The Magistrate, however, summarily tried and convicted the accused of dishonestly receiving stolen property (S. 411) an offence falling within S. 222 of the

Ch. XXI. Code of 1872. The proceedings were set aside as contrary to law, the following observations being made by the High Court:—

S. 260.

The powers conferred upon Magistrates under Chapter XXII of the Code of Criminal Procedure appear not to have been intended to give them the power of altering a charge brought against an accused person so as to bring his case within the provisions of that Chapter, but when a charge of a serious offence, one which the Magistrate is not competent to inquire into summarily, has been regularly preferred, it is the plain duty of the Magistrate to apply the procedure prescribed for such cases and either to convict or acquit or commit for trial the person implicated. The procedure under Chapter XXII is to be followed when a charge brought against the accused is plainly and directly one of those specified in S. 260. Now, supposing that the Magistrate could properly and legally have brought this case within the provisions of Chapter XXII, there were very cogent reasons why he should not have done so. Whether the Legislature intended to bring under this Chapter all cases of receiving stolen property, whether the value of the property stolen did or did not exceed Rs. 50, it is clear where the value is large and where the property has been acquired by so grave a crime as house-breaking, the offence is one which it would be proper to visit with a punishment far exceeding three months' rigorous imprisonment, and in which consequently an appeal would lie to the Court of Session. In such a case therefore the provisions of S. 227 (now S. 263) would manifestly not apply, and it would be necessary to record at least the substance of the evidence. As the case stands there has been absolutely no trial and no investigation into the charge preferred by the Police, viz., a charge under S. 457 of the Indian Penal Code.—In re Chunder Seekor Thakoor, 22 W. R., 29; see also In re Banee Madhub Dass, 23 W. R., 3, where the Magistrate in a summary trial convicted under S. 352, Penal Code, of using criminal force instead of under S. 353 of using criminal force to a public servant, &c.

A Magistrate cannot split up an offence into its component parts for the purpose of giving himself summary jurisdiction. If a charge of an offence not triable summarily is laid and sworn to, the Magistrate must deal with the case accordingly, unless he is at the outset in a position to show from the deposition of the complainant that the circumstances of aggravation are really mere exaggeration and not to be believed. In this case the accused were tried and convicted summarily of being members of an unlawful assembly (S. 143, Penal Code) whereas the complaint made and the evidence showed that they were armed with swords, and should therefore have been tried under S. 144 which could not be tried summarily. The convictions were set aside and fresh trials were ordered. In the matter of Abdool Kadir and others, 3 Cal. L. R., 44; (S C.) I. L. R., 4, Cal., 16. See also Chunder Seekor Sookul, 1 Cal. L. R., 434; Beputoolla, 2 Cal. L. R., 374; Dwarkanath Majoomdar, 2 W. R., 89; Ram Chunder Chatterjee, 25 W. R., 19; Bugleh Ali, 22 W. R., 65, &c., &c.

The judgment of the Calcutta High Court in the case of Issur Chunder Mundul and others, 25 W. R., 65 is also deserving of careful attention.

"In this case certain persons have been convicted under S. 426 of the Indian Penal Code of the offence of mischief, and sentenced to a fine of Rs. 20, or fifteen days' rigorous imprisonment for each. The mischief charged was the causing cattle to trespass and graze on the prosecutor's land. Ch. XXII.
S. 260.

"The proceeding was nominally by way of summary trial. Practically, it was a very hotly contested suit, in which the masters of the prosecutor and of the accused respectively asserted and tried to prove their right to the land on which the cattle were alleged to have trespassed.

"S. 227 (of the Code of 1872, now re-enacted in S. 263 of this Code) enacts that in summary trials the Magistrate need not record the evidence of the witnesses, nor the reasons for passing the judgment, but that he shall enter in a register, to be kept for the purpose, the prisoner's plea, the finding, and, in the case of a conviction, a brief statement of the reasons therefor.

"How little this case really partook of the nature of a summary trial may be judged of from the time spent over it. Many days (the 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 19th, and 20th of June) were occupied in the examination of witnesses, and a long written judgment was delivered on the 22nd of June. The record of the evidence and the judgment together fill 69 very closely written pages, an office copy of which, written in the ordinary manner, covered more than 130 pages.

"Such a proceeding is manifestly an abuse of S. 227, which section is intended to apply only to short and simple cases in which but little evidence is needed. As soon as the Magistrate discovered that the question before him was really a dispute between Mr. Gow Smith on behalf of the factory which he represents and the persons who are throughout these proceedings spoken of as "the Tagore Baboos," he ought at once to have declined to proceed further and to have referred the parties to the Civil Court. A bonâ fide claim of right deprives a Magistrate of jurisdiction to deal with a criminal charge in a summary way. And in this case there was a bonâ fide claim or assertion of right, so far at any rate as the accused persons were concerned. To prove that the accused caused damage is not enough. It must be proved against each individual convicted that he caused the damage with a wrongful intent,—with a knowledge that he was not justified in doing it, and that "the Tagore Baboos" had no real title."

Where the jurisdiction to try a case of theft summarily depends on the pecuniary value of the property stolen, a Magistrate should indicate in the Register Statement that the value was such as to bring the offence within his summary power. Mad. H. Ct., Sept. 23, 1878; Weir, 195. It should appear on the face of the conviction what the value of the stolen property was. Abheem Parirah, 20 W. R., 17.

When an accused is also charged with a previous conviction of an offence under Chapter XVII, Penal Code, he cannot be tried summarily as the subsequent offence becomes a different offence from the act when standing alone. Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Sept. 23 1878; Weir, 195.

The confiscation of contraband articles under the Excise or Salt Act following on a conviction would not exclude the offence from the category of offences triable summarily as a summons case. The confiscation is not a part of the sentence but a consequence of it. Boidonath Dass, I. L. R., 3 Cal., 366, FULL BENCH.

Power to invest Bench of Magistrates invested with less power.

261. The Local Government may confer on any Bench of Magistrates invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the second or third class power to try summarily all or any of the following offences :—

(a) Offences against the Indian Penal Code, sections 277, 278, 279, 285, 286, 289, 290, 292, 293, 294, 323, 334, 336, 341, 352, 426, and 447 ;

(b) Offences against Municipal Acts, and the conservancy-clauses of Police Acts, punishable only with fine, or with imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month ;

(c) Abatement of any of the foregoing offences ;

(d) An attempt to commit any of the foregoing offences, when such attempt is an offence.

(S. 225.)

Ss. 15, 16 relate to Benches of Magistrates, their powers and rules for their guidance.

S. 277 of the Indian Penal Code relates to voluntarily fouling the water of a public spring or reservoir so as to render it unfit for ordinary use ;

S. 278, to voluntarily making the atmosphere noxious to the health of the neighbourhood ;

S. 279, to rash or negligent riding or driving on a public way ;

S. 285, to rash or negligent conduct with respect to fire or combustible matter ;

S. 286, to rash or negligent conduct with respect to any explosive substance ;

S. 289, to wilful or negligent conduct with respect to any dangerous animal ;

S. 290, to the commission of a public nuisance ;

S. 292, to sale, &c., of obscene books ;

S. 293, to possession of obscene books, &c., for sale, &c. ;

S. 294, to singing, &c., obscene songs, &c., to annoyance of others ;

S. 323, to voluntarily causing hurt without grave or sudden provocation ;

S. 334, to voluntarily causing hurt on grave or sudden provocation ;

S. 336, to rashly or negligently endangering human life or personal safety of others ;

S. 341, to wrongful restraint ;

S. 352, to assault or criminal force without grave or sudden provocation ;

S. 426, to mischief ;

S. 447, to criminal trespass.

With the exception of an offence under S. 323, Penal Code, all these offences are summons cases, and as such would fall under S. 260 (a) ; voluntarily causing hurt under S. 323 is, however, also triable summarily under S. 260 (c).

All sentences passed by a Bench of Magistrates under S. 261 if only exercising powers of the second or third class would be appealable to the District Magistrate. S. 407. If the Bench exercised the powers of a Magistrate of the first class the trial would be held under S. 260, and the right of appeal would be regulated by S. 414. Ch. XXII.
Ss. 262, 263.

Any two or more persons authorized to exercise all or any of the powers of a Magistrate, who, until the 1st January 1873, acted together under Act XXVII, 1867, in the cities of Lahore, Jullundhur, Amritsur, Delhi, Gujranwalla, Dera Ismail Khan, and Botala, may sit together as a Bench and such Bench was invested with powers under S. 261. Punjab Gaz., 1872, p. 2024.

262. In trials under this chapter, the procedure prescribed for summons-cases shall be followed in summons-cases, and the procedure prescribed for warrant-cases, shall be followed in warrant-cases, except as hereinafter mentioned.

No sentence of imprisonment for a term exceeding three months shall be passed in the case of any conviction under this chapter.

Limit of imprisonment.

(S. 226.)

In accordance with this section the procedure in summons cases or warrant cases is to be followed according to the nature of the case, but S. 355 provides that the evidence in summary trials held by Magistrates of the first or second class is to be recorded as in summons cases and this is again subject to S. 263 which directs that, where no appeal lies, the Magistrate or Bench of Magistrates need not record the evidence of the witnesses.

All the offences mentioned in S. 260 except (a) are warrant cases.

The last para. of this sentence is new and is a very important alteration of the law.

The procedure for the trial of summons cases by Magistrates is contained in Chapter XX, Ss. 241—250.

The procedure for the trial of warrant cases by Magistrates is contained in Chapter XXI, Ss. 251—259.

263. In cases where no appeal lies, the Magistrate or Bench of Magistrates need not record the evidence of the witnesses or frame a formal charge; but he or they shall enter in such form as the Local Government may direct the following particulars:—

Record in cases where there is no appeal.

- (a) the serial number;
- (b) the date of the commission of the offence;
- (c) the date of the report or complaint;

Ch. XXII.

S. 263.

- (d) the name of the complainant (if any);
 - (e) the name, parentage and residence of the accused;
 - (f) the offence complained of and the offence (if any) proved, and in cases coming under clause (d), clause (e) or clause (f) of section 260 the value of the property in respect of which the offence has been committed;
 - (g) the plea of the accused and his examination (if any);
 - (h) the finding, and, in the case of a conviction, a brief statement of the reasons therefor;
 - (i) the sentence or other final order; and
 - (j) the date on which the proceedings terminated.
- (S. 227.)

(f) is new, and the words "and his examination if any," have been added to (g).

If any Magistrate not being empowered by law in that behalf tries an offender summarily, his proceedings shall be void. S. 530 (g).

See note to S. 258 quoting the Court Fees' Act (VII of 1870) Ss. 31, 18 regarding the repayment by an accused, on conviction of a non-cognizable offence or wrongful confinement or wrongful restraint, of Court Fees paid by the complainant.

No appeal lies in any case tried under S. 260 against a sentence of imprisonment only, not exceeding three months; or of fine only, not exceeding two hundred rupees; or of whipping only. S. 414. But an appeal lies against every order of acquittal (S. 417): S. 263 will, nevertheless, probably be held to refer only to appeals against the sentence passed.

If in any summary trial the sentence passed is a combination of one or more of the punishments specified in S. 414 an appeal would lie to the Sessions Court under S. 408. Where a Bench of Magistrates has been vested with powers of a Magistrate of the first class, or unless otherwise provided by an order of the Local Government, one of its members being a Magistrate of that class, it is deemed a Magistrate of that class (S. 15), the same rule would apply in cases tried under S. 260, and also under S. 261, as all the offences specified in the latter are included in the former section, but if the Bench is vested with lower powers, an appeal would lie to the District Magistrate against any sentence passed (S. 404).

No provision is made for the manner in which the examination of an accused person in a summary trial is to be recorded except that it is not to be recorded as in a regular trial (S. 364) probably it would be recorded in the same manner as evidence is recorded in such a trial, but the examination would be only for the purpose of enabling the accused to explain any circumstances appearing in evidence against him. S. 342.

Where a Magistrate had inadvertently omitted to record a judgment as directed by S. 263 (h), in a case, in which he had convicted the accused, in a summary trial, it was held that the omission could be remedied by a statement of the reasons for his order subsequently recorded and inasmuch as the requirements of the law had thus been fully complied with, the High Court refused to interfere as a Court of Revision. In re Dowlut Singh, 6 Cal. L. R., 273. Ch. XXII.

S. 264.

The Magistrate should so state the reasons for convicting the accused, that, the High Court, on Revision, may judge whether there are sufficient materials to support the conviction. Where they were not so stated the conviction was set aside. In re Punjab Singh, I. L. R., 6 Cal., 579.

In a trial under this Chapter, under a procedure in which the Legislature has provided a minimum of protection for the person affected by the order, it is absolutely necessary that the Magistrate should most strictly observe the scanty formalities prescribed, otherwise it will be absolutely impossible for the High Court as a Court of Revision, or any other authority, to exercise the smallest control over proceedings which may form the subject of complaint. See further remarks of Jackson, J., in the case of Joheri Singh, 22 W. R., 28.

When the offence under trial under Chapter XXII is a warrant case, the prisoner should be called upon to plead to a definite charge which must be made verbally. The final order or judgment in such cases should, where conviction is not made, invariably show whether the accused has been discharged or acquitted, the test being whether after hearing the evidence for the prosecution, the Court has called upon the prisoner to plead to a definite charge or not.—Smyth, pp. 101, 102.

Whenever any Government officer is judicially convicted of any offence, a copy of the decision should be sent to the Head of the Department in which he is employed, in order that such action as may be deemed proper may be taken at once—Govt. of India, Aug. 7, 1868; Govt. of Bengal, 4589, Aug. 22, 1868.

Whenever any officer, enlisted soldier or sepoy is sentenced by a Criminal Court to fine of Rs. 200 or upwards, or to imprisonment otherwise than in default of paying a fine not amounting to Rs. 200, the Court should proprio motu send a copy of its final order to the superior of the person convicted.—Govt. of India, 1632, Oct. 3, 1871; Govt. of Bengal, Cir. 58, Oct. 30, 1871; Smyth, p. 148.

264. In every case tried summarily by a Magistrate or Bench in which an appeal lies, such Magistrate or Bench shall, before passing sentence, record a judgment embodying the substance of the evidence and also the particulars mentioned in section 263.

Such judgment shall be the only record in cases coming within this section.

(S. 228.)

See note to S. 263 as to the summary trials in which an appeal lies against the sentence passed, and note to S. 258 as to the repayment by the accused, on conviction of certain offences, of Court Fees paid by the complainant.

Ch. XXII.

S. 265.

In the case of Kheraj Mullah (20 W. R., 13 ; (S. C.) 11 P. L. R., 33), the Sessions Judge in an appeal against a conviction pronounced under S. 264, held that from the substance of the evidence recorded, he could not form any opinion as to its credibility, and that there was nothing in the evidence which would warrant him in finding that the witnesses were not speaking the truth, or that the conviction was wrong: he therefore dismissed the appeal. The High Court, however, held that as the Sessions Judge was unable with the aid of the Magistrate's finding to form an independent judgment as to whether the prisoners had committed the offence or not, it was his duty to have acquitted. The conviction was accordingly quashed.

The Allahabad High Court has, however, held under the same circumstances that the Sessions Judge should have required the Magistrate to repair the defect by recording a judgment in which the substance of the evidence should be fully embodied, if necessary re-examining the witnesses for that purpose, or he should have ordered a re-trial. Karan Singh, I. L. R., All. 680.

A re-trial was ordered by the Chief Court, Punjab, in a case falling under S. 264, because the Magistrate had omitted to record a judgment "embodying the substance of the evidence on which the conviction was had."—Bakku, Panj. Rec., 1874, p. 3.

In the case of Dowlut Singh, 6 Cal. L. R., 273, the Calcutta High Court refused to interfere in a case in which the Magistrate had omitted to record a judgment, but had subsequently remedied the defect by writing a brief statement of the reasons for his order.

The following Circular 7, July 8, 1876 issued by the Calcutta High Court is deserving of attention:—

The attention of the Court has been recently called to a case in which a Magistrate, having tried an offence summarily and passed a sentence from which an appeal lay, made the record required by S. 264 of the Code of Criminal Procedure as an entry in the register prescribed by S. 263 and on the Appellate Court calling for the record of the trial, cut out and sent up the portion of the register containing this entry. There is reason to believe that this is not an isolated case. The practice of mutilating official registers is open to the gravest objection, and is strictly prohibited; there is no warrant for it in the law.

S. 263 of the Code of Criminal Procedure directs that a register shall be kept for a certain purpose, namely, for the purpose of entering such particulars as are specified in the section, in cases where no appeal lies. The provisions of this section do not apply to any other cases.

The judgment required to be drawn up in appealable cases under S. 264 is to contain the particulars mentioned in S. 263 and something more, namely, the substance of the evidence on which the conviction was had. But it is not to be entered in the register of non-appealable cases, and is evidently intended to be in a separate form, so that, when necessary, it may be submitted to the Court of Appeal.

265. Records made under section 263 and judgments recorded under section 264 shall be written by the presiding officer, either in English or in the language of the Language of record and judgment.

Court, or if the Court to which such presiding officer is immediately subordinate so directs, in such officer's mother-tongue. Ch. XXIII.
Ss. 266, 267.

The Local Government may authorize any Bench of Magistrates empowered to try offences summarily to prepare the aforesaid record or judgment by means of an officer appointed in this behalf by the Court to which such Bench is immediately subordinate, and the record or judgment so prepared shall be signed by each member of such Bench present taking part in the proceedings. (Ss. 229, 230.)

CHAPTER XXIII.

OF TRIALS BEFORE HIGH COURTS AND COURTS OF SESSION.

No Sessions Court shall ordinarily take cognizance of any offence as a Court of original jurisdiction unless the accused person has been committed by a Magistrate duly empowered in that behalf (S. 193), that is, by a District Magistrate, a Subdivisional Magistrate, a Magistrate of the first class, or any Magistrate specially empowered by the Local Government (S. 206).

A.—Preliminary.

266. In this chapter, except in section 307, the expression “High Court” means a High Court of Judicature established or to be established under the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, chapter 104, and includes the Chief Court of the Panjab, and such other Courts as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, declare to be High Courts for the purposes of this chapter. (Act X of 1875, S. 3.)

Compare the definition given in S. 4 (i).

The Government of Bengal has ordered [January 7th, 1862 Gaz. 1862, p. 87] that, in the Districts of the 24-Pergunnahs, Hooghly, Burdwan, Moorshedabad, Nuddea, Patna, and Dacca, the trial by any Court of Session of any of the offences provided for by Chapters VIII, XI, XVI, and XVII of the Indian Penal Code shall be by Jury. These Chapters relate to offences against the public tranquillity: false evidence and offences against public justice: offences affecting the human body: offences against property. On May 27th, 1862, (Gaz. 1862, p. 2041,) offences under Chapter XVIII of the Indian Penal Code, i. e., offences relating to documents and to trade or property marks, were added to the above list: and on October 13th, 1862, (Gaz. p. 3416,) it was further extended by the addition of trials for abetments of, or attempts to commit, any of the above offences. In the Province of Assam all trials in the Sessions Court are held by Jury.—Govt. of Bengal, March 28, 1862, Gaz. p. 1286.

After the Government order that the trial of all offences by the Court of Session in Assam should be by Jury, Goalparah, then a District of Assam, was transferred to Cooch Behar, and made subordinate to the Sessions Court of that Province,—held, that trial by Jury in Goalparah ceased on its transfer from Assam.—Khoodeeram 8 W. R., 89. It has, however, since been ordered that the trial of all offences in the Sessions Court at Goalparah be held by Jury.—Govt. of Bengal, August 21, 1867.

In MADRAS the Government has introduced the system of trial by Jury into the Sessions Courts of Chittoor, Cuddapah, Rajahmundry, Tanjore, Tranquebar, Cuddalore, and Vizagapatam, but only for the following offences :—

Theft, under Ss. 379, 380, 381, Penal Code.

Robbery or gang robbery, under Ss. 392-3-4-5, 397-8-9, 400-1-2.

Receiving stolen property, under Ss. 411-12-14.

House-breaking, &c. Ss. 451-2-3-4 5-6-7-8-9, 461.

In the Presidency of BOMBAY, trial by Jury is held only in the Sessions Court of Poona for all offences under Chapters VIII, XI, XII, XVI, XVII, XVIII of Penal Code, punishable with death, transportation for life, or imprisonment for ten years or upwards ; also for all abetments of, and attempts to commit, any of such offences.—Not. Govt. Bomb., Not. August 31, 1867.

All offences tried before the Recorder or Judge of Rangoon or Moumein shall be by Jury. British Burma, Gaz. Dec. 25, 1875, Part II, p. 233.

If an offence triable with the aid of Assessors is tried by a Jury, the trial shall not on that ground be invalid. If an offence triable by a Jury is tried with the aid of Assessors, the trial shall not on that ground only be invalid, unless the objection is taken before the Court records the finding. S. 536.

Where a case triable partly by Jury and partly with Assessors was inadvertently tried by Jury and the error was discovered after taking the verdict of the Jury, it was not competent to the Judge to treat the trial, as regards some of the charges, to have been held with Assessors and to convict on those charges against the verdict delivered. After delivery of the verdict, the trial by Jury cannot be declared by the Sessions Judge to be invalid ; he is not competent to change the character of the trial. Bhootnath Dey, 4 Cal. L. R., 405.

270. In every trial before a Court of Session, the prosecution shall be conducted by a Public Prosecutor.

Trial before Court of Session to be conducted by Public Prosecutor.

(S. 235.)

Public Prosecutors are appointed by the Governor-General in Council or the Local Government, generally, or in any case, or for any specified class of cases in any local area. S. 492.

In Sessions trials, in the absence of the Prosecutor or where no Public Prosecutor has been appointed, the District Magistrate or, subject to his control, the Sub-divisional Magistrate may appoint any other person not being an officer of Police below the rank of Assistant District Superintendent to be Public Prosecutor for the purpose of that case. S. 493. See Ramchunder Sircar, 13 W. R., 18 where the practice of ordering the prosecution in Sessions trials to be conducted by officers of Police was declared to be objectionable. If a private person instructs a pleader, see definition S. 4 (π), to conduct the prosecution, the Public Prosecutor shall conduct the prosecution, and the pleader so instructed shall act under his directions. S. 493.

Ch. XXIII.

B.—Commencement of Proceedings.

S. 270.

In BOMBAY, the High Court has directed that Criminal Sessions shall commence in each District on the first Monday of each month, except when it shall be a close holiday, and, in that case, on the next Court day. Sessions Judges are required to give notice to Magistrates once for all, up to what date after the commencement of the Sessions they will receive cases and prisoners for trial at the same Session.—Bom. H. Ct. Cir., 39.

In BENGAL the following rules have been laid down for the fixing of periodical Sessions (Cal. H. Ct., Cir. 4, May 6, 1868):—

The Judge will, in the first week of December in each year, fix the number of Sessions to be held in the year following, and the dates on which respectively they are to begin (the number varying with the estimated or average number of trials, and not being less than six or more than ten in each year) and the Magistrate of the District in communication with all the Subordinate Magistrates who exercise the power of committing to the Sessions, and obtaining from them the particulars of all cases committed by them, will prepare and submit to the Sessions Judge, two days before the commencement of each Session, a Calendar of all such cases in the form annexed:—

Calendar of accused persons for trial before the Court of Session.Sessions of 187 .

Number of case.	Committing Officer.	Number and name of accused	Charges and Section, Indian Penal Code.	Date of offence.	Date of apprehension or appearance to summons.	Date of commitment.	In Jail or on Bail.
-----------------	---------------------	----------------------------	---	------------------	--	---------------------	---------------------

The names of the witnesses should be placed on the back of the Charge Sheet.

The Magistrate will be careful to arrange the commitments with a view to the trials taking place at the earliest or next ensuing Session, in order to avoid the needless detention of accused persons for prolonged periods.

FROM

THE MAGISTRATE OF

To

THE SESSIONS JUDGE OF

SIR,

I beg to report that I have this day committed to take his trial before the Court of Session the person named in the margin on the Ch. XXIII. charge specified below.

I have, &c.

S. 270.

A. B.,

Magistrate (as the case may be).

CHARGES.

It will be unnecessary for the Court of Session to send any answer fixing a date for the trial. But the Judge will be guided by the information which he thus receives in estimating the time which it will be necessary to devote to the Criminal Sessions, and consequently at what period he will be able to take up civil business thereafter.

Prosecutors and witnesses will be bound over to appear "at the next Criminal Sessions commencing on . . ."

But it will be the duty of the Magistrate, in order to prevent hardship and unnecessary detention to such persons, so to arrange the coming on of cases before the Court of Session that such parties may not be brought from their homes to the Sudder Station before they are actually required, and that they should have written notice of the specific date on which their attendance will be necessary, and it should be carefully explained that failure to attend will be severely dealt with.

The directions herein contained for committing Magistrates are to be observed, so far as they are applicable by Civil Courts and other authorities committing persons for trial at the Sessions.

In MADRAS the following rules are in force :—

A monthly Session for the trial of criminal cases is to be held in every District. Jurors, assessors, prosecutors, witnesses, and defendants admitted to bail should be required to attend on the first Monday, or, if that is an authorized holiday, on the first Court day after the first Monday in each month. No departure from this rule is permissible without the previous sanction of the High Court. There will be no Sessions during the adjournment of the Courts, but a special Session must be held before the adjournment. Due notice must be given in the District Gazette of the days of the month on which the several Sessions will respectively commence, and the Magistracy will make their commitments accordingly, taking care that there is sufficient time for the parties to reach the Court before the first day of the Sessions.

All cases in which the records may be received and the parties present before the first day of any Session should be tried at such Session.—Mad. H. Ct., April 10, 1862; Weir, App. xlv: Nov. 14, 1862; Weir, App. xlvii.

On the termination of each Session, a statement should be submitted to the High Court and published in the District Gazette showing the number of cases and persons brought before the Court, the number disposed of and the number postponed, distinguishing those cases in which a capital sentence has been recorded.—Mad. H. Ct., Sept. 29, 1862; Weir, App. xli.

In the PUNJAB it has been ordered that Jail deliveries of each District should be held at intervals of not more than ninety days, if there are prisoners awaiting trial, the selection of the time being left to the Judge.—Smyth, p. 98.

Ch. XXIII.

S. 271.

Commencement of trials.

271. When the Court is ready to commence the trial, the accused shall appear or be brought before it, and the charge shall be read out in Court and explained to him, and he shall be asked whether he is guilty of the offence charged, or claims to be tried.

If the accused pleads guilty, the plea shall be recorded, and he may be convicted thereon.

Plea of guilty.

(S. 237.)

When any person is committed for trial without a charge or with an imperfect or erroneous charge, the Court, or in the case of a High Court, the Clerk of the Crown may frame a charge or add to or otherwise alter the charge as the case may be. S. 226. The Court may also alter any charge at any time before the verdict of the jury is returned or the opinions of the assessors are expressed, every such alteration being read and explained to the accused, (S. 227,) and may either proceed with the trial, (S. 228,) or direct a new trial or adjourn the trial for such period as may be necessary, (S. 229,) but whenever a charge is altered after the commencement of the trial, the prosecutor and the accused shall be allowed to recall or re-summon and examine with reference to such alteration any witness who may have been examined. S. 231.

When the accused is charged with an offence after a previous conviction for any offence, that part of the charge shall be reserved until the accused has either pleaded guilty to, or been convicted of the subsequent offence.—A special procedure is provided for such cases. See S. 310.

It should appear on the face of the proceedings that the charge has been duly read and explained to the accused and his plea shall be recorded. Gopal Dhanook, 6 L. R., 7 Cal., 96; (S. C.) 8 Cal. L. R., 471.

The accused person should plead to the charge by his own mouth, and not through his pleader.—Roopa Goalla, 15 W. R., 42.

Where a charge is regarding an offence which has a special meaning (e. g. murder) it should be fully explained to the prisoner; an admission that he killed the accused is not a plea of guilty. Vaimbillee I. L. R., 5 Cal., 826. An admission which is not an admission of all the elements of the charge is not a plea of guilty. Golap Dhanook, 8 Cal. L. R., 471.

So where the prisoner admitted that he had killed his wife, but added that at the time he was not in his right mind, a Judge should proceed to choose Jurors or Assessors, and proceed to hold a regular trial.—Cheyt Ram, 5 All., 110.

No inference can be drawn from a plea; if it does not amount to a distinct confession of the charge, the charge must be proved.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Dec. 14, 1874; 7 Mad. Jur., 136.

If the accused person pleads guilty, it is unnecessary to call for an opinion from the Assessors (5 W. R., 2 C. L., 6; Ibid., 4; Mad. H. Ct., Sept. 27, 1863), or a verdict from the Jury (6 W. R., 1 C. L.), or even to appoint Assessors.—Sreekant Ghosal, 10 W. R., 43; (S. C.) 2 B. L. R., Full Bench, 28.

When an accused person pleads guilty, and is forthwith convicted Ch. XXIII.
by the Sessions Judge, the following finding should be used:—The accused pleads guilty of _____, and the Court directs, S. 272.
&c., &c.—8 W. R., 21, C. L.

If the accused person plead guilty, it is not absolutely necessary to record the evidence for the prosecution [Cal. H. Ct., 359, 1882]; the Sessions Judge may record it if he thinks proper [Id., 810, 1863]; but it may be sometimes necessary to proceed with the trial, as for instance when a person is accused of having intentionally given false evidence by making statements which are contradictory one of the other, and he may plead guilty of having falsely made one statement. Here the two statements may be both false; and because the prisoner has pleaded guilty to one charge, he should not of necessity be acquitted of the other. Looking to the special nature of such charge, the prisoner ought not to be allowed to elect which statement he shall admit to be false: the fact should rather be tried, as under S. 237 it is optional with the Court to do.—8 W. R., 6, C. L.

If the prisoner pleads guilty and the evidence before the committing Magistrate raises great doubt whether at the time of committing the offence, he was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, capable of knowing the nature of the act charged or that he was doing what was wrong or contrary to law, the Sessions Judge should not convict on that plea, but should proceed with the trial, recording the evidence and taking the verdict of the jury or the opinions of the assessors. Vaimbillee, I. L. R., 5 Cal., 826.

But if after pleading guilty and claiming to be tried, a prisoner confesses in the course of the trial, the Sessions Judge cannot convict him on such confession without taking the verdict of the Jury. Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Nov. 12, 1866; Weir, 197. This would also apply to the opinions of the Assessors where that form of trial is held.

272. If the accused refuses to, or does not, plead, Refusal to plead or claim or, if he claims to be tried, the to be tried. Court shall proceed to choose jurors or assessors as hereinafter directed and to try the case :

Provided that, subject to the right of objection hereinafter mentioned, the same Trial by same jury or as- jury may try, or the same assessors sessors of several offenders may aid in the trial of, as many in succession. accused persons successively as the Court thinks fit.
(Ss. 238, 268.)

If the prisoner pleads not guilty, he must be tried; he cannot be convicted at once on a confession made to a Magistrate.—Hursookh, 2 All., 479. If there is no evidence offered for the prosecution, the prisoner should be called upon to plead to the charge, and if he pleads not guilty, the Judge should instruct the jury or assessors that they are bound to find him not guilty.—4 Mad., xxxix, App., Pro., March 9, 1869.

Ch. XXIII. Any Public Prosecutor appointed by the Governor-General in Council or the Local Government may with the consent of the Court, in cases tried by jury before the verdict of the jury, and in other cases before the judgment is pronounced, withdraw from the prosecution of any person, and upon such withdrawal, after a charge has been framed, he shall be acquitted. S. 494.

When the accused person makes no answer to the inquiry whether he is guilty or has any defence to make, it should be ascertained whether he is obstinately mute or dumb ex visitatione dei. If he be found to be obstinately mute, the plea of not guilty should be recorded, and the trial should proceed. If he be found to be dumb ex visitatione dei, an inquiry should be made as to whether he is sane or insane or incapable of being tried. If found sane, a plea of not guilty should be recorded, and the trial should proceed, but if found to be insane, the procedure laid down by Chapter XXXI should be followed.—Bom. H. Ct., Sattya Nandi Appa, August 9, 1869.

The accused person should not be examined by the Sessions Judge immediately after he has been called upon to plead, if his plea be "not guilty."—3 Agra, 85. An examination under the present Code is for the purpose of enabling the accused to explain any circumstance appearing in evidence against him. S. 342.

273. In trials before the High Court, when it appears to the High Court at any time before the commencement of the trial of the person charged, that any charge or any portion thereof is clearly unsustainable, the Judge may make on the charge an entry to that effect.

Such entry shall have the effect of staying proceedings upon the charge or portion of the charge, as the case may be.

(Act X, 1875, S. 14.)

In a Sessions trial the Public Prosecutor with the consent of the Court can at any time withdraw from the prosecution of any person S. 494. See note to S. 272 ante.

C.—Choosing a Jury.

274. In trials before the High Court the jury shall consist of nine persons.

In trials by jury before the Court of Session, the jury shall consist of such uneven number not being less than three, or more than nine, as the Local Government, by order applicable to any particular district or to any particular class of offences in that district, may direct.

There is no such right if the trial is held with the aid of Assessors who are chosen as the Judge thinks fit from the persons summoned to act as such. S. 284.

In trials of European British subjects before a Court of Session, if before the first juror is called and accepted, or the first assessor is appointed, as the case may be, any such subject requires to be tried by a mixed jury, or by a mixed set of assessors not less than half the number of jurors or assessors shall be Europeans or Americans or both Europeans and Americans. S. 451.

Subject to the right of objection, the same jury may try as many accused persons successively as the Court think fit. S. 272.

 diction, regarding choosing persons by lot is described in the case of Reg.

Before the commencement of the proceedings of a trial, the Sessions Judge should record, in English, the names of all the jurymen in attendance at the Sessions, and, after selection by lot, under S. 276, of the persons who constitute the jury in the particular case before the Court, the names of those selected. These papers should form part of the record of the case. If any objection be raised to any juror, the name of the objector, the nature of the objection, and the decision of the Court should be recorded.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 4, June 23, 1865.

280. When the jurors have been chosen, they shall appoint one of their number to be foreman.

Foreman of jury.

Ch. XXIII. The foreman shall preside in the debates of the jury, deliver the verdict of the jury, and ask any information from the Court that is required by the jury or any of the jurors.

S. 281.

If a majority of the jury do not, within such time as the Judge thinks reasonable, agree in the appointment of a foreman, he shall be appointed by the Court.

(S. 246.)

281. When the foreman has been appointed, the jurors shall be sworn under the Indian Oaths Act, 1873.

Swearing of jurors.

(New.)

Christian jurors, to whom oaths are administered, should be sworn on the New Testament.

The following forms of oaths and affirmations for jurors have been introduced by the several High Courts :—

In BENGAL, (Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 12, June 7, 1873 ; Wilkins, 87).

(Oath.)

I swear that I will justly and truly try and determine the questions submitted to the jury in this case, and will give a true verdict according to the evidence.

So help me God.

(Affirmation.)

I solemnly declare that I will justly and truly try and determine the questions submitted to the jury in this case, and will give a true verdict according to the evidence.

In MADRAS, (Mad. H. Ct., Aug. 16, 1873.)

(Oath.)

You shall well and truly try and true deliverance make between our Sovereign Lady the Queen and the prisoner at the bar, and a true verdict give according to the evidence.

So help you God.

(Affirmation.)

I solemnly affirm in the presence of Almighty God that I will judge truly between the Queen and the prisoner at the bar, and will give a true verdict according to the evidence.

In the NORTH WESTERN PROVINCES, (Cir. 4, May 2, 1873) ; and in the PUNJAB (C. Ct., Punjab Cir. 1X, May 8, 1873 ; Smyth, 233, 234).

282. If, in the course of a trial by jury, at any time before the return of the verdict, any juror, from any sufficient cause is prevented from attending throughout the trial, or if any juror absents himself, and it is not practicable to enforce his attendance, or if it appears that any juror is unable to understand the language in which the evidence is given, or, when such evidence is interpreted, the language in which it is interpreted; a new juror shall be added, or the jury shall be discharged and a new jury chosen.

In each of such cases the trial shall commence anew.

(S. 254.)

Any juror who fails to attend after an adjournment of the Court after being ordered to attend is liable by order of the Court of Session to a fine not exceeding one hundred Rupees, or in default of recovery of the fine to imprisonment in the Civil Jail for the term of fifteen days, unless the fine be paid before the end of that term. S. 332.

283. The Judge may also discharge the jury whenever the prisoner becomes incapable of remaining at the bar. (Act X, 1874, S. 99.)

Discharge of jury in case of sickness of prisoner.

D.—Choosing Assessors.

284. When the trial is to be held with the aid of assessors, two or more shall be chosen, as the Judge thinks fit, from the persons summoned to act as such. (S. 239.)

Assessors how chosen.

The law does not as in the case of jurors provide for objections being made to an assessor. The choice of jurors is by lot, but of assessors entirely with the Sessions Judge who in exercising this power will no doubt pay every consideration to any reasonable objection raised.

The same assessors may aid in the trial of as many persons successively as the Court thinks fit. S. 272.

285. If, in the course of a trial with the aid of assessors, at any time before the finding, any assessor is, from any

Ss. 286, 287.

If all the assessors are prevented from attending, or absent themselves, the proceedings shall be stayed, and a new trial shall be held with the aid of fresh assessors.

(S. 259.)

An assessor failing to attend after an adjournment of the Court after being ordered to attend is liable by order of the Court of Session to a fine not exceeding one hundred Rupees or on default of recovery of the fine imposed to be imprisoned by order of the same Court in the Civil Jail for the term of fifteen days unless such fine is paid before the end of that term. S. 332.

E.—Trial to Close of Cases for Prosecution and Defence.

286. When the jurors or assessors have been chosen, the prosecutor shall open his case by reading from the Indian Penal Code or other law the description of the offence charged, and stating shortly by what evidence he expects to prove the guilt of the accused.

Opening case for prosecution.

The prosecutor shall then examine his witnesses.

Examination of witnesses.

(S. 247.)

The jurors or assessors may put any question to the witnesses through or by leave of the Judge which the Judge himself might put, and which he considers proper. Act I, 1872, S. 166.

287. The examination of the accused duly recorded by or before the committing Magistrate shall be tendered by the prosecutor and read as evidence.

Examination of accused before Magistrate to be evidence.

(S. 248.)

From the use of the words "by or before the committing Magistrate," S. 287 would not apply to a statement or confession recorded under S. 164 by another Magistrate. But such statement or confession would nevertheless be receivable in evidence if put in as it should be.

Whenever any document is produced before any Court purporting to be a statement or confession made by any prisoner or accused person taken in accordance with law and purporting to be signed by any Magistrate, the Court shall presume that the document is genuine; that any statements as to the circumstances under which it was taken, purporting to be made by the person signing it, are true, and that such statement or confession was duly taken. Act I, 1872 (Evidence Act), S. 80. Ch. XXIII.

S. 287.

If any Court before which a confession or other statement of an accused person recorded under S. 164 or 364 is tendered in evidence finds that the provisions of such section have not been fully complied with by the Magistrate recording the statement, it shall take evidence that such person duly made the statement recorded; and notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Evidence Act S. 91 such statement shall be admitted if the error has not injured the accused as to his defence on the merits. S. 533.

If the confession of an accused person before the Magistrate forms part of the evidence against the persons committed for trial to the Court of Session, it should be accompanied by a translation into English.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 4, Aug. 10, 1872. Wilkins, 105.

It is not optional with the prosecution to tender as evidence the examination of the accused person before the committing Magistrate. If it is not put in, the Judge is bound to call for it and to require it to be put in.—Sheikh Mehr Chand, 13 W. R., 63.

It should be put in and read as a part of the case for the prosecution, before the accused person is called upon to enter on his defence. It should be detached from the record of the preliminary inquiry, and attached to that of the trial (Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 11, Sept. 2, 1867, Wilkins, 104, also Cir. 4, Aug. 10, 1872, Id. 105) and marked as an exhibit, a note to the effect that this has been done being entered on the record.—Mad. H. Ct., March 31, 1869.

The Judge is not bound to read over to the accused persons the confessions made by them to the Magistrate, and to ask them expressly if they have any objection to the reception of those confessions.—Misser Sheikh, 14 W. R., 9.

The statement made by an accused person must be taken in its entirety. In a case in which the only evidence against the prisoner was his statement that he accompanied the dacoits for a short distance, but turned back almost immediately, and had nothing to do with the dacoits, and did not even know that such an offence was in contemplation, it was held that this amounted to no evidence, and he was acquitted.—Greedharee Manjee, 7 W. R., 39; see also Sheikh Boodhoo, 8 W. R., 38; also Krishto Mundul, 7 W. R., 7.

A confession made before a Magistrate, but retracted before the Sessions Court, is still evidence against the prisoner, and sufficient for his conviction, provided that the Court is satisfied that it was voluntarily made and is genuine.—Sreemotee Mongola, 6 W. R., 81; Jhuree, 7 W. R., 41; Mussamut Jema, 8 W. R., 40. It is not necessary that a confession should be corroborated by other evidence.—Runjeet Sonthal, 6 W. R., 73; Chokoo Khan, 5 W. R., 70; Blukan Rajwan, 12 W. R., 49.

But where the only evidence in a Sessions trial is a confession made to a Magistrate, and subsequently retracted before the case left that Court, and misconduct on the part of the Police in the investigation is proved, it is not safe to convict on such evidence without corroboration. Sofuróoddin and others, 2 Cal. L. R., 132.

Ch. XXIII. The Evidence Act (I, 1872), S. 30, declares, that when more persons than one are being tried jointly for the same offence, and a confession made by one of such persons, affecting himself and some other of such persons, is proved, the Court may take into consideration such confession as against such other person as well as against the person who makes such confession.

S. 288.

This has been discussed in many judgments of the High Courts, the substance of which will be found on a reference to that law in the Appendix.

(S. 249.)

To bring S. 288 into effect, the particular witness must have been examined in the High Court or Sessions Court, his evidence must have been taken before the committing Magistrate in the presence of the accused, and an opportunity for cross-examination given. Dham Mundul and others, Cal. H. Ct., Feb. 25, 1880. A witness is not always examined in the presence of the accused, for instance, he may be examined by commission (Ss. 503—508) or if it proved that the accused has absconded and there is no immediate prospect of arresting him, the committing Magistrate may, in his absence, examine witnesses on behalf of the prosecution and record their depositions, and any such deposition may be given in evidence on the subsequent trial of the accused, if the deponent is dead or incapable of giving evidence or his attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable. S. 512. The Evidence Act S. 33 also enables a Court under the same circumstances, and also if the witness is kept out of the way by the adverse party, to use as evidence, evidence given by a witness in a judicial proceeding for the purpose of proving in a subsequent judicial proceeding or in a later stage of the same judicial proceeding, the truth of the facts which it relates. Provided that the proceeding was between the same parties; that the adverse party in the first proceeding had the right and opportunity to cross-examine, and that the questions in issue were substantially the same in the first as the second proceeding—

Explanation. A criminal trial or inquiry shall be deemed to be a proceeding between the prosecutor and the accused within the meaning of this section.

If a Sessions Court acts in accordance with S. 288, it should incorporate with the record of its own proceedings the evidence taken by the committing Magistrate. See Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 4, Aug. 10, 1872. Wilkins, 105.

A certificate of a Magistrate would, under S. 80 of the Evidence Act, afford prima facie evidence of the circumstances mentioned in it relative to the taking of the statement, &c., but the Magistrate did not record any of the facts necessary to render a deposition admissible under S. 288 of the Code. Moreover, if he did record those facts, still, inasmuch as the witness, when examined as a witness before the Sessions Court and asked about the alleged deposition, denied that it was the deposition made by him, the presumption allowed by S. 80 of the Evidence Act could not be made; and it became necessary to show by direct testimony that the conditions of S. 288 had been satisfied. Evidence was therefore under S. 428 of the Code called for by the High Court to prove the deposition within the terms of the S. 288.—Nussuroodden, 21 W. R., 5.

Ch. XXIII.

S. 288.

The purpose of S. 288, as recently amended, is to make depositions given before Magistrates in the preliminary inquiry evidence for the purposes of the trial in the Court of Session, only when the Sessions Judge determines, in the exercise of his discretion, that they are to be used in this way. But we think that the exercise of this discretion, considering it as a matter of fact or of law, is open to review by this Court in appeal. When a case is under trial in a Court of Session, the Sessions Judge has the depositions given in the Magistrate's Court before him. If he finds that the statements of the witnesses in his own Court differ materially from those previously made by the same witnesses, it is his duty to examine them as to the discrepancies, and this is more especially his duty when the prisoners are undefended, and contradictory testimony is given for the prosecution. But if he thus examines the witnesses, he ought—see Taylor on Evidence, Ss. 1300, 1301, and the Indian Evidence Act, S. 155,—in ordinary cases to make the depositions upon which he has examined them evidence in the case; he is at liberty to do so, and the power should be exercised so as to bring all relevant matter, so far as possible, under consideration in forming a judgment on the case. If the Sessions Judge has omitted to examine witnesses on obvious and important discrepancies in their statements, this Court will, in general, direct that such an examination be made, and the Sessions Judge having the witnesses before him for such purpose, will, in most cases, feel it his duty to make the former depositions evidence quantum valeant for the purpose of the final adjudication on appeal. The alternative is for this Court in such cases to order a new trial on the ground that there has been a misuse of the Sessions Judge's discretion which may have caused a failure of justice, but a new trial will not be ordered except in special cases. Per West, J., Arjun Megra, 11 Bom., 281.

The judgment of the Calcutta High Court in the case of Amanoola, 21 W. R., 49; (S. C.); 12 B. L. R., 15 App.: is very important in connection with S. 288.

PHEAR, J.—In other words, the Judge founds his conviction of the prisoner on the charge of murder upon the testimony which was given before another judicial officer, not before himself, by the very persons who, according to his own view before him, showed themselves in the very same matter to be utterly unworthy of belief. Even if S. 288 warranted the Court in taking such a step as this, it seems to me certainly an inordinately long step to take, and I might almost say that the logical consequence would be that the taking of evidence in the Sessions Court might be altogether dispensed with: for if it is legitimate, Ch. XXIII. proper, and safe that the Sessions Court should come to a verdict against the prisoner upon the evidence given before the Magistrate by witnesses who before the Sessions Court denied that evidence, and showed themselves unworthy of belief, à fortiori, it would be right, proper, and safe for the Sessions Court to found its judgment upon the evidence given before the Magistrate in those cases where the witnesses afterwards confirm that evidence by the testimony which they give in the Sessions Court. And I think that this very obvious consequence shows very conclusively that the Judge misapprehended the true scope of S. 288 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

It appears to me that the Legislature, in framing this enactment, desired merely to authorize the Court to take a particular statement made by a witness before the committing Magistrate as the true statement, notwithstanding that it was denied, or a statement inconsistent therewith was made, by the witnesses before the Court itself, if the Court could see from the evidence of that same witness before itself, or of other witnesses before itself, that the original statement was worthy of belief. Not that the Court should discard wholly the testimony of witnesses given before it, and have recourse to the testimony of the same persons which was given elsewhere before another judicial officer on the occasion of making the investigation preliminary to the final trial. The discretion which is conferred by the passage "if the Court thinks fit" in S. 288 is to be exercised upon substantial materials rightly before the Court, and reasonably sufficient to guide the judgment of the Court to the truth of the matter, and not, as was the case here, upon mere speculation or conjecture.

MORRIS, J.—I quite agree in the view of the evidence taken by my learned brother in this case. I also think that it was not safe to convict the accused Amanoolla solely on the evidence given by the witnesses before the Magistrate—witnesses whom the Judge considered had perjured themselves before him. It seems to me that, under S. 288 of the Criminal Procedure Code, a Judge may base his judgement on the evidence given before the Magistrate in the presence of the accused, where there are special and particular reasons for considering that evidence to be honest and true, and when that evidence is, to a certain extent, corroborated by independent testimony before himself. In the present instance there is nothing of this kind. There is really no one such substantive fact exclusively proved as can enable the Judge to say with confidence that the evidence given before the Magistrate was true as opposed to what was said before himself. Nor can it be said that the Police officer or any other witness before the Court of Sessions affords independent testimony corroborative of the evidence given before the Magistrate.

The question arose in the case of Joyaddee Paramanick, 7 Cal. L. R., 61, whether the statement of an approver before a Magistrate was admissible as evidence in the Sessions trial after he had retracted that statement and the pardon had been cancelled. The High Court was inclined to hold that the former statement was inadmissible except against the person who made it, as he had ceased to sustain the character of witness in the Sessions Court, but in the absence of any argument in the case the High Court declined to hold that evidence was absolutely irrelevant, adding that the value to be attached to it was so exceedingly small that it ought not to affect the case made against the other prisoners by the case of that evidence. In Queen v. Hardewa (N. W. P., 1873, p. 217) it was decided by the Allahabad High Court that if an approver in the Session Court retracts his statement before the Magistrate that statement is inadmissible against the prisoner. Similarly in Empress v. Najam, 2 Ldg. Rem., 170, Straight, J. stated, "For my own part, I confess and entertain the gravest doubts as to whether S. 288 was ever intended to be applied to the case of an approver who has made a deposition before the Magistrate, but in the Sessions Court withdraws it in toto upon the allegation, that it was not a voluntary but an enforced statement. Even if S. 288 has any applicability, the Judge would have exercised a sounder discretion had he discarded the statement altogether. It was not the case of a witness giving evidence before him inconsistent with or contrary to a former statement or statements made to the committing Magistrate; on the contrary he admitted his depositions but declared that it was brought about by the coercion of the Police. At any rate the proper course would have been to call his attention to the various passages of his deposition seriatim before using it to contradict him."

the prosecution and the examination (if any) of the accused are concluded, the accused shall be asked whether he means to adduce evidence.

If he says that he does not, the prosecutor may sum up his case; and if the Court considers that there is no evidence that the accused committed the offence, it may then, in a case tried with the aid of assessors, record a finding, or, in a case tried by a jury, direct the jury to return a verdict, of not guilty.

If the accused or any one of several accused says that he means to adduce evidence and the Court considers that there is no evidence that the accused committed the offence, the Court may then, in a case tried with the aid of assessors, record a finding, or, in a case tried by a jury, direct the jury to return a verdict, of not guilty.

If the accused, or any one of several accused says that he means to adduce evidence, and the Court considers that there is evidence that he committed the offence, or if, on his saying that he does not mean to adduce evidence, the prosecutor sums up his case and the Court considers that there is evidence that the accused committed the offence, the Court shall call on the accused to enter on his defence.

Ch. XXIII. The judgment delivered in the case of Dhumoo Kaze, 10 Cal. L. R., 151 : (S. C.) I. L. R., 8 Cal., 121, is very important as pointing out the relative positions and obligations of the prosecution and defence in a trial.

S. 289.

The only legitimate object of a prosecution is to secure not a conviction but that justice be done. The prosecutor is not therefore free to choose how much evidence he will lay before the Court. He is bound to produce all the evidence in his power directly bearing on the charge. It is prima facie his duty accordingly to call those witnesses who from their connection with the transaction in question must be able to give important evidence. The only thing which can relieve the prosecutor from calling such witnesses is the reasonable belief that if called they will not speak the truth. If such witnesses are not called without sufficient reason being shown and the mere fact of their being summoned for the defence seems to us by no means necessarily a sufficient reason the Court may properly draw an inference adverse to the prosecution. There is no corresponding inference against the accused. He is merely on the defensive and owes no duty to any one except himself. He is at liberty, as to the whole or any part of the evidence against him, to rely on the witnesses of the case for the prosecution, and to call witnesses and to meet the charge in any way he chooses : and no inference unfavourable to him can properly be drawn because he takes one course rather than another. If in the present case the witnesses referred to by the Sessions Judge are thought to be trustworthy men then the prosecution was bound to call them. If they are thought not to be so, it is especially unreasonable to reproach the accused for not calling them.—Dhunoo Kaze, 10 Cal. L. R., 151 : (S. C.) I. L. R., 8 Cal., 121.

Witnesses examined before the committing Magistrate or summoned for the prosecution and not examined on the trial because the case is thought to be sufficiently proved should be tendered by the prosecutor for cross-examination by the accused. A fortiori if such a witness has been called and examined by the Court under S. 165 of the Evidence Act the prisoner should be allowed to cross-examine.—Grish Chunder Talookdar, I. L. R., 5 Cal. 614.

On the other hand it has been held by the Bombay High Court that as there is no provision of the Code entitling a person to have a witness for the prosecution who is not called put into the box for cross-examination. The Counsel for the defence might have applied to have such a witness examined or he might have commented on his not being examined for the prosecution or tendered for cross-examination.—Futteechand Vastichand, 5 Bom., 85, Crown Cases.

It is not necessary to take the opinion of Assessors when the Court thinks that there are no grounds for proceeding.—Parvati, 7 Bomb., 82, Crown Cases.

When the evidence, if believed, does not amount to proof, the case should not be put to the Jury, as a verdict of guilty cannot be sustained.—Rutton Dass, 16 W. R., 19. The Jury should be instructed to return a verdict of acquittal. But when it is a question as to the credibility of the evidence, it must be left to the Jury, though the Judge himself may disbelieve that evidence.—Hurro Shahu, 16 W. R., 20.

With the permission of the Court any Advocate or Pleader may address the Court in English when any one of the Pleaders in the opposite side is acquainted with that language, or whenever the Senior of such Pleaders or his client consents to such.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 4, March 15, 1869. Wilkins, 75. Ch. XXIII. S. 290.

By the terms 'the prosecutor may sum up his case,' it is not intended to exclude the assistance of Counsel for this purpose when such assistance has been accepted by the public prosecutor or other officer conducting the prosecution.—Narayan Pendshe, 11 Bom, 102.

There is nothing in the law which prohibits a written defence; if presented, it should be received.—2 Agra, 356. Sessions Judges should put on record any statement that the accused person may make on his being called upon to enter upon his defence; and if no statement be made by the accused, the fact should be noted by the Judge.—Agra Sud. Ct. Cir 6, 1863.

If the accused makes any statement on his defence, it should be recorded. If he does not voluntarily make any statement, and declines to answer any question put by the Court, the fact should be noted, and when there is nothing else to show the nature of the defence, a note of the address to the Court (if any) should be recorded. The record is not complete unless it shows the nature of the defence set up.—Gopal Hajjam, 15 W. R., 16: (S. C.): 13 W. R., 15, 36.

After the examination of the witnesses for the defence, the Sessions Judge recalled one of the witnesses for the prosecution and examined him. The proceedings were quashed and a fresh trial ordered, because the prisoner had no opportunity of making a defence or calling evidence with reference to the fresh evidence admitted after the prisoner had concluded his defence—Asanoolla, 13 W. R., 15; but where evidence so received was evidence of which the prisoner had full notice, it was held that the irregularity was not one which had or could have occasioned a failure of justice, and therefore the High Court would not interfere.—Sham Kishore Haldar, 13 W. R., 36.

290. The accused or his pleader may then open his case, stating the facts or law on which he intends to rely, and making such comments as he thinks necessary on the evidence for the prosecution. He may then examine his witnesses (if any) and after their cross-examination and re-examination (if any) may sum up his case. (S. 251, para. 3.)

Defence.

Every accused person may of right be defended by a pleader. S. 340.

There is nothing in the law which prohibits a written defence; if presented, it should be received.—2 Agra, 356. Sessions Judges should put on record any statement that the accused person may make on his being called upon to enter upon his defence; and if no statement be made by the accused, the fact should be noted by the Judge.—Id., Cir. 6, 1863. Under S. 218 ante, if the accused person in the trial of a warrant case before a Magistrate puts in any written statement, the Magistrate may file it with the record, but he is not bound to do so.

Ch. XXIII. If the accused makes any statement on his defence, it should be recorded. If he does not voluntarily make any statement, and declines to answer any question put by the Court, the fact should be noted, and when there is nothing else to show the nature of the defence, a note of the address to the Court (if any) should be recorded. The record is not complete unless it shows the nature of the defence set up.—Gopal Hajjam, 15 W. R., 16; (S. C.) 13 W. R., 15, 36.

291. The accused shall be allowed to examine any witness not previously named by him, if such witness is in attendance; but he shall not, except as provided in sections 211 and 231, be entitled of right to have any witness summoned, other than the witnesses named in the list delivered to the Magistrate by whom he was committed for trial.

A Sessions Judge is bound to postpone a case in which a witness summoned for the defence is absent, especially if he be a material witness, and the case cannot be satisfactorily decided in his absence.—Ishan Dutt, 6 B. L. R., lxxxviii, App.; 15 W. R., 34.

Under S. 211 the accused is required, after the charge has been read and explained to him, at once to give in, orally or in writing, a list of the persons (if any) whom he wishes to be summoned to give evidence on the trial, and the Magistrate in his discretion may allow him to give in any further list of witnesses at a subsequent time. The accused may also at any time before his trial before a High Court give to the Clerk of the Crown a further list of witnesses whom he wishes to have summoned.

S. 231 declares the right of the accused to recall and resummon any witnesses examined when a charge has been altered by the Court after the commencement of the trial.

292. If the accused, or any of the accused, has stated, when asked under section 289, that he means to adduce evidence, the prosecutor shall be entitled to reply.

(S. 252.)

293. Whenever the Court thinks that the jury or assessors should view the place in which the offence charged is alleged to have been committed, or any other place in which any other transaction material to the trial is alleged to have occurred, the Court shall make an order to that effect, and the jury or assessors shall be conducted in a body, under the care of an officer of the Court, to such place, which shall be shown to them by Ch. XXIII.

a person appointed by the Court.

Such officer shall not, except with the permission of the Court, suffer any other person to speak to, or hold any communication with, any of the jury or assessors, and, unless the Court otherwise directs, they shall, when the view is finished, be immediately conducted back into Court.

S. 294.

The Calcutta High Court condemned the proceedings of a Sessions Judge who permitted the assessors in a trial to visit the scene of the alleged offence without adopting the precautions provided by S. 293, and ordered certain of the witnesses to attend with the assessors, and at the same time pressed upon the latter the necessity of orally examining the witnesses, if they deemed proper to do so, in the presence of the accused, who would be present.—Chutterdharee Singh, 5 W. R., 59.

If a Sessions Judge should desire to visit the scene of the alleged occurrence of the offence under trial, he should give notice to the parties and should proceed thither with the assessors and not after they have delivered their opinions and the case has closed and awaits delivery of the judgment. When this course was taken it was declared to be ill-advised and to be altogether without any authority.—Oudh Behari Narain Singh, 1 Cal. L. R., 143.

294. If a juror or assessor is personally acquainted with any relevant fact, it is his duty to inform the Judge that such is the case, whereupon he may be sworn, examined, cross-examined and re-examined in the same manner as any other witness.

When juror or assessor may be examined.

(S. 293.)

The term "relevant fact" used here is to be found throughout the Evidence Act. See Ss. 5 et seq., which declare what are relevant facts.

In the same way a Judge can be examined as a witness in a trial held before himself. See the case of Mookta Singh, 13 W. R., 60, in which the following remarks were made per Norman, J.:—"No doubt it is extremely inconvenient that a Judge sitting without a jury should try a case in which he himself is the complainant and principal witness. I should have no doubt that if he has any personal or pecuniary interest in the subject of the charge, he is disqualified from trying it. But if that is not the case, if the Judge, in making the complaint, has acted merely in discharge of his duty as a public officer, I think we must say he is not incompetent to try the case."

In the same case, after citing the English cases, it was said:—"I think it pretty clear that a prisoner has a right to ask to have the evidence of a Sessions Judge who is trying him taken on a point which he thinks makes in his favour."

Ch. XXIII.

295. If a trial is adjourned, the jury or assessors

Ss. 295-298. Jury or assessors to attend at adjourned sitting.

shall attend at the adjourned sitting, and at every subsequent sitting, until the conclusion of the trial.

(S. 260.)

A Sessions Judge is bound to postpone a case in which a witness summoned for the defence is absent, especially if he be a material witness, and the case cannot be satisfactorily decided in his absence.—Ishan Dutt, 6 B. L. R., lxxxvii, App. ; (S. C.) : 15 W. R., 34.

Failure on the part of a juror or assessor to attend after an adjournment of the Court after being ordered to attend renders the juror or assessor liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, or, in default of recovery of the fine by attachment and sale of his moveable property, to imprisonment by order of the Court in the Civil jail for the term of fifteen days unless such fine is paid before the end of such term. S. 332.

296. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules as to keeping the jury together during a trial before such Court lasting for more than one day, and, subject to such rules, the presiding Judge may order whether and in what manner the jurors shall be kept together under the charge of an officer of the Court, or whether they shall be allowed to return to their respective homes.

(Act X of 1875, S. 65.)

the defence, and the prosecutor's reply (if any) are concluded, the Court shall proceed to charge the jury, summing up the evidence for the prosecution and defence, and laying down the law by which the jury are to be guided.

(S. 255, para, 1.)

The Court of Session, in trials by jury, shall record the heads of the charge to the jury. S. 367.

It is not necessary that a statement of the Judge's direction to the jury should be reduced to writing before delivery, but it should represent with absolute accuracy the substance of the charge, so as to enable the High Court, in the event of an appeal, to see distinctly whether the case was fairly and properly placed before the jury.—Cal. H. Ct., Cir. Memo. 2., 1875 ; 23 W. R., 7, Rules &c.

298. In such cases, it is the

duty of the Judge—

(a) to decide all questions of law arising in the course of the trial, and especially all questions as to the relevancy of facts which it is proposed to prove, and the admissibility of evidence or the propriety of questions asked by or on behalf of the parties; and, in his discretion, to prevent the production of inadmissible evidence, whether it is or is not objected to by the parties;

(b) to decide upon the meaning and construction of all documents given in evidence at the trial;

(c) to decide upon all matters of fact which it may be necessary to prove in order to enable evidence of particular matters to be given;

(d) to decide whether any question which arises is for himself or for the jury, and upon this point his decision shall bind the jurors.

The Judge may, if he thinks proper, in the course of his summing up, express to the jury his opinion upon any question of fact, or upon any question of mixed law and fact, relevant to the proceeding.

Illustrations.

(a) It is proposed to prove a statement made by a person not being a witness in the case, on the ground that circumstances are proved which render evidence of such statement admissible.

It is for the Judge, and not for the jury, to decide whether the existence of those circumstances has been proved.

(b) It is proved to give secondary evidence of a document the original of which is alleged to have been lost or destroyed.

It is the duty of the Judge to decide whether the original has been lost or destroyed.

(S. 256.)

The term "relevancy of facts" is no doubt here used in the sense in which it is used in the Evidence Act. See S. 3 and Ss. 5—55 Act I, 1872.

It is no doubt useful, because it saves time, that the Judge should state to the jury in the narrative form so much of the facts as are admitted by both sides. But when he has reached this point, it is best that he explain distinctly the issues of fact that it remains for the jury to determine having regard to that part of the case which is admitted and to the charges upon which the prisoners are tried; and having made the jury understand these issues, the more convenient mode of summing up for him to adopt is to present to the jury as clearly and impartially as he can a summary of the evidence and the considerations and inferences to be drawn from the evidence as they bear both on the negative and affirmative sides of each of these issues. It is impossible, of

Ch. XXIII. course, for any Judge to state every item of evidence, or to draw the attention of the jury to every fact which has been deposed to, but he can, without difficulty, give them a summary of the leading points of the evidence and the considerations and inferences to be drawn from it on the one side or the other.

He may, if he thinks fit, under the last clause of S. 298, at the same time, express to the jury his own opinion on the facts; but that is a very different thing from that which the Judge has done in this case. The Judge has not simply expressed his opinion and then left all the evidence fairly before the jury on the one side, and on the other, for them to judge of it by the aid of his opinion if they choose to avail themselves of it. But he has endeavoured from the first to last to persuade the jury to take a particular view of the facts and of the inferences from the evidence which he has himself taken and drawn, and indeed he has left them no loophole for taking any other view. That is not in accordance with the Code, but is a course calculated in the most successful manner to withdraw altogether from the jury the actual decision of the case.—Per Phear, J. Rajcoomar Bose, 10 B. L. R., 36, App.

What a Judge says to a jury upon the law is an absolute and binding direction upon them. What he addresses to them on the facts are only such observations as he thinks it necessary and proper to make in assisting them to arrive at a conclusion upon the evidence which it is wholly in their province to deal with as they think proper, and the observations which a Judge would make to a jury upon the facts would be determined by circumstances which must vary, one might almost say, in every case and in every tribunal in the country. They would vary in a very great degree according to the intelligence of the jury whom the Judge was addressing; they would also vary very much according as the case had or had not been fully discussed both for and against the prisoners by Counsel previous to his addressing them. Had there been no discussion of a case by Counsel, it would undoubtedly be necessary for the Judge to point-out many things which, after the case had been fully discussed on both sides, both for the Crown and the prisoner, might well seem to him unnecessary. And, on the other hand, a Judge has very often to caution a jury against accepting without careful consideration some of the suggestions that are made to them. When we are called upon to say whether or not a Judge has done his duty in addressing a jury on the facts, we must look to his summing-up as a whole, and see that the case has been fairly laid before them.—Per Markby, J., Nim Chand Mookerjee, 20 W. R., 42.

On the whole, the result appears to be that the Legislature has laid it down as a maxim or rule of evidence resting on human experience that an accomplice is unworthy of credit against an accused person, i. e., so far as his testimony implicates an accused person, unless he is corroborated in material particulars in respect to that person; that it is the duty of the Court which in any particular case has to deal with an accomplice's testimony to consider whether this maxim applies to exclude that testimony or not; in other words, to consider whether the requisite corroboration is furnished by other evidence or facts proved in the case, though at the same time the Court may rightly, in exceptional cases, notwithstanding the maxim, and in the absence of this corroboration, give credit to the accomplice's testimony against the accused, if it sees Ch. XXIII.

good reason for doing so upon grounds other than, so to speak, the personal corroboration. S. 299.

Now, in the case of a trial by jury, it is the function of the jury to ascertain the facts upon the evidence before them, and for that purpose to be guided by the law which is applicable; and it is in all cases the duty of the Judge to point out to them that law (S. 298, Criminal Procedure Code). It was therefore, in the present case, the duty of the Judge to lay before the jury substantially to the effect just set out the principles relative to the reception of an accomplice's testimony, which the Legislature sanctioned by the Indian Evidence Act; and we think the Judge was wrong in telling the jury that this case was one in which no caution or instruction from him was needed on this head. It is in all cases, when an accomplice's testimony is admitted, incumbent on the Judge to inform the jury of the results of the law bearing on this point, substantially as we have just endeavoured to explain it.—Sadhu Mundul, 21 W. R., 69.

In appeal, objection was taken that in summing up to the jury the Sessions Judge had omitted to notice the evidence for the defence. The High Court read that evidence and found that the prisoner had not been prejudiced by the omission, as, if it had been noticed, the Sessions Judge would have had to point out to the jury that the witnesses were not in accord with one another, that their statements were discrepant, and that the evidence of the principal witness was really unreliable. The High Court added "moreover we know that the prisoner was defended by Counsel and though particular points may not have been alluded to in the Judge's charge to the jury, we have little doubt that they were made, and properly made, much of by the prisoner's Counsel. It is not therefore to be assumed that these points were absent from the minds of the jury in considering their verdict. It is impossible for a Judge in summing up to go into every particular of the evidence. It is only necessary to direct the attention of the jury to the important and salient points in the case." Rochia Mahato, 1 L. R., 7 Cal., 42.

299. It is the duty of the jury—

Duty of jury.

(a) to decide which view of the facts is true, and then to return the verdict which under such view ought according to the direction of the Judge, to be returned;

(b) to determine the meaning of all technical terms (other than terms of law) and words used in an unusual sense which it may be necessary to determine, whether such words occur in documents or not;

(c) to decide all questions which according to law are to be deemed questions of fact;

(d) to decide whether general indefinite expressions do or do not apply to particular cases, unless such expressions refer to legal procedure, or unless their mean-

(a) A is tried for the murder of B.

It is the duty of the Judge to explain to the jury the distinction between murder and culpable homicide, and to tell them under what views of the facts A ought to be convicted of murder, or of culpable homicide, or to be acquitted.

It is the duty of the jury to decide which view of the facts is true, and to return a verdict in accordance with the direction of the Judge, whether that direction is right or wrong, and whether they do or do not agree with it.

(b) The question is whether a person entertained a reasonable belief on a particular point,—whether work was done with reasonable skill or due diligence.

Each of these is a question for the jury.

(S. 257.)

But in a case of giving false evidence by making two contradictory statements, it is not necessary for the Jury to state which of the two statements is false, but it is sufficient for it to find whether the allegation made in the charge are proved.—Mahomed Homayoon Shah, 21 W. R., 72, FULL BENCH.

300. In cases tried by jury, after the Judge has finished his charge, the jury may retire to consider their verdict.

Except with the leave of the Court, no person other than a juror shall speak to, or hold any communication with, any member of such jury.

Procedure where jury differ.

(S. 263, para. 3.)

It is only when the jury are not unanimous that they may be required to retire for further consideration. If they are unanimous, their verdict must be received.

The terms of S. 302 are sufficiently complied with, if the jury under S. 238 returns a verdict of guilty of a minor offence forming part of one of the charges. Empress v. Mahaddi, 6 Cal. L. R., 349 (S. C.) I. L. R., 5 Cal., 871. Empress v. Harai Mriddha and another, W. R., 3 Cal., 189: See note to S. 237 ante.

Ch. XXIII.

S. 303.

In a trial for murder the jury gave the following verdict:—"We have no doubt that the prisoner killed Nudde Ghose; we think Nudde Ghose gave no provocation; but we do not think it murder, because the prisoner had no object in killing him." The Calcutta High Court held that this was clearly not such a verdict as could have been received, and that the jury were properly directed by the Sessions Judge to re-consider their verdict. The Court further refused to question the subsequent verdict of the jury convicting the prisoner of murder—Okhor Ghose, 1 W. R., 50. The same Court held that a Sessions Judge acted irregularly in directing the jury to re-consider their verdict, declaring certain prisoners guilty of theft, because he considered that from the evidence they were guilty of robbery. The Court ordered a fresh trial, remarking that the Jury were the sole Judges of the credibility of the evidence which would convert the theft into robbery, and, as they apparently disbelieved such evidence, their first verdict was proper, and should have been accepted.—Shakhawat Sheikh, 2 W. R., 13.

A jury convicted a prisoner on the second head of a charge, acquitting him on the first. The Sessions Judge required them to re-consider their verdict, after which the Jury convicted on the first head of the charge. The Calcutta High Court held that the Judge had no power thus to control the jury, since, having left the several charges to the jury, it must be presumed that he considered that there was evidence in support of each of those charges, and it was for the jury alone to convict or acquit on the several charges as they thought proper. The Sessions Judge should have recorded the first finding of the jury which was their verdict, and should have sentenced the prisoner accordingly—Joy Krishto Ghosamee, 7 W. R., 22.

jury shall return a verdict on all the charges on which the accused is tried, and the Judge may ask them such questions as are necessary to ascertain what their verdict is.

Questions and answers to be recorded.

Such questions and the answers to them shall be recorded.

It seems doubtful how far a Sessions Judge may put questions to the jury as to the reasons of the verdict delivered. In the case of Meahjan Sheikh, 20 W. R., 50, Couch, C. J., and Birch, J., ordered a Sessions Judge to be informed that he ought not to do so, but in the case of Udoy Chang, 20 W. R., 73, Macpherson, and Glover, JJ., remarked "the Judge never took the trouble to ascertain on what ground it was that the jury arrived at the verdict which they gave;" and in the case of Sustiram Mundul, 21 W. R., 1, Phear and Morris, JJ.,

Ch XXIII made the following observations:—"It is only when it is necessary in order to ascertain what the verdict of the jury really is, that the Judge is justified in putting questions to the Jury. Unless a necessity of this kind truly exists, the questions are not justified in law. No doubt the Legislature thought that it would be very dangerous to give the Sessions Court the power of cross-examining the jury after they had delivered their final verdict, with a view to show that the conclusions at which they had arrived were not logical or inconsistent, or in order to provide materials upon which the Judge might be enabled afterwards to dispute the finality of the verdict. But in this instance it does appear from the answers which the foreman returned on being asked to give the verdict of the Jury on the first charge, that there was at the time some lurking uncertainty in the minds of the Jury themselves in regard to their verdict: and we think that this uncertainty in their minds made itself apparent to the judge, and that therefore, on the whole, that the questions which were put by him were rightly put within the discretion vested in him by S 263. This being so, there was no verdict delivered, and there could have been no verdict formally recorded until the last of the questions was answered; and it is very clear that, upon the finding of facts which the answers of the jury taken together disclose, the verdict ought to have been a verdict of guilty on the first charge, namely, the charge of murder."

304. When by accident or mistake a wrong verdict is delivered, the jury may, before or immediately after it is recorded, amend the verdict, and it shall stand as ultimately amended.

This section is new.

305. When in a case tried before a High Court the jury are unanimous in their opinion, or when as many as six are of one opinion and the Judge agrees with them, the Judge shall give judgment in accordance with such opinion.

When in any such case the jury are satisfied that they will not be unanimous, but six of them are of one opinion, the foreman shall so inform the Judge.

If the Judge disagrees with the majority, he shall at once discharge the jury.

Discharge of jury in other cases.

If there are not so many as six who agree in opinion, the Judge shall, after the lapse of such time as he thinks reasonable, discharge the jury.

(Act X 1875, Ss. 97, 98.)

306. When in a case tried before the Court of Ch. XXIII.
 Verdict in Court of Session the Judge does not think it necessary to express disagreement with the verdict of the jurors, or of a majority of the jurors, he shall give judgment accordingly. Ss. 306, 307.

If the accused is acquitted, the Judge shall record judgment of acquittal. If the accused is convicted, the Judge shall pass sentence on him according to law.

(S. 263, para. 4.)

If sentence of death is passed the proceedings shall be submitted to the High Court and sentence shall not be executed unless it is confirmed by such Court. S. 374.

Because the Sessions Judge does not agree with the verdict of the Jury convicting the accused, is no valid reason for his passing a nominal sentence. By doing so he usurps the function of the Jury. Unless he thinks proper to refer the case under S. 307, it is the Judge's duty to pass a sentence adequate to the offence of which the prisoner has been convicted. Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Nov. 8, 1866; Weir, 201 : 3 W. R., 16, C. L.

If the prisoner is acquitted no warrant of release or intimation to the Jail authorities is necessary. The prisoner is entitled to be discharged from custody immediately on judgment of acquittal being pronounced and there is no further charge pending against him; his further detention is illegal. It is for the Jail authorities in whose custody the prisoner was until the trial was concluded to satisfy themselves of the result of the trial and no formal warrant of release ordered by the Court to the Superintendent of the Jail is necessary. Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Oct. 30, 1869. Weir, App. 1.

307. If in any such case the Sessions Judge disagrees with the verdict of the jurors, or of a majority of the jurors, on all or any of the charges on which the accused has been tried, so completely that he considers it necessary for the ends of justice to submit the case to the High Court, he shall submit the case accordingly, recording the grounds of his opinion, and, when the verdict is one of acquittal, stating the offence which he considers to have been committed.

Whenever the Judge submits a case under this section, he shall not record judgment of acquittal or of conviction on any of the charges on which the accused has been tried, but he may either remand the accused to custody or admit him to bail.

In dealing with the case so submitted the High Court may exercise any of the powers which it may

Ch XXIII. exercise on an appeal; but it may acquit or convict
 S. 307. the accused of any offence of which the jury could have convicted him upon the charge framed and placed before it; and, if it convicts him, may pass such sentence as might have been passed by the Court of Session.

(S. 263, paras. 5, 6.)

The disagreement of the Sessions Judge must be such a complete disagreement as to lead the Judge to consider it necessary for the ends of justice to submit a case to the High Court not a mere expression of disagreement with the verdict coupled with his recording that it was not necessary to submit the case—Bhowani bin Panduji, I. L. R., 2 Bomb. 525. But when the Judge differs from the verdict of acquittal by a Jury and does not submit the case to the High Court, the Government has the right to appeal against the verdict. Hari Ghanu, I. L. R., 2 Bomb., 526 note.

In a case submitted to the High Court under S. 307, it is for the prosecutor on behalf of Government who asks for a conviction to begin and satisfy the Court that there is a case calling for an answer from the prisoner.—Ram Churn Ghose, 20 W. R., 33.

It should be noted that if the Sessions Judge submits a case in which the Jury have returned a verdict of acquittal he should state the offence which he considers to have been committed. See Sabae Rai, 2 Cal. I. L. R., 304; (S. C.) I. L. R., 3 Cal., 623.

The powers given to the High Court by S. 307 are not to be lightly exercised, and the unanimous verdict of a Jury ought not to be set aside even if a Sessions Judge disagrees with it, unless that verdict is clearly and patently wrong and unsustainable on the evidence.—Per Phear and Morris, JJ., Huroo Manjhee, 21 W. R., 4. Similarly in the case of Ram Churn Ghose, 20 W. R., 33 (per Markby, J., Birch, J., concurring):—The High Court will not interfere with the verdict of a Jury unless it be established in the clearest possible manner that they have wholly miscarried in their conclusions on the case. They are the constituted tribunal upon questions of fact, and it would be wholly destructive of that institution if the greatest possible confidence is not placed in them. See also Sham Bagdec, 20 W. R., 74:—"The High Court ought not to interfere with the verdict of a Jury, unless it can say decidedly that it is clearly wrong. If the High Court is to interfere in every case of doubt, in any case in which it may with propriety be said that the evidence would have warranted a different verdict, then it must be held that real trial by Jury is absolutely at an end, and that the verdict of a Jury is of no more weight than the opinion of Assessors. If this were the intention of the Legislature, it would have said so. But the Legislature has not said so. The Court should exercise the powers vested in it by S. 307 only in cases in which it finds the verdict of the Jury clearly and undoubtedly wrong."

The Jury on being called on for their verdict, returned answer, that they found the charge proved by the evidence of the witnesses, but that, as there were no eye-witnesses, they could not convict the accused. The Sessions Judge then requested the Jury to state distinctly whether they found the accused to be guilty or not guilty, Ch. XXIII. and the foreman said that they unanimously found the accused to be not guilty. The Sessions Judge, under S. 307, referred the case to the High Court, which, on perusing the evidence, held, that the charge of murder was completely established, and sentenced the prisoner to transportation for life. The High Court pointed out that the Judge might properly have explained to the Jury that the law does not require that a charge of murder should be proved by the testimony of one or more eye-witnesses, and that it was for them to determine without any reference to any such supposed rule, whether on the evidence before them there was any reasonable doubt of the prisoner being the person who caused the death of the deceased, and that if they had no such reasonable doubt, they were bound to give effect to the conclusion at which they had arrived in the first instance, that the charge was proved.—Gokool Kahar, 25 W. R., 36.

S. 307.

In the case of Khauderav Bajirav, I. L. R., 1 Bomb., 10 the Bombay High Court made the following remarks regarding S. 307, and their powers of interfering with the verdict of a Jury :—" It is a well recognized principle that the Courts in England will not set aside the verdict of a Jury, unless it be perverse and patently wrong, or may have been induced by an error of the Judge. We adhere generally to this principle, notwithstanding our large discretionary powers, first, on the constitutional ground of taking as little as possible out of the hands to which it has been primarily assigned by the Legislature, and, secondly, because any undue interference may tend to diminish the sense of responsibility. Burke, profoundly versed in the principle of the British Constitution, said of Juries; ' I will make no man or set of men, a complement of the constitution.' In this country, we must never let our acquiescence grow into a betrayal of justice. When Juries know that they are liable to the scrutiny and supervision of this Court they will feel the necessity of exercising conscientious deliberation in arriving at their verdict. The same check will prevent temptation to a wilfully wrong verdict from being held out to them. It is our duty in the present case to satisfy ourselves that the verdict of acquittal is proper, or at least sustainable, and if we find that it is not, the law enjoins on us to set it aside and pass the right judgment ourselves." The Court proceeded to find that the Judge had not charged the Jury as he should have done, and that being misled by his charge, the Jury had delivered a wrong verdict. The Court then said, " the acquittal is not to be set aside the less, because the Judge and the Jury have both committed a mistake. Taking this view we reverse the Jury's verdict." The prisoners were convicted of dacoity accompanied with grievous hurt, and sentenced.

When there is a patent and unquestionable failure of justice, it is necessary for the High Court to set aside the verdict of a Jury, but so long as trial by Jury exists, the verdict of a Jury must be accepted, and must stand unless it is manifestly and certainly wrong.—Per Macpherson and Morris, J.J., Wazir Mundul, 25 W. R., 25. See contra Mukhan Kumar, 1 Cal. L. R., 275 where the Calcutta High Court (Garth, C. J., Markby and Prinsep, J.J.), held that no fixed rules could be laid down for the exercise of the discretion of the High Court, but that the decision of each case must depend upon its own peculiar cir-

Ch. XXIII. cumstances and the majority (Garth, C. J., and Prinsep, J.), held that the case of Wazir Mundul, 25 W. R., 25, went too far.

Ss. 308, 309. It may be that another Jury would have come to a different conclusion on the evidence, but at the same time there are reasons for suspicion to warrant the Jury in disbelieving the witnesses in the present case and in giving the prisoner the benefit of the doubts raised by the inconsistencies in the evidence. The High Court accordingly refused to interfere. In re Hurree Narain Mookerjee, 2 Cal. L. R., 518.

In the case of Tillukdharee, 2 Cal. L. R., 1, the Calcutta High Court (L. S. Jackson and Cunningham, JJ.), held on consideration of the evidence that there was no reason to discredit the evidence for the prosecution which was consistent with the probabilities of the case and accordingly in concurrence with the one Juror and the opinion of the Sessions Judge, and against the verdict of the majority of the Jury convicted the accused.

The Calcutta High Court requires (March 11th, 1863) that in all cases tried by Jury, Sessions Judges shall, in the periodical statements submitted by them, state whether such verdict has their concurrence, and whether, in their opinion, the evidence in the case warranted the particular finding. Cir. 5, Oct. 14, 1879. Wilkins, 25.

G.—Re-trial of Accused after Discharge of Jury.

308. Whenever the jury is discharged, the accused shall be detained in custody or on bail (as the case may be), and shall be tried by another jury, unless the Judge considers that he should not be re-tried, in which case the Judge shall make an entry to that effect on the charge, and such entry shall operate as an acquittal.

(Act X, 1875, S. 100.)

II.—Conclusion of Trial in Cases tried with Assessors.

309. When, in a case tried with the aid of assessors, the case for the defence and the prosecutor's reply, if any, are concluded, the Court may sum up the evidence for the prosecution and defence, and shall then require each of the assessors to state his opinion orally, and shall record such opinion.

The Judge shall then give judgment; but in doing so shall not be bound to conform to the opinions of the assessors.

If the accused is convicted, the Judge shall pass sentence on him according to law.

(S. 255, para. 1; Ss. 261, 262.)

S. 309 enables the Court to sum up the evidence for the prosecution and defence in a case tried with assessors which was very doubtful under the former law. There is however no provision requiring that any statement of such summing up shall form portion of the record as in S. 307 with respect to trials by Jury. Ch. XXIII.
S. 310.

The record of the opinion of each Assessor should appear at the commencement of the judgment of the Sessions Judge. It is not, in the High Court's opinion, sufficient that this record should contain a mere verdict of guilty or not guilty, or proven or not proven; what the High Court requires not only the result arrived at by each Assessor sitting on a Sessions trial, but, if possible, the reasons by which each Assessor arrived at that result, that is, the grounds of his opinion. While avoiding prolixity, a Sessions Judge should be careful to be intelligible and precise in recording such opinions. Cal. H. Ct. Cir. Pro., 4, June 23, 1865; Wilkins, 105. This is more particularly necessary when the Judge differs from the Assessors—Musst. Mina Naggerbhatun, 3 W. R., 6: Bushmo Aurut, 1 W. R., 21.

Ss. 366—373 provide for the form of a judgment, its delivery and other particulars. If the sentence of death is passed, the proceedings shall be submitted to the High Court and sentence shall not be executed unless it is confirmed by such Court. S. 374.

If the prisoner is acquitted no warrant of release or intimation to the Jail authorities is necessary. The prisoner is entitled to be discharged from custody immediately on judgment of acquittal being pronounced, and there is no further charge pending against him: his further detention is illegal. It is for the Jail authorities in whose custody the prisoner was until the trial was concluded to satisfy themselves of the result of the trial, and no formal warrant of release ordered by the Court of the Superintendent of the Jail is necessary.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Oct. 30, 1869. Weir, App. 1.

I.—Procedure in Case of Previous Conviction.

310. In the case of a trial by jury or with the aid of assessors, where the accused is charged with an offence committed after a previous conviction, for any offence, the procedure laid down in sections 271, 286, 305, 306 and 309 shall be modified as follows:—

(a) The part of the charge stating the previous conviction shall not be read out in Court, nor shall the accused be asked whether he has been previously convicted as alleged in the charge, unless and until he has either pleaded guilty to, or been convicted of, the subsequent offence.

(b) If he pleads guilty to, or is convicted of, the subsequent offence, he shall then be asked whether he has been previously convicted as alleged in the charge.

Ch. XXIII. (c) If he answers that he has been so previously Ss. 311-313. convicted the Judge may proceed to pass sentence on him accordingly; but, if he denies that he has been so previously convicted, or refuses to, or does not, answer such question, the jury or the Court and the assessors (as the case may be) shall then inquire concerning such previous conviction, and in such case (where the trial is by jury) it shall not be necessary to swear the jurors again.

(New.)

S. 511 provides special means of proving a previous conviction.

J.—List of Jurors for High Court, and summoning Jurors for that Court.

311. In each Presidency-town, the jurors' book for the year current when this Code comes into force shall be taken as containing a correct list of persons liable to serve as jurors under this chapter.

Those persons whose names are entered in the jurors' book as being liable to serve on special juries only shall be deemed to be persons privileged and liable to serve only as special jurors under this chapter during the year for which the said list has been prepared.

(Act X of 1875, S. 39.)

312. The names of not more than two hundred persons shall at any one time be entered in the special jurors' list.

(Act X of 1875, S. 40.)

313. The Clerk of the Crown shall, before the first day of April in each year, and subject to such rules as the High Court from time to time prescribes, prepare—

(a) a list of all persons liable to serve as common jurors; and

(b) a list of persons liable to serve as special jurors only.

Regard shall be had, in the preparation of the latter list, to the property, character and education of the persons whose names are entered therein.

No person shall be entitled to have his name entered in the special jurors' list merely because he may have been entered in the special jurors' list for a previous year. Ch. XIII.
Ss. 314, 315.

The Governor General in Council in the case of the High Court at Calcutta, and, in the case of other High Courts, the Local Government, may exempt any salaried officer of Government from serving as a juror.

The Clerk of the Crown shall, subject to such rules as aforesaid, have full discretion to prepare the said lists as seems to him to be proper, and there shall be no appeal from, or review of, his decision.

(Act X 1875, Ss. 42, 43.)

314. Preliminary lists of persons liable to serve as common jurors, and as special jurors, respectively, signed by the Clerk of the Crown, shall be published once in the local official Gazette before the fifteenth day of April next after their preparation.

Revised lists of persons liable to serve as common jurors and special jurors, respectively, signed as aforesaid, shall be published once in the local official Gazette before the first day of May next after their preparation.

Copies of the said lists shall be affixed to some conspicuous part of the Court-house.

(Act X 1875, S. 44.)

315. Out of the persons named in the revised lists aforesaid, there shall be summoned for each sessions in each Presidency-town at least twenty-seven of those who are liable to serve on special juries, and fifty-four of those who are liable to serve on common juries.

No person shall be so summoned more than once in six months unless the number cannot be made up without him.

 towns for the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, the Court of Session at such place shall, subject to any direction which may be given by the High Court, summon a sufficient number of jurors from its own list, in the manner hereinafter prescribed for summoning jurors to the Court of Session.

(Act X, 1875, S. 50.)

317. In addition to the persons so summoned as jurors, the said Court of Session Military jurors. shall, if it thinks needful, after communication with the Commanding Officer, cause to be summoned such number of Commissioned and Non-commissioned officers in Her Majesty's Army resident within ten miles of its place of sitting, as the Court considers to be necessary to make up the juries required for the trial of persons charged with offences before the High Courts as aforesaid.

All officers so summoned shall be liable to serve on such juries notwithstanding anything contained in this Code; but no such officer shall be summoned whom his Commanding Officer desires to have excused on the ground of urgent military duty, or for any other special military reason.

(Act X, 1875, S. 51.)

318. Any person summoned under section 315, section 316 or section 317, who Failure of jurors to attend as required by the summons, or who, having attended, departs without having obtained the permission of the Judge, or fails to attend after an adjournment of the Court after being ordered to attend, shall be deemed guilty of a contempt and be liable by order of the Judge to such fine as he thinks fit; and, in default of payment of such fine, to imprisonment in the civil jail until the fine is paid.

Ch XXIII.,
Ss. 319, 320.

(Act X of 1875, S. 461.)

If a trial is adjourned the jurors shall attend at the adjourned sittings, and at every subsequent sitting until the conclusion of the trial. S. 295.

K.—List of Jurors and Assessors for Court of Session, and summoning Jurors and Assessors for that Court.

319. All male persons between the ages of twenty-Liability to serve as one and sixty shall, except as next jurors or assessors. hereinafter mentioned, be liable to serve as jurors or assessors at any trial held within the District in which they reside.

(S. 404.)

320. The following persons are exempt from liability to serve as jurors or assessors, namely :—
Exemptions.

(a) Officers in civil employ superior in rank to a District Magistrate ;

(b) Judges ;

(c) Commissioners and Collectors of Revenue or Customs ;

(d) Persons engaged in the Preventive Service in the Customs Department ;

(e) Persons engaged in the collection of the revenue whom the Collector thinks fit to exempt on the ground of official duty ;

 S. 321.

(k) Other persons exempted by the Local Government from liability to serve as jurors or assessors.

(S. 406.)

Pleaders and mookhtars do not hold any office under a Court of Session and are therefore not incapable of serving as Jurors or Assessors (7 W. R., C. L.), but it is inexpedient that their names should be included in the Collector's list of persons qualified to serve in those capacities, if a sufficient number of other persons is available.—Mad. Sud. Ct., April 28, 1862.

What under S. 405 of the Code of 1872 was an incapacity to serve as a Juror or Assessor has now been made the ground of a valid objection to a Juror (S. 278). All such persons are liable to serve as Jurors or Assessors unless so objected to, or unless in the exercise of their discretion the Sessions Judge and the Collector of the District or other officer appointed by the Local Government for this duty does not include them in the list prepared under S. 321.

321. The Sessions Judge, and the Collector of the District or such other officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf, shall prepare and make out in alphabetical order a list of persons liable to serve as jurors or assessors and qualified in the judgment of the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid to serve as such, and not likely to be successfully objected to under section 278, clauses (b) to (k), both inclusive.

The list shall contain the name, place of abode and quality or business of every such person; and if the person is an European or an American, the list shall mention the race to which he belongs.

(S. 400.)

IN BENGAL the radius of the area of selection has been fixed at twenty miles in the Districts of Nuddea and Patna, and at fifteen miles in other districts.—Govt. Order, June 13, 1865.

In the District of Beerbhoom the area of selection for Jurors of European or American birth has been declared to be conterminous with the limits of that District.—Cal. Gaz., 1873, p. 259.

In the PANJAB the area within which Assessors may be selected has been fixed at twenty-four miles from the place where trials before the Court of Session are held.—Govt. Not. 80, June 22, 1866.

In the Presidency of BOMBAY, a distance of twelve miles from the town has been fixed as the radius of the area of selection of Jurors and Assessors for trials held at Dharwar (Gaz., 1873, p. 6); and of sixteen miles for trials held at Kaladgi (Ibid., p. 99).

In BRITISH BURMAH all Deputy Commissioners and the Magistrates of the towns of Akyab, Rangoon, and Moulmein, have been appointed to prepare lists of Jurors and Assessors.—Gaz., 1873, p. 7. Ch. XXIII.

322. Copies of such list shall be stuck up in the office of the Collector or other officer as aforesaid, and in the Court-houses of the District Magistrate and of the District Court, and in some conspicuous place in the town or towns in or near which the persons named in the list reside.

(S. 401, para. 1.)

323. To every such copy shall be subjoined a notice stating that objections to the list will be heard and determined by the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid, at the Sessions Court-house, and at a time to be mentioned in the notice.

Objection to list.

324. For the hearing of such objections, the Sessions Judge shall sit with the Collector or other officer as aforesaid, and shall, at the time and place mentioned in the notice, revise the list and hear the objections (if any) of persons interested in the amendment thereof, and shall strike out the name of any person not suitable in their judgment to serve as a juror or as an assessor, or who may establish his right to any exemption from service given by section 320, and insert the name of any person omitted from the list whom they deem qualified for such service.

Revision of list.

In the event of a difference of opinion between the Sessions Judge and the Collector or other officer as aforesaid, the name of the proposed juror or assessor shall be omitted from the list.

A copy of the revised list shall be signed by the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid and sent to the Court of Session.

Any order of the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid in preparing and revising the list shall be final.

Ch. XXIII. Any exemption not claimed under this section shall be deemed to be waived until the list is next revised.

Ss. 325—
327.

(S. 402.)

325. The list so prepared and revised shall be Annual revision of list again revised once in every year.

The list so revised shall be deemed a new list, and shall be subject to all the rules hereinbefore contained as to the list originally prepared.

(S. 403.)

326. The Sessions Judge shall ordinarily, three days at least before the day which District Magistrate to summon jurors and assessors. he may from time to time fix for holding the Sessions, send a letter to the District Magistrate requesting him to summon as many persons named in the said revised list as seem to the Sessions Judge to be needed for trials by jury and trials with the aid of assessors at the said Sessions, the number to be summoned not being less than double the number required for any such trial.

The names of the persons to be summoned shall be drawn by lot in open Court, excluding those on the revised list who have served within six months, unless the number cannot be made up without them; and the names so drawn shall be specified in the said letter.

See note preceding S. 271 ante for the rules for fixing periodical Sessions.

In the Punjab, any person summoned as an Assessor to a Court of Session may apply for payment of the expenses incurred by him on account of his attendance, and the Magistrate of the District shall, if the charges appear reasonable, order payment to be made; provided that the amount paid shall not exceed 3 rupees per diem. If the journey is made otherwise than by rail, a distance of twelve miles shall be held to represent one day.—C. Ct. Cir. 15, July 24, 1873; Smyth, p. 134.

327. The Court of Session may direct jurors or Power to summon another set of jurors or assessors. assessors to be summoned at other periods than the period specified in section 326, when the number of trials before the Court renders the attendance of one set of jurors or assessors for a whole session oppressive, or whenever for other reasons such direction is found to be necessary.

 longing to such juror or assessor within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court making the order.

In default of recovery of the fine by such attachment and sale, such juror or assessor may by order of the Court of Session be imprisoned in the civil jail for the term of fifteen days, unless such fine is paid before the end of the said term.

(S. 414.)

A similar provision is made by S. 308 for the non-attendance or absence of a juror in trials before a High Court.

If a trial is adjourned the Jurors or Assessors shall attend at the adjourned sitting, and at any subsequent sitting until the conclusion of the trial. S. 295.

CHAPTER XXIV.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO INQUIRIES AND TRIALS.

337. In the case of any offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session or High Court, the District Magistrate, a Presidency Magistrate, any Magistrate of the first class inquiring into the offence,

Tender of pardon to accomplices.

Ch. XXIV. or, with the sanction of the District Magistrate, any
 S. 337. other Magistrate, may, with the view of obtaining the evidence of any person supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in, or privy to, the offence under inquiry, tender a pardon to such person on condition of his making a full and true disclosure of the whole of the circumstances within his knowledge relative to such offence, and to every other person concerned, whether as principal or abettor, in the commission thereof.

Every person accepting a tender under this section shall be examined as a witness in the case.

Such person, if not on bail, shall be detained in custody until the termination of the trial by the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be.

Every Magistrate, other than a Presidency Magistrate, who tenders a pardon under this section, shall record his reasons for so doing; and when any Magistrate has made such tender and, examined the person to whom it has been made, he shall not try the case himself, although the offence which the accused appears to have committed may be triable by such Magistrate.

(S. 347.)

No Magistrate of less powers than of the first class can tender a pardon except with the sanction of the District Magistrate, (probably after a report made of the circumstances of the case) and as a tender can only be made in a case triable exclusively by a Court of Session such Magistrate would be only one who could commit to that Court, viz, a Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Subdivisional Magistrate, Magistrate of the first class and any Magistrate specially empowered on that behalf by the Local Government. In such a case the sanction of the District Magistrate on which the Subordinate Magistrate has proceeded should be in writing and appear on the record.

If any Magistrate not empowered by law on that behalf erroneously in good faith (i. e. acting with due care and attention) tenders a pardon his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered. S. 529 (g).

The last portion of S. 337 apparently refers to a case in which a charge of an offence triable exclusively by a Court of Session or one which on the report of the investigation by the Police appears to be regarding such an offence and on this prima facie complexion of the case a tender of pardon was made to one of the accused and accepted, but in the course of the inquiry the evidence has satisfied the Magistrate that a lesser offence triable by him had only been committed:—for instance, a charge on a Police report of murder was before a Magistrate who thereupon tendered a conditional pardon and examined the person who accepted it, but in the course of the inquiry the lesser offence of voluntarily causing grievous hurt or hurt was only established, the evidence under Ch. XXIV. conditional pardon would still be legal evidence, but the Magistrate who had taken it would be unable to try the case himself. There would apparently be no objection to his committing to the Court of Session on a charge of an offence triable by a Magistrate or the Court of Session. The incapacity would also extend to cases of offences triable exclusively by a Court of Session which the District Magistrate who had tendered a conditional pardon might otherwise be able to try under special powers conferred by S. 30. S. 337.

A Magistrate is not competent to convert an accused person into a witness except when pardon has been lawfully tendered to, and accepted by him under S. 337. Evidence given by such a person who had accepted the offer of pardon in the case of an offence not triable exclusively by the Court of Session was held not to be relevant as that person had not been discharged, acquitted or convicted. Hanmanta Madhaji Khadki, I. L. R., 1 Bomb., 610; see also Asgur Ali, I. L. R., 2 All., 260.

It is not illegal to take the evidence of a person who has been suspected, but discharged by the Magistrate for want of evidence. He may, notwithstanding, be admitted as a witness for the prosecution. It is not indispensable that he should have been acquitted. He could not have been acquitted, as he was never committed for trial; and he could not be pardoned, as he would probably reject the offer if made.—Behary Lall Bose, 7 W. R., 44.

An accomplice shall be a competent witness against an accused person; and a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice—S. 133, Act I, 1872 (Evidence Act). But S. 164 of the same Act runs thus:—

‘The Court may presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct and public and private business in their relation to the facts of the particular case.’ The following appears as an illustration (b) to this section. ‘The Court may presume that an accomplice is unworthy of credit, unless he is corroborated in material particulars.’

It has consequently been the universal practice of our Courts to require some corroboration, it being considered unsafe to convict on the sole evidence of an accomplice. The rule for charging a Jury has been thus laid down by the Madras High Court (March 20, 1868). They should be told (1) that there is no rule of law prohibiting the conviction of an offender upon the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice; (2) that as a general rule of practice it is considered unsafe to convict on such evidence; and (3) the Judge should point out such circumstances, if any, in the particular case which afford sufficient reason for relying on such evidence.

The evidence should not be left to a Jury without such directions and observations from the Judge as the circumstances of the case may require.

If a Judge in a criminal trial were to tell the Jury that in his opinion the evidence was sufficient to justify them in finding the prisoner guilty, in a case in which, if the Judge had been trying the case with assessors, the High Court would on appeal have reversed his judgment

- Ch. XXIV. if upon the same evidence he had convicted the prisoner, then no doubt the Court ought on appeal to set aside a verdict of guilty found
 S. 337. by the Jury notwithstanding the advice was merely as to the weight of evidence.

So, if a Judge, instead of advising a Jury not to convict upon the mere uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice, were to advise them to convict upon such evidence, or were to tell them that the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice given under a tender of pardon was admissible, and that it was for them alone to form their opinion upon it, that a conviction provided upon such evidence would be legal, and that such evidence without corroboration might be acted upon with as much safety as that of any other witness, I think the error in the direction would form a good ground of appeal. Elahee Bukhsh, 5 W. R., 80 : (S. C.) B. L. R. Sup. Vol. F. B. 459. Per Peacock, C. J. (Kemp and Phear, JJ. concurring). In the case of Sadhu Mundul, 20 W. R., 69 it was held that in all cases where an accomplice's testimony is admitted it is incumbent on the Judge to inform the Jury of the results of the law bearing on this point as laid down in S. 114 Ill. (b) and S. 133, Evidence Act as well as in the case of Elahee Bukhsh just quoted.

It is not sufficient simply to tell a Jury to consider whether the evidence of an accomplice was strongly corroborated as to the prisoners, as that would be to ask them to consider a question which, it is certain, no native Jury in the mofussil would understand. It is the duty of the Judge to go through the history of the crime as related by the accomplice, to point out any independent evidence proving facts showing that the prisoners were, or must have been, present at or cognizant of, the murder. If such facts are proved, they would corroborate the story of the accomplice. But it would not be enough that the evidence should disclose a state of facts consistent with the possibility of the truth of the accomplice's story. If the state of facts proved is equally consistent with, and capable of receiving, a reasonable and natural explanation on the hypothesis of the prisoner's innocence, those facts, standing alone, would be no evidence of the truth, of the accomplice's story.—Karoo and others, 6 W. R., 44 ; see also Bykunto Nath Banerjea, 10 W. R., 17.

The Jury, in cases tried by Jury, or the Court, in cases tried with the aid of Assessors, may no doubt presume that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless corroborated (S. 114 Ill. 6) but before acting on that presumption the Jury or Court is required by S. 114 and the sequel to the Illustrations to take into consideration certain facts with the view to ascertain the probability of the story told, and the rule is thus brought to coincide with the rule observed in England that though the tainted evidence of an accomplice should be carefully scanned and received with caution and may be treated as unworthy of credit, yet, if the Jury in the one case, or the Court in the other, credits the evidence, the conviction is not illegal. In re Ramasami Padayachi, I. L. R., 1 Mad., 394.

As regards the amount of corroboration required to support the evidence of approvers, Norman, J., remarked :—"It is sufficient if the evidence is confirmatory of some of the leading circumstances of the story of the approvers as against the particular prisoner, so that the Court may be able to presume that they have told the truth as to the rest. The true rule on the subject of the corroboration of the evidence Ch. XXIV. of approvers probably is, that if the Court is satisfied that the witness is speaking the truth in some material part of his testimony, in which S. 338.

it is seen that he is confirmed by unimpeachable evidence, there may be just ground for believing that he also speaks truth in other parts as to which there may be no confirmation."—Kalachand Dass, 11 W. R., 21.

There should be corroboration such as adds to the approver's evidence against the particular prisoner, and this is not complied with when there is no evidence apart from that of the accomplice which identifies the prisoner with the commission of the offence with which he is charged; nothing which distinctly goes to prove that he was in any way connected with the commission of the principal offences. Facts which do not show the connection of the prisoner with the commission of the offence with which he is charged are no corroboration in the sense in which the word is used in such cases, although they may tend to show that certain portions of what the accomplice says are true. Nowab Jan, 8 W. R., 19 (see p. 25) per Macpherson, J.

So in the case of Baikoonthonath Banerjea, 3 B. L. R., 3, F. B. Foot-note, it was laid down that before the evidence of an accomplice can be safely depended upon, so far as it affects the prisoner it ought to be corroborated—that is, that other evidence from sources independent of the approver, should be forthcoming relative to facts which implicate the prisoner in the same way as the story of the approver does. See also Mohesh Biswas, 19 W. R., 16.

S. 30 of the Evidence Act enables a Court to take into consideration a confession made by an accused person affecting himself and another person jointly tried with him for the same offence as against the other person as well as against himself. See note to S. 30, Evidence Act, Appendix. Such a confession is, however, no proper legal corroboration of the evidence of an accomplice. any person who has accepted such tender has, either by wilfully concealing anything essential or by giving false evidence, not complied with the condition on which the tender was made, he may be tried for the offence in respect of which the pardon was so tendered, or for any other offence of which he appears to have been guilty in connection with the same matter.

The statement made by a person who has accepted a tender of pardon may be given in evidence against him when the pardon has been withdrawn under this section.

No prosecution for the offence of giving false evidence in respect of such statement shall be entertained without the sanction of the High Court.

(S. 349.)

The law is silent regarding the Court by whose order the person who has not complied with the conditions of the pardon may be tried, as well as regarding the time at which such order may be made. The corresponding section (S. 349) of the Code of 1872 declared that such order could be passed by "the Magistrate before the trial, or the Court of Session before judgment had been passed or the High Court as a Court of Reference or Revision." Subsequent enquiries, or an accident might no doubt show that the evidence of an approver on which the conviction of an alleged accomplice might have mainly depended was altogether false with respect to the particular person and his pardon might then be reasonably withdrawn, his trial being ordered, but an injudicious use of such a power on the part of a Magistrate might lead to serious consequences.

340. Every person accused before any Criminal

Right of accused to be defended. Court may of right be defended by a pleader.

"Pleader" with reference to any proceeding in any Court means a Pleader authorized by any law for the time being in force (Act XVIII, 1879) to practise in such Court and includes (1) an advocate, a vakil and an attorney of the High Court so authorized, and (2) any mukhtar or other person appointed with the permission of the Court to act in such proceeding. S. 4 (n).

The Court Fees' Act (VII of 1870), Sch. II, Art. 10, requires that every mukhtarnama or vakalutnama, when presented for the conduct of any one case to any Criminal Court other than a High Court, or to a Magistrate, shall bear a stamp fee of eight annas, and if presented to the High Court, two rupees. The terms of S. 340 do not warrant any general rule for the exclusion of mukhtars in all cases, but only allow a discretion in each case as it arises. Magistrates are expected not to deprive parties of legal aid, which they can obtain at a moderate cost by the indiscriminate exclusion of persons who are invested by law with a distinct professional status in criminal trials.—Cal. II. Cal. Cir., 13, May 29, 1870. Ch. XXIV.

S. 341.

The Madras High Court has held that when an advocate or attorney of the High Court or authorised pleader (including a moon-siff's pleader) appears in defence of an accused person under S 340, no vakalutnama is necessary.—7 Mad xl, App., Pro. Nov. 23, 1874. Weir, 172 : Pro. Murch 28, 1879 ; Weir 174.

With the permission of the presiding Judge, any advocate or pleader may address the Court in English, when any one of the pleaders on the opposite side is acquainted with that language, or whenever the senior of such pleader consents.—Cal. II. Ct. Cir. 4, March 15, 1869 ; 2 B. L. R., 6, Rules, &c. ; 4 All. Mis. 1, Cir. 1, 1868.

The practice of admitting private vakils to defend parties in Criminal Courts is not illegal, but it is within the discretion of the Magistrate to hear such agents or not.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Nov. 4, 1874 ; 7 Mad. xxxvii, App.

No party has the right to be heard either personally or by pleader before any Court when exercising its powers of revision : provided that the Court may, if it thinks fit, when exercising such powers, hear any party either personally or by pleader. S. 410.

S. 495 provides for the conduct of a prosecution by empowering any Magistrate inquiring into, or trying any case to permit any person other than an officer of Police below the rank of Police Inspector to conduct the prosecution : but no person other than the Advocate General, Standing Counsel, Government Solicitor, Public Prosecutor, or other officer generally or specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf shall be entitled to do so without permission. Any person conducting the prosecution may do so personally or by a pleader.

be made to understand the proceedings, the Court may proceed with the inquiry or trial ; and, in the case of a Court other than a High Court, if such inquiry results in a commitment, or if such trial results in a conviction, the proceedings shall be forwarded to the High Court with a report of the circumstances of the case, and the High Court shall pass thereon such order as it thinks fit.

(S. 186, para. 3.)

Ch. XXIV. When the accused person is from unsoundness of mind incapable of understanding the proceedings, the Court if that of Magistrate should Ss. 341, 342. proceed under S. 461, and if a Court of Session or High Court under S. 465.

The following judgments have been delivered on S. 341 :—

"The accused is, as the Deputy Magistrate states, both deaf and dumb, and 'is unable to understand the proceedings in the case.' The Magistrate, however, says that he is satisfied from the man's demeanour and action that he did understand what he was charged with, viz, house-breaking, and that he, being a very old offender in this particular, ought to have been dealt with under S. 75, Penal Code, and have been committed to the Sessions.

"I presume that the Magistrate's finding, as to the accused's being able to understand the nature of the proceedings brought against him, must be taken as conclusive, the Deputy Magistrate's statement notwithstanding, and that S. 341, Code of Criminal Procedure, will not apply.

"If that be so, the matter would come under the provisions of S. 348, Code of Criminal Procedure, for the accused is stated by the Magistrate to have been no less than seven times previously convicted of an offence under Chapter XVII, Penal Code, punishable with three years' rigorous imprisonment, and he should ordinarily have been committed to the Sessions, there being no question as to the extent of the Magistrate's powers under S. 34 of the Code.

"Under S. 439, Code of Criminal Procedure, this Court can act as a Court of Revision and under this section it appears to me that the order of the Deputy Magistrate convicting the accused should be quashed, and the Deputy Magistrate be directed to commit the prisoner for trial to the Sessions Court."—Dobree Halwarae, Cal. H. Ct., Feb. 20, 1873.

In the case of Bowka Hari (22 W. R., 35) several persons were tried and convicted by the Court of Session for committing house-breaking, one of whom alone was deaf and dumb and unable to understand the proceedings or to plead to the charge. The High Court held that on the facts established by the evidence, there could be no doubt that this man was guilty of the offence charged, but the case was returned to the Magistrate to obtain some means of communicating with the deaf and dumb prisoner through his relations or associates for the purpose of conveying notice to him that he was given a further opportunity of being heard in the matter. The termination of this case is reported in 22 W. R., 72, when the prisoner was convicted and sentenced.

See also the case of Nodur Chand Kamte, 22 W. R., 35, in which the High Court directed the accused, a deaf and dumb person to be admonished and discharged as not being a person to whom penal discipline could be properly applied.

tions to him as the Court considers necessary, and shall, Ch. XXIV. for the purpose aforesaid, question him generally on the case after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined, and before he is called on for his defence. S. 342.

The accused shall not render himself liable to punishment by refusing to answer such questions, or by giving false answers to them; but the Court and the jury (if any) may draw such inference from such refusal or answers as it thinks just.

The answers given by the accused may be taken into consideration in such inquiry or trial, and put in evidence for or against him in any other inquiry into, or trial for, any other offence which such answers may tend to show he has committed.

No oath shall be administered to the accused.
(Ss. 193, 250, 342, 343, 345.)

The examination of the accused is for the purpose of enabling the accused to explain any circumstances appearing in evidence against him, (Hosein Buksh, 6 Cal L. R. 521), and would consequently not be a general examination on whatever might suggest itself to the Court as under the Code of 1872. An examination during the course of an inquiry or trial is optional with the Court as may be considered necessary, but at the close of the evidence for the prosecution and before his defence is taken, the Court shall for the same purpose, question the accused generally on the case on points on which it requires some explanation from him. The examination should be recorded according to S. 364 unless it is taken by a High Court established by Royal Charter, or the Chief Court, Punjab or in a summary trial.

The following observations of the Calcutta High Court (per Kemp and E. Jackson, JJ.) in the case of Krishto Dhoba (14 W. R., 16) deserve especial attention in connection with S. 342, and are altogether in accordance with the Circular of the same Court, which follows:

"I have for some time felt from examination of criminal trials, that many Magistrates are too hasty in making commitments, or rather that they do not make the thorough inquiry which, I think, they ought to make previous to commitment. In a case of murder more especially, there can be no doubt that it is the duty of the Magistrate to sift every fact bearing on the case, in order to ascertain whether the accused is guilty or innocent, and to examine the accused on the facts which bear against him. One of the points of the evidence in this case which led to presumption of the accused's guilt, was, that he had been absent about the time the murder was committed. His statement as to where he was at that time should have been recorded, and should also have been thoroughly enquired into. It is not sufficient to say that the accused might bring witnesses to prove his innocence at the trial. It is possible the accused may not know the names of the witnesses; and if the witnesses can give evidence in his favor to exculpate him, he Ch. XXIV. should not be committed. A long time elapses before a trial at the Sessions comes on, and witnesses cannot then give as clear evidence, more especially as to time and duty, as when the facts have only lately occurred. I think every inquiry should have been made previous to commitment, to ascertain not only whether there was presumption of the guilt of the accused, but also whether he was innocent. It is the duty of the Police and the Magistrate not to bring the parties suspected of being guilty to trial, but also to ascertain whether the suspected can clear themselves from the crime of which they are accused. There is a clause in the Procedure Code which empowers Magistrates to commit without inquiry into the defence of the accused. I believe the discretion given by this clause is much abused. It may be applied in certain cases, but in serious charges of murder, when the life of the accused is at stake, I think this clause should not be acted upon, because no certainty of the accused's guilt can arise until his defence is negatived, and proof that his defence is false is frequently very strong evidence in favor of the prosecution. If the result of the inquiry into the defence leaves the matter in doubt, it is duty of the Magistrate to commit and leave the Sessions Court to decide which is the true story."

The following are the terms of a Circular, 13, 1864, issued by the Calcutta High Court to the Magistrates subordinate to it:

"Although the Code of Criminal Procedure does not make it imperative on a Magistrate to examine an accused person at any stage of the inquiry, before committing him to stand his trial at the Court of Session, the Court think it necessary to impress upon all Magistrates the expediency of the general adoption of this course at some stage or other of the inquiry. In those few and exceptional cases in which the guilt of an accused may be beyond reasonable doubt, the practice in force may be permitted without risk; but inasmuch as it is discretionary with a Magistrate to discharge or to commit an accused person, according as he finds that the evidence is, in his opinion, sufficient for his conviction by the Court of Session or otherwise, it is obvious that the truth of any ordinary case will be best elicited, and obscure points will be cleared away, by any explanation that an accused may wish to give, when, after hearing all the evidence against him, or at any other time in the discretion of the Magistrate, he may be subjected to an examination before the Magistrate on points requiring elucidation, it being clearly explained to the accused that it is at his option to answer such questions or not. The Court, however, desire to explain that, in issuing these directions, they in no way sanction any proceedings of an inquisitorial nature."

It is entirely discretionary with the Magistrate whether he should examine an accused person, and it is very undesirable that he should do so when he is satisfied that the evidence for the prosecution does not disclose any proper subject of criminal charge against him.—Shama Sunkar Biswas and another, 1 B. L. R., 16, Short Notes; (S. C.) 10 W. R., 25.

So also the Madras High Court, in the case of Virabudra Gaud (1 Mad., 199), remarked, that the discretion given by law for questioning a prisoner has not been allowed for the purpose of driving him to make statements criminatory of himself. It can only be properly used for ascertaining from a prisoner how he may be able to meet facts in evidence appearing against him, so that these facts should not stand against him unexplained. Questions must not, therefore, be put to the prisoner in the middle of the case for the prosecution, so as to supplement it when it is defective.—Diaz, 3 Bomb., 51, Crown Cases. See also Chineeabash Ghose, 1 Cal. L. R., 436.

It is not the object of the law to force an accused to convict himself by making some criminatory admissions after a series of searching questions in a case in examination; Hosein Bukhsh, 6 Cal. L. R., 521; nor to cross-examine him with the apparent object of convicting him out of his own mouth of false statements, and so make him prejudice himself in respect of the matter with which he is charged. Behari Lal Bose, 6 Cal. L. R., 431.

The Calcutta High Court (Cir. 19, Sept 17, 1864) has ordered that the examination of an accused shall contain his or her name, that of his or her father, and if a married woman, that of her husband, the religion, caste, profession, and age of the accused person and the village or pergunna in which he or she resides. Also Bomb. H. Ct., Dec. 27, 1872, Gaz., 1873, p. 20.

The examination should not be recorded until a complaint has been made. A criminal trial cannot properly be commenced by such examination (Cal. H. Ct., 627, 1863), but an admission of crime, fairly made, and after due warning, is not inadmissible, because at the time it was made no formal accusation had been made against the party making it.—Ramehurn Chamar and others, 4 W. R., 10.

The Court may presume that if a man refuses to answer a question which he is not compelled to answer by law, the answer, if given, would be unfavourable to him. Evidence Act (I of 1872) S. 114, III. (h).

When more persons than one are being tried jointly for the same offence and a confession made by one of such persons affecting himself and some other of such persons is proved, the Court may take into consideration such confession as against such other person as well as against the person who makes it. S. 30, Evidence Act, (I, 1872). The rulings on this section are collected in a note to it in the Appendix, the substance being that a confession made by one person can be used against another person only when it is sufficient of itself to criminate the person making it of the offence of which they are jointly tried.

In a case regarding an offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session certain Magistrates, during the inquiry, and, at any time after commitment but before judgment is pronounced, the Court to which commitment is made, may tender a conditional pardon to any one supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in any such offence. Ss. 337, 338.

No influence to be used to induce disclosures.

Ch. XXIV. With this section, Ss. 24, 28, and 29 of the Evidence Act, (I of 1872) should be read.

S. 344. A confession made by an accused person is irrelevant in a criminal proceeding, if the making of the confession appears to the Court to have been caused by an inducement, threat, or promise, having reference to the charge against the accused person, proceeding from a person in authority, and sufficient in the opinion of the Court to give the accused person grounds, which would appear to him reasonable, for supposing that by making it he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil of a temporal nature in reference to the proceedings against him. S. 24.

If such confession is made after the impression caused by any such inducement, threat, or promise has, in the opinion of the Court, been fully removed, it is relevant. S. 28.

If such a confession is otherwise relevant, it does not become irrelevant merely because it was made under a promise of secrecy, or in consequence of a deception practised on the accused person for the purpose of obtaining it, or when he was drunk, or because it was made in answer to questions which he need not have answered, whatever may have been the form of those questions, or because he was not warned that he was not bound to make such confession and that evidence of it might be given against him. S. 29.

344. If, from the absence of a witness or any other reasonable cause, it becomes necessary or advisable to postpone the commencement of, or adjourn, any inquiry or trial, the Court may, by order in writing, stating the reasons therefor, from time to time postpone or adjourn the same on such terms as it thinks fit, for such time as it considers reasonable, and may by a warrant remand the accused if in custody :

Power to postpone or adjourn proceedings.

Remand.

Provided that no Magistrate shall remand an accused person to custody under this section for a term exceeding fifteen days at a time.

Every order made under this section by a Court other than a High Court shall be in writing signed by the presiding Judge or Magistrate.

EXPLANATION.—If sufficient evidence has been obtained to raise a suspicion that the accused may have committed an offence, and it appears likely that further evidence may be obtained by a remand, this is a reasonable cause for a remand.

Reasonable cause for remand.

(S. 194, para. 1, Expl. ; S. 208, para. 1 ; Ss. 219, 264.)

It is not competent to a Magistrate to remand an accused against whom no evidence has been recorded.—Zuhuruddeen Hossein, 25 W. R., 8.

An order for remand should be passed in the presence of the accused persons.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro., June 10, 1867. Weir, 178. Ch. XXIV.

There is nothing illegal in a verbal order passed by a Magistrate directing the accused person to appear on the day to which the trial may have been adjourned. A conviction under S. 174, Penal Code, for non-attendance on such verbal order was affirmed.—5 Mad., xv, App., Pro., Jan. 18, 1870. S. 344.

An accused person may be bound over to appear daily before a Magistrate until the close of the trial. No notice is necessary before proceeding to enforce the penalty of the recognizance.—6 Mad., xxxviii, App., Pro. Nov. 17, 1871.

Whenever, from any cause, a Magistrate is unable to complete an inquiry himself, any other Magistrate having jurisdiction may complete the case, and proceed as if he had recorded all the evidence himself.—S. 350.

When the proceedings have been completed against an accused person, the decision of the case or his commitment to the Court of Session should not be deferred, merely because the principal offenders have not been apprehended.—3 W. R., 21, C. L.

The observations of the Calcutta High Court (per Couch, C. J., Ainslie, J., concurring) in the case of Mathoora Nath Chuckerbutty (17 W. R., 55; 9 B. L. R., 354) are very important in connection with this section—

“ If there is not a proper cause—a cause such as is described in S. 344—a Magistrate has not power to adjourn an inquiry. It is not lawful for him to do it. A Magistrate is not at liberty arbitrarily or for any reason which he may think sufficient to adjourn the inquiry. It is only to be in the cases mentioned, and although an improper adjournment of the inquiry by a Magistrate on a ground which could not be said to show that it was either necessary or advisable to do so, might scarcely be said to be an error in the discretion upon a point of law or to involve any question of law, and S. 404 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of 1861, might possibly not enable the High Court to interfere, we have by S. 15 of the Act, under which this Court is established, a power of superior evidence which enables us to deal with such a case. There was not the absence of a witness or other reasonable cause which made it necessary or advisable to adjourn the inquiry. The witness, whose absence appears to have been given as a reason for the adjournment, was the Inspector who made the report. Assuming that if called he would have deposed to the facts stated in that report, it appears that all that he would have proved would have been that the will was produced to him and was afterwards returned, and that evidence being taken there really would have been no evidence to justify the detention of the parties upon a charge of forgery of the will. It would really have been just the same as if there had been no evidence whatever against them. The case appears to have been postponed in a manner which could hardly be justified. There was not any evidence taken which could be made the foundation of a charge, and the Magistrate appears to have been influenced in the course which he took by the expectation that after some time and by dint of inquiry some evidence might be obtained. But a Magistrate is not justified in keeping parties under recognizances in the way he did on this occasion.”

Ch. XXIV. Where three witnesses for the defence were summoned, and one only appeared, the other two being reported absent from their homes, and the case was therefore decided, the conviction was set aside, and the Magistrate was directed to re-hear the case after giving to the accused person a reasonable time to obtain the attendance of the absent witnesses.—5 Mad. xxvii App. ; Pro. July 5, 1870.

S. 345.

In any case in which a commission has been issued for the examination of any witness, the inquiry, trial, or other proceeding may be adjourned for a specified time reasonably sufficient for the execution and return of the commission. S. 508. In some cases it may so happen that an adjournment of more than the fifteen days allowed in S. 344 may be necessary.

345. The offences punishable under the sections of the Indian Penal Code described in the first two columns of the Table next following may be compounded by the persons mentioned in the third column of that Table :—

Offence.	Sections of Indian Penal Code applicable.	Person by whom offence may be compounded.
Uttering words, &c., with deliberate intent to wound the religious feelings of any person	298	The person whose religious feelings are intended to be wounded.
Causing hurt	323, 334	The person to whom the hurt is caused.
Wrongfully restraining or confining any person	341, 342	The person restrained or confined.
Assault or use of criminal force ...	352, 355, 358	The person assaulted or to whom criminal force is used.
Unlawful compulsory labour.....	374	The person compelled to labour.
Mischief, when the loss or damage caused is loss or damage to a private person.....	426, 427	The person to whom the loss or damage is caused.
Criminal trespass	447	The person in possession of the property trespassed upon.
House-trespass	448

Ch. XXIV.

S. 345.

Offence.	Sections of Indian Penal Code applicable.	Person by whom offence may be compounded.
Criminal Breach of Contract of service	490, 491, 492	The person with whom the offender has contracted.
Adultery .	497	The husband of the woman.
Enticing or taking away or detaining with a criminal intent married woman	498
Defamation .	500	The person defamed.
Printing or engraving matter knowing it to be defamatory	501
Sale of printed or engraved substance containing defamatory matter, knowing it to contain such matter.....	502
Insult intended to provoke a breach of the peace.....	504	The person insulted.
Criminal intimidation, except when the offence is punishable with imprisonment for seven years ...	506	The person intimidated.

The offence of voluntarily causing hurt, voluntarily causing grievous hurt, causing hurt by an act which endangers life, or causing grievous hurt by an act which endangers life, punishable under section 324, section 335, section 337, or section 338 of the Indian Penal Code, may, with the permission of the Court before which any prosecution for such offence is pending, be compounded by the person to whom the hurt has been caused.

When any offence is compoundable under this section, the abetment of such offence or an attempt to commit such offence (when such attempt is itself an offence) may be compounded in like manner.

Ch. XXIV.

S. 346.

When the person who would otherwise be competent to compound an offence under this section is a minor, an idiot or a lunatic, any person competent to contract on his behalf may compound such offence.

The composition of an offence under this section shall have the effect of an acquittal of the accused.

No offence not mentioned in this section shall be compounded.

(S. 188.)

In a summons case if the complainant, at any time before the final order is passed, satisfies the Magistrate that there are sufficient grounds for permitting him to withdraw his complaint, the Magistrate may permit him to withdraw the same, and shall thereupon acquit the accused. S. 248.

S. 214, Penal Code, declares that whoever gives or causes or offers to agree to give or cause any gratification to any person or to restore or cause the restoration of any property to any person in consideration of that person's concealing an offence or of his screening any person from legal punishment for any offence or of his not proceeding against any person for the purpose of bringing him to legal punishment shall be liable to certain degrees of punishment according to the offence and S. 213 has made punishable in the same way the accepting or attempting to obtain or agreeing to accept any gratification for himself or any other person or any restitution of property to himself or any other person in consideration of the object above specified concealed &c., but Act VIII of 1882, S. 6, has added an Exception that the provisions of Ss. 213, 214 do not extend to any case in which the offence may be lawfully compounded.

346. If, in the course of an inquiry or a trial before a Magistrate in any district outside the Presidency-towns, the evidence appears to him to warrant a presumption that the case is one which should be tried or committed for trial by some other Magistrate in such district, he shall stay proceedings and submit the case, with a brief report explaining its nature, to any Magistrate to whom he is subordinate, or to such other Magistrate, having jurisdiction, as the District Magistrate directs.

The Magistrate to whom the case is submitted may, if so empowered, either try the case himself, or refer it to any Magistrate subordinate to him having jurisdiction, or commit the accused for trial.

This would be necessary if in the course of proceedings before a Ch. XXIV. Magistrate not of the first class a Justice of the Peace and an European British, it should transpire that the accused was an European British subject, when the proceedings should be stayed and the case submitted with a brief report explaining its nature to a Magistrate competent to deal with it. Compare S. 445. So also when the offence committed is apparently one which the particular Magistrate is not competent to try; or one in which it appears he is in some way personally interested (S. 555) or which he is declared to be otherwise incompetent to deal with. Ss. 482, 487.

S. 347.

347. If in any inquiry before a Magistrate, or in any trial before a Magistrate before signing judgment, it appears to him at any stage of the proceedings that the case is one which ought to be tried by the Court of Session or High Court, and if he is empowered to commit for trial, he shall stop further proceedings and commit the accused under the provisions hereinbefore contained.

Procedure when after commencement of inquiry or trial Magistrate finds case should be committed.

If such Magistrate is not empowered to commit for trial, he shall proceed under section 346.

(S. 46, para. 3; Ss. 221, 436, para. 3.)

"Before signing judgment." The judgment shall be dated and signed by the presiding officer of the Court at the time of pronouncing it in open Court at the conclusion of the trial either immediately or at some subsequent time of which due notice shall be given to the parties or their pleader. Ss. 367, 366.

If the subordinate Magistrate be empowered to make commitments to the Court of Session, and the offence be triable by the Magistrate of the District or the Court of Session, he should refer the case to the Magistrate of the District rather than hold a preliminary inquiry, and commit it to the Court of Session, since this latter procedure, though strictly legal, should, as much as possible, be avoided, as it tends unnecessarily to occupy the more valuable time of the Sessions Judge.—2 W. R., 19 C. L.

In cases triable by a Magistrate or by the Court of Session, the accused person should be committed for trial only when the Magistrate finds, from aggravating circumstances, that a higher punishment is required than he can award.—Cal. H. Ct., Cir. 5, 1865.

Where death appears to have resulted from injuries inflicted by the party accused, a Magistrate ought to be very careful and not take it on himself to absolve the accused of the graver charge of culpable homicide or murder, and convict only of hurt or grievous hurt, unless it is quite clear there is no sufficient evidence to warrant a commitment to the Sessions Court on such charge.—Cal. H. Ct., Cir. 9, Sept. 6, 1869.

When several persons are charged with offences of various degrees, arising out of one act or transaction, all implicated therein, against

Ch. XXIV. whom sufficient evidence is forthcoming, should be committed to the Court of Session, if an offence beyond the cognizance of a Magistrate, or one, which, in the opinion of the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, ought to be tried by a Court of Session, be chargeable against any of the accused.—Agra Sud. Ct., Cir. 64, 1862; also Cal. H. Ct. Cir., May 19, 1862.

Where the evidence showed that an offence beyond the jurisdiction of the Magistrate had been committed, the Calcutta High Court set aside the conviction for a lesser offence, remarking that Magistrates are not at liberty to pass over material parts of the evidence in cases before them, and so to withdraw cases from the cognizance of the proper tribunal.—Ramtahal Singh, 5 W. R., 65.

348. Whoever, having been convicted of an offence punishable under Chapter XII or Chapter XVII of the Indian Penal Code with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards, is again accused of any offence punishable under either of those chapters with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards shall ordinarily, if the Magistrate before whom he is accused considers him an habitual offender, be committed to the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be; or, in districts in which the District Magistrate has been invested with powers under section 30, placed on his trial before such Magistrate.

(S. 315.)

Chapter XII of the Indian Penal Code refers to offences relating to coins and Government Stamps, and Chapter XVII to offences against property. It should be noted that the offender need not have been punished with imprisonment for three years and upwards, but the offence for which he was convicted must have been so punishable.

S. 75, Penal Code, provides that an enhanced sentence may be passed on a second conviction as above specified, but the offender should not be committed for trial unless the Magistrate considers him to be an habitual offender. Much necessarily depends upon the nature of the previous conviction or convictions as well as of the offence then before the Magistrate, and also the interval between the date of the expiry of the last sentence and the commission of that offence.

If it is intended to prove the previous convictions for the purpose of affecting the punishment which the Court is competent to award, the fact, date and place of the previous conviction shall be stated in the charge. If such statement be omitted, the Court may add it at any time before sentence is passed, S. 221, last para. Ss. 310 provides a special procedure for the trial of such charges in the High Court or Court of Session and S. 511 provides a special means of proving a previous conviction.

Although the accused may have been convicted several times of the offences specified in S. 348, as the Magistrate who tried and convicted had some jurisdiction to decide the case, the Bombay High Court refused to order a new trial, for it could not say that the Magistrate had no jurisdiction.—Annaji Krishna, April 24, 1873. Unless the previous convictions be specified in the charge as required by S. 221, they cannot be used for the purpose of enhancing the sentence—Ibid; Rajcoomar Bose, 12 W. R., 41; see also Eshan Chunder Dey, 21 W. R., 40, in which the case was re-opened, and the Sessions Judge was directed to take evidence and record the verdict of the jury on such a charge.

of opinion after hearing the evidence for the prosecution and the accused that the accused is guilty, and that he ought to receive a punishment different in kind from, or more severe than, that which such Magistrate is empowered to inflict, or that he ought to be required to execute a bond under section 106, he may record the opinion and submit his proceedings, and forward the accused, to the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate to whom he is subordinate.

The Magistrate to whom the proceedings are submitted may, if he thinks fit, examine the parties and recall and examine any witness who has already given evidence in the case, and may call for and take any further evidence; and shall pass such judgment, sentence or order in the case as he thinks fit, and as is according to law; provided that he shall not inflict a punishment more severe than he is empowered to inflict under sections 32 and 33.

If the subordinate Magistrate be empowered to commit to the Court of Session, and the offence be triable by the Magistrate of the District or the Court of Session, he should refer the case to the Magistrate of the District rather than hold a preliminary inquiry, and commit it to the Court of Session, since this latter procedure, though strictly legal, should, as much as possible, be avoided as it tends unnecessarily to occupy the more valuable time of the Sessions Judge—2 W. R., 19, C. L.

The Magistrate to whom a case is referred under S. 349 cannot transfer it to another Magistrate but must dispose of it himself. 5 Mad. App. xliii. Pro. Nov. 8, 1870. Weir, 143. He cannot return the case to the referring Magistrate on the ground that in his opinion

Ch. XXIV. the latter has power to pass an adequate sentence. Dula Fakir, 6 Cal. L. R., 276.

S. 350. In amending the Code of 1872, Act XI of 1874, S. 7 gave the following illustration as part of S. 46 of that Code, and this is now embodied in S. 319 of this Code in the words "punishment different in kind from or more severe than that which such Magistrate is empowered to inflict:"— Illustration. A Magistrate of the third class having jurisdiction finds an accused person guilty, but considers that he ought to receive a more severe punishment than imprisonment for a term of one month, or a fine of fifty rupees. On recording the finding, submitting the proceedings and forwarding the accused to the Magistrate of the District, such Magistrate may pass a sentence on the accused including solitary confinement and whipping.—S. 7, Act XI, 1874.

"And shall pass such judgment, sentence or order." By the use of the word order, provision is expressly made for the disposal of the case otherwise than by conviction or acquittal. It is competent to a Magistrate to whom a case has been so referred to say that, either from the gravity of the matter or from some other sufficient reason the Sessions Court is the proper tribunal for the disposal of the case and to make an order in accordance with that opinion. Mad. II. Ct. Pro. Aug. 21, 1876; Weir 164.

350. Whenever any Magistrate, after having heard and recorded the whole or any part of the evidence in an inquiry or a trial, ceases to exercise jurisdiction therein, and is succeeded by another Magistrate who has and who exercises such jurisdiction, the Magistrate so succeeding may act on the evidence so recorded by his predecessor, or partly recorded by his predecessor and partly recorded by himself; or he may re-summon the witnesses and re-commence the inquiry or trial:

Conviction or commitment on evidence partly recorded by one Magistrate and partly by another.

Provided as follows:—

(a) In any trial, the accused may, when the second Magistrate commences his proceedings, demand that the witnesses or any of them be re-summoned and re-heard:

(b) The High Court, or, in cases tried by Magistrates subordinate to the District Magistrate, the District Magistrate, may, whether there be an appeal or not, set aside any conviction passed on evidence not wholly recorded by the Magistrate before whom the conviction was had, if such Court or District Magistrate is of opinion that the accused has been materially prejudiced thereby; and may order a new inquiry or trial.

Nothing in this section applies to cases in which Ch. XXIV. proceedings have been stayed under section 348.

(Ss. 328, 329.)

S. 351.

Inquiry includes every inquiry under this Code conducted by a Magistrate or Court, S. 4 (c)—so that the application of S. 350 would not be limited to inquiries preliminary to commitment but to inquiries in miscellaneous matters under Part IV, Chapters VIII, X, XI, XII, that is, cases regarding security to keep the peace or for good behaviour, public nuisances and disputes regarding immoveable property likely to cause a breach of the peace, as well as a preliminary inquiry under S. 476 before sending the case for inquiry or trial by the nearest Magistrate of the first class. When the second Magistrate continues and completes an inquiry on proceedings taken by his predecessor in office, it would seem that the High Court alone can order a new inquiry to be held even though such inquiry may have terminated in a commitment to the Court of Session. S. 215 declares that a commitment made by a competent Magistrate can be quashed by the High Court only, and only on a point of law, and S. 537 provides that no order by a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be reversed or altered under Chapter XXVII, (on submission of the proceedings for confirmation of the sentence passed) or on appeal or revision on account of any error, omission or irregularity in the proceedings before trial or in any inquiry or other proceedings under this Code unless such error, omission or irregularity has occasioned a failure of justice. Where a commitment has been made by a Magistrate purporting to exercise powers duly conferred which were not so conferred, a Court of Session to which the commitment has been made may under certain specified circumstances direct a fresh inquiry by a competent Magistrate, S. 522, and except in any of the cases coming under S. 522 it would seem that a Court of Session must proceed to try on a commitment made to it or refer the matter for the orders of the High Court. ■

351. Any person attending a Criminal Court, al-attending Court. summons, may be detained by such Court for the purpose of examination, for any offence of which such Court can take cognizance and which, from the evidence, he may appear to have committed; and may be proceeded against as though he had been arrested or summoned.

When the detention takes place in the course of an inquiry under Chapter XVIII, or after a trial has been begun, the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced afresh and the witnesses re-heard.

(S. 104.)

S. 65 empowers every Magistrate at any time to arrest or direct the arrest, in his presence, within the local limits of this jurisdiction, of

Ch. XXIV. any person for whose arrest he is competent at the time or in the circumstances to issue a warrant.

S. 352. The action of a Court of Session would be restricted by S. 193 as it cannot ordinarily take cognizance of any offence as a Court of original Ch. XXV. jurisdiction unless the accused person has been committed by a Magistrate duly empowered in that at all.

Ss. 353, 354.

352. The place in which any Criminal Court is held for the purpose of inquiring into or trying any offence shall be deemed an open Court, to which the public generally may have access, so far as the same can conveniently contain them :

Courts to be open.

Provided that the presiding Judge or Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, order at any stage of any inquiry into, or trial of, any particular case that the public generally, or any particular person, shall not have access to, or be or remain in, the room or building used by the Court.

(S. 187.)

CHAPTER XXV.

OF THE MODE OF TAKING AND RECORDING EVIDENCE IN INQUIRIES AND TRIALS.

353. Except as otherwise expressly provided, all evidence taken under Chapters XVIII, XX, XXI, XXII and XXIII shall be taken in the presence of the accused, or, when his personal attendance is dispensed with, in presence of his pleader.

Evidence to be taken in presence of accused.

(S. 191, para. 1.)

354. In inquiries and trials (other than summary trials) under this Code by or before a Magistrate (other than a Presidency Magistrate) or Sessions Judge, the evidence of the witnesses shall be recorded in the following manner.

Manner of recording evidence outside Presidency-towns.

(S. 332.)

For the orders of the Calcutta High Court regarding the examination of witnesses see note to S. 208 and Wilkins, 76—79.

355. In summons-cases tried before a Magistrate, other than a Presidency Magistrate, and in cases of the offences mentioned in section 260, clauses (b) to (k), both inclusive, when tried by a Magistrate of the first or second class, the Magistrate shall make a memorandum of the substance of the evidence of each witness as the examination of the witness proceeds.

Ch. XXV.

S. 355.

Record in summons cases, and in trials of certain offences by first and second class Magistrates.

Such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

If the Magistrate is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so, and shall cause such memorandum to be made in writing from his dictation in open Court, and shall sign the same; and such memorandum shall form part of the record.

(Ss. 222, 333.)

Chapter X, Ss. 135—166 of the Indian Evidence Act (I, 1872) prescribe the manner in which the examination of witnesses should be conducted.

Ordinarily, in the cases provided for by S. 355, the record of the evidence consists merely of a memorandum taken by the Magistrate of the substance of the evidence of each witness. A Magistrate is bound to "make a memorandum of the substance of the evidence of each witness as the examination of the witness proceeds;" this is not complied with by a mere statement that a witness deposes the same as the last.—Agra Sudder Court Cir. 18, 1865; Byha Wullud Soorjim, 1 Bomb., 91. The practice of preparing the memorandum of evidence from the recorded depositions of the witnesses after their examination is illegal.—Agra Sudder Court Cir. 13, 1866. Want of time cannot be accepted as a valid course for not recording a memorandum of the evidence.—Smyth, p. 119. The Calcutta High Court (Cir., 30th March, 1864) has ordered that, when it may appear to a Magistrate that a witness is giving false evidence, so that criminal proceedings are likely to be necessary, the Magistrate should take down at length the evidence of the particular witness. A full record of the evidence in the vernacular is not necessary in order to a conviction for giving false evidence; but this precaution will serve to obviate any doubts regarding the accuracy of the Magistrate's brief note of the evidence, where the commitment rests wholly or mainly on that note.

Evidence of witnesses should, in all cases, be recorded in printed or lithographed forms; and care should be taken that the headings are carefully and accurately filled up. No more than one deposition should be written on each sheet.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 4, Aug. 10, 1872.

Ch. XXV. The following heading to depositions of witnesses has been issued for use in the Criminal Courts in Bombay :—

S. 356. I, A. B., having made solemn affirmation or (oath as the case may be) state :

356. In all other trials before Courts of Session and Magistrates (other than Presidency Magistrates) and in all inquiries under Chapters XII and XVIII, the evidence of each witness shall be taken down in writing in the language of the Court, by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge, or in his presence and hearing and under his personal direction and superintendence, and shall be signed by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge.

Evidence given in English.

When the evidence of such witness is given in English, the Magistrate or Sessions Judge may take it down in that language with his own hand, and, unless the accused is familiar with English, or the language of the Court is English, an authenticated translation of such evidence in the language of the Court shall form part of the record.

Memorandum when evidence not taken down by the Magistrate or Judge himself.

In cases in which the evidence is not taken down in writing by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge, he shall, as the examination of each witness proceeds, make a memorandum of the substance of what such witness deposes; and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.

If the Magistrate or Sessions Judge is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to make it.

(S. 334.)

Ch. XXV.

S. 357.

Evidence recorded under this section shall ordinarily be in the form of a narrative. S. 359.

A Sessions Judge (and Magistrate) is bound to take a memorandum of the deposition of each witness as the examination proceeds: this is not complied with by a mere statement that a witness deposes the same as the last.—Byha Wullud Soorjin, 1 Bomb., 91; Mutt-e Nushyo, Suth. Rep., 1864, p. 18; Agra Sudder Court Cir. 18, 1865.

The practice of preparing the memoranda of evidence, required by S. 356, from the recorded deposition of witnesses, after their examination, is contrary to law.—Agra Sudder Court Cir. 13, 1865.

Want of time cannot be accepted as a valid excuse for not recording a memorandum of the evidence.—Smyth, p. 119.

The term "witness" in S. 356 includes a complainant.—Cal. H. Ct., 156, 1865.

The examination of complainants and witnesses should contain the name of the person examined, and of his or her father (and if a married woman, the name of her husband), the religion, caste, profession, and age of the deponent, and the village and pergunnah in which he or she resides.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 19, Sept. 17, 1864; also Bomb. H. Ct., Gaz., 1873, p. 20.

any district or part of a district, or in proceedings before any Court of Session, or before any Magistrate or class of Magistrates, the evidence of each witness shall in the cases referred to in section 356 be taken down by the Sessions Judge or Magistrate with his own hand and in his mother-tongue, unless he is prevented by any sufficient reason from taking down the evidence of any witness, in which case he shall record the reason of his inability to do so, and shall cause the evidence to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court.

The evidence so taken down shall be signed by the Sessions Judge or Magistrate, and shall form part of the record:

Provided that the Local Government may direct the Sessions Judge or Magistrate to take down the evidence in the English language, or in the language of the Court, although such language is not his mother-tongue.

(S. 335.)

Ch. XXV. In BENGAL orders have been issued by Government extending this section to all Magistrate's Courts (Govt. Bengal, June 30, 1864) and to all Courts of Session (August 6, 1865).

S. 357. In the Presidency of MADRAS these provisions have not been so generally extended, and are apparently restricted to special cases of particular and qualified officers.

The authority conferred on an officer by S. 357 is personal to that officer, and in force only so long as he remains in the District in which it has been conferred.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Nov. 25, 1869; Weir, 247.

In the Presidency of BOMBAY and in the NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES the Local Governments do not appear to have exercised these powers.

In all proceedings before the Court of Session or before any Magistrate in the Settlement of Port Blair and the Nicobars, the evidence of complainants and witnesses is to be recorded in the vernacular language of the officer presiding over the Court.—Gazette of India, 1874, p. 49.

In the PUNJAB with the sanction of the Local Government, the Judicial Commissioner (Smyth, p. 118) issued the following orders regarding the record of evidence in criminal cases:—

All trials in which sentence of death is legal are to be conducted in the English language; there may be a counterpart in the vernacular of the Court at the discretion of the Judge for his own satisfaction.

All other trials are to be conducted under S. 356, unless the Judge prefer to adopt the above Rule in such cases also.

All trials in which a Magistrate commits to the Sessions, or passes final orders under S. 34 of this Code, are to be conducted under S. 356, unless the Magistrate prefer to adopt the above Rule, but in that case he must not omit the vernacular counterpart.

In Aden, English has been made the language of recording evidence in all trials before the Court of Session or any Magistrate or Bench of Magistrates.—Gaz., 1873, p. 227.

A similar rule has been introduced into BRITISH BURMAH.—Gaz., 1873, p. 7.

The following rules applicable to this section have been laid down by the Madras High Court (5 Mad. ix, App., Pro. Nov. 25, 1869; Weir, App. xxii.

1. All applications from Judges or Magistrates for bringing into operation the provisions of this section must be made through the High Court.

2. In the case of Magistrates subordinate to the Magistrate of the District, all such applications should be accompanied by the expression of the District Magistrate's opinion whether the authority should be granted or withheld.

3. The authority so conferred on one officer is personal to that officer, and is in force only as long as he remains in the particular District in which it has been conferred.

4. When the authority to take down the evidence of witnesses in his own handwriting in his vernacular is conferred on any officer, all depositions taken before him should, unless for any special reason, be so recorded.

The examination of an accused should invariably be recorded in the language it is delivered.—3 W. R., 14 C. L.

In depositions in which there may be any doubt as to the exact meaning of any expression used, and in which the doubtful expression has an important bearing on the offence of which a prisoner is charged, the Calcutta High Court [Cir. 9, Aug. 28, 1865, Wilkins, 79] suggested the expediency of transcribing in Roman characters the words actually used, in order that the Court may be in a position, on the matter coming before it, without fear of error, to determine on their exact signification, and in consequence to give them their due and proper weight. Should an instance occur in which a foreign language is used, or in which the evidence may be delivered in a dialect to which the Judge may be unaccustomed, an Interpreter should be employed in the manner prescribed by Ss. 361, 543, Code of Criminal Procedure. Ch. XXV.
Ss. 358, 359.

The examination of complainants and witnesses should contain the name of the person examined, and of his or her father (and if a married woman the name of her husband), the religion, caste, profession and age of the deponent and the village or pergunnah in which he or she resides. —Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 19, Sept. 17, 1864. Also Bomb. H. Ct., Gaz., 1873, p. 20.

358. In cases of the kind mentioned in section 355, the Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, take down the evidence of any witness in the manner provided in section 356, or, if within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Magistrate the Local Government has made the order referred to in section 357, in the manner provided in the same section.

(S. 336.)

In depositions in which there may be any doubt as to the exact meaning of any expression used, and in which the doubtful expression has an important bearing on the offence of which a prisoner is charged, the Calcutta High Court [Cir. 9, Aug. 28, 1865, Wilkins, 79] suggested the expediency of transcribing in Roman characters the words actually used, in order that the Court may be in a position, on the matter coming before it, without fear of error, to determine on their exact signification, and in consequence to give them their due and proper weight. Should an instance occur in which a foreign language is used, or in which the evidence may be delivered in a dialect to which the Judge may be unaccustomed, an Interpreter should be employed in the manner prescribed by Ss. 361, 543, Code of Criminal Procedure.

The Magistrate or Sessions Judge may in his dis-

(S. 338.)

The examination of complainants and witnesses should contain the name of the person examined, and of his or her father (and if a married woman the name of her husband), the religion, caste, profession, and age of the deponent, and the village and pergunnah in which he or she resides.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 19, Sept. 17, 1864; also Bomb. H. Ct., Gaz., 1873, p. 20.

The examination of witnesses should invariably be conducted in the presence of the accused person. The evidence of witnesses in another trial is not evidence against a person charged with the same offence who has been subsequently apprehended (Cal. H. Ct., Kasseo Roy, January 27, 1863; Lalla Chowbay, 1 N. W. P.; Kolundass Doss, Ib., 100), unless the case fall within S. 227, ante.

To read the deposition of a witness on some former trial to the witness is not an examination of the witness in the presence of the accused as to his knowledge of the facts, which form the subject-matter of the accusation: a trial where evidence is thus taken is no legal trial. In every trial, no matter how often the case has been before the Court, the witnesses must be examined de novo in the same manner as if the case were entirely new, and the witnesses had not been examined before—Sheikh Kyamut, Suth. Rep., 1864, p. 1; Affazooddeen, Ibid., p. 13. It is not sufficient to read over his previous examination to a witness, calling upon the witness to identify the prisoner; and allowing the latter to cross-examine them.—Kanai Sheikh, Ibid., p. 38. See also Rajkrishna Mitter, 1 B. L. R., 37, Cr. Cr.

The following orders have been issued by the Calcutta High Court (H. Ct. Cir., No. 12, Nov. 27, 1865):—

The evidence of witnesses should be recorded as soon as possible after their attendance. If, from unavoidable cases, an adjournment is indispensable, there should be no unnecessary delay. Witnesses remaining over from one day should, as a rule, be examined at the first sitting of the Court on the following day. By this means the public will be put to no inconvenience, and justice will be administered in a prompt and satisfactory manner. Chief Magistrates of Districts are held responsible for the correction of any irregularities on the part of their subordinates in the discharge of witnesses.

Instead of examining the witnesses as soon as possible after their appearance at Court, in accordance with the positive directions of the above orders, the Deputy Magistrate was in the habit of temporarily discharging the witnesses and making them re-appear, in some cases several times before he passed his final decision. Such a mode of procedure is justly characterized in the Circular above cited as not only contrary to the spirit of the Criminal Procedure Code, but as calculated to deceive the superior authorities by placing before them fictitious returns of the punctual and regular examination and discharge of witnesses. The dishonesty of the practice cannot be too strongly condemned and the Lieutenant-Governor directs that all officers concerned be warned that any irregularity of the kind, whenever detected, will be severely punished.—Bengal Govt. Cir. 4442, July 10, 1869.

The Judges of the Chief Court, Punjab, have reason to believe that the register of witnesses attending Criminal Courts is very irregularly kept up, and frequently gives no indication of long detentions which occur in some Magistrates' Courts. Ch. XXV.
S. 359.

The Judges take this opportunity of reminding all Magistrates of the serious evils arising from undue detention of witnesses. In no point of criminal administration perhaps does the action of our Criminal Courts press more heavily upon the public, and in no matter does reform appear to be more imperatively called for.

It has been observed that Magistrates in some Districts adopt the system of not entering the witness as present, until the day on which the case may be made over to them by the Magistrate of the District. Delays between the arrival of the witnesses and the commencement of the inquiry by the Magistrate are very frequent, and often unnecessarily great; and it is obvious that if this period be not taken into account in the returns, they fail to show the true state of the case as to the period of detention, and the resulting inconvenience to the witnesses.

Where delay in the examination of witnesses has been animadverted on, it has frequently been urged that the witnesses have not appeared before the Magistrate on the day and hour at which by their recognizance they were bound to appear, in consequence of their detention in the Police office at the head-quarters of the District. If such detention occurs, it must be because Magistrates of Districts do not exercise that control over the Police officers of their Districts with which they are invested by law.

Magistrates of Districts should insist on cases sent in by the Police being brought before Magistrates having jurisdiction by the hour at which witnesses are pledged to attend. The provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure in reference to the appearance of parties, and witnesses before the Magistrate having jurisdiction after enquiry, mentioned in S. 170, guard carefully against delay and should be strictly adhered to.

The Court therefore finds it necessary to lay down the following rules on this subject :—

In Police cases, where recognizances are taken by the Police officer for the witnesses' appearance, the date entered in col. 2 of the Witness Register (date of arrival) shall be the date entered in the recognizance (S. 130, Criminal Procedure Code). The witnesses in such cases ordinarily arrive on the day fixed, or before it; and where the witness does not arrive by such date, this should be explained in the column of remarks, and the actual date of arrival entered in column 2. But ordinarily the date of arrival will be checked by the date mentioned in the recognizance, which is filed with the record. In checking the register, therefore, Magistrates should turn up a few cases and compare the dates in the register with the dates in the recognizances filed with the case; and if any discrepancy exists, which is unexplained in the column of remarks, the official who keeps the register should be called to account. As a necessary consequence, Sundays and holidays will be included in calculating the period of detention; and where any considerable delay has resulted from the intervention of holidays, this should be explained in the column of remarks; but Magistrates should make

Ch. XXV. special efforts to dismiss all witnesses in attendance on the day preceding a holiday.

Ss. 360, 361. Similarly, in cases where the witness appears on a summons issued from the Magistrate's Court, the date entered in column 2 of the register, should be the date mentioned in the summons as that fixed for his appearance. The same checks will apply.

A register in the prescribed form shall be kept up in every Magistrate's Court by one of the officials of the Court. It should be initialled by the Magistrate every week.

Where delay has occurred, and any considerable part of it is owing to the case having been detained in the Court of the Magistrate of the District, an explanation to that effect should be entered in the column of remarks.

The Magistrate of the District should check every month, a few of the diaries kept up in the Courts of his subordinates, and in the quarterly statement of attendance of witnesses he will certify that he has done so, adding remarks as to the result of his examination. If this certificate is omitted when the quarterly statement is received by the Commissioner, that officer should send back the statement, in order that the omission may be supplied.—Smyth, pp. 127—129.

360. As the evidence of each witness taken under section 356 or section 357 is completed, it shall be read over to him in the presence of the accused, if in attendance, or of his pleader, if he appears by pleader, and shall, if necessary, be corrected.

If the witness deny the correctness of any part of the evidence when the same is read over to him, the Magistrate or Sessions Judge may, instead of correcting the evidence, make a memorandum thereon of the objection made to it by the witness, and shall add such remarks as he thinks necessary.

If the evidence be taken down in a language different from that in which it has been given, and the witness does not understand the language in which it is taken down, the evidence so taken down shall be interpreted to him in the language in which it was given, or in a language which he understands.

(S. 339.)

361. Whenever any evidence is given in a language not understood by the accused and he is present in person, it shall be interpreted to him in open Court in a language understood by him.

Interpretation of evidence to accused or his pleader.

If he appears by pleader and the evidence is given in a language other than the language of the Court, and not understood by the pleader, it shall be interpreted to such pleader in that language. Ch. XXV.
Ss. 362, 363.

When documents are put in for the purpose of formal proof, it shall be in the discretion of the Court to interpret as much thereof as appears necessary.

(S. 340.)

Where the services of an interpreter are required by any Criminal Court for the interpretation of any evidence or statement, he shall be bound to state the true interpretation of any such evidence or statement. S. 543. Oaths or affirmations shall be made by interpreters of questions put to, and evidence given by witnesses unless he is an official interpreter of any Court after he has entered on his duties. The Indian Oaths' Act (X of 1813) S. 5 See note to S. 543 post for the form of oath or affirmation to be administered.

362. In every case in which a Presidency Magistrate imposes a fine exceeding two hundred rupees, or imprisonment for a term exceeding six months, he shall either take down the evidence of the witnesses with his own hand, or cause it to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court. All evidence so taken down shall be signed by the Magistrate and shall form part of the record.

Evidence so taken down shall ordinarily be recorded in the form of a narrative, but the Magistrate may in his discretion take down, or cause to be taken down, any particular question or answer.

Sentences passed under section 35 on the same occasion shall, for the purposes of this section, be considered as one sentence.

(Act IV, 1877, S. 115.)

363. When a Sessions Judge or Magistrate has recorded the evidence of a witness he shall also record such remarks (if any) as he thinks material respecting the demeanour of such witness whilst under examination.

Remarks respecting demeanour of witness.

(S. 341.)

Ch. XXV.

S. 364.

Examination of accused how recorded.

364. Whenever the accused is examined by any Magistrate, or by any Court other than a High Court established by Royal Charter or the Chief Court of the Panjab, the whole of such examination, including every question put to him and every answer given by him, shall be recorded in full, in the language in which he is examined, or, if that is not practicable, in the language of the Court or English; and such record shall be shown or read to him, or, if he does not understand the language in which it is written, shall be interpreted to him in a language which he understands, and he shall be at liberty to explain or add to his answers.

When the whole is made conformable to what he declares is the truth, the record shall be signed by the accused and the Magistrate or Judge of such Court, and such Magistrate or Judge shall certify under his own hand that the examination was taken in his presence and hearing, and that the record contains a full and true account of the statement made by the accused.

In cases in which the examination of the accused is not recorded by the Magistrate or Judge himself, he shall be bound, unless he is a Presidency Magistrate, as the examination proceeds, to make a memorandum thereof in the language of the Court, or in English, if he is sufficiently acquainted with the latter language; and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate or Judge with his own hand, and shall be annexed to the record. If the Magistrate or Judge is unable to make a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of such inability.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to apply to the examination of an accused person under section 263.

The examination of the accused is for the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing in evidence against him. With this object the Court may from time to time, at any stage of the inquiry or trial, put such questions as the Court considers necessary, and after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined and before he is called upon for his defence, the Court shall for the same purpose question him generally on the case. The accused is not bound to answer such questions; but the Court and the Jury (if any) may draw such inferences from his refusal or answers as it thinks just. The answers given by the accused may be taken into consideration in such inquiry or trial, and put on evidence for, or against him, in any other inquiry into or trial for any other offence which such answers may tend to show he has committed. S. 342. Ch. XXV.

S. 364.

The Police officer who brought the prisoner should not be present when a confession is taken, nor should he be allowed to suggest questions to be put. Though a confession so taken would be admissible as evidence, a Court would not attach much weight to it, as such a course suggests that the Magistrate was not really conducting the inquiry himself.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 7, July 30, 1873.

After having made a full confession, and its being read over to him, the accused retracted and said:—"I said this because the Police beat me." The Magistrate and the Sessions Judge both found the allegation to be false and the Judge mainly convicted on the confession, but the High Court as a Court of Reference rejected it as evidence.—Gurbad Bechan, 9 Bomb., 344.

"The examination of the accused shall be recorded in full in the language in which he is examined, or, if that is not practicable, in the language of the Court or in English."

It is exceedingly important that this should be strictly observed so that the exact shade of expression made use of by an accused person should be deducible from his recorded statement, his whole statement being recorded in extenso precisely as made.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro., May 13, 1867, Weir 247.

The examination of an accused person should be recorded in the language in which it is delivered, notwithstanding that the Local Government may, under S. 357, have ordered that the evidence shall be recorded in English.—Gonesh Koormee, 4 W. R., 1; also 3 W. R., 14, C. L. It shall contain the name of the person examined, that of his or her father (and if a married woman that of her husband), the religion, caste, profession, and age of the person examined, and the village or pergunnah in which he or she resides.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 19, 1864; also Bomb. H. Ct. Gaz., 1873, p. 20.

The following has been prescribed by the Calcutta High Court as the form in which the examination of an accused person is to be recorded (Cir. 3, March 24, 1880; Wilkins, 73.)

The examination of _____, aged about _____ years taken before me _____, Magistrate of the _____ class,

Where an interpreter is employed, the examination of the accused should be recorded in the language in which it is communicated to the Court by the interpreter. Vaimbillee, I. L. R., 5 Cal., 826. The omission to record in the vernacular the questions put to the prisoner, (they being recorded in English by the Magistrate) did not prejudice the prisoner as the questions were of such a nature that it was immaterial

Ch. XXV. to the sense and meaning of the statement made whether they were recorded or not.—Titoo Mya, 1 Cal. L. R., FULL BENCH.

S. 364. The certificate need not be written by the Magistrate himself. It is to be under his hand, that is, signed by him.—Reza Hossein, 8 W. R., 55.

The law requires attestation by the signature of the Magistrate and is not satisfied by the affixing of an unreadable initial to what purports to be the statement of the accused —Bhikaree, 15 W. R., 63.

The Madras High Court has disapproved of any general instructions being issued to the Magistracy in regard to questioning accused persons as to the voluntariness of confessions made by them. The High Court added :—When a confessional statement is put in before a Court which is to try the prisoner, that Court is to be satisfied that the confession was really made. Undoubtedly great care is required in testing such statements, but experience shows that a man who has made a perfectly free and true confession is so astonished in his passage through several Courts that people seem not to believe him that he at last retracts.—Pro, Dec. 15, 1871 ; 7 Mad. Jur., 136.

The explanation to S. 193 should be borne in mind in connection with S. 346. The answer given by an accused person may be put in evidence against him, not only in the case under inquiry, but also in trials for any other offences which his replies may tend to show he has committed.

S. 30 of the Evidence Act (I of 1872) is also important. It is to the following effect :—

When more persons than one are being tried jointly for the same offence, and a confession made by one of such persons affecting himself and some other of such persons is proved, the Court may take into consideration such confession as against such other person as well as against the person who makes such confession.

Illustrations.

(a.) A and B are jointly tried for the murder of C. It is proved that A said,—‘B and I murdered C.’ The Court may consider the effect of this confession as against B.

(b.) A is on his trial for the murder of C. There is evidence to show that C was murdered by A and B, and that B said—‘A and I murdered C.’

The judgments of the High Court on this section have been collected in a note in the Appendix, the substance being that to make a confession by an accused evidence against another tried jointly for the same offence, it must be sufficient of itself to convict the former of that offence.

Where the attestation and certificate to a statement made by an accused person are wanting, an Appellate Court is not competent to direct them to be supplied and to receive that statement as evidence. The absence of attestation or certificate is not necessarily fatal, but before acting on a statement wanting such, an Appellate Court is bound to take evidence and satisfy itself that the prisoner duly made the statement recorded.—Vyankatra Srinibas, 7 Bomb., 59, Crown Cases.

S. 346 declares that “the accused person shall sign or attest by his mark,” this is not satisfied by the following subscription :—

“Signature of A B (the accused) the handwriting of C D”—Where the conviction of a person was substantially based upon a confession thus subscribed, it was reversed, the High Court holding that the Sessions Judge was bound to prevent such a confession being admitted as evidence.—Bomb. H. Ct., Daya Anand, March 12, 1874. Ch. XXV.

If any Court before which a confession or other statement of an accused person recorded under S. 164 or S. 364 is tendered in evidence finds that the provisions of such section have not been fully complied with by the Magistrate recording the statement, it shall take evidence that such person duly made the statement recorded and notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Evidence Act, S. 91, such statement shall be admitted, if the error has not injured the accused as by his defence on the merits. S. 533. It should be noted that the terms of the section will generally enable a Court to correct any omission or irregularity in the record of a confession made either before or during the course of an inquiry which, under the Code of 1872, the High Courts have held could not be remedied in a confession recorded under S. 122 of that Code. It is unnecessary to quote those rulings which are now obsolete. S. 365. Ch. XXVI. S. 366.

365. Every High Court established by Royal Charter and the Chief Court of the Punjab may from time to time by general rule prescribe the manner in which evidence shall be taken down in cases coming before the Court, and the Judges of such Court shall take down the evidence or the substance thereof in accordance with the rule (if any) so prescribed.
(Act X, 1875, S. 68.)

CHAPTER XXVI.

OF THE JUDGMENT.

The rules contained in this Chapter shall apply as far as practicable to the judgment of an Appellate Court other than a High Court. Provided that unless the Appellate Court otherwise directs, the accused shall not be brought up or required to attend to hear judgment delivered. S. 424.

366. The judgment in every trial in any Criminal Court of original jurisdiction shall be pronounced in open Court either immediately or at some subsequent time of which due notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders; and the accused shall, if in custody, be brought up, or if not in custody shall be required to attend, to hear judgment delivered, except where his personal attendance during the trial has been dispensed with and the Mode of delivering judgment.

Ch. XXVI. sentence is one of fine only, in which case it may be
 s. 367. pronounced in the presence of his pleader.
 (S. 211, para. 3; S. 462.)

The personal attendance of the accused may be dispensed with by a Magistrate in any case in which he issues a summons. S. 205. It is unnecessary unless otherwise ordered by the Appellate Court for the purpose of hearing judgment delivered in his appeal. S. 424.

367. Every such judgment shall, except as otherwise expressly provided by this Code, be written by the presiding officer of the Court in the language of the Court, or in English; and shall contain the point or points for determination, the decision thereon, and the reasons for the decision; and shall be dated and signed by the presiding officer in open Court at the time of pronouncing it.

It shall specify the offence (if any) of which, and the section of the Indian Penal Code or other law under which, the accused is convicted, and the punishment to which he is sentenced.

 1- When the conviction is under the Indian Penal Code, and it is doubtful under which of two sections, or under which of two parts of the same section, of that Code the offence falls, the Court shall distinctly express the same, and pass judgment in the alternative.

If it be a judgment of acquittal, it shall state the offence of which the accused is acquitted and direct that he be set at liberty.

If the accused is convicted of an offence punishable with death, and the Court sentences him to any punishment other than death, the Court shall in its judgment state the reason why sentence of death was not passed:

Provided that, in trials by jury, the Court need not write a judgment, but the Court of Session shall record the heads of the charge to the jury-

(S. 255, last para.; S. 287, para. 2; Ss. 461, 463, 464.)

The Local Government may determine what, for the purposes of the Code, shall be deemed the language of each Court within the territories administered by such Government. S. 556.

Section 367 does not provide for an alternative finding in a case in which it is doubtful of which of two offences under the same part of the same section the accused person is guilty,—for instance, a case in which a person is charged with having intentionally given false evidence in making one statement, and again with the same offence in making a diametrically opposite statement. It has been usual to enter each of these offences in a separate head of the charge and for some attempt to be made by the prosecution to prove one or other of these offences, and for the Court of Session, if not satisfied with the evidence as to the truth or falseness of either statement, but still being satisfied from the contradiction that the accused is guilty of having intentionally given false evidence, to convict in the alternative form of finding. But though S. 367 does not expressly provide for this procedure, it will be seen from a reference to the last form of charge given in Schedule V, No. 28 (II) that it is contemplated that such charges should be made in one charge, and not in two separate heads as heretofore. Probably, therefore, if any evidence is offered, or is likely to be offered in proof of the falseness or truth of one of such contradictory statements, a separate head of the charge will be made so as to provide for each offence and the alternative form of charge will also be given.

The Calcutta High Court (present the Chief Justice, and six Judges concurring; Jackson and Phear, JJ., dis.) held, that on a charge of intentionally giving false evidence in making two contradictory statements [see Schedule V, No. 28 (II), last form of charge], the Court or Jury, if convicting, need not by direct evidence find which of the two statements is true, but that it is sufficient that there should be a finding, that the allegations made in the charge are proved.—Mahomed Hama-yoon Shah, 21 W. R., 72.

Though it is advisable to offer some evidence as to the truth or falseness of one of the statements, this is not indispensable to a legal conviction. See the case of Ganowree, 22 W. R., 2, in which the contradictory statements made were the only evidence offered.

It is the duty of every Judge if he thinks that the committing Magistrate has acted erroneously to point out the error.—Mad. H. Ct., Pro. Feb. 24, 1879; Weir, 138.

The responsibility rests with the Sessions Judge to decide whether there are circumstances of extenuation sufficient to justify the infliction of a punishment less than death.—He should not therefore pass sentence of death and refer the case to the High Court with a recommendation to mercy.—Mad. H. Ct., April 24, 1866; Weir, 210.

The terms "heads of the charge" must be construed reasonably, and must be held to include such a statement on the part of the Sessions Judge as will enable the Appellate Court to decide whether the evidence has been properly laid before the Jury, or whether there has been any misdirection in the charge.—Kasim Sheikh, 23 W. R., 32. But it need not be reduced to writing before delivery.—Cal. H. Ct. Memo. 2, 1875; 23 W. R., 7, Rules, &c.

Ch. XXVI. No sentence of transportation shall specify the
 S. 369. Sentence of transport- place to which the person senation. tenced is to be transported.
 (Ss. 319, 321.)

The Sessions Judge should fix the time and place for carrying out sentences of death, and should give orders regarding the disposal of the corpses of executed convicts.—Cal. H. Ct., 1863.

Capital sentences are passed by Sessions Judges subject to confirmation by the High Court to whom the proceedings are referred. Ss. 375—379 of this Code lay down the procedure to be followed by that Court, and Ss. 381, 382 declare how such sentences shall be executed.

Sch. V, No. 34 gives the form of warrant of commitment to Jail under sentence of death, and No. 35 that of warrant of execution after sentence of death has been confirmed.

The proper form of passing sentence of transportation in cases in which imprisonment can be imposed for seven years or upwards is, in accordance with S. 59, Penal Code, to sentence the convict to transportation, recording that, under that law, such transportation is awarded instead of imprisonment, simple or rigorous, as the case may be.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 9, Aug. 3, 1866; Panj. C. Ct. Cir. 25, Sept. 26, 1866. But see Sch. V, No. 36. Under the Penal Code, no offence is made punishable with transportation for a term of years, otherwise than by this process of commutation.

369. No Court, other than a High Court, when Court not to alter judg- it has signed its judgment shall ment. alter or review the same, except as provided in section 395 or to correct a clerical error.
 (S. 461, para. 1.)

When judgment has been signed by a Magistrate, it cannot, by law, be altered by him. But on finding that he has passed an illegal sentence, a Magistrate may, if the prisoner is suffering prejudice, direct the Jailor to suspend execution and merely keep the prisoner in detention, which should in no case exceed the term of imprisonment awarded, until the orders of the High Court are received on his reference. Empress v. Tukaram Ramji, Bomb. H. Ct. 29, 1878.

When an illegal sentence of whipping in addition to imprisonment, was passed by a Magistrate, and the discovery of the illegality was made before execution, but after sentence had been pronounced and signed, it was held that such sentence could be altered only by the High Court.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Nov. 13, 1873; 8 Mad. Jur., 466. Puran Mal., 23 W. R., 49.

Magistrates of the second or third class should submit to the District Magistrates a calendar of every case in which conviction takes place within twenty-four hours of the sentence being passed, to enable the District Magistrate at once to take measures towards rectifying injury done by an illegal sentence.—Bomb. H. Ct. Cir., p. 43.

Such copy shall, in any case other than a summons-case, be given free of cost.

In trials by jury in a Court of Session, a copy of the heads of the charge to the jury shall, on the application of the accused, be given to him without delay and free of cost.

(Act XI, 1874, Ss. 22, 41, para. 1.)

Ch. XXVI. In exercise of the power conferred by S. 35 of the Court Fees' Act (VII of 1870) the Governor-General in Council has remitted the fees leviable on account of a copy of the judgment or order passed by a Criminal Court and of a Judge's charge to the Jury furnished on the application of any party affected by such judgment or order, provided that such person is in Jail, or the Court, for some special reason sees fit to grant such copy free of expense. Govt. India, Not. 996, June 6, 1873.

S. 371.

S. 371 in some respects goes beyond this Notification because it provides that except in summons cases, a copy of the judgment and in trials by Jury, a copy of the heads of the charge to the Jury shall be given to the accused free of cost without any reservation that he has been convicted still less that he is in Jail or entitled to special indulgence. On the other hand the Notification makes no reservation regarding summons cases except that the accused is in Jail, or the Court, for some special reason thinks fit to grant a copy of the judgment free of expense. S. 548 provides that if any person affected by a judgment or order passed by a Criminal Court desires to have a copy of the Judge's charge to the Jury or of any order or deposition or other part of the record, he shall, on applying for such copy, be furnished therewith: provided that he pay for the same, unless the Court, for some special reason, thinks fit to furnish it free of cost. An application for a copy of a judgment or order or the heads of the Judge's charge to the Jury must be made on a paper bearing a Stamp of one anna.—Court Fees' Act (VII of 1870), Sch. II, Art. 1 (a).

The Sessions Judge or officer in charge of the Jail should affix his signature to the application or to the envelope in which it is transmitted. This will afford sufficient proof that the application really emanates from the person sentenced. Every reasonable facility consistent with the requirements of the law should be given to prisoners who consider that they have been unjustly dealt with and are desirous of appealing to a superior Court.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Aug. 4, 1864; Weir, 278.

The ordinary charge for a copy is at the rate of eight annas for every three hundred and sixty words or fraction of three hundred and sixty words.—Act. VII of 1870, Sch. I, Art. 9.

Copies of evidence on a trial are not exempt from payment of the usual Court Fees, unless, for some special reason the Court thinks fit to furnish them free of cost. S. 548 post.

When the Judge's notes form the only record of a case, the parties should be allowed to have copies of such notes on paying the authorized charge for making the same.—Subbayya Gaundan, 1 Mad., 138.

The period within which an appeal should be preferred from a sentence of death passed by a Sessions Judge is seven days from the date of the sentence.—Act XV of 1877, Sch. II, Art. 150.

S. 271B of the repealed Code enacted by Act XI, 1874, S. 22, required the Sessions Judge in such cases to delay the transmission of the reference to the High Court for a reasonable time, not exceeding seven days, so as to allow the appeal and reference being made at the same time. This has not been re-enacted in the present Code, but the Sessions Judges should exercise such a discretion as heretofore.

372. The original judgment shall be filed with Ch. XXVI.

the original is recorded in a different language from that of the Court, and the accused so requires, a translation thereof into the language of the Court shall be added to such record.

(S. 464, para. 3.)

373. In cases tried by the Court of Session, the Court shall forward a copy of its finding and sentence (if any) to the District Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the trial was held.

Court of Session to send copy of finding and sentence to District Magistrate.

On application made by the Magistrate of the District or the Sessions Judge for a copy of any judgment delivered by him, the Judge should permit a copy to be made by any person whom the Magistrate may depute for that purpose. Such copies will be granted to Magistrates and committing officers only for their information and guidance; they are not at liberty to cavil at the judgment of the Sessions Court, or to enter into any discussion with the Judge upon its merits.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir., 1, Jan. 1, 1864; Wilkins, 109.

Sessions Judges should give every facility to Magistrates, and District Superintendents of Police for inspecting the records of cases in their Courts and for the preparation of copies by clerks sent by the District Magistrate, care being taken that the records are not removed from the Judge's office.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. No. 5, Sept. 21, 1880; Wilkins, 127. When the Divisional Commissioner requires the records of a criminal trial in order to satisfy himself whether Government should be moved to direct an appeal against an original or appellate judgment of acquittal the Sessions Judge should comply with the requisition.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir., Jan. 12, 1877; Wilkins, 127.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Ss. 374, 375.

OF THE SUBMISSION OF SENTENCES FOR CONFIRMATION.

374. When the Court of Session passes sentence of death, the proceedings shall be submitted to the High Court, and the sentence shall not be executed unless it is confirmed by the High Court.
(S. 287, para. 1.)

On passing sentence of death, the Sessions Judge should give immediate intimation to the Superintendent of the Jail in which the condemned prisoner is confined, in order that proper precautions may be taken for his safe custody.—All. H. Ct. Cir. 3, April 22, 1873.

Sch. V, No. 34 provides a special form of warrant of commitment to Jail on passing of a sentence of death by a Sessions Court subject to confirmation of the High Court.

The Sessions Judge should also record whether he has inquired whether the convict desires to appeal against that order, and that he has informed him that such appeal must be made within seven days as directed by S. 371, last clause.—All. H. Ct., Cir. 1, Jan. 29, 1873.

The responsibility rests with the Sessions Judge to determine whether there are circumstances of extenuation sufficient to justify the infliction of a punishment less than death. He should not therefore pass sentence of death and refer the case to the High Court with a recommendation to mercy.—Mad. H. Ct., April 24, 1866; Weir, 210.

The MADRAS High Court (Pro., Aug. 6, 1864; Pro., Aug. 12, 1862) have ordered that in referring a case to the High Court for confirmation of the sentence of death, the particulars of the evidence and the Judge's remarks should be embodied in a letter to the Registrar, and that an English translation of the whole of the evidence given at the trial should also be submitted.

375. If when such proceedings are submitted the High Court thinks that a further inquiry should be made into, or additional evidence taken upon, any point bearing upon the guilt or innocence of the convicted person, it may make such inquiry or take such evidence itself or direct it to be made or taken by the Court of Session.

Such inquiry shall not be made nor shall such evidence be taken in the presence of jurors or assessors, and, unless the High Court otherwise directs, the presence of the convicted person may be dispensed with Ch. XXVII.

when the same is made or taken.

When the inquiry and the evidence (if any) are Ss. 376, 377.
not made and taken by the High Court, the result of such inquiry and the evidence shall be certified to such Court.

(S. 289)

376. In any case submitted under section 374, Power of High Court to whether tried with the aid of as-confirm sentence or annul sessors or by jury, the High Court—conviction.

(a) may confirm the sentence, or pass any other sentence warranted by law, or

(b) may annul the conviction, and convict the accused of any offence of which the Sessions Court might have convicted him, or order a new trial on the same or an amended charge, or

(c) may acquit the accused person :

Provided that no order of confirmation shall be made under this section until the period allowed for preferring an appeal has expired, or, if an appeal is presented within such period, until such appeal is disposed of.

(S. 288.)

The High Court are bound to go into the facts of the case, although the conviction was by verdict of a Jury.—Jaffir Ali, 19 W. R., 57. See also Ramsodoy Chuckerbutty, 19 W. R., 19, in which, contrary to the verdict of the Jury concurred in by the Sessions Judge, the majority of the Judges of the High Court acquitted on the evidence.

he were hanged, decapitation would ensue. He was accordingly sen-

377. In every case so submitted, the confirmation Confirmation or new of the sentence, or any new sen-sentence to be signed by tence or order passed by the High two Judges. Court, shall, when such Court consists of two or more Judges, be made, passed and signed by at least two of them.

378. When any such case is heard before a Bench of Judges and such Judges are equally divided in opinion, the case, with their opinions thereon, shall be laid before another Judge, and such Judge, after such examination and hearing as he thinks fit, shall deliver his opinion, and the judgment or order shall follow such opinion.
(S. 271 B; Act XI, 1874; S. 22, last para.)

The same provision is made by S. 429 for a similar contingency in an appeal.

379. In cases submitted by the Court of Session to the High Court for the confirmation of a sentence of death, the proper officer of the High Court shall, without delay, after the order of confirmation or other order has been made by the High Court, send a copy of the order, under the seal of the High Court, and attested with his official signature, to the Court of Session.

(S. 301, para. 1.)

Ss. 381, 383 declare the course to be taken by the Sessions Judge on receipt of the copy of the order of the High Court.

380. When a sentence passed by an Assistant Sessions Judge or by a District Magistrate acting under section 34 is submitted to a Sessions Judge for confirmation, such Sessions Judge—

(a) may confirm the sentence, or pass any other sentence which the lower Court might have passed; or

(b) may annul the conviction, and convict the accused of any offence of which the lower Court might have convicted him, or order a new trial on the same or an amended charge; or

(c) may acquit the accused; or

(d) if he thinks further inquiry or additional evidence upon any point bearing upon the guilt or innocence of the accused to be necessary, he may make such inquiry or take such evidence himself or direct such inquiry or evidence to be made or taken.

Unless the Court of Sessions otherwise directs, the presence of the convicted person may be dispensed with when such inquiry is made or evidence taken; and, when the sentence has been submitted by an Assistant Sessions Judge, such inquiry shall not be made, nor shall such evidence be taken, in the presence of jurors or assessors. C. XXVIII.
S. 381.

When the inquiry and the evidence (if any) are not made and taken by the Court of Sessions, the result of such inquiry and the evidence shall be certified to such Court.

(Ss. 18, 36.)

The powers thus given to a Sessions Judge are identical with those given to the High Court under Ss. 375, 376, except that his powers of sentence are limited to those of the Court referring the case for confirmation. See Ss. 31, 34.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

OF EXECUTION.

381. When a sentence of death passed by a Court of Session is submitted to the High Court for confirmation, such Court of Session shall, on receiving the order of confirmation or other order of the High Court thereon, cause such order to be carried into effect by issuing a warrant or taking such other steps as may be necessary.

(S. 301, para. 2.)

If the sentence of death is confirmed a warrant in the form given in Sch. V, No. 35 should be issued to the Jailor

It is the duty of the Sessions Judge to fix the time and place of execution of sentence of death.

In BENGAL it has been ordered that such a warrant shall fix a time for execution of the sentence at an interval not less than fourteen or more than twenty-one days from the date of issue of the warrant.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir., March 8, 1876. See also Bengal Govt. Cir. April 7, 1876.

In MADRAS it has been ordered by Government that sentences of death shall not be carried into execution by officers in charge of Jails until the fifteenth day after the receipt from the Court of Session of the warrant issued under S. 381 after confirmation of such sentence by the High Court, and that in cases from the Ganjam, Vizagapatam, and Canara Districts, such sentences shall not be carried into execution until

C. XXVIII. the twenty-second day after the said date.—Govt. Order, May 23, 1873.

S. 382. In BOMBAY it has been ordered that there shall be at least fourteen days from the receipt of the order of confirmation of sentence.—Bomb. H. Ct. Cir. 382, 1866.

Warrants for the execution of capital sentences should be addressed to the officer in charge of the Jail, but it is necessary that the execution should be superintended by the Magistrate or some Magisterial officer deputed by him for that purpose. The officer in charge of the Jail should communicate with the Magistrate of the District and take his orders as to details.

All sentences of capital punishment shall be carried out at the Sudder Station unless it be otherwise ordered in the warrant. The spot at which the execution is to take place shall be fixed by the Magistrate of the District, and shall generally be at such distance from habitations that no annoyance need be caused to the public by the spectacle. No execution should take place within the Jail walls, and no attempt should be made to give anything of a private character to the execution, but at the same time undue publicity should not be courted. To this end the early morning should be the time selected for execution. The prisoners in the Jail should not be made to attend. The medical officer should attend throughout the execution. The body should hang for one hour, and should not be taken down until the medical officer declares life to be extinct.—Govt. of Bengal, Oct. 4, 1869.

When the officer in charge of a Jail is a Civil Surgeon, or Chief medical officer, no Magistrate need attend to witness execution of a sentence of death, unless the Commissioner or Magistrate of the District should think it desirable, but when the officer in charge of the Jail is of no special rank, the Magistrate or a Subordinate deputed by him should be present at the execution.—Govt. of Bengal Cir. 92, July 24, 1873.

In the warrant which a Sessions Judge issues to the Jailor for the execution of a sentence of death, he should direct execution to be carried out in the presence of a Magistrate of the first class or District Superintendent or Assistant District Superintendent of Police. It should also be stated in the warrant that execution is to be carried out on a day to be named that shall be at least fourteen days from the date of the receipt of the confirmation of the sentence by the High Court.—Bomb. H. Ct. Cir., 65, 66.

382. If a woman sentenced to death be found to be pregnant, the High Court shall order the execution of the sentence to be postponed, and may commute the sentence to transportation for life.

(S. 306.)

The pregnancy should be certified by the Civil Surgeon, and the warrant returned to the Sessions Judge with an endorsement to that effect.—Agra Sud. Ct., 1861.

In such a case the Sessions Judge is competent only to direct postponement of the execution of the sentence until further orders of the High Court. The Madras High Court limited the postponement of execution of sentence of death until such time after the delivery of the woman as was necessary to obtain its further orders. The Court further directed that the delivery of the woman be reported with the least possible delay, and to be accompanied with a statement of the opinion of the medical officer of the Jail as to the date on which the prisoner would be able to undergo the sentence passed on her.—Pro. June 4, 1879; Weir, 225.

portation or imprisonment in cases other than those provided for by section 381, the Court passing the sentence shall forthwith forward a warrant to the jail in which he is to be confined, and, unless the accused is already confined in such jail, shall forward him to such jail, with the warrant.

(S. 302 A, cl. 1; Act XI, 1874, S. 32.)

Sch. V, No. 36 gives a form of warrant after a commutation of sentence of imprisonment to transportation.

The Governor-General in Council may, from time to time, appoint places within British India to which persons sentenced to transportation shall be sent: and the Local Government, or some officer duly authorized in this behalf by the Local Government, shall give orders for the removal of such persons to the places so appointed, except when sentence of transportation is passed on a person already undergoing transportation under a sentence previously passed for another offence.—Act IX, 1882.

Warrants of imprisonment directed to Superintendents of District Jails shall be in the English language; and warrants directed to the keepers of sub-divisional Lock-ups shall issue in the Vernacular except where the sentence is for imprisonment of a longer term than fifteen days in which case the warrants issued by sub-divisional authorities shall, if possible, be in English.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 10, August 27, 1873.

The residence of the convict should be entered in the warrant to enable the proper preparation by Police officers of the "Roll of Released Prisoners," after expiry of the sentence.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 7, Sept. 10, 1868; 1 B. L. R., Rules, &c.; 15, and Agra Sud. Ct. Cir. 7 f, 1866.

Every Criminal Court, when it passes sentence of imprisonment or transportation, shall endorse on the back of the warrant of sentence—

1. The age of the convict; 2. His caste; 3. His place of residence.

If after trial any previous conviction has been established, there should also be endorsed.

1. The offence of which the convict was previously convicted.
2. The sentence passed upon him for that offence.
3. The date of that sentence.

C. XXVIII. 4. Name and designation of the trying authority.—Bomb. H. Ct. Cir., p. 15.

S. 384. When the accused person is a soldier or person holding any rank in the army, the warrant of imprisonment shall set forth accurately the rank of the prisoner and the Regiment or Military Department to which he belongs.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 12, Nov. 28, 1873.

The MADRAS High Court has issued the following orders on this subject :—

All warrants or orders addressed to officers in charge of Central or District Jails by Judicial or Magisterial officers shall, whenever practicable, be prepared in the English language.

In every case in which two or more persons are jointly charged and convicted of an offence before a Court of Session or Magistrate, it shall be necessary to issue a separate warrant or order for the commitment to prison of each person under the sentence passed upon him.

Orders or Warrants directing the release of a prisoner should be addressed to the officer in charge of the Jail and sent direct to him.—Mad. H. Ct., Jan. 9, 1867 ; Feb. 8, 1867 ; and March 13, 1868 ; Weir, App. xlvii.

When a prisoner is acquitted after trial by a Session Court, it is not necessary to send a formal warrant of release to the Superintendent of the Jail.—Id. Oct. 30, 1869 ; Weir, App. l.

A Register of warrants in the following form has been ordered by the CALCUTTA High Court (Cir. 167, May 15, 1835 ; 11, Oct. 1, 1866 ; 1, Jan. 11, 1871 ; Wilkins, 6) to be kept by Sessions Judges :—

(S. 303.)

See note to S. 383.

The date of the termination of all terms of imprisonment should be distinctly expressed in the warrants of commitment. In cases in which the imprisonment is to take effect on the expiration of a previous sentence, the commencement of the imprisonment is to be stated accordingly.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. No. 3, Dec. 19, 1876; Wilkins, 71. C. XXVIII.
Ss. 385, 386.

Whenever a soldier is committed to jail whether for trial or under sentence, his military rank shall always be stated in the warrant of commitment, in order that due notice may be given to the Military authorities of the day and hour on which his imprisonment will expire, as required by the 33rd clause of the Mutiny Act.—Smyth, p. 148; Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 12, November 28, 1873.

385. When the prisoner is to be confined in a jail, the warrant shall be lodged with the jailor.

(S. 304.)

Act V, 1871, S. 16, empowers officers in charge of prisons outside Presidency-towns to give effect to any sentence or order or warrant for the detention of any person passed or issued by any Court or tribunal acting under the authority of any Local Government.

A warrant under the official signature of such Court or tribunal shall be sufficient authority for holding any prisoner in confinement or sending any prisoner for transportation beyond the sea in pursuance of the sentence passed upon him. S. 17.

Any officer in charge of a prison doubting the legality of any warrant sent to him for execution, or the competency of the person, whose official seal and signature are affixed thereto, to pass the sentence and issue such warrant, shall refer the matter to the Local Government, by whose order on the case such officer and all other public officer and all other public officers shall be guided as to the future disposal of the prisoner.

Pending any such reference, the prisoner shall be detained in such manner and with such restrictions or mitigations as may be specified in the warrant. S. 18.

386. Whenever an offender is sentenced to pay a fine, the Court passing the sentence may, in its discretion, issue a warrant for the levy of the amount by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender, although the sentence directs that, in default of payment of the fine, the offender shall be imprisoned.

(S. 307, para. 1.)

Sch. V, No. 37 gives a form of warrant to levy a fine by distress and sale.

Act I, 1868, S. 5 declares that the provisions of Ss. 63—70 (both inclusive) of the Penal Code, shall apply to all fines imposed under the authority of any Act hereafter to be passed, unless such Act shall contain a special provision to the contrary.

C. XXVIII.

S. 386.

Of the sections of the Penal Code referred to, S. 70 is very important in the matter of the levy of fines, inasmuch as it declares that a fine or any portion thereof which remains unpaid may be levied at any time within six years after the passing of the sentence, and, if under the sentence, the offender be liable to imprisonment for a longer period than six years, then at any time previous to the expiration of that period: and the death of the offender does not discharge from the liability any property which would after his death be legally liable for his debts.

From the terms of S. 386 of this Code and S. 70, Penal Code, it will be seen that although a sentence of imprisonment on default of payment of the fine may be passed or be in course of execution, or even undergone, the offender is still liable for the amount unpaid until the expiration of six years after the passing of the sentence and the Court which passed the sentence may issue a warrant for its realisation at any time within that period.

A sentence of fine must be specific as to each person fined. It is not legal to pass a sentence of fine of a certain amount on the prisoners individually and collectively.—5 Mad. App. v.; Pro. Nov. 11, 1869.

The Calcutta High Court (4 W. R., C. L. 6), has held that although under the Code of Criminal Procedure only moveable property belonging to the offender is liable in satisfaction of a fine, under the terms of S. 70 of the Penal Code, after his death, any property which would be legally liable for his debts would be liable to the payment of a fine remaining unpaid at his death, the restriction as to the distress and sale of moveable property continuing only during the lifetime of the offender. The Bombay High Court, however, declined to follow this rule in the case of Lalla Karwar, 5 Bomb, Crown Case, 63.

S. 70, Penal Code, is permissive not imperative. The Court should exercise its discretion according to the circumstances of each particular case. If there is reason to believe that the convict is able to pay and is preferring to undergo imprisonment, this law should be strictly enforced: but if it appears that the fine was not paid for want of means, or that its realization would be ruinous to the offender or his family, it is not desirable that further steps should be taken.—Smyth, p. 109.

“Such of any moveable property belonging to the offender.” The language of S. 386 denotes things which may be taken by distress and then sold so as by the mere act of sale to pass the property on them, but mere rights and interest in shares or joint moveable.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Feb. 14, 1867; Weir, 227. Standing crops are not moveable property within the meaning of S. 386.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Nov. 18, 1878; Weir, 228.

There should be no delay in the levy of a fine. It should not be deferred until the result of any appeal that the convict may make be known; nor can the Appellate Court order a lower Court to abstain from issuing the warrant for the levy of a fine.—2 W. R., C. L., 13.

The warrant for the levy of a fine should be directed to a Police officer, and should fix a time for the sale and for the return of the warrant. If no one claims the property distrained, the Police have the power of selling it within the time that should be specified in the warrant without any previous reference to the Magistrate; if a claimant comes forward, then the ownership of the property distrained must be determined by the Magistrate, and not by the Police. If, at any time subsequent to the return of the warrant, and within the period of six years from the passing of a sentence, the fine or any part thereof remains unpaid (S 70, Penal Code), and the Magistrate, from information gained in any way, has reason to think that any moveable property belonging to the offender is within his jurisdiction, he should issue a fresh warrant for the attachment and sale of that property within a specified period returnable within a certain time.—Cal. H. Ct., No. 8, June 22, 1864. Wilkins, 111. 44 Bomb. H. Ct. Cir., S. 386 applies only to British India. Fines therefore cannot be realized in any Foreign State.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. July 28, 1878. Weir, 229.

C. XXVIII.

S. 387.

In Bengal, under the Court Fees' Act, a fee of one rupee has been fixed on every warrant of levy of fine, and a percentage on the amount of fine, viz., 2 per cent. on sums not exceeding Rs. 100; and when the sum exceeds Rs. 100, then 2 per cent. on Rs. 100, and 1 per cent. on the amount of excess. Such percentage is to be deducted from the proceeds of the property sold, or to be paid, together with the amount levied, and with the other costs of process as stated in the warrant.—Cal. Gaz., 1874, p. 478; 21 W. R., Rules, &c., p. 12. This rule would however, apply only to non-cognizable cases, see Court Fees' Act (VII, 1870), S. 20, Cl. ii.

387. Such warrant may be executed within the Effect of such warrant. local limits of the jurisdiction of such Court, and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any such property without such limits, when endorsed by the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such property is found.

(S. 307, para. 2.)

The Civil Ministerial officer of the Court is held responsible that on realisation of the fine, on non-payment of which alternative imprisonment has been attached, immediate intimation be given to the Jail authorities.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. March 12, 1867; Weir, App. xxii.

If an adverse title be set up to property attached by order of a Magistrate for the levy of a fine, the Magistrate should inquire into the matter.—Cal. H. Ct., 435, 1864.

The following orders on this subject have been issued by the Chief Court, Panjab. Smyth, pp. 109—111.

Whenever a fine is imposed, whether it is in addition to imprisonment, or whether it is the only punishment, a separate written order should be signed and sealed by the Magistrate imposing the fine. This should be a lithographed form addressed to the Court Inspector, or Deputy Court Inspector, or other official discharging the duties of the Court Inspector, or to the Sheriff in districts not under the organized Police. This writ is returnable in one fortnight, during which period the offender will be informed in person of the amount of the fine imposed by the Magistrate; the Police will inform the friends of the offender and if they tender the money, the same will be certified to the

- C. XXVIII. Magistrate, who, when the party is under restraint, will at once notify the same to the Darogah of the Jail. If within that period no tender is made, the fact of notice given will be endorsed on the return, and in either case the work of the Police is done.
- S. 387.

When fine is the only punishment imposed for a non-heinous offence, and the offender is notoriously a man of substance residing in the district, the Magistrate is at liberty to allow him to remain on bail or personal recognizance at large for the period of one week, so as to admit of his arranging for the payment of his fine, at the close of this period, imprisonment will be enforced in default. The Court Inspector or Sheriff in districts where the Police is not organized, should be informed by a written order of the term of grace allowed, at the close of which they will take care that, if the fine is not tendered to them, the warrant of arrest and imprisonment is issued. (See S. 388 of the Code)

At every head-quarter station, every out-station, and station of Cantonment Magistrate, Honorary Magistrate, and Tehseeldar, there will be one vernacular Fine Register, and it will be the duty of the reader of each Court to see that fines issued by the Judicial officer on whom he attends are entered the same day in that register. This register should be signed daily by the Magistrate of the District at head-quarter stations and by the Judicial officer at out-stations, and every order to realize a fine should bear a memorandum of having been registered with its number.

The Registrar of Fines is to be specially charged with the custody of the above register, and the duty of seeing that the necessary measures are taken from time to time to realize the fine. He should look for his orders to the officer who daily under the above rule signs the register. Where there is no Registrar of Fines, the duty should be entrusted to one of the departmental clerks.

When the Court Inspector or the Sheriff, as the case may be, has certified that the fine has not been realized by his efforts (which are restricted to an oral demand for payment, it remains for the Magistrate of the District at head-quarter stations, and the Judicial officer elsewhere, to decide what steps should be taken to issue a distress for a forcible levy of the amount. For this purpose the Magistrate will employ the Tehseeldar of each Pergunnah and endorse the report of the Court Inspector or Sheriff with an order to the Tehseeldar to ascertain the moveable property of the offender and to attach the same. Although agricultural implements are not exempt from distress and sale in realization of a fine, the measure is one which should be resorted to with discretion, otherwise it may entail undue hardship in cases which do not require such severity.

Cantonment Magistrates and Honorary Magistrates must realize their fines by the officers of their own Courts.—Smyth, pp. 109, 110, 111.

"A fine occupies the position of a judgment-debt; the Sub-Magistrates will use the same formalities in attachment, sale, and adjudicating upon the objections, which are in force in the execution of civil decrees, with this difference, that the process issues on the criminal side.

"When an objector comes forward, he should be warned of the penalties contained in S. 207 of the Penal Code against fraudulent claims to property to prevent its seizure in satisfaction of fine; after this warning the objection should be disposed of either by admitting the claim, or referring the objector to a civil action, if his claim seems primâ facie groundless. When a Sub-Magistrate has realized a fine, he will credit it in his accounts, and certify the same to the Magistrate, who will at once notify the same to the Darogah of the Jail. C. XXVIII. S. 387.

"The Tehseeldar of a Pergunnah will always receive a fine tendered by the Police or any other person, and grant a receipt, which receipt will be admitted by the Magistrate as payment. The Magistrate will receive fines tendered in his own Court. If the fine is tendered within the fortnight allowed to the Police to realize, the payment will be made through the Court Inspector that there may be a record of the transaction on his books. The Magistrate is also at liberty in special cases to allow fines to be paid by instalments not extending beyond a period of six months. The Darogah of Jails will also receive fines, and send them, with report, to the Magistrate, who will inform the Court Inspector, Sheriff, or the Sub Magistrate according to the stage at which the transaction may have arrived."—Jud. Comr., Panjab, Cir. 54, Nov. 17, 1862.

Memoranda showing the amount of all fees, fines and penalties levied during the month are to be forwarded by every Magisterial officer to the District Magistrate on the last day of each month, and a general statement is to be prepared by him and forwarded to the Court of Session—Mad. H. Ct., Dec. 21, 1868; Feb. 9, 1869.

The following Rules have been issued by the Government of Bengal, November 22, 1868, for the realization of Criminal Fines:—

1. The only books to be kept are a Fine Register and a Fine Balance Statement.

2. In every Sudder or Sub-Divisional office there shall be kept a register, in Form A, in the hands of the Court Inspector or Sub-Inspector. In this shall be entered in a consecutive monthly series all fines imposed by any of the Magisterial officers of the station, or imposed by Sessions Judges or the High Court and transferred to the Magistrate for realization. In each Court, one of the mohurrirs shall be specially charged with the duty of looking after the fines or other sentences.

3. When an offender is sentenced by the Magistrate, a small printed form shall be at once filled in with the particulars, and sent with the prisoner in charge of a Constable to the Court Inspector's office.

4. The printed forms prescribed in Rule 3 should be bound together in the form of a cheque book, the outer section being torn off and sent with the convicted person to the Court Inspector's office, and the counterpart being kept in the Magistrate's office. A consecutive number should be given to each form. This form should be used by the Magistrate in all cases, whether the fine is imposed by himself or by the Sessions or High Court, and the number in column 1 of the Register A should be the number of this form. The counterparts will enable the Fine Mohurrir to check easily the Court Inspector's books.

5. The Court Inspector will then make the necessary entries in his

Fines under Penal Code. Register of Fines, if fine be part of the sentence, and will call upon the prisoner to pay the amount. If this be done, the necessary entries should be made and the payer released, unless he be also sentenced to imprisonment. If the sentence be one of fine only, and the fine be paid in part, the

C. XXVIII. entries will be made and prisoner released and application be made by the Court Inspector for a warrant for realization of the balance to the

S. 387. Court which passed the sentence. If the sentence be one of fine only, and the fine be not paid at all, the Court Inspector shall apply for a warrant for the realization of the whole amount. No person, not also under sentence of imprisonment, alternative or otherwise, shall be detained by the Court Inspector on account of inability to pay the fine. Where the sentence is one of fine, but with an alternative sentence of imprisonment on failure to pay the fine, if the fine be not wholly satisfied at once, the Court Inspector shall report to the Court which imposed the sentence and shall take its written orders as to the term of imprisonment proportional to the amount still unpaid which, under S. 69 of the Indian Penal Code, the convicted person has yet to undergo.

6. A receipt should be granted to the person paying a fine by the Court inspector or other Police officer to whom it is paid.

7. Any further payments made during the currency of the term of imprisonment must be at once reported to the Magistrate by the Court Inspector with a view to the further amendment of the sentence of imprisonment or the release of the prisoner as the case may be.

8. In any case where, under any special or local law, imprisonment in lieu of fine is to be taken as a full satisfaction of the penalty, if the convicted person elect to undergo the imprisonment, the Court

Fines under local or special law.

Inspector must bring him at once before the Court imposing the sentence, which shall certify to the fact of the election, and the amount of fine shall, if entered, be struck out of the Court Inspector's books. Nothing hereinbefore laid down shall interfere with any special directions of law for the attempted realization of fine by distress or otherwise before carrying out any sentence of imprisonment upon the offender.

9. When a warrant for realization of a fine is received from the Sessions or any other Court not under the control of the Magistrate of the District, the fine shall be entered in the register and shall be treated in all respects as a fine imposed by the Magistrate of the District which the offender has declined to pay, and for the realization of which a warrant has issued. But such entries may be conveniently distinguished by having prefixed to them in red ink the letters S. or H. C. for Sessions or High Court.

10. All fines received by the Court Inspector must be paid in by him daily to the treasury. The challan sent with them should be in detail and accompanied by the Fine Register, and the Treasury Mohurrir receiving them will check each entry in the challan by the Register of Fines, putting his initials to each in the proper column of the register.

11. The challan receipted by the Treasury officer will be kept filed by the Court Inspector as his acquittance.

12. It shall be the duty of the Fine Mohurrir of each Court to examine daily the Court Inspector's register, and to ascertain that each entry is made, and made correctly. He will certify this by his initials in the proper column. He is also responsible for the speedy preparation of warrants. It is the duty of the Fine Mohurrir of the principal Court, i. e., the Magistrate's own Court at a Sudder Station and Sub-

Divisional officer's Court, where there are more than one at a Sub- Division, to check the Court Inspector's monthly Statements and the totals in the cash columns of the register. Each Magistrate should examine the Fine Register daily and check his own fines, signing his initials to each entry. He should see that warrants are issued and remittances paid in and acknowledged without delay. Ch XXVIII
S. 387.

13. The Magistrate of the District or officer in charge of a Sub- Division should also inspect the register from time to time, watch the action of his subordinates, and check the Court Inspector's totals at the close of each month.

14. When any fine or part of a fine is remitted in any month subsequent to that in which it may have been imposed, whether on appeal or otherwise, or becomes irrecoverable in consequence either of the lapse of six years from date of sentence, or imprisonment having been suffered in lieu of fine, it shall be entered in the register in red ink under the month in which it is so remitted or lapses and the amount remitted or lapsing shall be shown in column 8 of the register. When a fine is remitted in the same month in which it may have been imposed, the entry in column 8 will be made opposite the original entry and of course in black ink.

15. If a fine be not realized in whole or in part in the month in which it is imposed, the whole fine or any outstanding balance of it (as the case may be) shall be entered in red ink under the month in which any part of it may be realized, a reference being made in the Remarks Column to the months and numbers of any former entries of the fine. Similarly all subsequent realizations of the fine should be entered against the original entry in the Remarks Column. Subsequent realizations during the same month in which the fine was levied may of course appear in black ink in the proper columns opposite the original entry, a total being struck in the body of the page.

16. The totals of the red and black ink entries in columns 6, 8, 12, 13, and 14 must, at the close of the month, be found both separately and together on each page, and carried on thus to the end of the month but no further, e. g. :—

Total of black ink entries	22	0	0

17. If the Court Inspector be required to meet any contingent or other expenses of the Court, he must receive special advances for this purpose. The account of these must be kept quite distinct from the fines accounts, and in no case is any disbursement to be made from realized fines in the Court Inspector's hands. Any refunds of fines will be made by the Treasury officer on the order of the Magistrate.

18. In the same way when all or any part of the fine is directed to be paid to complainant as compensation, this fact and the amount awarded must be noted in red ink in the 'Remarks' Column of the Register, but, after the realization of the fine is reported by the Court Inspector, the disbursement of the compensation will in every case be made from the Treasury on the Magistrate's order. Fines under S. 209

Ch XXVIII of the Criminal Procedure Code will be treated as if imposed in a case instituted on complaint by the original defendant.

S. 387.

19. In non-appealable cases, however, should the Court Inspector report that the fine or amount of award under S. 209, Criminal Procedure Code, has been paid to him before the parties leave the Court, the Magistrate may direct payment to be made to the person entitled to compensation from his permanent advance, such payment being afterwards adjusted at the Treasury against the Fines Account as though originally disbursed there. In all other cases the Magistrate will give an order on the Treasury for the amount as prescribed by Rule 18.

20. In Sub-Divisions where there is no Sub-Divisional Treasury, and the fine collections remain in the Court Inspector's hands till the close of the month, payment of compensation, where this can legally be given, may be made by the Court Inspector on the Magistrate's order in any case in which the fine has not formed an item in a challan to the District Treasury. Where the fine has been challaned, the Magistrate may order payment of the compensation from his permanent advance, adjusting it afterwards as prescribed in Rule 19. In these Sub-Divisions, however, column 14 of Register A should be sub-divided so as to show separately amounts paid by Court Inspectors as compensation out of realized fines and amounts remitted to the Treasury.

21. A monthly balance sheet should be prepared in a book for the purpose, showing

Grand balance of fines outstanding	_____
Amount imposed during month, i. e.	_____
Total of black ink entries in column 6	_____
Grand total realizable	_____
Amount remitted on appeal, &c., or written off by Commissioner's order, i. e. , Grand Total of column 8	_____
Amount realized—
Of new fines—
i. e. , Total of black ink entries in column 12	_____
Of old fines—
i. e. , Total of red ink entries in ditto	_____
Grand Total (of column 12)	_____

i. e. , Total of black ink entries in column 13	_____
Of old fines—
i. e. , Total of red ink entries in ditto	_____
Grand Total (of column 18)	_____

The grand balance outstanding at close of previous month, less the total of red ink entries in columns 8 and 12, and plus the black ink entries in column 13, will give the grand outstanding balance of the Ch XXVIII present month.

A certificate to the following effect should be given at foot :—

S. 387.

“Certified that the total of the above realized fines has been brought to credit in the Treasury accounts.”

Magistrate.

Initial of Treasury officer.

“ „ Court Inspector.

“ „ Fine Mohurrir.

22. A copy of each Sub-Divisional Balance Sheet must be sent to Magistrate of the District within two days after the end of month, and the Balance Sheet of the Sudder Station ought to be ready within the same time.

23. A general District Balance Sheet must be sent to Commissioner within ten days of the close of the month.

24. The above would seem to be sufficient check upon the Court Inspector's Department, if properly carried out. But under the Penal Code fines may be realized any time within six years, or during the term of imprisonment of the offender, if this be more than six years. It is requisite therefore that at each Thannah a Register, in form B, be kept of all warrants received for realization of fine within its jurisdiction. Whenever a balance is left unrealized it is the duty of the Police to institute periodical inquiries as to the acquisition of property by the defaulter. The fact and result of making these inquiries should be entered in the column of Remarks at least once a quarter.

25. The inquiries should not, in the first instance, be made in any formal or official manner, but the officer in charge of a Police station, when visiting villages or receiving reports from Rural Police, should inquire from time to time verbally as to the position and occupation of any defaulter resident within his jurisdiction. If it shall appear that such defaulter can in all probability pay the amount of fine outstanding against him, the Police officer shall forthwith report the matter to the Magistrate having jurisdiction, with a view to the issue of a warrant. In all other cases he will merely note “no assets” in the Remarks column, dating the entry.

26. The Magistrate should, in every case, exercise a sound discretion as to the issuing or refusal of warrants; and may, if he think fit, order a local inquiry to be made by a superior officer of Police before granting such.

27. The inquiries provided for under Rules 24, 25, and 26 may be made by a Head Constable under the immediate orders and supervision of his superior officer. A Head Constable employed on this duty should always receive precise instructions as to the cases to be inquired into, and mode of his inquiry.

28. Warrants of this description subsequent to the first must be entered in the Thannah Register in red ink, but be treated as a fresh entry, a reference being made in the Remarks column to the year and number of the original warrant.

29. In the event of the death of a defaulter being reported, one final and formal inquiry should be made as to whether he has left anywhere any property of any kind liable for his debts.

30. All fines realized should be remitted with the returned warrant to the Court Inspector at once.

Ch XXVIII 31. The Magistrate should call for the Register of each Thannah at least once a quarter, and have it compared with the Court Inspector's Register. He should also note that the Police inquiries have been regularly made and properly recorded.

S. 387.

32. The Commissioner on his annual tour of inspection or at such other times as he may deem fit, should examine the Fine Registers and give orders for the writing off of all fines which, in consequence of the death of the defaulter or of its having been ascertained after repeated inquiry that there are no assets, may be irrecoverable.

NOTE.—The register in this form should be kept for each calendar year. The balance of fines unrealized need not be entered when the limit prescribed in S. 70 of the Indian Penal Code has expired.

388. When an offender has been sentenced to Ch XXVIII Suspension of execution of sentence of imprisonment. fine only, and to imprisonment in default of payment of the fine, and Ss. 388—391.
the Court issues a warrant under section 386, it may suspend the execution of the sentence of imprisonment and may release the offender on his executing a bond, with or without sureties, as the Court thinks fit, conditioned for his appearance before such Court on the day appointed for the return to such warrant, such day not being more than fifteen days from the time of executing the bond; and in the event of the fine not having been realized the Court may direct the sentence of imprisonment to be carried into execution at once.

(Act IV, 1877, S. 185.)

S. 388 makes no provision for a proportionate reduction of the imprisonment in default of payment of fine where only a portion of the fine has been realized. S. 69, Penal Code, however, declares that, if, before expiration of the term of imprisonment in default of payment, such a proportion of the fine be paid or levied that the term of imprisonment suffered on default of payment is not less than proportional to the part of the fine still unpaid, the imprisonment shall terminate.

389. Every warrant for the execution of any sentence may be issued either by Who may issue warrant.
the Judge or Magistrate who passed the sentence or by his successor in office.
(S. 307, last para.)

390. When the accused is sentenced to whipping Execution of sentence of whipping only.
only, the sentence shall be executed at such place and time as the Court may direct.

(S. 302A, cl. 2.)
(Act XI, 1874, S. 32.)

The Whipping Act (VI of 1864), Ss. 2, 5, declares for what offences and under what circumstances sentence of whipping may be passed as a sole sentence.

391. When the accused is sentenced to whipping Execution of sentence of whipping, in addition to imprisonment.
in addition to imprisonment in a case which is subject to appeal, the whipping shall not be inflicted until fifteen days from the date of the sentence, or, if an appeal be made within that time, until the sentence

Ch XXVIII is confirmed by the Appellate Court : but the whipping shall be inflicted as soon as practicable after the expiry of the fifteen days, or, in case of an appeal, as soon as practicable after the receipt of the order of the Appellate Court confirming the sentence.

S. 391.

The whipping shall be inflicted in the presence of the officer in charge of the jail : unless the Judge or Magistrate orders it to be inflicted in his own presence.

(S. 310.)

“Whipping in addition to imprisonment.” This should be read with the Whipping Act (VI of 1864) Ss. 3, 4, and does not refer to a case in which for a second offence on the same trial sentence of whipping is passed.—Mad. H. Ct., Nov. 28, 1878 Weir, 240.

A prisoner was sentenced on three separate convictions : first, to a term of imprisonment ; second, on expiry of that term to whipping ; third, to a term of imprisonment after the execution of the previous sentence of whipping. It was held by the Madras High Court that any postponement of execution of a sentence of whipping except under S. 391 was illegal, and the sentence of whipping was accordingly set aside as bad in law, the second sentence of imprisonment being ordered to follow on expiry of the first sentence.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Dec. 10, 1873 ; 7 Mad., xxix, App. But if he escapes from Jail during the fifteen days during which execution of the sentence of whipping is suspended, the whipping may be inflicted on his recapture. Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Aug. 10, 1874 ; Weir, 237. A direction on the warrant of sentence that the whipping shall be inflicted immediately on expiry of the sentence of imprisonment is illegal. The officer in charge of the Jail on receiving such a warrant should return it for correction. When such an illegality has been committed, the whipping may be inflicted on receipt of the order of the High Court correcting it. Mad. H. Ct., Jan. 31, 1877 ; Weir, 238.

If through neglect or accident or wilful breach of duty the whipping is not inflicted as directed by S. 391, the convict is not thereby freed from liability. The sentence there subsisting must be executed.—Bomb. H. Ct., Aug. 5, 1878. But contra Madras Court ; where a sentence of whipping directed that it should be inflicted at the expiry of the sentence of imprisonment and the term specified in S. 391 had passed, that sentence was held to be inoperative by lapse of time, and was cancelled.—6 Mad., xxxviii, App. Pro. Nov. 13, 1871 ; and Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Dec. 10, 1873 ; 9 Mad. Jur., 104. See also In re Jaffir Ali, 20 W. R., 70. But where a Sessions Judge sentenced a convict to one year's rigorous imprisonment and to receive thirty stripes, one week before his release, the High Court ordered the whipping to be inflicted at once, as the postponement of it was opposed to the Whipping Act.—Bomb. H. Ct., Jamalvalad Nanabhai, Dec. 22, 1870.

It should be noted, that, under this Code, in a case in which sentence of whipping only is passed by a Magistrate of the first class, there is no appeal.—Ss. 273, 274. An appeal, however, lies against, sentences of whipping passed by Magistrate of the second class; but, if the whipping be awarded in lieu of any other punishment, the sentence should be carried into execution without delay. The effect of the appeal will be to ascertain the correctness of a sentence already carried out, and not to bring under review the sentence itself with a view to its revision.—Cal. H. Ct., 1864, 314.

Ss. 392—
394.

392. In the case of a person of or over sixteen years of age, whipping shall be inflicted with a light ratan not less than half an inch in diameter, in such mode, and on such part of the person, as the Local Government directs; and, in the case of a person under sixteen years of age, it shall be inflicted in the way of school-discipline with a light ratan.

Mode of inflicting punishment.
Limit of number of stripes.
In no case shall such punishment exceed thirty stripes.
(Ss. 311, paras. 1, 2.)

Any juvenile offender who commits any offence which is not by the Indian Penal Code punishable with death, may, whether for a first or any other offence be punished with whipping in lieu of any other punishment to which he may for such offence be liable under the said Code. Whipping Act (VI of 1864) S. 5.

393. No sentence of whipping shall be executed by instalments; and none of the following persons shall be punishable with whipping (namely):—

Not to be executed by instalments.
Exemptions.

- (a) females;
- (b) males sentenced to death, or to transportation, or to penal servitude, or to imprisonment for more than five years;
- (c) males whom the Court considers to be more than forty-five years of age.

(S. 312, para. 3.)

(c) is new.

394. The punishment of whipping shall not be inflicted unless a Medical Officer, if present, certifies, or, if there is not a Medical Officer present, unless it appears to the Magistrate or officer present, that the offender is in a fit state of health to undergo such punishment.

Whipping not to be inflicted if offender not in fit state of health.

Ch XXVIII

S. 395.

Stay of execution.

If, during the execution of a sentence of whipping, a Medical Officer certifies, or it appears to the Magistrate or officer present, that the offender is not in a fit state of health to undergo the remainder of the sentence, the whipping shall be finally stopped.

(S. 312, paras. 1, 2.)

S. 390 directs that a sentence of whipping shall be executed at such place and at such time as the Court may direct: the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has ordered that where whipping is the sole punishment awarded, officers should make arrangements for having it carried out at once at the Magistrate's office in communication with the Civil Surgeon or Native Doctor of the station.—Cir. 21, Jan. 1876.

The Governor-General of India in Council has notified that he considers that the precaution of having a Medical officer present at the time of the infliction of the punishment should be observed in every instance when practicable.

A Medical officer, during execution of a sentence of whipping, certified that the accused was not in a fit state to undergo the remainder of the sentence, which was accordingly stayed, and the prisoner who had been sentenced only to whipping was discharged by the Magistrate. On a reference to it, the Calcutta High Court approved of the Magistrate's proceedings.—3 Wyman, 3, Letters. See also 3 Mad., i, App. Pro. July 25, 1864. The prisoner should not necessarily be discharged though he cannot suffer the remainder of the sentence of whipping; see S. 395.

395. In any case in which, under section 394,

Procedure if punishment cannot be inflicted under section 394.

a sentence of whipping is, wholly or partially, prevented, from being executed, the offender shall be kept in custody till the Court which passed the sentence can revise it; and the said Court may, at its discretion, either remit such sentence, or sentence the offender in lieu of whipping, or in lieu of so much of the sentence of whipping as was not executed, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding twelve months, which may be in addition to any other punishment to which he may have been sentenced for the same offence.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any Court to inflict imprisonment for a term exceeding that to which the accused is liable by law, or that which the said Court is competent to inflict.

(S. 313.)

S. 395 does not enable a Court to sentence an offender to fine if he cannot suffer the sentence of whipping originally passed.

396. When sentence is passed under this Code Ch XXVIII

Execution of sentence on escaped convicts.

S. 396.

on an escaped convict, such sentence, if of death, fine or whipping, shall, subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained, take effect immediately, and if of imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation, shall take effect according to the following rules, that is to say :—

If the new sentence is severer in its quality than the sentence which such convict was undergoing when he escaped, the new sentence shall take effect immediately.

When the new sentence is not severer in its quality than the sentence the convict was undergoing when he escaped, the new sentence shall take effect after he has suffered imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation, as the case may be, for a further period equal to that which, at the time of his escape, remained unexpired of his former sentence.

EXPLANATION.—For the purposes of this section—

(a) a sentence of transportation or penal servitude shall be deemed severer than a sentence of imprisonment;

(b) a sentence of imprisonment with solitary confinement shall be deemed severer than a sentence of the same description of imprisonment without solitary confinement; and

(c) a sentence of rigorous imprisonment shall be deemed severer than a sentence of simple imprisonment with or without solitary confinement.

(S. 316.)

S. 224, Penal Code, provides the punishment for an escape or an attempt to escape by a convict.

A sentence of solitary confinement may be passed by any Court or any person who is convicted of an offence for which the Court has power to sentence him to rigorous imprisonment. S. 73, Penal Code.

The attention of all Sessions Judges and Magistrates in Bengal has been drawn to the special requirements of S. 396, and they have been directed to specify in the warrants of sentence the date from which a sentence is to take effect, whether at once or after the lapse of a period equivalent to a portion of the prisoner's original sentence which remained unexpired at the date of his escape, the date on which the original sentence, of which the currency was interrupted by the escape, will expire being clearly shown.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 9, July 15, 1873.

Ch XXVIII

S. 397.

The Governor-General in Council is pleased to direct that, in modification of the Circular of the 22nd November, the following procedure be observed upon the re-capture of a convict, if the Local Governments see no impediment. The Police, who have arrested a person upon the charge of having escaped, will apply to the Magistrate before whom the accused has been brought for an adjournment, to enable them to ascertain whether a warrant has been received from Port Blair for his re-capture. Inquiry should be made at the Home Department of the Government of India, if no warrant has been received by the Police of the province in which the convict has been arrested. And in all cases of escape by a life convict, the Superintendent of Port Blair or other Magistrate having jurisdiction, as soon as the fact of escape is known, should issue a warrant charging him with having committed an offence under S. 224, Penal Code, to the chief of the Police of the province or administration in which the convict is known or is likely to be found, and should also forward a warrant forthwith to this department. If the warrant is forthcoming, the Magistrate by whom the case is being inquired into will decide whether there is any reason why the accused should not be removed in custody, under Ss. 85, 86, Criminal Procedure Code, to the Magistrate at the Andamans who issued the warrant—Orders of Govt. of India, Home Dept. dated May 18, 1874, circulated by Govt. of Bengal, Cir. 22, dated May 27, 1874.

The Calcutta High Court has held (180, 1864) that S. 396 does not apply to the escape of a person from the custody in which he may have been detained when under trial. Such an escape is punishable under S. 224, Penal Code.

397. When a person already undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation is sentenced to imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation, such imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation shall commence at the expiration of the imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation to which he has been previously sentenced.

Provided that if he is undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, and the sentence on such subsequent conviction be one of transportation, the Court may, in its discretion, direct that the latter sentence shall commence immediately, or at the expiration of the imprisonment to which he has been previously sentenced.

(S. 317.)

Where the first sentence is set aside on appeal or revision, the second sentence which was to take effect on expiration of the first commences from that time, it being immaterial whether the first sentence has been executed or been set aside by a superior Court. Bomb. High Court, Resn. in Chambers, April 29, 1879.

When a sentence of imprisonment is passed on a person who had Ch XXVIII just been convicted and sentenced for another offence, it is contrary to S. 397 to make the second sentence concurrent with the first.—Bomb. Ss. 398, 399. H. Ct. Resn. in Chambers, Aug. 3, 1869.

In ignorance that the person under trial before him was already under sentence in Jail, a Magistrate convicted and sentenced him, dating the warrant irrespective of the previous sentence. The Calcutta High Court (3 W. R., 16. C. L.) held that the Magistrate was competent to alter the date of the warrant, as the alteration referred only to the time at which the sentence should commence, and not to the sentence itself.

The terms of S 397 seem to make any such alteration in the warrant unnecessary, as the second sentence, it is enacted, "shall commence at the expiration of the imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation to which he has been previously sentenced" except under circumstances specially provided for.

398. Nothing in section 396 or section 397 shall be held to excuse any person from any part of the punishment to which he is liable upon his former or subsequent conviction.

(S. 317, Proviso.)

399. When any person under the age of sixteen years is sentenced by any Criminal Court to imprisonment for any offence, the Court may direct that such person, instead of being imprisoned in a criminal jail, shall be confined in any reformatory established by the Local Government as a fit place for confinement, in which there are means of suitable discipline and of training in some branch of useful industry, which is kept by a person willing to obey such rules as the Local Government prescribes with regard to persons confined therein.

All persons confined under this section shall be subject to the rules so prescribed.

(S. 318.)

Act V of 1876 relates to Reformatory Schools.

S. 7 of that Act provides that whenever any youthful offender, that is, any person under the age of sixteen years, is sentenced to transportation or imprisonment and is in the judgment of the Court by which he is sentenced (a) under the age of sixteen years and (b) a proper person to be an inmate of a Reformatory School, the Court may direct that instead of undergoing his sentence, he shall be sent to a Reformatory School, and be there detained for a period which shall not be less than

Ch XXVIII two years and not more than seven years, and shall be in conformity with any rules made under section twenty-two, and for the time being in force. The powers so conferred by the Court shall be exercised only by S. 400. (a) the High Court (b) the Court of Session (c) a Magistrate of the first class (d) a Magistrate of Police or a Presidency Magistrate in the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay.

S. 8 further enacts that whenever any youthful offender under the age of sixteen years has been or shall be sentenced to imprisonment, the officer in charge of the Jail in which such offender is confined may bring him before the Magistrate within whose jurisdiction such Jail is situate; and the Magistrate if he thinks the offender (a) under the age of sixteen years and (b) a proper person to be an inmate of a Reformatory School, may direct him to be sent to a Reformatory School, and be there detained for a period which shall not be less than two and not more than seven years, and which shall be in conformity with any rules made under section twenty-two and for the time being in force. In this section a Magistrate means in the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, a Magistrate of Police or Presidency Magistrate, and elsewhere a Magistrate of the first class.

Nothing contained in sections 7 and 8 shall be deemed to authorize the detention in a Reformatory School of any person after he is proved to be above the age of eighteen years.

In directing that a youthful offender under sentence of imprisonment should be sent for detention in a Reformatory School, the period of that detention should not be fixed with reference to the sentence of imprisonment, but rather to the circumstances of the case and the age of the youthful offender, as detention in a Reformatory School is not a punishment equal in severity to imprisonment in a Jail, and a sufficient term of such detention is necessary to effect any reform in his habits and to teach him some trade or profession likely to enable him to earn an honest livelihood on his release.

400. When a sentence has been fully executed, the officer executing it shall return the warrant to the Court from which it issued, with an endorsement under his hand certifying the manner in which the sentence has been executed.

(S. 305.)

See Act V of 1871, APPENDIX.

CHAPTER XXIX.

OF SUSPENSIONS, REMISSIONS AND COMMUTATIONS OF SENTENCES.

Ch. XXIX.

S. 401.

401. When any person has been sentenced to punishment for an offence, the Governor General in Council, or the Local Government, may at any time, without conditions or upon any conditions which the person sentenced accepts, suspend the execution of his sentence or remit the whole or any part of the punishment to which he has been sentenced.

Whenever an application is made to the Governor General in Council or the Local Government for the suspension or remission of a sentence, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, as the case may be, may require the presiding Judge of the Court before or by which the conviction was had or confirmed to state his opinion as to whether the application should be granted or refused, together with his reasons for such opinion.

If the person in whose favour a sentence has been suspended or remitted fails to fulfil the conditions prescribed by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, as the case may be, may cancel such suspension or remission, whereupon such person may, if at large, be arrested by any Police-officer without warrant and remanded to undergo the unexpired portion of the sentence.

Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to interfere with the right of Her Majesty to grant pardons, reprieves, respites or remissions of punishment.

(S. 322, paras. 1, 2.)
(Act XI, 1874, S. 34.)

Para. 2 is new.

S. 23, Act V of 1871, empowers the Governor-General in Council to "grant to any convict sentenced to be kept in penal servitude, a license to be at large within British India or in such part thereof as in such license is expressed, and upon such condition as to the Governor-General in Council seem fit;" and Ss. 25—29 contain the law for the

Ch. XXIX. revocation of such license and the procedure to be taken on breach of ———— any of the conditions thereof.

S. 402. In the Panjab, applications under S. 401 should be submitted to Government through the Chief Court in order to prevent the possibility of that Court hearing in appeal a case in which Government has remitted or commuted the punishment.—Smyth, p. 117.

Ch XXX.

S. 403. 402. The Governor General in Council, or the Power to commute Local Government, may without punishment. the consent of the person sentenced commute any one of the following sentences for any other mentioned after it :—

death, transportation, penal servitude, rigorous imprisonment for a term not exceeding that to which he might have been sentenced, simple imprisonment for a like term, fine.

(S. 322, para. 3.)

Ss. 54 and 55 of the Indian Penal Code confer similar powers on the Government of India, or the Government of the place in which the offender shall have been sentenced, with respect to the commutation
 (S. 54) of a sentence of death to any other punishment under that Code, and (S. 55) of a sentence of transportation for life to imprisonment, rigorous or simple, for a term not exceeding fourteen years.

CHAPTER XXX.

OF PREVIOUS ACQUITTALS OR CONVICTIONS.

403. A person who has once been tried by a Person once convicted or acquitted not to be tried for same offence.

Court of competent jurisdiction for an offence and convicted or acquitted of such offence shall, while such conviction or acquittal remains in force, not be liable to be tried again for the same offence, nor on the same facts for any other offence for which a different charge from the one made against him might have been made under section 236, or for which he might have been convicted under section 237.

A person acquitted or convicted of any offence may be afterwards tried for any distinct offence for which a separate charge might have been made against him on the former trial under section 235, paragraph one.

A person convicted of any offence constituted by any act causing consequences which, together with such act, constituted a different offence from that of which he was convicted, may be afterwards tried for such last-mentioned offence, if the consequences had not happened, or were not known to the Court to have happened, at the time when he was convicted. Ch. XXX.

S. 403.

A person acquitted or convicted of any offence constituted by any acts may, notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction, be subsequently charged with, and tried for, any other offence constituted by the same acts which he may have committed, if the Court by which he was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged.

EXPLANATION.—The dismissal of a complaint, the stopping of proceedings under section 249, the discharge of the accused, or any entry made upon a charge under section 273, is not an acquittal for the purposes of this section.

Illustrations.

(a) A is tried upon a charge of theft as a servant and acquitted. He cannot afterwards, while the acquittal remains in force, be charged with theft as a servant, or, upon the same facts, with theft simply, or with criminal breach of trust.

(b) A is tried upon a charge of murder and acquitted. There is no charge of robbery; but it appears from the facts that A committed robbery at the time when the murder was committed; he may afterwards be charged with, and tried for robbery.

(c) A is tried for causing grievous hurt and convicted. The person injured afterwards dies. A may be tried again for culpable homicide.

(d) A is charged before the Court of Session and convicted of the culpable homicide of B. A may not afterwards be tried on the same facts for the murder of B.

(e) A is charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, voluntarily causing hurt to B. A may not afterwards be tried for voluntarily causing grievous hurt to B on the same facts, unless the case comes within paragraph three of this section.

(f) A is charged by a Magistrate of the second class with, and convicted by him of theft of property from the person of B. A may be subsequently charged with, and tried for, robbery on the same facts.

(g) A, B and C are charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, robbing D. A, B and C may afterwards be charged with, and tried for, dacoity on the same facts.

(S. 460.)

In reading this section the terms of the penultimate para. of section 4 should be borne in mind "Words which refer to acts done extend also to illegal omissions."

Ch. XXX. S. 511 provides special means for proving a previous conviction or acquittal.

S. 403. S. 240 provides that where, after conviction on one out of several charges against the same person, the complainant or officer conducting the prosecution, with the consent of the Court, withdraws the remaining charge or charges, such withdrawal shall have the effect of an acquittal on such charge or charges unless the conviction be set aside, in which case the inquiry or trial of the charge or charges so withdrawn may proceed.

Similarly S. 494 declares that if the Public Prosecutor, with the consent of the Court withdrew from the prosecution of any person in cases tried by Jury before the return of the verdict and in other cases before the judgment is pronounced such person shall be acquitted if such withdrawal is made after a charge has been framed or when no charge is required on withdrawal of the complaint by the complainant in a summons case, the Magistrate shall acquit the accused. S. 248.

If in the course of the trial of a summons-case the complainant does not appear the Magistrate shall ordinarily acquit the accused. S. 247.

The compounding of an offence under S. 345 has the effect of an acquittal of the accused.

When a Jury is discharged in a trial before a High Court because six persons out of nine do not agree in opinion or because the Judge disagrees with such majority, if the Judge considers that there should be no re-trial he shall make an entry to that effect on the charge, such entry operating as an acquittal. S. 308.

The previous conviction or acquittal must have been on a trial held by a Court having jurisdiction over the offence charged.—Muthoor Prashad Panday, 2 W. R., 10.

The previous conviction or acquittal must be in force, that is, it must not have been subsequently set aside by a Court of Appeal or Revision. So it was held that the reversal of a conviction on the ground of misdirection to the Jury is no bar to a fresh trial—Kali Churn Gangooly, 7 W. R., 2; also when, in the previous trial by the Court of Session, the proceedings had been quashed as irregular or illegal.—Wahid Ali, 3 W. R., 42.

The following remarks made by Peacock, C. J., in the case of Dvarkanath Dutt, 7 W. R., 15, are important in connection with this section:—

When a former conviction or acquittal is set up as a bar to a subsequent trial, the Court before which the second trial is held has nothing to do with the evidence given on the former trial, except for the purpose of ascertaining whether the offence which formed the subject of the first trial is the same as that which forms the subject of the second charge. If the offence is the same, the former conviction or acquittal is a bar to the second trial, whether the second Court considers that the former conviction or acquittal was warranted by the evidence given on the first trial or not. If the offence is not the same, the former conviction or acquittal is no bar to the trial upon the second charge, notwithstanding the evidence given in the two cases is the same, and the Court, whether the same as that which tried the prisoner for the first offence, or a different Court, is bound to apply its own judgment to the evidence before it, and to give a verdict according to its own conviction upon the evidence adduced. It appears to me that two distinct offences cannot be converted into one such offence by reason of any evidence which the prosecutor may think fit to adduce upon the trial for one of them. For instance, upon an indictment for murdering A, it would be no answer that the prisoner had been acquitted upon a trial for murdering B, unless it could be shown that the two charges related to the same person under different names. If it were shown that A and B were two different persons, as for instance that A was a man, and that B was a woman, no amount of proof as to what evidence was given on the trial for the murder of A could show that the offences were one and the same, so as to render the acquittal as to A a bar to the charge of murdering B.

Ch. XXX.

S. 403.

Where a complaint was made to the Police of the commission of two offences, one cognizable, the other non-cognizable and the Police after investigation reported that the former was not established, on which the Magistrate ordered it to be expunged from his register, it was held that there was no bar to the trial of that offence.—Govt. of Bombay v. Shidapa, I. L. R., 5 Bomb., 405.

PART VII.

OF APPEAL, REFERENCE AND REVISION.

CHAPTER XXXI.

OF APPEALS.

An appeal may be presented by any person authorized by the appellant to present it, not necessarily by a Pleader. Sabha Aitala and another, I. L. R., 1 Mad., 304.

The following periods of limitation are prescribed by Act XV of 1877, Sch. II for the presentation of Criminal appeals

From a sentence of death passed by a Sessions Judge	seven days	from the date of sentence	Art. 150
Against a sentence or order appealed against presented to the High Court to any other Court	sixty days	from the date of sentence or order	Art. 155
	thirty days	as in Art. 155	Art. 154
From an order of acquittal	six months	from the date of the judgment appealed against	Art. 157.

Unless the appellant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal within the prescribed periods, it shall be dismissed. Ss. 4, 5.

Ch. XXXI. If the Court is closed on the last day in which an appeal may be presented, it may be presented on the day that the Court re-opens. S. 5.

Ss. 404— In computing the period of limitation the day from which such
407. period is to be reckoned shall be excluded, also the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the sentence or order appealed against. S. 12.

404. No appeal shall lie from any judgment Unless otherwise provided, or order of a Criminal Court except ed, no appeal to lie. as provided for by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force.
(S. 286.)

405. Any person whose application under section Appeal from order reject- 89 for the delivery of property or ing application for restora- the proceeds of the sale thereof tion of attached property. has been rejected by any Court, may appeal to the Court to which appeals ordinarily lie from the sentences of the former Court.

S. 89 relates to the appearance of a person whose property has been attached or sold in consequence of its being supposed that he has absconded or is concealing himself to avoid execution of a warrant of arrest. Such a person, on his appearance within two years from the date of the attachment, and on proof that he did not so abscond or conceal himself, or that he had no notice of the attachment sufficient to enable him to attend within the specified time, is entitled to obtain restoration of the property, or if it or any portion of it has been sold, the nett proceeds of the sale after deducting the costs of attachment. An appeal lies against a refusal to comply with such an application.

406. Any person required by a Magistrate, other than the District Magistrate or a Appeal from order re- quiring security for good behaviour. Presidency Magistrate, to give security for good behaviour under section 118, may appeal to the District Magistrate.
(S. 267.)

In addition to his powers as an Appellate Court, the District Magistrate can at any time order the discharge of any person imprisoned on default of giving security for good behaviour by order of any Magistrate in the District. S. 124.

407. Any person convicted on a trial held by any Magistrate of the second or Appeal from sentence of 3rd class, or any person sentenced Magistrate of the second or third class. under section 349 by a Sub-divisional Magistrate of the second class, may appeal to the District Magistrate.

The District Magistrate may direct that any appeal Ch. XXXI.

under this section, or any class of such appeals shall be heard by any Magistrate of the first class subordinate to him and empowered by the Local Government to hear such appeals, and thereupon such appeal or class of appeals shall be presented to such Subordinate Magistrate or if already presented to the District Magistrate shall be transferred to such Subordinate Magistrate. The District Magistrate may withdraw from such Magistrate any appeal or class of appeals so presented or transferred.

S. 408.

All orders passed by a Magistrate of the second or third class under S. 514 forfeiting a bond are appealable to the District Magistrate, or, if not so appealed, may be revised by him. S. 515.

A case dealt with under S. 349 and here referred to would be when a Magistrate of the third class having jurisdiction to hold the trial is of opinion that the accused is guilty but that the sentence which he can pass is inadequate. The case would in a Subdivision be then referred to the Subdivisional officer, and if he is of the second class and convicts, the sentence would be appealable as if it had been passed in a trial held by such officer.

In the N. W. Provinces all Joint and Assistant Magistrates and Assistant Commissioners holding their Courts at the Head-Quarters of a District, being Magistrates of the first class, and next in seniority to the Magistrate of the District, have been vested with powers under S. 407 to hear appeals, such powers to be exercised only during the absence from Head-Quarters of the Magistrate of the District.—Gaz., 1873, p. 903.

In Sindh, Magistrates of the first class in charge of Divisions of Districts have been empowered to hear appeals under S. 407.—Bomb. Gaz., 1873, p. 255.

408. Any person convicted on a trial held by an Appeal from sentence of Assistant Sessions Judge or Magistrate of the first class.

Assistant Sessions Judge, a District Magistrate or other Magistrate of the first class, or any person sentenced under section 349 by a Magistrate of the first class, may appeal to the Court of Session :

Provided as follows :—

(a) when in any case an Assistant Sessions Judge or a District Magistrate passes any sentence which is subject to the confirmation of the Court of Session, every appeal in such case shall lie to the High Court,

Ch. XXXI. but shall not be presented until the case has been disposed of by the Court of Session ;

Ss. 409—
411. (b) any European British subject so convicted may at his option appeal either to the High Court or the Court of Session.

(Ss. 269, 270, 79.)

An order passed by a Magistrate of the first class under S. 514 forfeiting a bond is appealable to the District Magistrate, or if not so appealed, may be revised by him. S. 515.

When the person sentenced is an European British subject, the sentence is always appealable (S. 416). In other cases no appeal lies against a sentence passed by any of the officers specified in S. 408 if the sentence be one of imprisonment only, not exceeding three months, or of fine only, not exceeding two hundred Rupees, or of whipping only, S. 412 ; nor if the conviction be by a Magistrate in a summary trial, if the sentence be one of imprisonment only, not exceeding three months, or of fine not exceeding two hundred Rupees, or of whipping only. S. 413.

A sentence passed under S. 349 would be in a case tried by a Magistrate of the second or third class having jurisdiction and submitted by him to a superior Magistrate because he cannot pass an adequate sentence.

Every sentence of imprisonment for a term exceeding three years passed by an Assistant Sessions Judge (S. 31, para. 3.) or a District Magistrate specially empowered under S. 34, is subject to the confirmation of the Sessions Judge, and is thereupon appealable to the High Court after the case has been disposed of by the Court of Session.

409. An appeal to the Court of Session or Sessions Judge shall be heard by the Sessions Judge or by an Additional or Joint Sessions Judge.

Appeals to Court of Sessions how heard.

410. Any person convicted on a trial held by a Sessions Judge, or an Additional or a Joint Sessions Judge, may appeal to the High Court.

Appeal from sentence of Court of Session.

(Ss. 80, 270, para. 3 ; S. 271.)

(Act XI, 1874, S. 22, cl. 1.)

411. Any person convicted on a trial held by a Presidency Magistrate may appeal to the High Court if the Magistrate has sentenced him to imprisonment for a term exceeding six months or to fine exceeding two hundred rupees.

Appeal from sentence of Presidency Magistrate.

(Act IV, 1877, S. 167.)

412. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, where an accused person has pleaded guilty and has been convicted by a Court of Session or a Presidency Magistrate on such plea, there shall be no appeal except as to the extent or legality of the sentence.

No appeal in certain cases when accused pleads guilty.

Ch. XXXI.
414.

(S. 273, last para.)

From this it would seem that an appeal could lie against a conviction by any Magistrate even a District Magistrate exercising special powers under S. 34 when the accused has pleaded guilty although such an order passed by an Assistant Sessions Judge would not be appealable because he is a Court of Session.

Where in a Municipal prosecution which the law requires to be made within a certain time, the accused pleaded guilty and was convicted, he was not allowed on appeal to plead that the prosecution was invalid because instituted out of time. The appeal would lie only with respect to the sentence irrespective of the conviction and not against the legality of the conviction.—Jaffir M. Talab, I. L. R., 5 Bomb., 685.

413. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, there shall be no appeal by a convicted person in cases in which a Court of Session or the District Magistrate or other Magistrate of the first class passes a sentence of imprisonment not exceeding one month only, or of fine not exceeding fifty rupees only, or of whipping only.

No appeal in petty cases.

EXPLANATION.—There is no appeal from a sentence of imprisonment passed by such Court or Magistrate in default of payment of fine when no substantive sentence of imprisonment has been passed.

(S. 273, paras. 1, 2.)

Every sentence passed on conviction of an European British subject is appealable at his option to the High Court or Court of Session (S. 408) S. 413 does not apply to such a case. S 416.

Jurisdiction over the appeal of one person does not give a Sessions Judge constructive jurisdiction over the convictions of other prisoners whose sentences may not be appealable.—Cal H. Ct, 922, 1864; Kalubhai Meghabhai, 7 Bomb., 35, Crown Cases; Mad. H. Ct., Pro., May 10, 1872, 7 Mad. Jur., 301.

414. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, there shall be no appeal by a convicted person in cases tried summarily in which a Magistrate

No appeal from certain summary convictions.

Ch. XXXI. empowered to act under section 260 'passes a sentence
 Ss. 415— of imprisonment not exceeding three months only, or of 417. fine not exceeding two hundred rupees only, or of whipping only.

(S. 274, para. 1.)

This section does not apply to sentences passed on European British subjects (S. 416) which are always appealable. S. 408.

415. An appeal may be brought against any sentence referred to in section 413 or section 414 by which any two or more of the punishments therein mentioned are combined, but no sentence which would not otherwise be liable to appeal shall be appealable merely on the ground that the person convicted is ordered to find security to keep the peace.

EXPLANATION.—A sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine is not a sentence by which two or more punishments are combined within the meaning of this section.

(S. 274, para. 2.)

(Act XI 1874, S. 74.)

416. Nothing in sections 413 and 414 applies to appeals from sentences passed under Chapter XXXIII on European British subjects.

(S. 274, para. 3.)

Sentences passed on European British subjects are consequently always appealable either to the High Court or Court of Session at the option of the person sentenced. S. 408.

417. The Local Government may direct the Public Prosecutor to present an appeal to the High Court from an original or appellate order of acquittal passed by any Court other than a High Court.

(S. 272.)

A special limitation of six months is provided for such an appeal.—Act XV of 1877, Sch. II, Art. 157.

Public Prosecutors are appointed by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government generally, or in any case, or for any special class of cases, in any local area. S. 492.

The Sessions Judge should send the Divisional Commissioner any records of a criminal trial that he may require to satisfy himself whether Government should be moved to direct an appeal against the original or appellate judgment of acquittal.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 1, Jan. 12, 1877. Ch. XXXI.

S. 418.

A clear statement of the circumstances which are considered to justify an appeal with the point or points on which it should be preferred should be sent to Government.—Gov. Bengal Cir. 19, March 19, 1875.

The verdict of a jury acquitting on certain charges but convicting on others, if accepted by the Sessions Judge is appealable as a judgment of acquittal on those charges. Thus where the Jury acquitted of murder but convicted of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, and the prisoner was sentenced accordingly, an appeal against the verdict of acquittal of murder was heard, and the prisoner was convicted and sentenced to death.—Empress v. Juddonath Gangooly, I. L. R., 2 Cal., 273

In considering an appeal by Government against an order of acquittal, it is not for the High Court to say whether if it had been trying the case, it might not have taken a view opposed to that of the Lower Court. That is not the test to be applied to determine such an appeal. While the High Court fully recognizes the necessity for the existence of such powers in the Local Government in this country, it is equally clear that those powers should be most sparingly enforced: and, in respect to pure questions of fact, only in those cases where through the incompetence, stupidity or perversity of a subordinate tribunal, such unreasonable or distorted conclusions have been drawn from evidence as to produce a positive miscarriage of justice. It is not because a Judge or Magistrate has taken a view of the case in which the Government does not coincide, and has acquitted the accused persons that an appeal from this decision must necessarily prevail, or that the High Court should be called upon to disturb the ordinary course of justice by putting in force the arbitrary powers conferred by S. 417. The doing so should be limited to those instances in which the Lower Court has so obstinately blundered and gone wrong as to produce a result mischievous alike to the administration of justice and the interests of the public. The Sessions Judge in the present case has had the witnesses before him, and consequently the best opportunity of judging their truth, and he appears to have conducted the inquiry with care and patience, and to have weighed and considered the facts to the best of his ability. It may be, that the High Court may have arrived at a different view, but holding this decision to be an honest and not unreasonable one of which the facts were susceptible, the High Court unhesitatingly dismissed the appeal.—Empress v. Gayadin, I. L. R., 1 Cal., 148.

418. An appeal may lie on a matter of fact as well as a matter of law, except where the trial was by jury, in which case the appeal shall lie on a matter of law only.

Appeal on what matters admissible.

EXPLANATION.—The alleged severity of a sentence

Ch. XXXI. shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to be a
 S. 419 matter of law.

(S. 271, last para.)
 (Act. XI, 1874, S. 22.)

The Local Government is empowered to direct what cases before any Court of Sessions shall be tried by jury, but if the accused is charged at the same trial with several offences, some of which are and some are not triable by jury, he shall be tried by jury for all such offences. S. 269. If an offence triable with the aid of assessors is tried by jury, the trial shall not on that ground only be invalid, (S. 536), but it is doubtful how far such an irregularity would deprive the accused of a right to appeal on a matter of fact such as he would have had unquestionably if the trial had been properly held with the aid of assessors. See Mohim Chunder Lall and another, 1 L. R., 3 Cal., 763; (S. C.) 4 Cal., L. R., 405, in which Macleay, J. held that such a person would still be entitled to an appeal on the facts.

419. Every appeal shall be made in the form of a petition in writing presented by the appellant or his pleader, and every such petition shall (unless the Court to which it is presented otherwise directs) be accompanied by a copy of the judgment or order appealed against, and, in cases tried by a jury, a copy of the heads of the charge recorded under section 367.

(S. 275.)

If the appellant is in Jail his petition of appeal may be presented to the proper Appellate Court through the officer in charge of the Jail, S. 420; and it is exempt from stamp duty.—Court Fees Act (VII, 1870) S. 19, cl. xvii.

S. 367 declares what a judgment shall contain and under S. 371 on the application of the accused a copy of the judgment, or, when he so desires, a translation in his own language, if practicable, or in the language of the Court shall be given to him without delay, and, except in summons cases, free of cost. If the trial has been held by Jury, a copy of the heads of the charge shall be given to him free of cost. S. 371.

The practice of furnishing to the person affected and sending up to the Appellate Court a copy of the sentence only with the petition of appeal is not in compliance with the law.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 2, June 8, 1874.

The petition of appeal against the verdict of a Jury should state specifically in what respect the law has been contravened.—Gopal Bheereewalla, 1 W. R., 21.

The time requisite for obtaining a copy of the sentence or order appealed against shall be excluded in computing the period of limitation prescribed for an appeal.—Act XV, 1877. S. 12.

his petition of appeal and the copies accompanying the same to the officer in charge of the jail, who shall thereupon forward such petition and copies to the proper Appellate Court.

S. 420.

(S. 277.)

A petition of appeal presented by a person under duress or restraint of any Court or its officers is exempt from stamp duty. Court Fees Act (VII, 1870), S. 19. cl. xvii.

Officers in charge of Jails are required to give all proper facilities for drawing up petitions of appeal, or for getting them drawn up by other prisoners, or by their legal advisers or friends. It is, however, no duty of the Jail establishment to draw up such petitions—Govt. Bengal 2031, June 16, 1870. The fullest opportunity should be given to prisoners to execute powers of attorney to whomsoever they please, and without reference to the mode or circumstances by which they might be influenced to do so.—Sheikh Dadabhai, 1 Bomb., 16.

The Calcutta High Court has, by its Circular 9, August 7, 1867, laid it down, as a general rule, that petitions of appeal against the sentences or orders of Sessions Judges, presented to officers in charge of jails, shall be forwarded by such officers direct to the Registrar of the High Court of Judicature, intimation of the fact being at once given in each instance and in the following form to the Judge whose sentence or order is appealed against.

Petitions not presented in time, or not accompanied as above, are not to be transmitted to the Registrar, but should be returned to the petitioner with an endorsement by the officer in charge of the jail showing the date of presentation.

To

THE SESSIONS JUDGE OF

The undersigned begs to report, for the information of the Sessions Judge, that an appeal by the prisoner against the Judge's sentence or order, dated _____ and noted at foot, has this day been presented to the officer in charge of the _____ Jail, and has been forwarded to the High Court, as required by S. 420 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

_____,
Officer in charge of the Jail.

As a general rule the Sessions Judge should, on receipt of this notice forward the record to the High Court, but whenever public inconvenience would arise from this, he should forward in the first instance a certified copy of his reasons (S. 464) for making or passing such sentence or order, stating at the same time why the original record has not been sent.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 5, May 28, 1868.

No petition of appeal or revision shall be admitted by any Criminal Court unless it is either submitted through the District or Jail authorities or presented by the convicted person himself or by some one authorised by power of attorney to present it on behalf of the convicted

Ch. XXXI. person.—Smyth, p. 102. Along with the petition of appeal and copy of the judgment, the Deputy Commissioner should forward to the Appellate Court the files of the case, so that the appeal may be disposed of with as little delay as possible. When the appeal lies to the Chief Court, the Deputy Commissioner should forward the file in his office through the Commissioner, so that the files of the Sessions Court and of the committing Magistrate may be transmitted together to the Chief Court.—Smyth, p. 103.

S. 421.

But when the order is not appealable, no record should be sent unless specially called for.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 7, Aug. 12, 1869; 12 W. R., Crim. Cirs., 5; 3 B. L. R., Rules, &c., 11. In such cases also the officer in charge of the Jail should not forward the petition, but should leave the prisoner to move the superior Court by motion in open Court.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 8, Aug. 25, 1869; 12 W. R., Crim. Cirs., 5; 3 B. L. R., Rules, &c., 11.

When transmitting a petition of appeal, a Magistrate should forward the record of the case to the Court of Session.—Panj. Ch. Ct. Cir. 22, Oct. 26, 1868. •

A petition of appeal must be presented within the period, prescribed by Act IX, 1871, Sch. II, unless the appellant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal within such period, and it must be accompanied by a copy of the sentence or order appealed against, as provided by S. 419 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.—Act IX, 1871, S. 5.

Communications from an officer in charge of a Jail to a Sessions Judge, relative to an appeal made by a prisoner convicted by the latter, should not be made through the Magistrate of the District, but to the Sessions Judge direct.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 6, July 2, 1869; 3 B. L. R., Rules, &c., 5.

421. On receiving the petition and copy under Summary rejection of section 419 or section 420, the appeal.

Appellate Court shall peruse the same, and, if it considers that there is no sufficient ground for interfering, it may reject the appeal summarily: Provided that no appeal presented under section 419 shall be dismissed unless the appellant or his pleader has had a reasonable opportunity of being heard in support of the same.

Before rejecting an appeal under this section, the Court may call for the record of the case, but shall not be bound to do so.

It is not competent to an Appellate Court to order a convict under sentence of imprisonment to appear in Court—Bomb. II. Ct., Antoine José, Sept. 4, 1869, Rem. in Chambers. The proviso to S. 424 of this Code, however, seems to contemplate the exercise of this power in exceptional cases.

When an Appellate Court has rejected an appeal without hearing the appellant's pleader, and it is afterwards proved to the satisfaction of that Court that an adequate excuse has been made for the pleader's non-appearance, it is open to the Appellate Court to rehear the appeal on its merits. Such a power should, however, be sparingly used.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Nov. 7, 1873; 7 Mad., xxix, App. (S. C.) 9 Mad. Jur., 58 (S. C.) Weir, 205. But see contra Mahomed Yashin, I. L. R. 4 Bomb., 101, where it was held that an order rejecting an appeal was final. Ch. XXXI. Ss. 422, 423.

422. If the Appellate Court does not reject the appeal summarily, it shall cause

Notice of appeal.

notice to be given to the appellant or his pleader and to such officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, of the time and place at which such appeal will be heard, and shall, on the application of such officer, furnish him with a copy of the grounds of appeal; and, in cases of appeals under section 417, the Appellate Court shall cause a like notice to be given to the accused.

(Ss. 62, 269, para. 2; S. 279.)

S. 417 relates to an appeal against an order of acquittal.

A complainant cannot claim a right to be heard in appeal. The matter is one which may be left in each case to the discretion of the Court.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro., Nov. 6, 1874; 10 Mad. Jur. 67; (S. C.) Weir, 207.

423. The Appellate Court shall then send for the Powers of Appellate Court in disposing of appeal record of the case, if such record is not already in Court. After perusing such record, and hearing the appellant or his pleader, if he appears, and the Public Prosecutor, if he appears, and, in case of an appeal under section 417, the accused, if he appears, the Court may, if it considers there is no sufficient ground for interfering, dismiss the appeal, or may—

(a) in an appeal from an order of acquittal, reverse such order and direct that further inquiry be made, or that the accused be retried or committed for trial, as the case may be, or find him guilty and pass sentence on him according to law;

(b) in an appeal from a conviction, (1) reverse the finding and sentence, and acquit or discharge the accused, or order him to be retried by a Court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to such Appellate Court, or committed for trial, or (2) alter the finding, main-

Ch. XXXI. taining the sentence, or, with or without altering the finding, reduce the sentence, or (3) with or without such reduction, and with or without altering the finding, alter the nature of the sentence, but not so as to enhance the same;

S. 423.

(c) in an appeal from any other order, alter or reverse such order:

(d) Nothing herein contained shall authorize the Court to alter or reverse the verdict of a jury, unless it is of opinion that such verdict is erroneous owing to a misdirection by the Judge, or to a misunderstanding on the part of the jury of the law as laid down by him.

(S. 272, para. 3 ; S. 280.)

It will be seen that the power of enhancing a sentence on appeal no longer exists. The power of enhancing a sentence is conferred only upon a High Court as a Court of Revision. S. 439. But though an Appellate Court cannot enhance a sentence, it can set it aside and direct a commitment to the Court of Session to be made.

Subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained, no finding, sentence or order passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be reversed or altered on appeal on account—of any error, omission or irregularity in the complaint, summons, warrant, charge or judgment or other proceedings before or during trial or in any inquiry or other proceeding under this Code, or of the want of sanction required by S. 195, or of the omission to nominate jurors or assessors in accordance with S. 324, or of any misdirection in any charge to a jury; unless such an omission or irregularity, want, or misdirection has occasioned a failure of justice. S. 537.

(a) When an appeal is presented against an order of acquittal under S. 417, the High Court may issue a warrant directing that the accused be arrested &c. S. 427.

When an acquittal is set aside on appeal, the sentence passed should commence to take effect from the date on which the prisoner after arrest has been committed to Jail.—Empress v. Mohuddi, 6 Cal. L. R. 352, Foot note.

(b) On the appeal of some of the accused the Appellate Court in acquitting them cannot (unless it be a High Court) set aside the sentences of those who have not appealed. It should refer the case to the High Court (which has the full powers of a Court of appeal subject to S. 537). Mad. Ht. Ct. Pro. April 19, 1875; Weir, 219. Application should rather be made to Government in such a case. Sheosurn Singh, Cal. H. Ct. Aug. 16, 1877.

(d) The latter part of S. 537 above quoted is especially important in connection with this clause.

The law does not expressly provide for the withdrawal of an appeal and probably now that the power of enhancing a sentence has been taken away from Appellate Courts, applications for leave to withdraw Ch. XXXI. will not be made. It has been held that an appeal may be withdrawn before an Appellate Court has decided to hear it. In re Chunder Nath Ss. 424, 425. Deb, 5 Cal. L. R., 372. But not after the Appellate Court has heard it. In re Dwarka Manjee, 9 Cal. L. R., 427.

424. The rules contained in Chapter XXVI as to the judgment of a Criminal Court of original jurisdiction shall apply, so far as may be practicable, to the judgment of any Appellate Court other than a High Court :

Judgments of Subordinate Appellate Courts.

Provided that, unless the Appellate Court otherwise directs, the accused shall not be brought up, or required to attend, to hear judgment delivered.

425. Whenever a case is decided on appeal by the High Court under this chapter, it shall certify its judgment or order to the Court by which the finding, sentence or order appealed against was recorded or passed. If the finding, sentence or order was recorded or passed by a Magistrate other than the District Magistrate, the certificate shall be sent through the District Magistrate.

Order by High Court on appeal to be certified to lower Court.

The Court to which the High Court certifies its judgment or order shall thereupon make such orders as are conformable to the judgment or order of the High Court ; and, if necessary, the record shall be amended in accordance therewith.

(S. 299, paras. 1, 2.)

Cases appealable to the High Court direct from the order of a Magistrate would be appeals against the orders of a Presidency Magistrate or by a Magistrate not in a Presidency-town where the accused was an European British subject. S. 408 (b.)

In cases of revision the certificate of the order of the High Court is to be communicated direct to the Court by which the finding, sentence or order revised was passed. S. 442.

As regards the communication of judgment of other Appellate Courts the Calcutta High Court No. 6, July 2, 1869, 2 B. L. R. 5 Rules &c. has made the following rule :

An Appellate Court should certify in every case its decision to the Court or Magistrate from whose decision the appeal has been preferred, and it will be the duty of the Court or Magistrate either to issue such warrant as may be necessary in consequence of the decision of the Appellate Court, or to inform the appellant in writing through the officer in charge of the jail of the result of this appeal.

bond.

The power conferred by this section on an Appellate Court may be exercised also by the High Court in the case of any appeal by a convicted person to a Court subordinate thereto.

When the appellant is ultimately sentenced to imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation, the time during which he is so released shall be excluded in computing the term for which he is so sentenced.

(Ss. 281, 297, para. 8.)

The following form of warrant has been prescribed by the Calcutta High Court (Wilkins, 67) for the release of an appellant on bail.

Arrest of accused in appeal from acquittal. 417, the High Court may issue a Ss 427-429. warrant directing that the accused be arrested and brought before it or any subordinate Court, and the Court before which he is brought may commit him to prison pending the disposal of the appeal, or admit him to bail.

(Act IV 1877, S. 168, para. 3.)

428. In dealing with any appeal under this chapter, the Appellate Court, if it thinks additional evidence to be necessary, may either take such evidence itself, or direct it to be taken by a Magistrate, or, when the Appellate Court is a High Court, by a Court of Session or a Magistrate.

When the additional evidence is taken by the Court of Session or the Magistrate, it or he shall certify such evidence to the Appellate Court, and such Court shall thereupon proceed to dispose of the appeal.

Unless the Appellate Court otherwise directs, the accused or his pleader shall be present when the additional evidence is taken; but such evidence shall not be taken in the presence of jurors or assessors.

The taking of evidence under this section shall for the purposes of Chapter XXV be deemed to be an inquiry.

(S. 282, paras. 1, 3, 4.)

Such evidence would be taken as in warrant cases, in the manner prescribed by S. 356. The Appellate Court is competent to issue a commission for the examination of a witness under the circumstances specified in S. 503.

429. When the Judges composing the Court of appeal are equally divided in opinion, the case, with their opinions thereon, shall be laid before another Judge of the same Court, and such Judge, after such examination and such hearing (if any) as he thinks fit, shall deliver his opinion, and the judgment or order shall follow such opinion.

(S. 271 B; Act XI, 1874, S. 22.)

Ch. XXXI. 430. Judgments and orders passed by an Appellate Court upon appeal shall be final, except in the cases provided for in section 417 and Chapter XXXII. (S. 285.)

Ss. 430, 431. Finality of orders on appeal.

Ch. XXXII. for in section 417 and Chapter XXXII.

S. 132.

S. 417 provides for an appeal on behalf of Government against a judgment of acquittal passed by an Appellate Court; Chapter XXXII refers to Revision.

Petitions of appeal from prisoners should not be forwarded to the High Court in cases in which sentences or orders have already been passed by an Appellate Court on appeal (as, for example, by a Court of Session on an appeal from a conviction before the Magistrate of the District or other officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate of the 1st class), such sentences or orders being final under section 285 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

431. Every appeal under section 417 shall finally abate on the death of the accused, and every other appeal under this chapter shall finally abate on the death of the appellant.

Abatement of appeals.

The death of an offender does not discharge from the liability to pay a fine imposed on him any property which would after his death be legally liable for his debts (S. 70, Penal Code) so that although an appeal shall finally abate on the death of the appellant, and his guilt or innocence may not have been determined by the Appellate Court, the fine will still be capable of realization.

CHAPTER XXXII.

OF REFERENCE AND REVISION.

432. A Presidency Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, refer for the opinion of the High Court any question of law which arises in the hearing of any case pending before him, or may give judgment in any such case subject to the decision of the High Court on such reference; and, pending such decision, may either commit the accused to jail, or release him on bail to appear for judgment when called upon.

Reference by Presidency Magistrate to High Court.

(Act IV, 1877, S. 240.)

433. When a question has been so referred, the High Court shall pass such order thereon as it thinks fit, and shall cause a copy of such order to be sent to the Magistrate by whom the reference was made, who shall dispose of the case conformably to the said order.

Disposal of case according to decision of High Court.

Ch. XXXII.
Ss. 433-435.

The High Court may direct by whom the costs of such reference shall be paid.

Direction as to costs.

(Act IV, 1877, S. 241.)

434. When any person has, in a trial before a Judge of a High Court consisting of more Judges than one and acting in the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, been convicted of an offence, the Judge, if he thinks fit, may reserve and refer for the decision of a Court consisting of two or more Judges of such Court any question of law which has arisen in the course of the trial of such person, and the determination of which would affect the event of the trial.

Power to reserve questions arising in original jurisdiction of High Court.

If the Judge reserves any such question, the person convicted shall, pending the decision thereon, be remanded to jail, or, if the Judge thinks fit, be admitted to bail, and the High Court shall have power to review the case, or such part of it as may be necessary, and finally determine such question, and thereupon to alter the sentence passed by the Court of original jurisdiction, and to pass such judgment or order as the High Court thinks fit.

(Act X, 1875, S. 101.)

This is in accordance with the terms of S. 25 of the Letters Patent of 1865 constituting the High Court of Calcutta, S. 26 of which declares that the Advocate General may certify that there is in his judgment an error in the decision of a point or points of law decided by the Court of original criminal jurisdiction, or that a point or points of law should be further considered on which the High Court shall proceed as set forth in the last para. of S. 434 of the Code. The Letters Patent of the other High Courts are similar in this respect.

435. The High Court or any Court of Session, or District Magistrate, or any Sub-divisional Magistrate empowered Power to call for records of inferior Courts.

Ch. XXXII. by the Local Government in this behalf, may call for and examine the record of any proceeding before any inferior Criminal Court situate within the local limits of its or his jurisdiction, for the purpose of satisfying itself or himself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order recorded or passed, and as to the regularity of any proceedings of such inferior Court.

S. 436.

If any Sub-divisional Magistrate acting under this section considers that any such finding, sentence or order is illegal or improper, or that any such proceedings are irregular, he shall forward the record, with such remarks thereon as he thinks fit, to the District Magistrate.

Orders made under sections 143 and 144 and proceedings under section 176 are not proceedings within the meaning of this section.

(Ss. 294, 295, para. 1 ; S. 520.)

It should be noted that the expression "inferior Criminal Court" is used instead of "Subordinate Court" as in S. 294 of the repealed Code of 1872. All Magistrates in the District are Criminal Courts inferior to the Court of Session, but having regard to S. 6 which gives the five classes of Criminal Courts, probably only Magistrates of the second or third class would be inferior to the District Magistrate.

S. 143 refers to an order passed to any person not to repeat or continue a public nuisance ; S. 144 to summary order for the removal of certain nuisances in cases of emergency ; S. 176 to inquests—

These powers should be exercised at all times ; not merely on matters coming up in Court but also in matters coming to the knowledge of the particular official on reliable information. Conversation held with an officer employed on Famine duty was considered to be information on which action could be taken.—Mad. H. Ct , Pro. Nov. 21, 1878 ; Weir, 215.

Criminal proceedings are bad unless they are conducted according to law ; and if they are substantially bad in themselves, the defect will not be cured by any consent of the prisoner. It is the duty of Magistrates and all Criminal Courts to follow the procedure provided by law, and there is no law which sanctions their intentional departure from that procedure, and thus attempting to protect themselves against the consequences of such departure by getting the accused to say that he consents to it. There would be an end to all procedure, if such an assent were held to warrant material and important irregularities.—Bholanath Sen, 25 W. R., 57.

436. When, on examining the record of any case under section 435 or otherwise, the Court of Session or District Magistrate considers that such case is triable exclusively by the Court of Session, and that an accused person has been improperly discharged by the inferior Court, the Court of Session or District Magistrate may cause him to be arrested, and may thereupon, instead of directing a fresh inquiry, order him to be committed for trial upon the matter of which he has been, in the opinion of the Court of Session or District Magistrate, improperly discharged :

Power to order commitment.

Provided as follows—

(a) that the accused has had an opportunity of showing cause to such Court or Magistrate why the commitment should not be made :

(b) that, if such Court or Magistrate thinks that the evidence shows that some other offence has been committed by the accused, such Court or Magistrate may direct the inferior Court to inquire into such offence.

(S. 296, paras. 1, 2, 3 ; Act XI, 1874, S. 29.)

The distinction between Ss. 436, 437 should be noted. In a case which the Court of Session or District Magistrate considers to be triable exclusively by a Court of Session instead of directing fresh inquiry, the Court may pass an order directing the accused who has been improperly discharged to be committed for trial (S. 436) ; but further inquiry may be ordered only into the case of any accused person who has been discharged in any other case (S. 437). No doubt many of these cases may be warrant cases, but some will be cases which though not exclusively triable by a Court of Session would be committed to such Court, if in the opinion of the particular Magistrate a prima facie case be made out. Such cases would be cases of death caused by a blow rupturing the spleen in which, though nothing more serious than hurt or grievous hurt might be established, commitment to the Court of Session has always been considered desirable.

(a) This in accordance with numerous decisions of the High Courts. But if the trial has taken place and no failure of justice has resulted from the error, the High Court will not interfere.—Khamir, I. L. R., 7 Cal., 662.

(b) In the case of Tarucknath Mookerjee, 10 B. L. R., 285, it was held that the words “improperly discharged” referred to some offence for which he was substantially charged in the complaint or which was specified in the warrant, or which was framed as a formal charge by the Magistrate at the preliminary inquiry for unless this were so a man might be committed for trial of an offence of which he had never been accused or even heard a word until he was apprehended under the Judge’s commitment. Such a result could not have been contemplated by the Legislature as the Code was carefully framed with a view to provide that no one shall be committed for trial without having pre-

Ss. 437, 438. The alteration in the law made by S. 436 of the Code would prevent such a result as before an order of commitment could be passed, the accused must have an opportunity of showing cause why the commitment should not be made, and the Court taking cognizance of the matter may direct the inferior Court to inquire into such offence

A Sessions Judge on hearing an appeal is competent to set aside the conviction and sentence, and direct the appellant to be committed for trial, when he finds that the offence which the appellant apparently has committed is one triable exclusively by a Court of Session. The Magistrate, on receipt of such an order can act on the evidence already taken and make the commitment in the manner prescribed by the Code. Elahi Buksh, I. L. R., 2 All, 910.

437. On examining any record, under section

District Magistrate by himself or by any of the Magistrates subordinate to him to make, and the District Magistrate may himself make, or direct any subordinate Magistrate to make, further inquiry into any complaint which has been dismissed under section 203, or into the case of any accused person who has been discharged.

(S. 298 ; Act XI 1874, S. 31.)

This section goes beyond S. 298 of the Code of 1872 in enabling the Court of Session or District Magistrate to direct further inquiry to be made "into the case of any accused person who has been discharged" which hitherto could be ordered only by the High Court as a Court of Revision. Further inquiry may be made by the District Magistrate or any Magistrate subordinate to him.

wise the record of any proceeding, report for the orders of the High Court the results of such examination, and, when such report contains a recommendation that a sentence be reversed, may order that the execution of such sentence be suspended, and if the accused is in confinement that he be released on bail or on his own bond.

(S. 296, para. 1.)

The following orders have been issued by the CALCUTTA High Court (Cir. 18, July 15, 1863, Wilkins, 110) regarding the manner in which such references should be made :—

"References under S. 438 shall always be accompanied by the records of the case to which they relate, and by an English letter commening—‘ Under S. 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and Ch. XXXII. Circular Order of the High Court, dated 15th July, 1863, No. 18, I herewith transmit the record of the case noted in the margin, to be laid before the High Court with the following report.’ There will then be stated—1st.—A brief analysis of the case.

2nd.—The order of the Lower Court.

3rd.—In what particular portion of that order the Court making the reference considers an error on a point of law to exist.

4th.—The grounds upon which the order of the Lower Court should be reversed.

“ Unless there be any particular reason why delay should be avoided, the explanation of the Lower Court should be called for and accompany the reference.

“ The Court do not think it necessary to enter into any details of the particular occasions on which such references should be made to them, or to define what descriptions of grave irregularity of procedure, undue severity of punishment, &c., may give rise to a reference to them.

“ It is deemed sufficient to enjoin the exercise of a sound discretion in making these references to the Court, so that neither important errors and omissions may escape correction, nor the time of the Court be needlessly engrossed by matters not demanding their interference.”

All references submitted to the Chief Court, PANJAB, under this section are to be accompanied by the referring officer's opinion, by the records, and a statement of the case in English, giving—1st.—A brief abstract of the case.

2nd.—The sentence or order of the Lower Court, and the name of, and powers exercised by, the Magistrate passing it.

3rd.—The particular portion of the sentence or order in which an error on a point of law is believed to exist.

4th.—The grounds upon which the order of the Lower Court should be reversed or modified.

It should also be noted how much of the sentence the accused has undergone, and, if he has been sentenced to fine or whipping, whether the fine has been realized, or the whipping has been inflicted.—Panjab Ch. Ct. Cir. 5, 1870; Smyth, p. 103; also Bomb. H. Ct., Gaz., 1873, p. 714.

The following Rules have been issued by the MADRAS High Court:—

All references under S. 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure by Magistrates with full powers should be submitted to the High Court through the Magistrate of the District, unless justice would be defeated by the delay.

The District Magistrate cannot refuse to refer to the High Court a case in which a Divisional Magistrate doubts the legality of the sentence of a Subordinate Magistrate.

A reference under S. 438 should contain the opinion of the officer referring the proceedings and the grounds upon which such opinion is based.

A copy of the proceedings if in English, or if in the Vernacular, an English translation must be sent up with all cases referred to the High Ch XXXII. Court under S. 438.—Mad. H. Ct., Feb. 20, 1864; Nov. 14, 1864; Dec. 11, 1866; and July 1, 1868.

S. 439. The fact of there being no evidence to support a conviction is a question of law and affords ground for a reference under S. 296. The fact of the evidence being insufficient is a question of fact, and affords no ground for such a reference.—Mad. H. Ct., Oct. 30, 1867.

Where there is the right of appeal, the High Court will not exercise its extraordinary powers as a Court of Revision until all other remedies provided by law have been exhausted—Rajcoomar Singh, 1 Cal. L. R., 382; Nilambor Baboo, 1 L. R., 2 All., 276.

It is not competent to a District Magistrate to invoke the High Court as a Court of Revision because he disapproves of the orders passed by the Sessions Judge as a Court of appeal.—David, 6 Cal. L. R., 245.

439. In the case of any proceeding the record of High Court's power of revision. which has been called for by itself, or which has been reported for orders, or which otherwise comes to its knowledge, the High Court may, in its discretion, exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of appeal by sections 195, 423, 426, 427 and 428, or on a Court by section 338, and may enhance the sentence, and, when the Judges composing the Court of revision are equally divided in opinion, the case shall be disposed of in manner provided by section 429.

No order under this section shall be made to the prejudice of the accused unless he has had an opportunity of being heard either personally or by pleader in his own defence.

Where the sentence dealt with under this section has been passed by a Magistrate acting otherwise than under section 34, the Court shall not inflict a greater punishment for the offence which, in the opinion of such Court, the accused has committed, than might have been inflicted for such offence by a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class.

Nothing in this section applies to an entry made under section 273, or shall be deemed to authorize a High Court to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction.

(S. 297.)

S. 195 relates to the sanction of any Court to prosecute on account of certain offences committed either in contempt of the lawful authority of public servants; or against public justice; or relating to documents given in evidence.

S. 423 to the powers of an Appellate Court to reverse the finding and sentence, and acquit or discharge the accused, or to order him to be re-tried by a Court of competent jurisdiction, or, be committed for trial, to alter the finding, maintaining the sentence, or with or without altering the finding to reduce the sentence, or alter the nature of the sentence, or to alter or reverse an order not a conviction or sentence. Ch. XXXII.
S. 439.

S. 426 to the suspension of a sentence or order, and to admission on bail or personal recognizance.

S. 427 to an order for the arrest of an accused person.

S. 428 to the taking of additional evidence.

S. 338 to an offer of conditional pardon.

The second para. of S. 439 is new, and must be read so as to mean any order adversely affecting the position of the accused at that time, otherwise as any order passed by a Court of Revision rejecting an application on behalf of an accused would be to his "prejudice" he might claim the right to be heard. Compare S. 340 which declares that every person accused before any Criminal Court may of right be defended by a Pleader.

The High Court, as a Court of Revision, will not interfere in the case of persons who have not appealed to the proper Court merely because others tried in the same case who have appealed have been acquitted. Application in such a case should be made to the Local Government. Sheo Surun Singh, Cal. H. Ct., Aug. 16, 1877. Nor will the High Court exercise its extraordinary powers as a Court of Revision so long as the right of appeal remains, and until all such remedies provided by law have been exhausted. Rajcoomar Singh, 1 Cal. L. R., 352; Nilambar Baboo, 1 L. R., 2 All., 276.

The High Court in exercise of its powers of superintendence and revision will not go into evidence and examine the conclusions of the Lower Court on the facts, otherwise an appeal would lie against every decision of the subordinate Courts which was clearly not intended by the Legislature. But the High Court is nevertheless not excluded from interference when, in cases requiring the exercise of discretion, it appears on the face of the proceedings that a Magistrate has exercised no discretion at all, or has exercised his discretion in a manner wholly unreasonable. The High Court has the power and ought to interfere where the Magistrate has been guilty of misconduct. In the matter of Jag-gut Chunder Chuckerbatty, 1 L. R., 2 Cal., 110.

The probative form or effect of evidence is a question of fact; where there is evidence to be considered and weighed, a judgment of conviction will not be set aside by a Court of Revision. It is otherwise if on certain facts found a Court misapplies the law.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Nov. 29, 1869. Weir, 219. Aurokiam, Pet. Mad. H. Ct; Weir, 221.

Where the evidence discloses the commission of an offence of a graver character and beyond the jurisdiction of the Magistrate who tried the case, the High Court can quash the conviction and sentence for the minor offence, and direct the trial before a Court having jurisdiction for the graver. Whether the High Court will do so or not is a question not of law but of expediency on the facts of the particular case. Mad. H. Ct. Pro., May 1, 1872, Weir, 219. So where upon certain facts the Magistrate convicted the accused of voluntarily causing grievous hurt,

Ch. XXXII. the High Court set aside the conviction and sentence, because on those facts the accused should have been tried in the Sessions Court on a charge of culpable homicide not amounting to murder. A commitment was accordingly ordered. Gopeenath Sirdar, 1 Cal. L. R., 141 : See also Hurrish Pal, 20 W. R., 63. Again, when the prisoner had been wrongly convicted in the Sessions Court under S. 301A, Penal Code, of causing death by a rash and negligent act, and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for one year, the High Court, as a Court of Revision, after calling on him to show cause why the conviction should not be modified and the sentence enhanced, convicted him of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, and sentenced him to five years rigorous imprisonment. In re Khyarli Mundul, 1. L. R., 4 Cal., 474.

Although an Appellate Court is now deprived of the power to enhance a sentence, it is competent on the appeal of an accused to order him to be committed for trial, S. 423 (a) ; the power to enhance is conferred by S. 439 on the High Court alone as a Court of Revision.

440. No party has any right to be heard either personally or by pleader before any Court when exercising its powers of revision : provided that the Court may, if it thinks fit, when exercising such powers, hear any party either personally or by pleader, and that nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect section 439, paragraph two.

(S. 297, last para.)

See note to S. 439.

Every person accused before any Criminal Court may of right be defended by a Pleader. S. 340.

441. When the record of any proceeding of any Presidency Magistrate is called for by the High Court under section 435, the Magistrate may submit with the record a statement setting forth the grounds of his decision or order and any facts which he thinks material to the issue ; and the Court shall consider such statement before over-ruling or setting aside the said decision or order.

(Act IV 1877, S. 182.)

442. When a case is revised under this chapter by the High Court, it shall certify its decision or order to the Court by which the finding, sentence or order revised was recorded or passed, and the Court or Magistrate to which the decision or order is so certified shall thereupon make such orders as are conformable to the decision so certified; and, if necessary, the record shall be amended in accordance therewith.

Ch XXXIII
S. 443.

(S. 299, paras. 1, 2.)

S. 425 provides that in the case of an appeal to the High Court, if the finding, sentence or order was recorded or passed by a Magistrate other than the District Magistrate, the certificate shall be sent through the District Magistrate. In cases of Revision this certificate is to be communicated direct to the Court by which the finding, sentence or order was passed. The reason for this difference of practice is not apparent.

PART VIII.

SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS AGAINST EUROPEANS AND AMERICANS.

443. No Magistrate, unless he is a Justice of the Peace, and (except in the case of a Presidency Magistrate) unless he is a Magistrate of the first class and an European British subject, shall inquire into or try any charge against an European British subject.

Magistrate who may inquire into and try charges against European British subjects.

(S. 72, paras. 1, 2; S. 74, para. 1.)

“European British subject” means—

(1). Any subject of Her Majesty, born, naturalized, or domiciled in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland or in any of the European, American, or Australian Colonies or possessions of Her Majesty, or in the Colony of New Zealand, or in the Colony of the Cape of Good Hope or Natal.

(2). The children and grandchildren of any such person by legitimate descent. S. 4, (f).

An European British subject is not exempt from the ordinary jurisdiction of the Courts except in inquiries or trials into charges of offences. In matters coming under Chapter VIII, relating to security to keep the peace or for good behaviour (unless in the latter case the matter can be dealt with under the European Vagrancy Act 1874) (S. 111 ante): under Chapters X, XI, relating to the removal of public nuisances: under * 227 4th 1874.

Ch XXXIII Chapter XII, relating to disputes as to immoveable property : under Ss. 444, 445. Chapter XXXVI, relating to the maintenance of wives and children.
 European British subjects are subject to the ordinary jurisdiction of the Criminal Courts.

Two exceptions are made to this special jurisdiction on behalf of European British subjects :—(1) any Civil, Criminal or Revenue Court can convict and sentence any one, whether he is an European British subject or not, to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, and in default to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, unless the fine be sooner paid, for certain contempts of Court committed in its view or presence. S. 430.

(2.) When after being determined to be a vagrant, or being convicted of having returned to India without special permission within five years from the date of his embarkation in pursuance of his agreement, or of begging, an European British subject remains in India, he loses this privilege under the Code of Criminal Procedure of being treated as such. European Vagrancy Act, IX of 1874, S. 30.

444. No Judge presiding in a Court of Session, shall exercise jurisdiction over an European British subject unless he himself is an European British subject; and, if he is an Assistant Sessions Judge, unless he has held the office of Assistant Sessions Judge for at least three years, and has been specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government.
 (S. 72, para. 1; S. 76, para. 1.)

See last portion of note to S. 443 regarding the exceptions to this special jurisdiction for European British subjects.

445. Nothing in section 443 or section 444 shall prevent any Magistrate from taking cognizance of an offence committed by any European British subject in any case in which he could take cognizance of a like offence if committed by another person :

Provided that, if he issues any process for the purpose of compelling the appearance of an European British subject accused of an offence, such process shall be made returnable before a Magistrate having jurisdiction to inquire into or try the case.

(Ss. 73, 438.)

Ss. 191, et seq. declares what Magistrates can take cognizance of an offence and under what circumstances.

added by Act of 1884. (44?)

446. Notwithstanding anything contained in ^{Ch XXXIII} section 32 or section 34, no Magistrate other than a ^{S. 110, 112} Presidency Magistrate shall pass any sentence on an European British subject other than imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months or fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or both, (S. 74, para. 2.)

447. When an European British subject is accused of an offence before a Magistrate, and such offence cannot, in the opinion of such Magistrate, be adequately punished by him, and is not punishable with death or with transportation for life, such Magistrate shall, if he thinks that the accused ought to be committed, commit him to the Court of Session, or, in the case of a Presidency Magistrate, to the High Court. When the offence which appears to have been committed is punishable with death or with transportation for life, the commitment shall be to the High Court. (S. 75, para. 1 ; S. 438, para. 2.)

In a case where death resulted from violence, the accused, an European British subject, was committed for trial by the Court of Session on charges none of which were punishable with death or transportation for life. On a reference to the Calcutta High Court, it was held that as the offence complained of was punishable with death or transportation for life the Magistrate had no authority to commit the accused for trial by the Court of Session. The order of the Magistrate was accordingly set aside, and the commitment of the accused to the High Court ordered. Queen v. Heenan, Aug. 24, 1877.

In another case, however, of a similar nature, it was held that the commitment was not illegal, and that after giving the accused an opportunity to be heard, the Sessions Judge might have transferred the case to the High Court where a proper charge would have been framed. The delay of making a reference would thus have been avoided. Queen v. Macgregor, Cal. H. Ct. Sept. 6, 1877.

448. Where any person committed to the High Court under section 447 is charged with several offences of which one is punishable with death or transportation for life and the others with a less punishment, and the High Court considers that he should not be tried for Such Judge may either himself bind over, or direct the committing Magistrate to bind over, the complainant and witnesses to appear before the High Court,

(S. 76.)

S. 452 provides that if a person who is an European British subject is accused jointly with one who is not, and the former is committed for trial by the High Court, both may be tried together.

 shall be the same as it would have been had the European British subject been tried separately :

When native may claim separate trial. Provided that, if the European British subject reasonable time within which to prove that it is true, and shall then decide whether he is or is not an European British subject, and shall deal with him accordingly. If any such person is convicted by such Magistrate and appeals from such conviction, the burden of proving that the Magistrate's said decision was wrong shall lie upon him.

Ch XXXIII When any such person is committed by the Magistrate for trial before the Court of Session, and such
 S. 454. person before such Court claims to be dealt with as an European British subject, such Court shall, after such further inquiry, if any, as it thinks fit, decide whether he is or is not an European British subject, and shall deal with him accordingly. If he is convicted by such Court and appeals from such conviction, the burden of proving that the Court's said decision was wrong shall lie upon him.

When the Court before which any person is tried decides that he is not an European British subject, such decision shall form a ground of appeal from the sentence or order passed in such trial.

(S. 83.)

Before committing an European British subject for trial by a Court having jurisdiction, the Magistrate and Justice of the Peace holding the preliminary inquiry should satisfy himself that there is evidence of his being amenable to the jurisdiction of that Court. For this purpose, there should be produced the evidence of a credible person, who knows the accused and his place of birth, or who has heard him declare to what country he belongs. If an accused person plead before a Magistrate that he is a European British subject, and that therefore, he is not amenable to the jurisdiction of the Local Courts, and the Magistrate has no reason to distrust this statement, it is sufficient for the Magistrate to act on this allegation; and if he considers the evidence to be such as to warrant the commitment of the accused person to the High Court, he should make such commitment. The Magistrate should, however, forward as a witness some person who heard the accused person make this plea.—Calcutta High Court Cir., 5, May 6, 1864.

A Magistrate is bound to give an accused person an opportunity of pleading that he is an European British subject when there is reason to believe that he is such.—Clerk v. Peane, 5 W. R., 53.

When the accused pleaded that he was an European British subject, but, without deciding this plea, the Magistrate who was competent to try him, even if he were so, tried and sentenced him to a sentence beyond his powers over such a person, the High Court directed the Magistrate to inquire into this plea giving the accused an opportunity of proving it and on receiving the Magistrate's certificate that the accused was an European British subject the High Court directed the Magistrate to commit him for trial by the Court of Session competent to hold the trial refusing to try the case itself, and further directed that if that Court agreed in the conviction, it should pass the sentence that the Magistrate could pass.—Empress v. Berrill, I. L. R., 4, All., 4.

tried or by whom he is committed, or if, when such claim has been made before, and disallowed by, the committing Magistrate, it is not again made before the Court to which such subject is committed, he shall be held to have relinquished his right to be dealt with as such European British subject, and shall not assert it in any subsequent stage of the same case. Ch XXXIII
S. 454.

Unless the Magistrate has reason to believe that any person brought before him is not an European British subject, the Magistrate shall ask such person whether he is such a subject or not.

(S. 84.)

See note to S. 453.

The last para. is in accordance with the judgment In re Quiros, 6 Cal. L. R., 465 : (S. C.) I. L. R., 6 Cal., 83. Before an European British subject can be considered to have waived the privilege conferred on him by S. 443, it must appear that his rights have been distinctly made known to him, so that he would have been enabled to exercise his choice and judgment whether he would or would not claim such rights. The Legislature could not have meant that a person might be tried or committed by a Magistrate, whose act in trying or committing him would be altogether invalid, so that such act could be immediately got rid of by application to the proper Court.

S. 534 of this Code, however, enacts that an omission to ask any person whether he is an European British subject in a case to which the second clause of S. 451 applies shall not affect the validity of any proceeding. But if the Magistrate knows or ought to know that there was a defect in his jurisdiction because the accused is an European British subject, he is bound to give the accused an opportunity of pleading it. If it can be shown that the Magistrate knew or ought to have known the fact, and nevertheless proceeded with the case, he is liable to an action for trespass. Calder v. Halkett, 2 Moore, Ind. App., 293.

The point was also discussed in the case of In re Foy (Taylor and Bell, 219) by the late Supreme Court of Calcutta when the following judgment was delivered :

"If the Magistrate knows that the prisoner is an European British subject, it is his duty, whether the prisoner claims exception or not, to abstain from further proceedings against him as a Magistrate. If without any actual knowledge on the subject, the Magistrate has reason to suppose that the prisoner is such a British subject, it is the Magistrate's duty to ascertain from him, whether he alleges or denies that he is one ; and if he alleges that he is, to give him every facility by allowing time, and otherwise, for proving that he is, the burden of such proof being on him. A Magistrate will not be justified, if he has reason to suppose that a prisoner is an European British subject, in proceeding against him as if he were not one, without first giving him a distinct opportunity of pleading that he is one. If he do not so plead, or is not able, upon time being allowed him for that purpose, to adduce any satisfactory proof of his being an European British subject, the Magistrate will be

Ch XXXIII quite warranted in proceeding against him. If he do so plead, and gives proof or produce documents which, although not amounting to full legal proof of his status, satisfy the Court that he is really an European British subject, the Magistrate should, without putting the prisoner fully to complete his proof by strict legal evidence, take up the case as a Justice of the Peace, and send it up to the Supreme Court, taking care to record distinctly the statement made by the prisoner that he is a British subject of lawful European descent.

"The law is, that if a Judge has no jurisdiction, and has the knowledge or means of knowledge of his want of jurisdiction, he is liable as a trespasser if he acts. (Calder v. Halkett and the cases there referred to.) The duty of a Court is to walk in the course prescribed for it, as it understands its limits, and not to assume a jurisdiction which has not been confided to it. If a Court have reasonable ground to doubt its jurisdiction, it should take care to clear up the point, and to allow time for the production of the proper evidence. It is undoubtedly true that if a Court of limited jurisdiction exceeds its jurisdiction by reason of the existence of a personal exemption, or other cause not communicated, not known to the Judge, or of which he has not the means of knowledge in his reach, the Judge and his officers cannot be treated as trespassers. The case of the Marshalsea Court (cited in Mr. Baron Powell's judgment) shows that it is otherwise, where the means of knowledge are in the power of the Judge. It is therefore an unsafe doctrine to hold out to a Judge, that he may disregard an apparently bona fide claim of personal exemption from his jurisdiction, which he knows, or has good reason to believe, is well founded, on the ground of the absence of legal proof of the fact of exemption; for in many cases no doubt can exist of the truth of facts which a party, incapacitated from giving evidence for himself, is under a temporary inability to prove, and the question would be whether the Judge really believed that he had the jurisdiction which he exercised. The question would not turn on this, viz., on whom the onus of proof of the exemption would lie, if put in issue; but on the bona fides of the proceeding upon the claim of the exemption. The question before us, however, is unaffected by such considerations for if there be error in the proceeding, it is not the less a proceeding of a Court of competent jurisdiction. It is not alleged that the Court knew that it wanted jurisdiction. That question might be tried in its appropriate mode of proceeding, either by criminal or civil procedures. If a Judge discovers at any stage of the proceedings, that he has really no jurisdiction over the subject matter or the person, he would be utterly inexcusable, if he proceeded further and did not do his utmost to remedy what had been unwittingly done in the belief of jurisdiction. The immunity from suit for judicial acts is in respect of the character of Judge, which if a man assumes, knowing that in fact he is not so, either as to the subject matter or the man, he neither merits nor has any immunity."

Since the above decision, Act XVIII of 1850 has been passed "for the greater protection of Magistrates and others acting judicially."

(S. 81, para. 1, cl. i.)

See the judgment of Turner, J. in the case of Gholam Ismail, I. L. R., 1, All. 1, in which he held that the special provision made by S. 456 for European British subjects clearly manifests the intention of the Legislature to prevent the summary interference of the High Court in cases in which natives of this country might complain of illegal detention.

All Justices of the Peace within the states, territories, and chief-ships specified in the preceding Notification, have under S. 6, Act XI, 1872, been empowered to commit for trial to the High Courts respectively, having jurisdiction under the said Notification, such European British subjects, being Christians as are required by Act X of 1872 to be committed to a High Court.—Gaz. of India, 1874, Part I, p. 486.

In modification of Notifications No. 2199g, dated 11th October 1872, and No. 396g, dated 14th February 1873, the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct that the powers of a High Court within the lands described in the aforesaid Notifications shall not be exercised by the Agent to the Governor General in Rajpootana, in cases in which the accused are European British subjects being Christians.—Gaz. of India, 1874, Part I, p. 486.

In modification of Notification No. 159j, dated 7th August 1873, the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct that the powers of a High Court within the territories described in the aforesaid Notification shall not be exercised by the Agent to the Governor General in Central India, in cases in which the accused are European British subjects being Christians.—Gaz. of India, as above.

or hereafter made by the Governor General in Council, which confer on Magistrates or on the Court of

Ch XXXIII
Ss. 459-461.

Session jurisdiction over offences, shall be deemed to apply to European British subjects, although such persons be not expressly referred to therein.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any Court to exceed the limits prescribed by this chapter as to the amount of punishment which it may inflict on an European British subject, or to confer jurisdiction on any Magistrate not being a Justice of the Peace or, ~~on any Magistrate or Sessions Judge outside the Presidency towns not being an European British subject.~~

(Act XXII, 1870, Ss. 2, 4.)

Thus under Act I of 1859 (the Merchant Seamans Act) certain offences committed by European British subjects were punishable by a Justice of the Peace. It has been held by the Madras High Court that such an offence can nevertheless be tried only by a Justice of the Peace who is also a Magistrate of the first class and himself an European British subject.—Mad H. Ct., Pro. Dec. 18, 1873, 7 Mad. App. xxxiii (S. C.) 9 Mad. Jur., 105.

charged before the Court of Session jointly with a person not an European or American, and in compliance with a claim made under section 460 is tried by a jury, or with the aid of a set of assessors, of which at least one-half consists of Europeans and Americans, the latter person shall, if he so claims, be tried separately. (S. 242.)

Act II 1874.

Ch XXXIII

Similarly S. 275 provides for the converse :—

Ss. 462, 464. In a trial by Jury, before a Court of Session, of a person not being an European or an American, the majority of the Jury, shall, if he so desires consist of persons who are neither Europeans nor Americans.

462. When a trial is to be held before the Court of Session in which the accused person, or one of the accused persons, is entitled to be tried by a jury constituted under the provisions of section 451 or section 460, the Court shall, three days at least before the day fixed for holding such trial, cause to be summoned, in the manner hereinbefore prescribed, as many European and American jurors as are required for the trial.

Summoning and empanelling jurors under section 451 or 460.

The Court shall also at the same time in like manner cause to be summoned the same number of other persons named in the revised list, unless such number of such other persons has been already summoned for trials by jury at that session.

From the whole number of persons returned, the jurors who are to constitute the jury shall be chosen by lot in the manner prescribed in section 276, until a jury containing the proper number of Europeans or Americans, or a number approaching thereto as nearly as practicable, has been obtained :

Provided that in any case in which the proper number of Europeans and Americans cannot otherwise be obtained, the Court may, in its discretion, for the purpose of constituting the jury, summon any person excluded from the list on the ground of his being exempted under section 320.

(S. 408, paras. 1, 2, 3.)

463. Criminal proceedings against European British subjects, Europeans not being European British subjects, and Americans, before the Court of Session and High Court, shall, except as otherwise expressly provided, be conducted according to the provisions of this Code.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

LUNATICS.

Ch. XXXIV

S. 464.

464. When a Magistrate holding an inquiry or Procedure in case of a trial has reason to believe that accused being lunatic. the accused is of unsound mind and consequently incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate shall inquire into the fact of such unsoundness, and shall cause such person to be examined by the Civil Surgeon of the District or such other medical officer as the Local Government directs, and thereupon shall examine such Surgeon or other officer as a witness, and shall reduce the examination to writing.

If such Magistrate is of opinion that the accused is of unsound mind and consequently incapable of making his defence, he shall postpone further proceedings in the case.

(Ss. 423, 424, para. 3.)

The Civil Surgeon of the District would ordinarily be examined by the Magistrate as a witness. The "other medical officer" appointed by the Local Government might be a person for whose examination a commission might issue under Chapter XL, Ss. 503 et seq.

Wandering lunatics are thus provided for by Act XXXVI, 1858,
 Ss. 4, 5, 18:—

It shall be the duty of every Daroga or District Police officer to apprehend and send to the Magistrate all persons found wandering at large within his District, who are deemed to be lunatics, and all persons believed to be dangerous by reason of lunacy. Whenever any such person as aforesaid is brought before a Magistrate, the Magistrate, with the assistance of a Medical officer, shall examine such person, and the Medical officer shall sign a certificate in the form A in the schedule to this Act, and the Magistrate shall be satisfied on personal examination or other proof that such person is a lunatic and a proper person to be detained under care and treatment, he shall make an order for such lunatic to be received into the Asylum established for the Division in which the Magistrate's jurisdiction is situate, or, if such lunatic is not a native of the country and the circumstances of the case so require, into a Lunatic Asylum at the Presidency; and shall send the lunatic in suitable custody to the Asylum mentioned in such order. Provided that, if any friend or relative of any lunatic, who is believed to be dangerous, shall undertake in writing to the satisfaction of the Magistrate that such lunatic shall be properly taken care of, and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or others, the Magistrate, instead of sending him to an Asylum, may make him over to the

Ch. XXXIV care of such friend or relative. Provided also that, if any such friend or relative shall desire that the lunatic shall be sent to a licensed Asylum instead of the public Asylum of the Division, and shall engage in writing to the satisfaction of the Magistrate to pay the expenses which may be incurred for the lodging, maintenance, medicine, clothing, and care of the lunatic in such Asylum, the Magistrate may send the lunatic to the licensed Asylum mentioned in the engagement. S. 4.

S. 465.

If it shall appear to the Magistrate, on the report of a public officer or the information of any other person, that any person within the limit of his jurisdiction deemed to be a lunatic is not under proper care and control, or is cruelly treated or neglected by any relative or other person having the charge of him, the Magistrate may send for the supposed lunatic, and summon such relative or other person as has or ought to have the charge of him; and if such relative or other person be legally bound to maintain the supposed lunatic, the Magistrate may make an order for such lunatic being properly taken care of and treated, and if such relative or other person shall wilfully neglect to comply with the said order, may commit him to jail for a period not exceeding one month. If there be no person legally bound to maintain the supposed lunatic, or if the Magistrate think fit so to do, he may proceed as prescribed by in the last preceding section, and upon being satisfied in the manner aforesaid that the person deemed to be a lunatic is a lunatic and a proper person to be detained under care and treatment, may make an order for his reception into such Asylum as aforesaid. It shall be the duty of every Daroga or District Police officer to report to the Magistrate every such case of neglect or cruel treatment as aforesaid which may come to his knowledge. S. 5.

The word "lunatic," as used in this Act, shall mean and include every person of unsound mind, and every person being an idiot. S. 18.

465. If any person committed for trial before a Court of Session or a High Court appears to the Court at his trial to be of unsound mind and consequently incapable of making his defence, the jury or the Court with the aid of assessors shall, in the first instance, try the fact of such unsoundness and incapacity, and, if satisfied of the fact, shall pass judgment accordingly, and thereupon the trial shall be postponed.

The trial of the fact of the unsoundness of mind and incapacity of the accused shall be deemed to be part of his trial before the Court.

The Bombay High Court directed a Sessions Judge that, on entertaining doubts as to the sanity of the accused person, he should not merely have put questions to him, but should have tried the fact of such unsoundness of mind by examining the Civil Surgeon or some other Medical officer, and by taking such evidence as might have been procurable from the village in which the accused resided, with the view of ascertaining whether he had, at any time prior to the commission of the crime, exhibited symptoms of insanity.—Heera Poonja, 1 Bomb., 33. Ch. XXXIV

466. Whenever an accused person is found to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, if the case is one in which bail may be taken, may release him on sufficient security being given that he shall be properly taken care of and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, and for his appearance when required before the Magistrate or Court or such officer as the Magistrate or Court appoints in his behalf.

If the case is one in which bail may not be taken, or if sufficient security is not given, the Magistrate or Court shall report the case to the Local Government, and the Local Government may order the accused to be confined in a lunatic asylum or other suitable place of safe custody, and the Magistrate or Court shall give effect to such order. (S. 426.)

* The Government of Bombay has, under Act V, 1868, S. 2, delegated the powers of a Local Government under S 466 of this Code to the Commissioner of Sindh.—Bom. Gaz., 1874, p. 312.

The Court before which the accused person is so brought should report the case direct to Government, with a history of the facts.—Beng. Govt. Cir. 84, Oct. 28, 1870; Agra Sud. Ct. 91, 1863. In the Panjab such cases should be reported to Government through the Commissioner.—Smyth, p. 134.

After a case has been reported to Government under S. 466, it should not be struck off, but kept on the register of pending cases.—Rughooa, 6 W. R., 3.

Pending a reference to Government, the lunatic should be detained either in the Jail-Hospital or in the Lunatic Asylum, (when there is one) at the discretion of the Magistrate.—Govt. of Bengal Cir. 48, August 12, 1871.

The following rules for the conveyance of lunatics to Asylums have been issued by the Government of Bengal:—

1. For persons of unsound mind who need to be sent to the Lunatic Asylums of the Lower Provinces, whether practicable, water shall be preferred to land carriage.

2. No lunatic shall be sent from a jail, or other place in which he is temporarily confined for safe custody, to a Lunatic Asylum, when he is in an unfit state to travel with safety, either from ordinary bodily disease, or during the acute stage of the form of mental aberration under which he is labouring.

Ch. XXXIV

S. 467.

3. Every lunatic, who is unable to take care of himself, or to attend to his personal wants, shall be provided with the attendance, clothing, and food, necessary for his safety and protection, and the strictest injunctions shall be given to the persons in charge of such lunatics to see that they do not suffer injury from exposure to weather, want of food, the neglect of personal cleanliness, or any other cause whatever.

4. Every lunatic in transit to an Asylum shall be provided with at least two complete suits of clothing, and with an extra blanket, so as to admit of their being changed and washed in case of necessity. The most stringent orders shall be given to the persons in charge of a lunatic that all fouled clothes shall immediately be changed and cleansed before they are again worn.

5. Proper provision for cooking and supplying the food of lunatics in transit shall be made by the officer transmitting them.

6. Every lunatic, prior to transfer to an Asylum, shall be carefully examined by the Medical officer who furnishes the certificate of unsoundness of mind, and the Medical officer referred to shall certify that all the above-mentioned provisions for the safe custody of the lunatic have been made, and that he is in a fit state to travel. This certificate shall be transmitted by post to the officer in charge of the Asylum to which the lunatic is sent, and a duplicate copy of it shall be given to the person sent in charge of the lunatic.

7. The officer in charge of the Asylum shall, on the arrival of a lunatic, see that the above orders have been strictly observed, and that the lunatic has been properly cared for in transit. Should there be any evidence of carelessness or other breach of these rules, the matter shall at once be reported in writing to the Magistrate of the District for the information and orders of the Government.

After a person has been made over to the Local Government, the matter is beyond the authority of the Magistrate until he is replaced before that officer for trial under S. 468 on his being reported to be capable of making his defence. A Magistrate therefore cannot release such a person accused of a bailable offence for whose proper care sufficient security is offered after he has been made over for safe custody in the place appointed by the Local Government.—In re Joy Hurree Kor, I. L. R., 2 Cal., 356.

Under 14 and 15 Vic. c. 81, Ss. 1, 2 if any person shall be indicted for or charged with any crime or offence in India, and shall be acquitted of or not tried for such crime or offence on the ground of his being found to be of unsound mind, he may be removed to England in custody by order of the person administering the Government of the Presidency in which such person shall be in custody to abide the order of Her Majesty concerning his safe custody. And upon his arrival in the United Kingdom it shall be lawful for Her Majesty to give such order for the safe custody of such person during her pleasure to such place and in such manner as to Her Majesty shall seem fit.

467. Whenever an inquiry or a trial is postponed under section 464 or section 465, the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, may at any time resume the inquiry or trial, and require the accused to appear or be brought before such Magistrate or Court. Ch. XXXIV

When the accused has been released under section 466, and the sureties for his appearance produce him to the officer whom the Magistrate or Court appoints in this behalf, the certificate of such officer that the accused is capable of making his defence shall be receivable in evidence. Ss. 468-470.

(S. 427.)

468. If, when the accused appears or is again brought before the Magistrate or the Court, as the case may be, the Magistrate or Court considers him capable of making his defence, the inquiry or trial shall proceed.

If the Magistrate or Court considers the accused person to be still incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate or Court shall again act according to the provisions of section 464 or section 465, as the case may be.

(S. 428.)

469. When the accused appears to be of sound mind at the time of inquiry or trial, and the Magistrate is satisfied from the evidence given before him that there is reason to believe that the accused committed an act which, if he had been of sound mind, would have been an offence, and that he was at the time when the act was committed, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act or that it was wrong or contrary to law, the Magistrate shall proceed with the case, and, if the accused ought to be committed to the Court of Session or High Court, send him for trial before the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be.

(S. 424, paras. 1, 2.)

Ch. XXXIV incapable of knowing the nature of the act alleged as
 s. 470. constituting the offence, or that it was wrong or contrary to law, the finding shall state specifically whether he committed the act or not.

(S. 429.)

S. 84, Penal Code, declares that "nothing is an offence which is done by a person, who, at the time of doing it, by reason of unsoundness of mind, is incapable of knowing the nature of the act, or that he is doing what is either wrong or contrary to law."

S. 84 of the Penal Code falls within Chapter IV of that Code which relates to "general exceptions;" and S. 105 of the Evidence Act declares that, "when a person is accused of any offence, the burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within any of the general exceptions in the Indian Penal Code is upon him, and the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances."

The fact of unsoundness of mind must be clearly and distinctly proved before any jury is justified in returning a verdict under S. 84, Penal Code. Every man is presumed to be sane and to possess a sufficient degree of reason to be responsible for his acts until the contrary is proved.—Nobin Chunder Bannerjea, 20 W. R., 70.

If upon a trial it is doubtful whether the accused was or was not sane at the time of the commission of the criminal act charged, the trial should be postponed, and he should be placed under the care of the Civil Surgeon, who should carefully watch his state of mind, with the view to discover whether he is subject to recurring fits of insanity or light-headedness. The Calcutta High Court, on his appeal, remanded the case of Sheikh Moostafa (1 W. R., 1) for this purpose, ordering that, after having had charge of the prisoner for a period not less than thirty days, the Civil Surgeon should report to the Sessions Judge, and be examined on oath as to his state during that period.

It will not be out of place here to quote the leading case in England on this point. The following questions were put by the House of Lords in the case of R. v. McNaughten (Archbold, pp. 15—17) and received answers from the English Judges as below stated:—

"1st.—What is the law respecting alleged crimes committed by persons afflicted with insane delusion in respect of one or more particular subjects or persons; as, for instance, where, at the time of the commission of the alleged crime, the accused knew he was acting contrary to law, but did the act complained of with a view, under the influence of insane delusion, of redressing or revenging some supposed grievance or injury, or of producing some public benefit?"

"2nd.—What are the proper questions to be submitted to the jury when a person, alleged to be afflicted with insane delusion respecting one or more particular subjects or persons, is charged with the commission of a crime (murder for example), and insanity is set up as a defence?"

"3rd.—In what terms ought the question to be left to the jury as to the prisoner's state of mind at the time when the act was committed?"

"4th.—If a person, under an insane delusion as to the existing facts, commits an offence in consequence thereof, is he thereby excused? Ch. XXXIV

"5th.—Can a Medical man, conversant with the disease of insanity, who never saw the prisoner previous to the trial, but who was present during the whole trial, and the examination of all the witnesses, be asked his opinion as to the state of the prisoner's mind at the time of the commission of the alleged crime, or his opinion whether the prisoner was conscious, at the time of doing the act, that he was acting contrary to law, or whether he was labouring under, and what, delusion at the time?" S. 470.

To these questions the Judges (with the exception of Maule, J., who gave on his own account a more qualified answer) answered as follows:—

To the first question:—"Assuming that your Lordships' inquiries are confined to those persons who labour under such partial delusions only, and are not in other respects insane, we are of opinion that, notwithstanding the party did the act complained of with a view, under the influence of insane delusion, of redressing or revenging some supposed grievance or injury, or of producing some public benefit, he is nevertheless punishable, according to the nature of the crime committed, if he knew, at the time of committing such crime, that he was acting contrary to law, by which expression we understand your Lordships to mean the law of the land."

To the second and third questions:—"That the jury ought to be told in all cases that every man is presumed to be sane, and to possess a sufficient degree of reason to be responsible for his crimes, until the contrary be proved to their satisfaction; and that, to establish a defence on the ground of insanity, it must be clearly proved that, at the time of the committing of the act, the party accused was laboring under such a defect of reason, from disease of the mind, as not to know the nature and quality of the act he was doing, or, if he did know it, that he did not know he was doing what was wrong. The mode of putting the latter part of the question to the jury on these occasions has generally been, whether the accused, at the time of doing the act, knew the difference between right and wrong, which mode, though rarely, if ever, leading to any mistake with the jury, is not, as we conceive, so accurate when put generally, and in the abstract, as when put to the party's knowledge of right and wrong in respect to the very act with which he is charged. If the question were to be put as to the knowledge of the accused, solely and exclusively with reference to the law of the land, it might tend to confound the jury, by inducing them to believe that an actual knowledge of the law of the land was essential in order to lead to a conviction, whereas the law is administered upon the principle that every one must be taken conclusively to know it, without proof that he does know it. If the accused was conscious that the act was one which he ought not to do, and if that act was at the same time contrary to the law of the land, he is punishable; and the usual course, therefore, has been to leave the question to the jury, whether the party accused had a sufficient degree of reason to know that he was doing an act that was wrong; and this course, we think, is correct, accompanied with such observations and explanations as the circumstance of each particular case may require."

Ch. XXXIV

S. 471.

To the fourth question :—"The answer to this question must of course depend on the nature of the delusion ; but making the same assumption as we did before, that he labours under such partial delusion only, and is not in other respects insane, we think he must be considered in the same situation as to responsibility as if the facts with respect to which the delusion exists were real. For example, if, under the influence of his delusion, he supposes another man to be in the act of attempting to take away his life, and he kills that man, as he supposes, in self-defence, he would be exempt from punishment. If his delusion was that the deceased has inflicted a serious injury to his character and fortune, and he killed him in revenge for such supposed injury, he would be liable to punishment."

And to the last question :—"We think the Medical man, under the circumstances supposed, cannot in strictness be asked his opinion in the terms above stated, because each of those questions involves the determination of the truth of the facts deposed to, which it is for the jury to decide ; and the questions are not mere questions upon a matter of science, in which case such evidence is admissible. But where the facts are admitted or not disputed, and the question becomes substantially one of science only, it may be convenient to allow the question to be put in that general form, though the same cannot be insisted on as a matter of right."

In the cases of Sheikh Moostafa (1 W. R., 1) and of Pursoram (7 W. R., 42), which were tried in the Sessions Courts with the aid of Assessors, the Calcutta High Courts acquitted the prisoners on the ground specified in S. 84, Penal Code, but directed the Sessions Judge to report the cases for the orders of Government under S. 470, Code of Criminal Procedure.

The terms of the law should be strictly followed in recording the finding in a case falling under S. 470. A Judge should not find an accused person guilty of the offence charged, and then acquit him on the ground of insanity.—Cal. H. Ct. 22, 1864.

The following finding was given by the Calcutta High Court (8 W. R., 19, C. L.) as a model in cases dealt with under S. 429 :—"The Court concurring with the Assessors, finds that Gazeer Peer did kill Baboo Mundul by striking him on the head with a club ; but that by reason of unsoundness of mind he was incapable of knowing that he was doing an act which was wrong or contrary to law, and that he is not, therefore, guilty of the offence specified in the charge, viz., that he has committed culpable homicide not amounting to murder by causing the death of Baboo Mundul, and has thereby committed an offence punishable under S. 304 of the Indian Penal Code ; and the Court directs that the said Gazeer Peer be acquitted, and that, under the provision of S. 470 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the said Gazeer Peer be kept in safe custody in the ———, pending the orders of the Local Government.

The insanity of the accused person at the time of his committing the offence should not be tried as a preliminary point. It should be determined at the conclusion of the trial.—1 Agra, 53.

471. Whenever such judgment states that the accused person committed the act alleged, the Magistrate or Court before whom or which the trial has been held shall, if such act would, but for the incapacity found, have constituted an offence, order such person to be kept in safe custody in such place and manner as the Magistrate or Court thinks fit, and shall report the case for the orders of the Local Government. Ch. XXXIV

Ss. 472, 473,

The Local Government may order such person to be confined in a lunatic asylum, jail or other suitable place of safe custody.

(S. 430.)

The following form of finding under S. 471 in a trial held with Assessors has been prescribed by the Calcutta High Court, No. 955, Aug 17, 1867, Wilkins, 76.

"The Court, concurring with the Assessors, finds that () did kill () by striking him on the head with a club, but that, by reason of unsoundness of mind, he was incapable of knowing that he was doing an act which was wrong or contrary to law, and that he is not therefore guilty of the offence specified in the charge, viz.,

474. If such person is confined under the provisions of section 466 or section 471, and such Inspector General or visitors shall certify that, in his or their judgment, he may be discharged without danger of his doing injury to himself or to any other person, the Local Government may thereupon order him to be discharged, or to be detained in custody, or to be transferred to a public lunatic asylum if he has not been already sent to such an asylum; and, in case it orders him to be transferred to an asylum, may appoint a commission, consisting of a judicial and two medical officers.

Procedure where lunatic confined under section 466 or 471 is declared fit to be discharged.

Such commission shall make formal inquiry into the state of mind of such person, taking such evidence as is necessary, and shall report to the Local Government, which may order his discharge or detention as it thinks fit.

Report under S. 474 should, in the PUNJAB, be made to Government through the Commissioner.—Smyth, p. 134.

475. Whenever any relative or friend of any person confined under the provisions of section 466 or section 471 desires that he shall be delivered over to his care and custody, the Local Government, upon the application of such relative or friend, and on his giving security to the satisfaction of such Government that the person delivered shall be properly taken care of and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, may order such person to be delivered to such relative or friend.

The provisions of sections 472 and 474 shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to persons delivered under the provisions of this section; and the certificate of the inspecting officer appointed under this section shall be receivable as evidence.

CHAPTER XXXV.

PROCEEDINGS IN CASE OF CERTAIN OFFENCES AFFECTING THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

476. When any Civil, Criminal or Revenue Court is of opinion that there is ground for inquiring into any offence referred to in section 195, and committed before it or brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding, such Court, after making any preliminary inquiry that may be necessary, may send the case for inquiry or trial to the nearest Magistrate of the first class, and may send the accused in custody, or take sufficient security for his appearance, before such Magistrate; and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such inquiry or trial.

Such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed according to law, and may, if he is authorized under section 192 transfer cases, transfer the inquiry or trial to some other competent Magistrate.

(Ss. 471, 477.)

S. 195 declares that no Court shall take cognizance of certain offences in contempt of the lawful authority of a public servant, or against public justice, or relating to documents given in evidence without previous sanction or complaint of the public servant concerned, or of some superior officer, or of the Court concerned, or of some Court to which it is subordinate.

Ch. XXXV. The sanction refers to a private prosecution, the complaint to action directly taken at the instance of the particular public servant or Court immediately concerned, or of some superior public servant or Court. Before such complaint can be made, the particular Civil, Criminal or Revenue Court must proceed as directed by S. 476.

S. 476.

The High Court has invariably insisted that there must be some preliminary inquiry before a prosecution is regularly commenced and has set aside proceedings taken without such inquiry. It is not sufficient that a Court should give a reasonable indication of the nature of the offence to be inquired into by the Magistrate, or that it should decide as to the necessity for a Magisterial inquiry. Something more is needed than a mere indication that a witness has spoken falsely before a Civil Court is justified in initiating a prosecution for giving false evidence. There must be evidence of a direct and substantial nature before the Court, evidence going to show that the statement made by a witness is absolutely false. The law does not warrant a Judge in issuing a general commission to a Magistrate to inquire generally into the truth or falsehood of depositions or of averments in a plaint, and the Judge is bound to indicate the particular statement or averments in regard of which he considered that there was ground for a charge into which the Magistrate ought to inquire. Baijoo Lall, I. L. R., 1 Cal., 450

A Judge cannot send a case to a Magistrate for inquiry in order that the Magistrate, instead of the Judge may satisfy himself that any charge of any kind is made out against the accused. Proceedings taken on such an order are without jurisdiction. Kali Prosunno Bagchee, 23 W. R., 39. In the case of Mutty Lal Ghose, I. L. R., 6 Cal., 308 the Calcutta High Court (Garth, C. J., and Maclean, J.) stated that the ruling in the case of Baijoo Lall, I. L. R., 1 Cal., 450 had been somewhat misunderstood. It seems from that ruling that a Court, Civil or Criminal, which has heard a case tried, has no right to institute proceedings against any of the parties concerned in that case without first holding an inquiry and calling on those parties to show cause why such proceedings should not be taken. This is clearly a mistake. If in the course of proceedings, either civil or criminal, a Judge or Magistrate finds clear ground for believing that either of the parties or their witnesses have committed perjury or any other offence against public justice, he is justified in directing criminal proceedings against such persons without any further inquiry than what has been already held in his own Court.

The commonest class of case which arises is where a Magistrate, after examination of a complainant, has reason to distrust the complaint, and under S. 202 directs a local investigation to be made for the purpose of ascertaining its truth or falsehood before issuing process to compel the attendance of the accused, and then after considering the result of that investigation, under S. 203, dismisses the complaint because in his judgment there is no sufficient ground for proceeding, and simultaneously with that order directs the complainant to be prosecuted for having intentionally made a false complaint (S. 211, Penal Code).

Sometimes this order is passed in the absence of the complainant and sometimes in his presence and after a refusal to examine any witnesses on his behalf then present or to issue summons for their attendance. The Calcutta High Court has in several cases pointed out the unfairness of such a course to the complainant, and the injurious effect of putting such power in the hands of the Police so as practically to enable them to determine when a complainant should be subjected to a criminal prosecution; although the Magistrate may have good reason for dismissing the complaint, he should give the complainant an opportunity of showing in the preliminary inquiry to be held under S. 476 that his complaint is not of such a nature as to subject him to be prosecuted under S. 211, or S. 193, Penal Code, or for any other offence. At the same time if the complainant does not, after sufficient interval of time, appear and dispute the Police report, or ask to have his witnesses examined, a prosecution may be ordered. Gour Mohun Singh, 16 W. R. 44: Ashroff Ali, I. L. R., 5 Cal., 281: In re Russick Lall Mullick, 7 Cal. L. R., 382: Choolhai Telee, 2 Cal. L. R., 315: Biyogi Bhagut, 4 Cal. L. R., 134: Gyan Chunder Roy, I. L. R., 7 Cal., 582: Karimdad Khan, I. L. R., 6 Cal., 496: Salik Roy, I. L. R., 6 Cal., 582: Abul Hosein, I. L. R., 1 All., 497: Chackradar Potti, 8 Cal., L. R., 289.

The original case out of which the charge of perjury &c. has arisen should have been determined. Bishoo Barik, 16 W. R., 77: Surbhanna Gaundan, 1 Mad., 30: Gyan Chunder Roy, I. L. R., 7 Cal., 208. Criminal proceedings should not be instituted so long as there is any possible doubt, or it is not perfectly certain that the decision in that case will be maintained in the event of an appeal being made.—Baijoo Lall, I. L. R., 1 Cal., 450.

A preliminary inquiry held under S. 476 is not judicial. The parties examined should not therefore be examined on oath or affirmation. The Magistrate should examine the witnesses de novo. Jud. Comr., Punjab, 1610, April 1, 1862: Nujjum Ali, 6 W. R., 41. A commitment made by a Magistrate to the Court of Session without any inquiry held by himself is illegal. Radhanath Majoomdar, 5 Wyman, 19: Nujjum Ali, 6 W. R., 41: Tookhanund, 6 Agra, 115. It is not necessary that the preliminary inquiry should be conducted in the presence of the accused though an opportunity should be given to him to attend. All that the Court making it has to do is to satisfy itself that there are prima facie grounds for sending the case to a Magistrate.—Choto Shadoo Peada, 9 W. R., 3.

If it is intended to charge a person with intentionally giving false evidence in making two contradictory statements, the Court which desires to take action should obtain sanction from the Court before which the other statement was made. Govt. Bengal, 24 W. R., 41: Ramranjan Bhandari, 25 W. R., 83. The Court making the preliminary inquiry has no power to insist on the attendance of an accused person, but if he is present it can send him in custody to the Magistrate or take sufficient security for his appearance.

477. Subject to the provisions of section 444, a Power of Court of Session as to such offences committed before itself.

Court of Session may charge a person for any offence referred to in section 195 and committed before it, or brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding, and may commit, or admit to bail and try, such person upon its own charge.

Ch. XXXV. Such Court may direct the Magistrate to cause the
 S. 478. attendance of any witnesses for the purposes of the trial.

(S. 472, paras. 1, 2.)

S. 444 relates to cases against an European British subject with which the Judge presiding in a Court of Session cannot deal unless he is himself an European British subject and if he is an Assistant Sessions Judge unless he has also held that office for three years and has been specially empowered by the Local Government in that behalf.

S. 477 does not require that the offence should be triable exclusively by a Court of Session as was enacted by S. 472, the corresponding section, of the Code of 1872.

A Sessions Judge is not competent under S. 477 to commit a person charged with having intentionally given false evidence in making a statement before him contradictory to one previously made to a Magistrate unless it be intended to prove that the statement in the Sessions Court is the false statement. If the offence is to be proved merely by the fact that contradictory statements were made, and a conviction to be asked for in the alternative, then inasmuch as the statement made before the Magistrate may be the false statement, the Sessions Court would not be competent to act under S. 477 as that offence would have been neither committed before it nor brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding. See Nomal, 4 B. L. R., 9.

478. When any such offence is committed before any Civil or Revenue Court, or brought under the notice or any Civil or Revenue Court in the course of a judicial proceeding, and the case is triable exclusively by the High Court or Court of Session, or such Civil or Revenue Court thinks that it ought to be tried by the High Court or Court of Session, such Civil or Revenue Court may, instead of sending the case under section 476 to a Magistrate for inquiry, itself complete the inquiry, and commit or hold to bail the accused person to take his trial before the High Court or Court of Session, as the case may be.

For the purposes of an inquiry under this section, the Civil or Revenue Court may, subject to the provisions of section 443, exercise all the powers of a Magistrate; and its proceedings in such inquiry shall be conducted as nearly as may be in accordance with the provisions of Chapter XVIII, and shall be deemed to have been held by a Magistrate.

(S. 474, paras. 1, 2; S. 476.)

In this section, as in S. 477, the offence need not be one triable Ch. XXXV. exclusively by a Court of Session to enable a Civil or Revenue Court to commit a case for trial by a High Court or Court of Session. S. 474 Ss. 479, 480. of the Code of 1872 made this is a sine quâ non.

There must be an inquiry held. A commitment cannot be made merely on proceedings held in the civil suit in which the offence is alleged to have been committed.—Rungatoonee, 22 W. R., 52.

479. When any such commitment is made by a Civil or Revenue Court, the Court shall send the charge with the order of commitment and the record of the case to the Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate or other Magistrate authorized to commit for trial; and such Magistrate shall bring the case before the High Court or Court of Session, as the case may be, together with the witnesses for the prosecution and defence.

(S. 478.)

480. When any such offence as is described in Procedure in certain cases of contempt. section 175, section 178, section 179, section 180, or section 228 of the Indian Penal Code is committed in the view or presence of any Civil, Criminal or Revenue Court, the Court may cause the offender, whether he is an European British subject or not, to be detained in custody; and at any time before the rising of the Court on the same day offence and sentence the offender to fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, and, in default of payment, to simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, unless such fine be sooner paid.

Nothing in section 443 or section 444 shall be deemed to apply to proceedings under this section.

(S. 435.)

This is an exception to the rule laid down by S. 443 which makes European British subjects amenable only to Criminal Courts presided over by special officers.

S. 175, Penal Code, relates to the omission to produce a document before a public servant by a person legally bound to produce such document.

S. 178 relates to the refusal of a person to bind himself by a oath to state the truth, when duly required so to bind himself by a public servant.

S. 179 relates to the refusal of a person, legally bound to state the truth, to answer any question put to him by a public servant in the exercise of his legal powers.

Ch XXXV. S. 160 relates to the refusal of a person to sign a statement made by him on lawful demand of a public servant.

S. 481. S. 228 relates to an intentional insult or interruption to a public servant sitting in any stage of a judicial proceeding.

Prevarication or refusal by a witness to return direct answers to questions will not render him liable to punishment under this section, or under S. 228, Penal Code.—Pandu bin Vithoji, 4 Bomb., 7, Crown Cases; Choto Hurree Paramanick Tantee, 15 W. R., 5.

An application for the transfer of a suit from a particular Court, on the ground of a probable miscarriage of justice, is not a contempt.—Kadar Buksh, 4 Panj. Rec., 64

An irrelevant question put to a witness cannot amount to a contempt under S. 228, Penal Code, though a persistence in vexatious or irrelevant questions after warning might amount to a contempt.—Azcem-oolla, 2 Panj. Rec., 80.

A Criminal Court acting under S. 480 should specifically record its reason for inflicting a fine, and the facts constituting the contempt, with any statement the offender may make, together with the finding and sentence.—Fanchanada Tambiran, 4 Mad., 229.

A contempt is by law made promptly punishable by the Court before which it is committed; but where a Magistrate, to whom the case has been referred, refuses to act, and the Court referring the cases takes no further notice, another and a superior Court cannot revive the matter.—3 W. R., 11, C. L.

Proceedings under S. 480 constitute a trial, and therefore orders so passed are subject to appeal under the rules laid down for appeals.—K Chapper Menon, 4 Mad., 126. An appeal is allowed against every conviction and sentence under this Chapter. Provision is also made by S. 486 for the Courts to which such appeals shall lie.

Sch. V, No. 38 contains a form of warrant of commitment in cases of contempt dealt with under S. 480 when a fine has been imposed.

Since in cases of contempt a sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine must be undergone in the Civil Jail, rations must be supplied to the convict as they are supplied to prisoners in the Criminal Jail, and application should be made to the Collector for payment of the same.—3 W. R., 21, C. L.

When an offender has been sentenced to fine only, and to imprisonment in default of payment of the fine, and the Court issues a warrant for the levy of the amount, it may suspend the execution of the sentence of imprisonment and may release the offender on his executing a bond, with or without sureties, as the Court thinks fit, conditioned for his appearance before such Court on the day appointed for the return to the warrant, such does not bring more than fifteen days from the time of executing the bond; and in the Court of the fine not having been realised, the Court may direct the sentence of imprisonment to be carried into execution at once. S. 387.

481. In every such case, the Court shall record the facts constituting the offence, with the statement (if any) made by the offender, as well as the finding and sentence.

Record in such cases—

If the offence is under section 228 of the Indian Penal Code, the record must show the nature and stage of the judicial proceeding in which the Court interrupted or insulted was sitting, and the nature of the interruption or insult. Ch. XXXV.
Ss. 482, 483.

(S. 435, paras. 2, 3.)

No person should be punished for contempt of Court unless the specific offence charged against him be distinctly stated, and an opportunity of answering given him. Where this had not been done, the order of fine was set aside. In re Pollard, L. R., 2 P. C., 106.

482. If the Court in any case considers that a person accused of any of the offences referred to in section 480 and committed in its view or presence should be imprisoned otherwise than in default of payment of fine, or that a fine exceeding two hundred rupees should be imposed upon him, or such Court is for any other reason of opinion that the case should not be disposed of under section 480, such Court, after recording the facts constituting the offence and the statement of the accused as hereinbefore provided, may forward the case to a Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the same, and may require security to be given for the appearance of such accused person before such Magistrate, or, if sufficient security is not given, shall forward such person under custody to such Magistrate.

Procedure where Court considers that case should not be dealt with under section 480.

The Magistrate to whom any case is forwarded under this section shall proceed to hear the complaint against the accused person in manner hereinbefore provided.

(S. 436, paras. 1, 2.)

If a case be dealt with under S. 482 and the accused is an European British subject, only a Magistrate of the first class who is a Justice of the Peace and an European British subject will be competent to deal with it, as the exception contained in last para. of S. 480 has not been extended to proceedings under S. 482.

483. When the Local Government so directs,

When Registrar or Sub-Registrar to be deemed a Civil Court within sections 480 and 482.

any Registrar or any Sub-Registrar appointed under the Indian Registration Act, 1877, shall be

Ch. XXXV. deemed to be a Civil Court within the meaning of sections 480 and 482.
 Ss. 484, 485.

This section is new.

484. When any Court has under section 480 adjudged an offender to punishment for refusing or omitting to do anything which he was lawfully required to do, or for any intentional insult or interruption, the Court may in its discretion discharge the offender or remit the punishment on his submission to the order or requisition of such Court, or on apology being made to its satisfaction.

(S. 437.)

485. If any witness before a Criminal Court refuses to answer such questions as are put to him, or to produce any document in his possession or power which the Court requires him to produce, and does not offer any reasonable excuse for such refusal, such Court may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, sentence him to simple imprisonment, or by warrant under the hand of the presiding Magistrate or Judge commit him to the custody of an officer of the Court, for any term not exceeding seven days, unless in the meantime such person consents to be examined and to answer, or to produce the document. In the event of his persisting in his refusal, he may be dealt with according to the provisions of section 480 or section 482, and, in the case of a Court established by Royal Charter, shall be deemed guilty of a contempt.

(Ss. 356, 364.)

Sch. V, No 39 contains a form of warrant of commitment of a witness refusing to answer.

The offence committed by a witness in refusing to answer a question is punishable under S. 179, Penal Code, and the procedure to be followed is laid down in Ss. 480, 482 of this Code.

A witness shall not be excused from answering any question as to any matter relevant to the matter in civil or any criminal proceeding upon the ground that the answer to such question will criminate or may tend, directly or indirectly, to criminate such witness, or that it will expose, or tend, directly or indirectly, to expose such witness to any penalty or forfeiture of any kind. Provided that no such answer, which any witness shall be compelled to give, shall subject him to any arrest or prosecution, or be proved against him in any criminal proceeding, Ch. XXXV.

except a prosecution for giving false evidence by such answer.—Act I, 1872 (Evidence Act). S. 132. S. 486.

When a witness is cross-examined, he may be asked any questions which tend (1) to test his veracity, (2) to discover who he is and what is his position in life, or (3) to shake his credit, by injuring his character, although the answer to such questions might tend directly or indirectly to expose him to a penalty or forfeiture. S. 146.

If any such question relates to a matter not relevant to the proceeding, except in so far as it affects the credit of the witness by injuring his character, the Court shall decide whether or not the witness shall be compelled to answer it, and may, if he thinks fit, warn the witness that he is not obliged to answer it. S. 148. Certain points for the consideration of the Court in exercising such discretion are laid down in this section, and Ss. 151, 152 give further power to a Court to forbid indecent or scandalous questions to be put except under certain circumstances—also any question intended to insult or annoy or needlessly offensive in form.

Ss. 149, 150 lay down the course to be taken when any such question as is specified in S. 148 is asked without reasonable grounds for thinking that the imputation which it conveys is well founded.

But there are certain matters which certain witnesses are declared by law to be entitled to withhold. See Act I, 1872, Ss. 121, et seq.

486. Any person sentenced by any Court under section 480 or section 485 may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, appeal to the Court to which decrees or orders made in such Court are ordinarily appealable.

The provisions of Chapter XXXI shall, so far as they are applicable, apply to appeals under this section, and the Appellate Court may alter or reverse the finding or reduce or reverse the sentence appealed against.

An appeal from such conviction by a Court of Small Causes in a Presidency-town shall lie to the High Court, and an appeal from such conviction by any other Court of Small Causes shall lie to the Court of Session for the Sessions Division within which such Court is situate.

An appeal from such conviction by any officer as Registrar or Sub-Registrar appointed as aforesaid may, when such officer is also Judge of a Civil Court, be made to the Court to which it would, under the preceding portion of this section, be made if such conviction were a decree by such officer in his capacity as such Judge, and in other cases may be made to the District Judge, or, in the Presidency-towns, to the High Court.

(S. 268.)

Ch. XXXV. If the accused person is an European British subject, and he has — been convicted by a Magistrate or Court of Session, he has the right of
 S. 487. appeal to the High Court. S. 408.

487. Except as provided in sections 477, 480 and 485, no Judge of a Criminal Court or Magistrate, other than a Judge of a High Court, the Recorder of Rangoon, and the Presidency Magistrates, shall try any person for any offence referred to in section 195, when such offence is committed before himself or in contempt of his authority, or is brought under his notice as such Judge or Magistrate in the course of a judicial proceeding.

Nothing in section 476 or section 482 shall prevent a Magistrate empowered to commit to the Court of Session or High Court from himself committing any case to such Court, or shall prevent a Presidency Magistrate from himself disposing of any case instead of sending it for inquiry to another Magistrate.

(S. 473.)

The terms of S. 487 clear away many of the difficulties experienced in interpreting and acting under S. 473, the corresponding section, of the Code of 1872. The offences now excepted are those specified in S. 195 of this Code instead of the indefinite expression, offences committed in contempt of the authority of the particular Court. Again although a Magistrate, not a Presidency Magistrate, cannot himself try such a case, he can hold an inquiry and commit it to the Court of Session or High Court, although the offence may not be exclusively triable by such Court, and a Court of Session may charge a person committing such an offence and commit, or admit to bail and try him on such charge.

The disqualification is only personal. The successor in office of the particular officer can hold such a trial.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Oct. 2, 1877; 1 L. R., 1 Mad., 305: (S. C.) Weir, 295.

A Revenue officer cannot in his capacity as Magistrate try a person for having given false evidence before him as Collector. He cannot try the case on a complaint made by himself.—Sobha, 1 Leg. Rem., 103.

It is not illegal for a Sessions Judge to hear an appeal against an order of a Magistrate convicting a person for whose prosecution the Sessions Judge had given sanction under S. 195. Kesavaiya and others. Per Innes and Forbes, JJ., Kernan, J. dis. Weir, 294.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Ch. XXXVI.

OF THE MAINTENANCE OF WIVES AND CHILDREN.

S. 488.

488. If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain his wife or his legitimate or illegitimate child unable to maintain itself, the District Magistrate, a Presidency Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate, or a Magistrate of the first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, at such monthly rate, not exceeding fifty rupees in the whole, as such Magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate from time to time directs.

Such allowance shall be payable from the date of the order.

If any person so ordered wilfully neglects to comply with the order, any such Magistrate may, for every breach of the order, issue a warrant for levying the amount due in manner hereinbefore provided for levying fines, and may sentence such person, for the whole or any part of each month's allowance remaining unpaid after the execution of the warrant, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month :

Provided that, if such person offers to maintain his wife on condition of her living with him, and she refuses to live with him, such Magistrate may consider any grounds of refusal stated by her ; and may make an order under this section notwithstanding such offer, if he is satisfied that such person is living in adultery, or that he has habitually treated his wife with cruelty.

No wife shall be entitled to receive an allowance from her husband under this section if she is living in adultery, or if, without any sufficient reason, she refuses to live with her husband, or if they are living separately by mutual consent.

On proof that any wife in whose favour an order

Ch. XXXVI. has been made under this section is living in adultery, or that without sufficient reason she refuses to live with her husband, or that they are living separately by mutual consent, the Magistrate shall cancel the order.

S. 488.

All evidence under this chapter shall be taken in the presence of the husband or father, as the case may be, or, when his personal attendance is dispensed with, in the presence of his pleader, and shall be recorded in the manner prescribed in the case of summons-cases.

(S. 536.)

If any Magistrate, not being empowered by law in that behalf makes an order for maintenance, his proceedings shall be void. S. 530. (n).

Acts of familiarity before the time that the bastard child could have been begotten are receivable as corroborative evidence, in confirmation of the statement of the mother "in some material particular" such as is required by the law of England.—Cole v. Manning. 2, Q. B. D., 611.

If a Magistrate is otherwise competent to decide a case of maintenance, he is not without jurisdiction, because he may not have been empowered to take cognizance of offences without complaint, the matter of such case not being an offence.

The fact that the man against whom the order for maintenance was passed was an European British subject and resident in another District, and that a similar application had been rightly or wrongly dismissed in that District for want of jurisdiction was held to be no bar to jurisdiction.

When the child is deaf and dumb, and shown to be unable to maintain itself, though a major, the father can be ordered to maintain it.—In re Todd, 5 All., 237.

There is no appeal against an order passed under this section; but it is subject to revision by the High Court under S. 439.—Thaku bin Ira, 5 Bomb., 81, Crown Cases.

An order under S. 489 must be founded on legal proof in the same proceedings, and not upon knowledge acquired by the Magistrate in another case.—Lopotee Demnee, 8 W. R., 67; Gonda, 13 W. R., 19.

S. 488 does not deprive a wife of any remedy in the Civil Courts, which she would otherwise have had.—Lalla Gopeenath v. Mussamat Jeetun Koer, 6 W. R., 57 (Civil Cases); and a decision of a Civil Court that a claim for maintenance is barred by the law of limitation would not preclude the woman from applying under S. 488 of the Code of Criminal Procedure for the maintenance of the illegitimate daughter; —Meiselback, 18 W. R., 49; but a Civil Court is not competent to set aside an order for maintenance passed by a Magistrate.—Mad. H. Ct., Pro. Sept. 11, 1877, Weir, 324.

It has been held by the Calcutta High Court, in the case of Jaddo Mussulmani and another (6 W. R., 60), that a nikah marriage between Mahomedans is a marriage within the purview of Ss. 494 (adultery) and 495 (bigamy) of the Penal Code. See also Sheikh Moneeroodeen, 18 W. R., 28.

The order of a Magistrate directing a Mahomedan husband to support his wife does not deprive him of the right of divorce, and after such divorce the Magistrate's order for her maintenance cannot be enforced.—Kassam Pribhai, 8 Bomb., 95, Crown Cases. Ch.XXXVI.
S. 488.

The effect of a divorce by a Mahomedan husband after he had been required by a Magistrate to make an allowance to his wife was referred to the High Court by the Presidency Magistrates in the case of Abdur Ruhman v. Sukhina, (5 Cal. L. R., 21; (S. C.) I. L. R. 5 Cal., 558). It was held that a Magistrate was competent to try all questions which affect the right of a woman to receive maintenance, and though he cannot cancel an order for maintenance which was a proper order when passed, he can refuse to issue a warrant to enforce it. A Mahomedan wife subsequently divorced is entitled to maintenance during her Iddut, but an order for maintenance for a time subsequent to the expiry of the Iddut, is illegal.—Gholam Mohaddeen, 1st Weir, Sup., 17.

Among Jats, a "Karoo" marriage is valid, and children the offspring of such minors are entitled to inherit. Therefore a woman so married is entitled to claim maintenance from her husband.—In re Bahadur Singh, 5 All., 128.

The inability of a wife to live with her husband without proof of cruelty is no ground for decreeing her a separate maintenance.—Mussamut Jesmut, 6 W. R., 49.

A mere disagreement with the husband's family is no ground for applying for maintenance.—Mulka, Panj. Rec., 1870, p. 36.

Where the wife, a Hindoo girl, had not left her father's house, before an order on the husband to maintain her could be passed, it was held to be requisite that there should be evidence that the husband had been called upon to remove her to his own house, and, if he did not, to make payment for her maintenance.—Mussamut Somree, 22 W. R., 30.

Where the wife refused to live with her husband because of his cruelty, and the Magistrate, being satisfied as to her complaint, directed the husband to make her an allowance, the High Court set aside the order as illegal, inasmuch as there had been no neglect or refusal on the part of the husband, such as the law requires, to maintain his wife. The Court remarked that S. 488 does not authorize a Magistrate to entertain applications for separate maintenance, on the ground of ill-treatment from wives whose husbands have not neglected or refused to maintain them, but who have of their own accord left their husband's house and protection, and to order allowances to be paid to such wives on evidence of ill-treatment.—In re Thompson, 6 All., 205.

The Calcutta High Court [1089, 1863] quashed the order of a Magistrate requiring a man to pay a monthly allowance to a woman until the birth of his illegitimate child, and after its birth to contribute monthly towards its support. The Court remarked that the law empowers a Magistrate to order maintenance to children, legitimate and illegitimate, against the father, and to wives against the husband; but not to unmarried woman in a state of pregnancy. See also Musst. Ladu, 3 All., 70.

Ch. XXXVI. An order for the maintenance of a child by monthly payments of a certain sum with a proviso that on the child attaining a certain age, the allowance shall be increased, was held to be illegal.—Musst. Munglo, 2 All., 454.

When a Magistrate, who is competent to deal with the matter, dismisses a complaint under S. 488, the District Magistrate cannot try it de novo. The complainant's remedy is in a superior Court. In re Musst. Jamotee, 1 Cal. L. R., 89.

"Such allowance shall be payable from the date of the order."

The levy by one warrant of the arrears of maintenance for fifteen months is not illegal, but only one month's imprisonment can be awarded on default.—6 Mad., xxiii, App., Pro., April 19, 1871; (S. C.) Weir, 322; also 7 Mad. xxxvii, App., Pro., Nov. 11, 1874; (S. C.) Weir, 323.

Where arrears of maintenance had been included in a Schedule filed under the Insolvent Act, it was held that the insolvent was thereby protected from arrest or imprisonment in respect of it. Totee Beebee v. Abdool Khan, 5 Cal. L. R., 458; (S. C.) I. L. R., 5 Cal., 530. (?)

An order of imprisonment in anticipation of a default of payment of the maintenance ordered is illegal.—5 Mad., xxxiv, App., Pro., July 28, 1870. (S. C.) Weir, 322.

Sch. V, No. 40 prescribes a form of warrant of imprisonment on failure to pay maintenance and No. 41 of warrant to enforce the payment of maintenance by distress and sale.

It is open to the husband at any time to prove that his wife is living in adultery, and on proof thereof an order for maintenance should be cancelled.—Ishwar Bhudar, 8 Bomb., 124, Crown Cases. A Civil Court cannot make a declaratory order as to the paternity of the child, nor pass an order affecting an order of a Magistrate under this Chapter. The High Court can alone interfere as a Court of Revision.—Subad Dhemnee, 20 W. R., 58.

A Magistrate is not competent to demand security that a person against whom an order of maintenance has been passed will not leave the place in order to provide by anticipation for any default that may possibly occur.—Kinoo Soudagor, 24 W. R., 72.

Nor can a Magistrate enter into any question regarding the lawful guardianship of a child, when dealing with an application for maintenance. Sibdass v. Neelkanto Bhaishianee, I. L. R., 4 Cal., 374.

489. On proof of a change in the circumstances of any person receiving under section 488 a monthly allowance, or ordered under the same section to pay a monthly allowance to his wife or child, the Magistrate may make such alteration in the allowance as he thinks fit, provided the monthly rate of fifty rupees be not exceeded.

 able by any Magistrate in any place where the person against whom it is made may be, on such Magistrate being satisfied as to the identity of the parties and the non-payment of the allowance due.

(S. 538.)

Copies of orders of maintenance given under S. 490 have been exempted from payment of fees under the Court Fees' Act.—Govt. of India, Not. 996, June 6, 1873.

Under rules passed by the Calcutta High Court under the Court Fees' Act, S. 20. cl. 2, a fee of one rupee has been fixed for serving and executing a warrant for the levy of maintenance of a wife or children, and also a percentage on the amount of maintenance levied, viz., two per cent. on sums not exceeding Rs. 100; and when the sum exceeds Rs. 100, then two per cent. on Rs. 100, and one per cent. on the amount of excess. Such percentage is to be deducted from the proceeds of any property sold, or to be paid with the amount levied and with the other costs of process as stated in the warrant—Cal. Gaz., 1874, 478; 21 W. R., 12, Rules, &c. The legality of these rules seems to be open to some doubt, since by the Court Fees' Act, S. 20, cl. 2, such rules are restricted to fees chargeable on processes in the case of offences other than offences for which Police officers may arrest without warrant.

PART IX.

SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

OF THE PUBLIC PROSECUTOR.

492. The Governor General in Council or the Local Government may appoint, Power to appoint Public Prosecutors. generally, or in any case, or for any specified class of cases, in any local area, one or more officers to be called Public Prosecutors.

In any case committed for trial to the Court of Session, the District Magistrate, or, subject to the control of the District Magistrate, the Sub-divisional Magistrate, may, in the absence of the Public Prosecutor, or where no Public Prosecutor has been appointed, appoint any other person, not being an officer of police below the rank of Assistant District Superintendent, to be Public Prosecutor for the purpose of such case.

Ch.
XXXVIII.
S. 493.

(Ss. 57, 58.)

493. The Public Prosecutor may appear and plead without any written authority before any Court in which any case of which he has charge is under inquiry, trial or appeal; and, if any private person instructs a pleader to prosecute in any Court any person in any such case, the Public Prosecutor shall conduct the prosecution, and the pleader so instructed shall act therein under his directions.

Pleaders, privately instructed, to be under his direction.

(S. 60.)

Pleader used with reference to any proceeding in any Court, means a pleader authorized under any law under the time being in force to practise in such Court, and includes (1) an advocate, a vakil and an attorney of a High Court so authorized and (2) any mukhtar or other person appointed with the permission of the Court to act in such proceeding. S. 4 (n).

The Public Prosecutor may avail himself of the assistance of Counsel retained by a private individual. In so availing himself of the Counsel's services, the Public Prosecutor by no means deprives himself of the management of the case. The two may together work in harmony; if they do not, the Counsel may retire, and the prosecutor may claim to keep the further conduct of the case solely to himself.—Narayan Pendshe, 11 Bomb., 102. But see contra, In re Gangadhar Sirkar, 23 W. R., 14, in which the Calcutta High Court held, that an advocate employed by a private person might appear for the prosecution in a Court of Session without being specially empowered by the Magistrate of the District for that purpose.

S. 270 requires that in any trial before a Court of Session the prosecution shall be conducted by a Public Prosecutor.

In BENGAL all Government Pleaders have been appointed to be ex officio public prosecutors in the District in which they may for the time being hold the office of Government Pleader.—Bengal Gaz., 1881, (Nov. 21) p. 1046.

A Magistrate should not be appointed by the District Magistrate to act as a Public Prosecutor in an inquiry or trial in any matter in which he has a personal interest such as a Public Prosecutor should not have.

Ch.
XXXVIII.

S. 494.

The BOMBAY High Court for this reason condemned the appointment of a Magistrate as Public Prosecutor in an inquiry held under its order in consequence of an allegation made that the confessions on the trial held by that Magistrate were the result of improper conduct on the part of the Police. The High Court further made the following observations regarding the conduct and duties of a Public Prosecutor. "It has been well said by a learned Judge (Baron Gurney, Reg. v. Thursfield, 8 C. & P., 269.)

'The Counsel for the prosecution has most accurately conceived his duty which is to be assistant to the Court in the furtherance of justice, and not to act as Counsel for any particular person or party.' He should not by statement aggravate the case against the prisoners (Hayes' Crim. Law, 874) or keep back a witness because his evidence may weaken the case for the prosecution. His only object should be to aid the Court in discovering truth (See per Vaughan, J., 9 C. and P., 23). A Public Prosecutor should avoid any proceeding likely to intimidate or unduly influence witnesses on either side. There should be on his part no unseemly eagerness for or grasping at conviction. Reg. v. Kashinath Dinkar and others, 8 Bomb, 126 (See p. 153).

494. Any Public Prosecutor appointed by the Effect of withdrawal from prosecution.

Governor General in Council or the Local Government may, with the consent of the Court, in cases tried by jury before the return of the verdict, and in other cases before the judgment is pronounced, withdraw from the prosecution of any person ; and, upon such withdrawal,

(a) if it is made before a charge has been framed, the accused shall be discharged ;

(b) if it is made after a charge has been framed, or when under this Code no charge is required, he shall be acquitted.

(S. 61.)

In trials before the High Court when it appears at any time before the commencement of the trial of the person charged that any charge or any portion of it is clearly unsustainable, the Judge may make on the charge an entry to that effect. Such entry shall have the effect of staying proceedings upon the charge, or portion of the charge, as the case may be. S. 273.

When more charges than one are made against the same person, and when a conviction has been had on one or more of them, the complainant, or the officer conducting the prosecution, may, with the consent of the Court, withdraw the remaining charge or charges, or the Court of its own accord may stay the inquiry into, or trial of, such charge or charges. Such withdrawal shall have the effect of an acquittal on such charge or charges, unless the conviction be set aside, in which case the said Court (subject to the order of the Court setting aside the conviction) may proceed with the inquiry into or trial of the charge or charges so drawn. S. 240.

495. Any Magistrate inquiring into or trying any case may permit any person other than an officer of police below the rank of Police Inspector to conduct the prosecution; but no person, other than the Advocate General, Standing Counsel, Government Solicitor, Public Prosecutor or other officer generally or specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf shall be entitled to do so without such permission.

Ch.
XXXVIII.
S. 495.

Any person conducting the prosecution may do so personally or by a pleader.

(S. 59.)

See definition of "Pleader" S. 4 (n) given in note to S. 492 ante.

No person, except certain specified officers, is entitled as a matter of right to conduct a prosecution in any inquiry or trial in a Criminal Court unless permitted by the Magistrate to do so. With such permission he becomes a pleader as defined in S. 4 (n). With the defence it is otherwise. Every person accused before any Criminal Court may of right be defended by a pleader. S. 340.

The following rules have been issued for the guidance of Police officers in conducting prosecutions in Criminal Courts in BENGAL:

I.—A POLICE OFFICER TO ATTEND ALL CRIMINAL COURTS.—It is desirable that at the hearing of every criminal case sent up by the Police, a responsible Police officer be in attendance to conduct the prosecution if the Magistrate wishes him to do so, or otherwise to assist as he may be desired.

II.—WHAT OFFICERS TO PROSECUTE.—In cases of peculiar difficulty or great public importance, the District Superintendent or his Assistant should, unless there be good reason to the contrary, attend in person.

In ordinary cases this duty will devolve on the Court inspector.

In petty and simple cases, or when two or more Criminal Courts are sitting at one time, head constables attached to the Court may be deputed.

At subdivisions the duty will be performed by the head Police officer employed in the Court, except in such cases as it is expedient that the District Superintendent or his Assistant attend in person.

III.—PROSECUTION IN LOWER COURTS.—The first duty of the Police officer will be to make himself thoroughly acquainted beforehand with the facts of the case, and the evidence admissible in support of such facts. Ordinarily, ample time will elapse between the completion of the inquiry and the hearing of the case to enable the Court officer to make himself complete master of the contents of the special diaries. No pains should be spared for this purpose, as it is obvious that an officer who attends the Court with an imperfect knowledge of the facts that each witness is able to prove may do the case material harm. The special diaries, if carefully prepared, will generally be found to contain all the information essential for the proper conduct of the prosecution.

Ch. In intricate and heinous cases the officer who made the local investigation will, as a rule, himself appear as a witness; and in such cases he should arrange to see the District Superintendent and Court inspector before the Court opens, and ascertain that the strong points of the case are thoroughly understood.

XXXVIII.

S. 495.

IV.—SESSIONS CASES.—In Sessions cases either the Magistrate, or, should the Magistrate desire it, the District Superintendent, should draw up, for the guidance of the Government Pleader or other officer appointed to conduct the prosecution, a memorandum containing a concise history of the case, and of the specific facts to which each witness is able to speak. This memorandum, together with the special report or special diaries, and copies of necessary evidence, should be made over to the Government Vakeel at least three days before the day appointed for the trial, and should be returned at the close of the trial with such remarks as the prosecuting officer may wish to offer. The memorandum will be treated by the pleader or other officer as a confidential communication. The Court inspector or Police officer acquainted with the case should be present to assist the Government Vakeel throughout the case if the Magistrate so desire. In appeals of importance the vakeel should be duly instructed, and should make himself acquainted with the contents of the file.

V.—COMMUNICATION OF FINAL ORDERS TO LOCAL POLICE.—All final orders in cases sent up for trial, whether at the Sudder Station or at Subdivisions, should be communicated to the officer who held the inquiry. Nothing can be more discouraging to a Police officer who believes he has sent up a true case on good and sufficient evidence than to receive from the Court inspector only a brief notice that the case has been dismissed. Where errors on the part of the local police arise from want of experience or insufficient knowledge of the laws of evidence, much good would result from a careful explanation of their error by the District Superintendent. In cases when the acquittal is due to less satisfactory causes, it is the more incumbent on the District Superintendent promptly to mark his disapproval of the result by a timely warning addressed to the officer by name.

VI.—OBJECT OF RULES.—Every District and Assistant Superintendent is enjoined to assist the Magistrate to the utmost of his power to give effect to the above rules. The procedure now ordered should tend at once to the more careful conduct of inquiries, the more complete preparation of special diaries, and the better exposition and understanding of the evidence at the hearing of cases: and no duties are more peculiarly the duties of a Police officer than these.

District Superintendents should, by constant supervision, see that Court inspectors do not neglect this, the most important part of their duties for the preparation of statements and registers, which can be written up equally well out of office hours, and at times when no Criminal Court is sitting.

Serious notice should be taken of any remarks made by a Magistrate to the effect that the Police officer came into a Court with an imperfect knowledge of the case, or was otherwise remiss in his duty.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

OF BAIL.

Ch. XXXIX.

Ss. 496, 497.

496. When any person other than a person accused of a non-bailable offence is arrested or detained without warrant by an officer in charge of a Police station, or appears or is brought before a Court, and is prepared at any time while in the custody of such officer or at any stage of the proceedings before such Court to give bail, such person shall be released on bail: Provided that such officer or Court, if he or it thinks fit, may, instead of taking bail from such person, discharge him on his executing a bond without sureties for his appearance as hereinafter provided.

(S. 128, para. 2; S. 194, para. 2; S. 204, para. 1; Ss. 388, 393.)

Sch. V, No. 42 gives forms of a bond and bail-bond on a preliminary inquiry before a Magistrate.

Bonds and bail-bonds for personal appearance in criminal cases are exempt from Stamp duty. Court Fees' Act (VII of 1870) S. 19, cl. xv.

When a person is required by any Court or officer to execute a bond, with or without sureties, such Court or officer may, except in the case of a bond for good behaviour, permit him to deposit a sum of money or Government promissory notes to such amount as the Court or officer may fix in lieu of executing such bond. S. 518.

497. When any person accused of any non-bailable offence is arrested or detained without warrant by an officer in charge of a Police-station, or appears or is brought before a Court, he may be released on bail, but he shall not be so released if there appear reasonable grounds for believing that he has been guilty of the offence of which he is accused.

If it appears to such officer or Court at any stage of the investigation, inquiry or trial, as the case may be, that there are not reasonable grounds for believing that the accused has committed such offence, but that

Ch.XXXIX. there are sufficient grounds for further inquiry into his guilt, the accused shall, pending such inquiry, be released on bail, or, at the discretion of such officer or Court, on the execution by him of a bond without sureties for his appearance as hereinafter provided.

Ss. 498, 499.

Any Court may, at any subsequent stage of any proceeding under this Code, cause any person who has been released under this section to be arrested, and may commit him to custody.

(S. 128 para. 1; S. 194, para. 2; S. 389.)

Every arrest without warrant must be reported by the officer in charge of a Police station to the District Magistrate or if he so directs to the Sub-divisional Magistrate whether such person has been admitted to bail or not. S. 62 No person who has been convicted by a Police officer shall be discharged except on his own bond, or on bail or under the special order of the Magistrate. S. 63.

If upon an investigation of a cognizable offence it appears to the officer in charge of a Police station that there is not sufficient evidence or reasonable ground of suspicion to justify his forwarding the accused to a Magistrate such officer may release him on his executing a bond with or without sureties S. 171.

A Magistrate cannot require bail from an accused person against whom he finds that the evidence is insufficient to prove an offence, merely because more evidence might turn up.—Ram Lall Tewaree v. Sopha Ram, 10 W. R., 34; (S. C.) 1 B. L. R., 26, Short Notes.

498. The amount of every bond executed under this chapter shall be fixed with due regard to the circumstances of the case, and shall not be excessive; and the High Court or Court of Session may in any case, whether there be an appeal on conviction or not, direct that any person be admitted to bail, or that the bail required by a Police-officer or Magistrate be reduced.

(Ss. 390, 508.)

The terms of S. 498 enable a Court of Session in referring a case under S. 438 to the High Court or a Court of Revision to direct that the person under sentence may be admitted to bail.

499. Before any person is released on bail or released on his own bond, a bond for such sum of money as the Police-officer or Court, as the case may be, thinks sufficient shall be executed by such person, and, when he is released on bail, by one or more sufficient sureties, Ch. XXXIX. conditioned that such person shall attend at the time and place mentioned in the bond and shall continue so to attend until otherwise directed by the Police-officer or Court, as the case may be. Ss. 500-502.

If the case so require, the bond shall also bind the person released on bail to appear when called upon at the High Court, Court of Session or other Court to answer the charge.

Sch. V, No. 42 gives the forms of a bond and bail-bond on a preliminary inquiry before a Magistrate. Bond and bail-bonds for personal appearance in criminal cases are exempt from Stamp duty.—Court Fees' Act (VII of 1870) S. 19, cl. xv.

500. As soon as the bond has been executed, the person for whose appearance it has been executed shall be released; and when he is in jail the Court admitting him to bail shall issue an order of release to the officer in charge of the jail, and such officer on receipt of the order shall release him.

Nothing in this section, section 496 or section 497 shall be deemed to require the release of any person liable to be detained for some matter other than that in respect of which the bond was executed.

(S. 394.)

Sch. V, No. 43 gives the form of warrant to discharge a person imprisoned on failure to give security.

* 501. If, through mistake, fraud or otherwise, insufficient sureties have been accepted, or if they afterwards become insufficient, the Court may issue a warrant of arrest directing that the person released on bail be brought before it, and may order him to find sufficient sureties, and on his failing so to do may commit him to jail.

(S. 392.)

502. All or any sureties for the attendance and appearance of a person released on bail may at any time apply to a Discharge of sureties.

Ch. XL. Magistrate to discharge the bond either wholly or so far
 S. 503. as relates to the applicants.

On such application being made, the Magistrate shall issue his warrant of arrest, directing that the person so released be brought before him.

On the appearance of such person pursuant to the warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, the Magistrate shall direct the bond to be discharged either wholly or so far as relates to the applicants, and shall call upon such person to find other sufficient sureties, and, if he fails to do so, may commit him to custody.

(S. 395.)

CHAPTER XL.

OF COMMISSIONS FOR THE EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

503. Whenever, in the course of an inquiry, a trial or any other proceeding under this Code, it appears to a Presidency Magistrate, a District Magistrate, a Court of Session or the High Court that the examination of a witness is necessary for the ends of justice, and that the attendance of such witness cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable, such Magistrate or Court may dispense with such attendance and may issue a commission to any District Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such witness resides, to take the evidence of such witness.

When the witness resides in the dominions of any Prince or State in alliance with Her Majesty in which there is an officer representing the British Indian Government, the commission may be issued to such officer.

The Magistrate or officer to whom the commission is issued, or, if he is the District Magistrate, he or such

Ch. XL.

S. 504.

Magistrate of the first class as he appoints in this behalf, shall proceed to the place where the witness is, or shall summon the witness before him, and shall take down his evidence in the same manner, and may for this purpose exercise the same powers, as in trials of warrant-cases under this Code.

(S. 330, paras. 1, 2.)

The power to issue a commission is now conferred on a District Magistrate. If any other Magistrate requires the issue of a commission he should proceed as directed by S. 506.

Para. 2 is new having been enacted in consequence of the judgment in the case of Empress v. Dhan Kishen Dass, 2 Leg. Rem., 93.

Ss. 188, 189 are important in connection with this section as enabling the Local Government to direct that copies of depositions made or exhibits produced before a Political officer or a judicial officer in or for a Prince or State in alliance with Her Majesty shall be used as evidence in the inquiry or trial held in the case of an offence committed by an European British subject in a foreign State in India, or a native Indian subject anywhere beyond British India in which a commission might issue for taking such evidence or to the matters to which such depositions or exhibits relate.

In connection with section 503 the terms of S. 33 of the Evidence Act (I, 1872) should be borne in mind.

Evidence given by a witness in a judicial proceeding, or before any person authorized by law to take it, is relevant for the purpose of proving, in a subsequent judicial proceeding, or in a later stage of the same judicial proceeding, the truth of the facts which it states, when the witness is dead or cannot be found, or is incapable of giving evidence, or is kept out of the way by the adverse party, or if his presence cannot be obtained without an amount of delay or expense which under the circumstances of the case, the Court considers unreasonable.

Provided—

that the proceeding was between the same parties or their representatives in interest ;

that the adverse party in the first proceeding had the right and opportunity to cross-examine ;

that the questions in issue were substantially the same in the first as in the second proceeding.

Explanation.—A criminal trial or inquiry shall be deemed to be a proceeding between the prosecutor and the accused within the meaning of this section.

504. If the witness is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Presidency Magistrate, the Magistrate or Court issuing the commission may direct the same to the said Presidency Magistrate, who thereupon may compel the attendance of, and examine,

Commission in case of witness being within Presidency-town.

Ch. XL. such witness as if he were a witness in a case pending
 Ss. 505, 506. before himself.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the power of the High Court to issue commissions under the thirty-ninth and fortieth of Victoria, chapter 46, section 3.

(S. 330, Act XI, 1878; S. 35, para. 1.)

The Statute referred to in the last para. is for the punishment of offences against laws relating to the Slave trade by British subjects or other persons protected by the British Government; S. 3 enables the High Courts to obtain evidence by commission in such cases.

505. The parties to any proceeding under this Code in which a commission is issued may respectively forward any interrogatories in writing which the Magistrate or Court directing the commission may think relevant to the issue, and the Magistrate or officer to whom the commission is directed shall examine the witness upon such interrogatories.

Any such party may appear before such Magistrate or officer by pleader, or, if not in custody, in person, and may examine, cross-examine and re-examine (as the case may be) the said witness.

(S. 330, para. 4.)

506. Whenever, in the course of an inquiry or a trial or any other proceeding under this Code before any Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate, it appears that a commission ought to be issued for the examination of a witness whose evidence is necessary for the ends of justice, and that the attendance of such witness cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable, such Magistrate shall apply to the District Magistrate, stating the reasons for the application; and the District Magistrate may either issue a commission in the manner hereinbefore provided or reject the application.

(S. 330, para. 5.)

507. After any commission issued under section 503 or section 506 has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the deposition of the witness examined thereunder, to the Court out of which it issued; and the commission, the return thereto and the deposition shall be open at all reasonable times to inspection of the parties, and may, subject to all just exceptions, be read in evidence in the case by either party, and shall form part of the record.

Return of commission.

(S. 330, Act XI, 1874; S. 35, last para.)

508. In every case in which a commission is issued under section 503 or section 506, the inquiry, trial or other proceeding may be adjourned for a specified time reasonably sufficient for the execution and return of the commission.

Adjournment of inquiry or trial.

This section is new. It will be observed that there is no definite limitation as in the Proviso to S. 344 for the adjournment. The discretion should be exercised in a reasonable manner so as not to subject an accused to unnecessary detention.

CHAPTER XLI.

SPECIAL RULES OF EVIDENCE.

509. The deposition of a Civil Surgeon or other medical witness, taken and attested by a Magistrate in the presence of the accused, may be given in evidence in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, although the deponent is not called as a witness.

Deposition of medical witness.

The Court may, if it thinks fit, summon and examine such deponent as to the subject-matter of his deposition.

Power to summon medical witness.

(S. 323.)

The only opinion of a Civil Surgeon that can properly be received in evidence is what may have been expressed by him as a witness under the usual tests to which witnesses may have been subjected. A letter is not evidence.—Samiruddeen, 10 Cal. L. R., 11; Kaminee Dossee, 12

Ch. XLI. W. R., 15; nor a post-mortem report unless it has been used for the purpose of refreshing his memory.

S. 509.

If relied on by the prosecution, this examination should be put in and read in Court before the accused is called upon for his defence. It should also be detached from the record of the preliminary inquiry, and attached to that of the trial.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 11, 1867; also Cir. 4, Aug. 10, 1872.

Magistrates should be required invariably to record the evidence of the Medical officer before committing to the Court of Session any case regarding an offence affecting the human body (Chapter XVI, Penal Code); for the omission to record this evidence might very possibly lead to the acquittal of an accused person in the Sessions Court, if through sickness, death, or unavoidable absence of the Medical officer, his attendance cannot be procured before that Court.—2 W. R., 6 C. L.

So where there is already sufficient prima facie evidence to warrant a commitment to the Sessions Court, and the evidence of the Medical officer is likely to be of a purely formal character, and great inconvenience would result from his being summoned to a Magistrate's Court at a distance from the Sudder Station, the examination need not be taken before a Magistrate, but the attendance of the Medical officer before the Sessions Court should be ensured. Under all other circumstances, the Magistrate should invariably record the evidence of the Medical officer before himself and in the presence of the accused.—Bomb. H. Ct., Feb. 21, 1874.

It is often of the greatest importance to have had the evidence of the Civil Surgeon regularly recorded by the Magistrate holding an inquiry. It may happen that, in the exigencies of the service, the Civil Surgeon may have been removed to a distant quarter of India before the Sessions trial, and thus may be unable to give evidence before the Sessions Court. His evidence before the Magistrate, if regularly recorded, would be evidence on the trial under S. 509, and under S. 33 of the Evidence Act (I of 1872): again, if some of the accused persons have absconded so as to be beyond the immediate prospect of arrest, if the Civil Surgeon's evidence has been recorded, it may under such circumstances be received as evidence under S. 512 post. If these precautions are not taken, the medical evidence of a post-mortem may be lost or only obtainable at considerable inconvenience and expense.

“May be given in evidence in any inquiry.” This evidently refers to a case in which a fresh inquiry may have been ordered in which the evidence of the Civil Surgeon if properly taken would be admissible.

The attendance of the Civil Surgeon at the Criminal Courts of the station for the purpose of giving evidence is one of his ordinary official duties, and he is not entitled to claim, nor are the Courts authorised to grant, a fee for this duty. When a Civil Surgeon is required to proceed more than five miles beyond the limits of his station, he is entitled to travelling allowance under Resn. Govt. of India, April 26, 1872, published at page 1388.—Punj. Gaz., June 27, 1872.

Where a Medical officer other than the Civil Surgeon or officer in Medical charge of a Civil Station is summoned to give professional evidence in a Criminal Court, touching the result of a post-mortem examination made by him, in cases not falling within the ordinary discharge of his duties, a fee of Rs. 16 shall be allowed him in addition to the usual expenses payable to witnesses on criminal trial, for which Ch. XLI. see S. 241 and note.—Smyth, p. 125.

510. Any document purporting to be a report Ss. 510, 511.

~~Report of Chemical Examiner.~~ under the hand of the Chemical Examiner or Assistant Chemical Examiner to Government, upon any matter or thing duly submitted to him for examination or analysis and report in the course of any proceeding under this Code, may be used as evidence in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code.

(S. 325, para 1.)

The original report should be put in as evidence. A copy is not receivable.—Bishumbar Dass, 15 W. R., 122; (S. C.) 6 B. L. R., 122, App.

If put in as evidence by the prosecution, the report from the Chemical Examiner should be read before the prisoner is called upon for his defence, and it should be detached from the record of the preliminary inquiry, and attached to that of the trial.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 11, Sept. 2, 1867; Cir. 4, Aug. 10, 1872.

511. In any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code a previous conviction or acquittal may be proved, in addition to any other mode provided by any law for the time being in force,—

(a) by an extract certified, under the hand of the officer having the custody of the records of the Court in which such conviction or acquittal was had, to be a copy of the sentence or order; or

(b) in case of a conviction, either by a certificate signed by the officer in charge of the jail in which the punishment or any part thereof was inflicted, or by production of the warrant of commitment under which the punishment was suffered; together with, in each of such cases, evidence as to the identity of the accused person with the person so convicted or acquitted.

(Ss. 326, 515, last clause.)

A previous conviction or acquittal for the same offence may be proved as a bar to a subsequent conviction, S. 403. A previous conviction for another offence may be proved as ground for the passing of an enhanced sentence. See S. 75, Penal Code; S. 221, last para. ante; Ss. 348, 310 ante.

Ch. XLI.

S. 512.

512. If it be proved that an accused person has absconded, and that there is no immediate prospect of arresting him, the Court competent to try or commit for trial such person for the offence complained of may, in his absence, examine the witnesses (if any) produced on behalf of the prosecution, and record their depositions. Any such deposition may, on the arrest of such person, be given in evidence against him on the inquiry into or trial for the offence with which he is charged, if the deponent is dead or incapable of giving evidence or his attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable.

Ch. XLII.

S. 513.

(S. 327.)

See note to S. 509, ante.

It may often be very desirable to examine the witnesses for the prosecution "if it is proved that an accused person has absconded, and there is no immediate prospect of arresting him," as the evidence of an important witness may otherwise be lost by his death, and even if the accused person be arrested after a considerable time the previous depositions may be used to corroborate the evidence of the witnesses (S. 157, Evidence Act) or even to refresh their memory (S. 159) if the conditions set forth in those sections of the Evidence Act exist. Great care should, however, first be taken to have it proved that an accused person has absconded, and that there is no immediate prospect of arresting him.

CHAPTER XLII.

PROVISIONS AS TO BONDS.

513. When any person is required by any Court or officer to execute a bond, with or without sureties, such Court or officer may, except in the case of a bond for good behaviour, permit him to deposit a sum of money or Government promissory notes to such amount as the Court or officer may fix in lieu of executing such bond.

(S. 399.)

S. 499 relate to the execution of a bond or bail-bond.

S. 498 enables a Sessions Judge to admit a person to bail when submitting his case for revision by the High Court.

514. Whenever it is proved to the satisfaction of Ch. XLII.

the Court by which a bond under this Code has been taken, or of the Court of a Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class, or, when the bond is for appearance before a Court, to the satisfaction of such Court, that such bond has been forfeited, the Court shall record the grounds of such proof, and may call upon any person bound by such bond to pay the penalty thereof, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

S. 514.

If sufficient cause is not shown and the penalty is not paid, the Court may proceed to recover the same by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of the moveable property belonging to such person.

Such warrant may be executed within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which issued it; and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to such person without such limits, when endorsed by the District Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such property is found.

If such penalty be not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, the person so bound shall be liable, by order of the Court which issued the warrant, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

The Court may at its discretion remit any portion of the penalty mentioned and enforce payment in part only.

(Ss. 396, 7, 8, paras. 1, 2 ; S. 502, paras. 1—5, 7 ;
Ss. 503, 514.)

Sch. V, Nos. 44—53 contain various forms for use under this section.

From the use of the terms, 'whenever it is proved,' prima facie proof, by the taking of evidence, is necessary before proceedings can be taken under S. 514—In re Hariram Birbhan, 11 Bom., 170.

When a Magistrate has taken a bond from any person and that person is brought before him on trial for an offence committed within the period covered by the bond, he ought, at the time of convicting for that offence to take into consideration the fact that there is an outstanding bond and to determine, once for all, whether he will proceed

- Ch. XLII. on it or not. The Magistrate having abstained from making any order for the forfeiture of the bond, it must be taken that he determined not to proceed on it for that particular instance of breach of the peace. That being so, it was not open to him to reconsider and add to his order. In re Ram Chunder Lall, 1 Cal. L. R., 134. In the matter of Parbutty Churn Bose, 3 Cal. L. R., 406.

515. All orders passed under section 514 by any Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate shall be appealable to the District Magistrate, or, if not so appealed, may be revised by him.

Appeals from, and revision of orders under section 514.

(S. 398, penult, para.)

The revision by a District Magistrate evidently refers either to a total or partial remission of the penalty.

516. The High Court or Court of Session may direct any Magistrate to levy the amount due on a bond to appear and attend at such High Court or Court of Session.

Power to direct levy of amount due on certain recognizances.

(S. 398, last para.)

CHAPTER XLIII.

OF THE DISPOSAL OF PROPERTY.

517. When an inquiry or a trial in any Criminal Court is concluded, the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the disposal of any document or other property produced before it regarding which any offence appears to have been committed, or which has been used for the commission of any offence.

When a High Court or a Court of Session makes such order and cannot through its own officers conveniently deliver the property to the person entitled thereto, such Court may direct that the order be carried into effect by the District Magistrate.

When an order is made under this section in a case in which an appeal lies, such order shall not (except when the property is live-stock or is subject to speedy and natural decay) be carried out until the period allowed for presenting such appeal has passed, or, when such appeal is presented within such period, until such appeal has been disposed of.

Ch. XLIII.

S. 517.

EXPLANATION.—In this section the term “property” includes, in the case of property regarding which an offence appears to have been committed, not only such property as has been originally in the possession or under the control of any party, but also any property into or for which the same may have been converted or exchanged, and anything acquired by such conversion or exchange, whether immediately or otherwise.

(S. 418 ; Act X, 1874, S. 38.)

When there has been an inquiry or trial, and the accused has been discharged or acquitted by a Criminal Court, that Court is bound to restore the property in dispute into the possession of the person from whom it was taken, unless such Court is of opinion that “any offence appears to have been committed” regarding it, when such order as appears right for the disposal of the property may be made. In re Annapurna Bai, I. L. R., Bomb, 630 where property belonging to the estate of A, a deceased person was found with B who on inquiry was acquitted by the Magistrate of having dishonestly taken it so as to amount to theft, and its restoration to B was ordered, it being held that the District Magistrate was not competent to order it to be given to A's heirs.

So the Madras High Court has held that if the accused person has been discharged, the pre-requisites of an order under S. 517 are wanting. The property should not be withheld. Pro. June 30, 1874, Weir, 260.

The Allahabad High Court has held that although the person in whose custody the property was found has been acquitted, the Magistrate is competent to pass an order regarding the disposal, if he believes that it has been stolen.—Nilambar Baboo, I. L. R., 2 All., 276.

Where the accused has been convicted of taking a bribe (S. 161, Penal Code) the Magistrate cannot pass orders in respect of money produced by a witness and said to have been given as a bribe.—Mad. H. Ct., Pro., Feb. 13, 1874, Weir, 260: nor can a Magistrate deal with money so offered and order it to be given in charity.—Pro. July 20, 1875, Weir, 261.

A Government currency note was changed at the Government Treasury by a man, who was afterwards convicted of having stolen it. The note was produced in evidence at the trial, and the Sessions Judge ordered it to be returned to the original owner from whom it had been stolen. The matter was brought before the High Court or a Court of Revision, and the following judgment was delivered:—

“The Sessions Judge has decided the case upon an Illustration drawn from the Contract Act, embodying a very old rule of law that possession by the taker in good faith is no defence against the owner of a chattel whose possession was lost through theft.

Ch. XLIII. "The decision is inapplicable to the case for money, and a note of this kind is in legal view money, does not stand upon the footing of other chattels (Foster v. Green, 7 H. & N., 881). In the language of the English law, the property passes by mere delivery, and, in the interests of commerce and the security of human dealing, nothing short of fraud in taking an instrument payable to bearer will engraft an exception upon the rule (Goodman v. Harvey, 4 Ad. & El., 870). Here the Treasury was bound to cash the note, and the original owner has no claim against it. The order must be reversed."—Collector of Salem, 7 Madras, 233: (S. C.) Weir, 259.

When a Government currency note which had been stolen was honestly changed by a money-changer (poddar) who, when called upon, returned it to the Police, the High Court held that it should be restored to him rather than to the person from whom it had been stolen. The terms of S. 108 of the Contract Act (IX of 1872) and the definition of "goods" (S. 76) applied to it do not touch the case. The change of a currency note into money is no more a contract for sale than the payment of the same note for goods is a sale of the note for the goods, the note being paid as money, a legal tender for the amount expressed there-in under S. 15, Act III of 1871. In the matter of Captain Michell, Pet. 1 Cal. L. R., 339: (S. C.) I. L. R., 3 Cal., 379.

518. In lieu of itself passing an order under section 517, the Court may direct the property to be delivered to the District Magistrate or to a Sub-divisional Magistrate, who shall in such cases deal with it as if it had been seized by the police and the seizure had been reported to him in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

(S. 420.)

519. When any person is convicted of any offence which includes, or amounts to, theft or receiving stolen property, and it is proved that any other person has bought the stolen property from him without knowing, or having reason to believe, that the same was stolen, and that any money has on his arrest been taken out of the possession of the convicted person, the Court may on the application of such purchaser and on the restitution of the stolen property to the person entitled to the possession thereof, order that out of such money a sum not exceeding the price paid by such purchaser be delivered to him.

(30 and 31 Vic. c. 35, S. 10.)

This is new.

520. Any Court of appeal, confirmation, reference Ch. XLIII.

section 519, passed by a Court subordinate thereto, to be stayed pending consideration by the former Court;
and modify, alter or annul such order.
(S. 419.)

The annulment of an order giving the property to a certain person may have the effect of its restoration to another. If, however, under the order of the lower Court the property has already been given, there is apparently no provision to enable the Court to compel its return. It has been held that the High Court cannot direct the restoration of property delivered by the Police under an illegal order of a Magistrate. In re Annapurna Bai, 1. L. R., 1 Bomb., 630.

may order the destruction of all the copies of the thing in respect of which the conviction was had, and which are in the custody of the Court or remain in the possession or power of the person convicted.

The Court may in like manner, on a conviction under the Indian Penal Code, section 272, section 273, section 274 or section 275, order the food, drink, drug or medical preparation in respect of which the conviction was had to be destroyed.

This is new.

S. 293 to having in possession obscene books, &c., for the purpose of sale, &c.

S. 273 to sale or offering or exposing for sale such food or drink with knowledge of its state.

S. 274 to adulteration of drugs.

S. 275 to sale or offering or exposing for sale such adulterated drugs.

522. Whenever a person is convicted of an offence attended by criminal force, and it appears to the Court that, by such force, any person has been disposessed of any immoveable property, the Court may, if it

Ch. XLIII. thinks fit, order such person to be restored to the possession of the same.

S. 523.

No such order shall prejudice any right or interest to or in such immoveable property which any person may be able to establish in a civil suit.

(S. 534.)

This in the Code of 1872 used to appear in what is now Chapter XII of this Code.

A suit to set aside such an order must be brought within three years from the date on which it was passed. Limitation Act (XV, 1877) Sch. II, Art. 47.

523. The seizure by any Police-officer of property taken under section 51, or alleged seizure of property taken or suspected to have been stolen, or under section 51 or stolen. found under circumstances which create suspicion of the commission of any offence, shall be forthwith reported to a Magistrate, who shall make such order as he thinks fit respecting the delivery of such property to the person entitled to the possession thereof, or, if such person cannot be ascertained, respecting the custody and production of such property.

If the person so entitled is known, the Magistrate may order the property to be delivered to him on such conditions (if any) as the Magistrate thinks fit.

If such person is unknown, the Magistrate may detain it, and shall, in such case, issue a proclamation specifying the articles of which such property consists, and requiring any person who may have a claim thereto to appear before him and establish his claim within six months from the date of such proclamation.

(S. 387, para. 2 ; Ss. 415, 416.)

The following instructions have been issued by the Government of Bengal (Cir. 2998, May 28, 1868) on an opinion of the Advocate-General :—

“The general rule of law with respect to moveable property found, of which the owners cannot be discovered, is, that it belongs to the finder, who may, however, be guilty of a criminal offence by appropriating it to his own use when he knows, or has the means of finding out, or does not take reasonable means to find out, the real owner. Thus, as regards the finding of hidden treasure, consisting of gold or silver coin or bullion, or of precious stones or other valuable property, the provisions of S. 2, Regulation V, 1817 (now embodied in Act VI, of 1878) apply. If after due notification the owner of such property may not be discoverable, such hidden treasure becomes the property of the innocent finder, provided they do not exceed in amount or value the sum of one lakh of sicca rupees. By S. 7 of the same Regulation the excess above that sum is declared to be at the disposal of Government. Ch. XLIII.

S. 524.

“Wrecks are, in first the instance, to be retained by the salvors, who have a special property in them by way of lien for the salvage. It is illegal for the Police to take salvaged wreck out of the possession of the salvors, though upon discovery of wrecked property in such possession, notice of the same should be given by the Police to the Magistrate of the District. If the owners come forward, the matter will be one for adjustment between the parties. If owners cannot be found, then, subject to the salvage claims, the wrecked property belongs to the State, which may sue for its recovery in the same way as the owner might have done. Where such a course is necessary, the Magistrate should give notice to the Collector, who will take the necessary legal proceedings.

“With these exceptions, moveable property found in the possession of any private person and not claimed, is the property of the innocent finder.

“The provisions of Ss. 25—27, Act V, 1861, apply to all unclaimed property of which any officer of the Police may be the finder.

“The right of the State to property which is left by deceased persons and to which there is no claimant stands on different grounds, and is not the subject of these orders.”

524. If no person within such period establishes his claim to such property, and if the person in whose possession such property was found is unable to show that it was legally acquired by him, such property shall be at the disposal of the Government, and may be sold under the orders of the Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate or of a Magistrate of the first class empowered by the Local Government in this behalf.

In the case of every order passed under this section, an appeal shall lie to the Court to which appeals against sentences of the Court passing such order would lie.

(S. 417.)

If any Magistrate not empowered by law in that behalf erroneously in good faith sells property under S. 524, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered. S. 529 (h).

In MADRAS all Magistrates of the first class have been empowered to act under S. 524 (Gaz., 1873, p. 717); also in OUDH (Gaz., 1873, p. 3); also in BOMBAY, provided they are not Honorary Magistrates, when a special order is necessary in each case (Gaz., 1873, p. 16).

- Ch. XLIII. In the PUNJAB all Senior Officers at Head-quarter Stations under the Magistrate of the District, who are Magistrates of the first class, have been vested with powers under S. 524. Such powers to be exercised only when the Magistrate of the District is absent from Headquarters.—Gaz., 1873, p. 75. For these purposes the Senior Assistant Commissioner being a Magistrate of the first class shall be deemed to be the Senior Officer under the Magistrate, and if there be no such officer, the Senior Extra Assistant Commissioner being a Magistrate of the first class shall be so deemed.—Ibid.
- Ch. XLIV. S. 526.

A Magistrate is bound to summon witnesses named by a person to prove his claim to certain property seized by the Police as property suspected to have been stolen.—Sookhun Sahoo, 18 W. R., 5.

525. If the person entitled to the possession of such property is unknown or absent, and the property is subject to speedy and natural decay, or the Magistrate to whom its seizure is reported is of opinion that its sale would be for the benefit of the owner, the Magistrate may at any time direct it to be sold; and the provisions of sections 523 and 524 shall, as nearly as may be practicable, apply to the nett proceeds of such sale.

(S. 415, para. 2.)

If any Magistrate not empowered by law on that behalf erroneously in good faith sells property under S. 525, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered. S. 529 (h).

CHAPTER XLIV.

OF THE TRANSFER OF CRIMINAL CASES.

526. Whenever it is made to appear to the High Court—

High Court may transfer case, or itself try it.

(a) that a fair and impartial inquiry or trial cannot be had in any Criminal Court subordinate thereto, or

(b) that some question of law of unusual difficulty is likely to arise, or

(c) that a view of the place in or near which any offence has been committed may be required for the satisfactory inquiry into or trial of the same, or

(d) that an order under this section will tend to the general convenience of the parties or witnesses. Ch. XLIV.
it may order— S. 526.

(1) that any offence be inquired into or tried by any Court not empowered under sections 177 to 184 (both inclusive), but in other respects competent to inquire into or try such offence;

(2) that any particular criminal case or appeal, or class of such cases or appeals, be transferred from a Criminal Court subordinate to its authority to any other such Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction; or

(3) that any particular criminal case or appeal be transferred to and tried before itself.

When the High Court withdraws for trial before itself any case from any Court other than the Court of a Presidency Magistrate, it shall, except as provided in section 267, observe in such trial the same procedure which that Court would have observed if the case had not been so withdrawn.

Every application for the exercise of the power conferred by this section shall be made by motion which shall, except when the applicant is the Advocate General, be supported by affidavit or affirmation.

When an accused person makes an application under this section, the High Court may direct him to execute a bond, with or without sureties, conditioned that he will, if convicted, pay the costs of the prosecutor.

Every accused person making any such application shall give to the Public Prosecutor notice in writing of the application, together with a copy of the grounds on which it is made; and an order shall be made on the merits of the application unless at least twenty-four hours have elapsed between the giving of such notice and the hearing of the application.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect any order made under section 197.

(S. 64.)

The powers given by this section are larger than those conferred by S. 147 of the High Courts Criminal Procedure Act (X, 1875), under

- Ch. XLIV. which no conviction or proceeding could be quashed "for want of form but only on the merits" which was the rule followed on writs of certiorari
 ———
 S. 526. but probably the Courts will adhere to the same rule as generally embodied in S. 537, post.

Where a conviction has been arrived at by the Magistrate and the petitioner is actually suffering imprisonment under it, it is within the discretion of the High Court for sufficient cause shown, and on the application of the prisoner to order the case to be removed without notice to the Crown. But sufficient opportunity will be given for the law officers of the Crown to support the conviction before a final order is passed. Queen v. Upendronath Dass, I. L. R., 1 Cal., 356.

The powers of the High Court cannot be exercised in the case of an acquittal by a Magistrate, but only in the case of convictions or other orders by which an accused is aggrieved or injured. Corporation of Calcutta v. Bheekun Ram Napit, I. L. R., 2 Cal., 290. So where after hearing the evidence for the prosecution and without disbelieving it, the Magistrate decided that it did not amount to the offence charged, it was held that assuming that an error of law had been committed, the High Court had no power to issue a mandamus to the Magistrate to commit the accused. It was not a case in which the Magistrate had declined jurisdiction, but he had exercised his jurisdiction and heard the case.—Malcolm v. Gasper, I. L. R., 2 Cal., 278.

The objection to the conviction must have a substantial meritorious ground and not be merely an error of form or procedure. Such cases would for example be when the Magistrate has convicted an accused person on a charge which he had no jurisdiction to hear and determine, or had awarded a sentence which he had no power to award, or had proceeded in such a manner as to afford ground for saying that the accused person had not had reasonable opportunity of defending himself. There may of course be other classes of cases in which an objection to a conviction would be entertained, when it could be said that the accused had merits. But though an accused person may have merits in the general sense of the word, and of the most substantial kind, viz., that the Magistrate has come to a wrong conclusion on the question of the guilt or innocence, yet that is not a case to which per se a remedy can be applied by means of a certiorari. The law in short says that to quash a conviction, there must be merits not that whenever there are merits in the general sense of the word the conviction will be quashed. Reg. v. Nathalal Pitambar, 10 Bomb., 102; see also the cases cited in the note, p. 109.

The best evidence must be offered that the Jury cannot be trusted to do their duty impartially, before the High Court, on an application by the prosecution and against the wish of the accused, will order the transfer of a trial from one District to another on the ground that owing to popular excitement as to the result, a fair trial cannot be expected. There is less reason in India for such an order than in England, because the law of India imposes many safeguards against an undue bias by a Jury. There is the right of challenge, the verdict need not be unanimous, the power on the part of the Sessions Judge to refer the case to the High Court if he disagrees from the verdict, the hearing by the High Court itself and the appeal of Government against an order of acquittal. The Empress v. Nobogopal, Bomb., I. L. R., 6 Cal., 491.

The following case before the Calcutta High Court (Phear, J.) Ch. XLIV.
 July 26, 1875, reported in the Englishman Newspaper, is important in connection with S. 526 and the duties of Magistrates in Presidency S. 526.
 towns—In re J. A. H. Louis committed under Act VI (Ben. C.), 1866.

Mr. Lowe states that the conviction was made by Mr. Marsden as a Justice of the Peace, and not as a Magistrate.

The Court intimated that, if so, that fact was unimportant. In hearing the case, and making the conviction, Mr. Marsden, whatever constituted his authority, acted as a Criminal Court, and therefore the case falls under section 147, Act X of 1875.

Mr. Lowe, addressing the Court for the prosecution, admitted that no record of the evidence taken in the Court below had been sent up, and proposed to refer to Mr. Louis' affidavit, or, in the alternative, asked that the case might stand over.

The Court thought that the affidavit ought not to be used as a substitute for the evidence taken below. The purpose of the affidavit was this: section 147 did not give the party aggrieved by the order of the lower Court an unqualified right of appeal, but empowered this Court, on good cause shown, affecting the merits, to remove the entire case to this Court for consideration and proper determination.

The petitioner's affidavit and other evidence went to show good cause; and good cause being thus prima facie established, the case was transferred. On the case coming on, in consequence of the transfer, this Court would deal with it as it stood below, i. e., take it as the lower Court left it, and on the materials there produced. If on these a conviction has been already come to, and this Court should find reason to consider the conviction, order or other proceeding wrong on the merits, it may quash it; and this Court may itself entertain the case, and determine it according to justice, for this purpose taking further evidence if necessary.

The Court also expressed the opinion that, in view of the enactment, section 147 of Act X, 1875, (whatever might otherwise be the case,) it was incumbent upon the Magistrate, and the judicial officer of any Criminal Court situate within the local limits of this Court's ordinary original criminal jurisdiction, to take such notes of the evidence, in every case entertained by him, as would, in the event of the case being transferred to this Court, serve to convey the substance and material part of that evidence.

ORDER. Adjourned to this day week, in order that the Magistrate's notes of evidence taken below may be returned to this Court.

After the adjournment, it appeared that no notes of evidence had been taken before the Magistrate: the conviction was therefore quashed; it was further ordered that the fine be refunded. An application for costs made by the Counsel for the petitioner was refused, the Court being of opinion that it had no power under the Act to give costs.—15 B. L. R., 14 App.

Although affidavits contradict the finding of a Magistrate so as to show a want of jurisdiction, they cannot be used as affording materials for reviewing his decision. When the charge is such that, if true, it would give the Magistrate jurisdiction, his decision is final. Reg. v. Nathalal Pitambar, 10 Bomb., 102.

Ch. XLIV. In the case of the Queen v. Ameer Khan, 15 W. R. 69 : (S. C.)
 ——— 7 B L. R., 240 ; it was held that a much stronger case must be made
 Ss. 527, 528. out to justify the transfer of a case to the High Court than would in England justify the removal of a case by certiorari. The matter is fully discussed and reasons given for this conclusion in the judgments of Phear and Macpherson, JJ. See Empress v. Nobogopal Bose, 1 L. R., 6 Cal. 491.

The High Court will always require some very strong grounds for transferring a case from one judicial officer to another, especially if the grounds are personal to such officer as it is tantamount to a severe censure on him. Shankar Araji Hoshing, 6 Bomb., 69, Crown cases.

527. The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct the transfer of any particular criminal case or appeal from one High Court to another High Court, or from any Criminal Court subordinate to one High Court to any other Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction subordinate to another High Court, whenever it appears to him that such transfer will promote the ends of justice, or tend to the general convenience of parties or witnesses.

The Court to which such case or appeal is transferred shall deal with the same as if it had been originally instituted in, or presented to, such Court.

(S. 64A ; Act XI, 1874, S. 11.)

528. Any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate may withdraw any case from, or recall any case which he has made over to, any Magistrate subordinate to him, and may inquire into or try such case himself, or refer it for inquiry or trial to any other such Magistrate competent to inquire into or try the same.

The Local Government may authorize the District Magistrate to withdraw from the Magistrate subordinate to him either such classes of cases as he thinks proper, or particular classes of cases.

(S. 44, last para. ; S. 47, para. 1 ; S. 48.)

If a Magistrate not empowered by law in that behalf erroneously in good faith withdraws a case and tries it himself, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered. S. 529 (i).

S. 192 empowers a District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate to transfer any case of which he has taken cognizance for inquiry or trial to any Magistrate subordinate to him, and a District Magistrate can empower any Magistrate of the first class who has taken cognizance of a case to transfer it for inquiry or trial to any other specified Magistrate competent to deal with it.

When a case is removed to another Magistrate, the evidence must be taken de novo. S. 350 applies only to inquiries and trials commenced by a Magistrate who has ceased to exercise jurisdiction and is succeeded by another Magistrate.—Khan Mahomed, 24 W. R., 53.

Although the law does not require that the District Magistrate should state the reasons for transferring a case from one Magistrate to another, the High Court will set aside the order unless it is clear that he has not exercised a wise or proper discretion. Thus, in a case in which after hearing the evidence for the prosecution, a Magistrate expressed an opinion that it was not sufficient to support the charge, on which the District Magistrate removed the case to the file of another Magistrate, the High Court set aside that order and directed the first Magistrate to conclude the trial. In re Nobocomar Banerjea, 14 W. R., 12; (S. C.) 5 B. L. R., 45.

Similarly in the case of Jaffir Ali and others (commonly known as the Fennuah case) the High Court held that the Magistrate acted illegally in removing, on his own motion, a case in which several witnesses had been examined by a subordinate Magistrate and without giving notice to the prisoners and hearing what they had to say in its matter. Cal. H. Ct., Feb. 27, 1877.

A Magistrate to whom a case had been transferred for trial disallowed the objection that he had no jurisdiction and proceeded to try the case. The District Magistrate withdrew the case to his own Court and finding that he had no jurisdiction stopped proceedings. The High Court held that the District Magistrate is competent to call up a case to his own Court without limitation as to the stage of the proceedings at which it may be called up and that having the case before him he could deal with the question of jurisdiction.—Vilactee Khanum v. Meher Ali, 24 W. R., 4.

CHAPTER XLV.

OF IRREGULAR PROCEEDINGS.

529. If any Magistrate not empowered by law to do any of the following things, irregularities which do not vitiate proceedings. namely :—

- (a) to issue a search-warrant, under section 98;
- (b) to order, under section 155, police to investigate an offence;

- Ch. XLV. (c.) to hold an inquest under section 176;
 S. 530. (d) to issue process, under section 186, for the apprehension of a person within the local limits of his jurisdiction who has committed an offence outside such limits;
 (e) to take cognizance of an offence under section 191, clause (a) or clause (b);
 (f) to transfer a case under section 192;
 (g) to tender a pardon under section 337 or section 338;
 (h) to sell property under section 524 or section 525; or
 (i) to withdraw a case and try it himself under section 528;
 erroneously in good faith does that thing, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered.
 (Ss. 32, 34, cl. ix.)

Schedules III, IV specify the ordinary powers of Magistrates of different classes and offices and the additional powers with which and by whom they may be invested.

“Good faith.” Nothing is said to be done or believed in good faith which is done or believed without due care and attention. S. 52, Penal Code.

- 530. If any Magistrate, not being empowered by law in this behalf, does any of the following things (namely):—
- Irregularities which vitiate proceedings.
- (a) attaches and sells property under section 88;
 - (b) issues a search-warrant for a letter in the Post-office, or a telegram in the Telegraph Department;
 - (c) demands security to keep the peace;
 - (d) demands security for good behaviour;
 - (e) discharges a person lawfully bound to be of good behaviour.
 - (f) cancels a bond to keep the peace;
 - (g) makes an order under section 133 as to a local nuisance;
 - (h) prohibits under section 143 the repetition or continuance of a public nuisance;
 - (i) issues an order under section 144;
 - (j) makes an order under Chapter XII;

of an offence;

ceedings recorded by another Magistrate;

(m) calls under section 435, for proceedings;

(n) makes an order for maintenance;

(o) revises under section 515, an order passed under section 514;

(p) tries an offender;

(q) tries an offender summarily;

(r) decides an appeal;

his proceedings shall be void.

(S. 34 excepting cl. ix.)

Schedules III. IV specify the ordinary powers of Magistrates of the several classes and offices and the additional powers with which and by whom they can be invested.

531. No finding, sentence or order of any Criminal Court shall be set aside merely on the ground that the inquiry, trial or other proceeding in the course of which it was arrived at or passed took place in a wrong Sessions Division, District, Sub-division or other local area, unless it appears that such error occasioned a failure of justice.

(S. 70.)

“Failure of justice” or as put by S. 70 of the Code of 1872 “that the accused person was actually prejudiced in his defence, or the prosecutor in his prosecution, by such error.”

S. 531, applies to “other proceedings” that is proceedings not an investigation, inquiry or trial of a person accused of an offence, but miscellaneous proceedings such as under Chapters VIII, X, XI, XII, XXXVI, of this Code, but it contemplates that but for the defect in local jurisdiction the Magistrate was competent to deal with the particular matter.

The introduction of the words “local area” provide for a case in which the local jurisdiction was not confined to the same Province or High Court, a defect in S. 70 of the Code of 1872, pointed out in the case of Hiramun Ayah, 21 W. R., 66, (S. C.) 22 B. L. R., 4 App.

532. If any Magistrate or other authority purporting to exercise powers duly conferred, which were not so conferred, commits an accused person for trial before a Court of Session or High Court, the

When irregular commitments may be validated.

Ch. XLV. Court to which the commitment is made may, after perusal of the proceedings, accept the commitment if it considers that the accused has not been injured thereby, unless, during the inquiry and before the order of commitment, objection was made on behalf either of the accused or of the prosecution to the jurisdiction of such Magistrate or other authority.

S. 533.

If such Court considers that the accused was injured, or if such objection was so made, it shall quash the commitment, and direct a fresh inquiry by a competent Magistrate.

(S. 33.)

S. 532 contemplates that the particular Magistrate was competent to deal with the offence as having taken place within the local limits of his jurisdiction or within any special jurisdiction conferred by the Code, but that he was not competent to make the commitment to the Court of Session or High Court (Jagannath, I. L. R., 3 All. 258) either because he was not empowered to make such commitment (S. 206) or was not a Magistrate competent to deal with the accused person, an European British subject (S. 443). When it was objected that the Magistrate had acted without jurisdiction because after examining four witnesses he discharged the accused, and then finding another witness in attendance he examined him and committed the accused for trial by the Court of Session, the Madras High Court held that the commitment was good, because there was no question regarding the jurisdiction of the Magistrate to commit, and there was nothing to show that the accused had been prejudiced by the irregularity, that being the crucial test of a commitment by a Magistrate without jurisdiction. Pro. Nov. 28, 1874. Weir, 182.

533. If any Court before which a confession or other statement of an accused person recorded under section 164 or section 364 is tendered in evidence finds that the provisions of such section have not been fully complied with by the Magistrate recording the statement, it shall take evidence that such duly made the statement recorded; and, notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Evidence Act, section 91, such statement shall be admitted if the error has not injured the accused as to his defence on the merits.

(S. 346, last para.)

S. 533, it will be seen, applies to a confession or statement recorded under S. 164, and thus removes many of the difficulties experienced under the Code of 1872, S. 346 of which failed to extend this remedial provision to a confession or statement recorded under S. 122. See Bai Ch. XLV.

Ratan 10 Bomb. 166 and other caees.

It should also be noted that S. 533, confers the power on any Court, not, like S. 346 of the Code of 1872, only on a Court of Session. If the Magistrate be required to attend to give evidence, S. 121 of the Evidence Act should be borne in mind. No Judge or Magistrate shall except on order of some Court to which he is subordinate, be compelled to answer any questions as to his own conduct in Court as such Judge or Magistrate, or as to anything which came to his knowledge in Court as such Judge or Magistrate: but he may be examined as to other matters whilst he was so acting. Illustration. A on his trial before the Court of Session, says that a deposition was improperly taken by B, or the Magistrate. B cannot be compelled to answer questions as to this, except upon special order of a superior Court.—It seems to have been doubted in the case of Empress v. Kudder Khan, 1. L. R., 3 All. 573 FULL BENCH, whether the Court of Session and not the District Magistrate was a Court superior to that of a Magistrate.

534. An omission to ask any person whether he is an European British subject in a case to which the second clause of section 454 applies shall not affect the validity of any proceedings.
(S. 85.)

See note to S. 454 ante.

535. No finding or sentence pronounced or passed shall be deemed invalid merely on the ground that no charge was framed, unless, in the opinion of the Court of appeal or revision, a failure of justice has been occasioned thereby.

If the Court of appeal or revision thinks that a failure of justice has been occasioned by an omission to frame a charge, it shall order that a charge shall be framed, and that the trial be recommenced from the point immediately after the framing of the charge.
(S. 216, Exp. I, II.)

This section does not refer to the proceedings of a Court of Confirmation under Chapter XXVII, Ss. 374—380.

536. If an offence triable with the aid of assessors is tried by a jury, the trial shall not on that ground only be invalid.

Trial by jury of offence triable with assessors.

- Ch. XLV. If an offence triable by a jury is tried with the aid of assessors, the trial shall not on that ground only be invalid, unless, the objection is taken before the Court records its finding.
 S. 537. Trial with assessors of offence triable by jury. (S. 233, Expl.)

When an accused is charged at the same trial with several offences of which some are, and some are not, triable by Jury, he shall be tried by Jury for all such offences. S. 269, last clause. A Sessions Judge cannot, after trying a case by Jury and taking their verdict, before passing sentence treat the trial as had with the aid of assessors and the verdict of the Jury as the opinions of assessors, passing his own judgment on the facts. Bhootnath Dey and others 4 Cal. L. R., 405.

537. Subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained, no finding, sentence or order passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be reversed or altered under Chapter XXVII or on appeal or revision on account—of any error, omission or irregularity in the complaint, summons, warrant, charge, judgment or other proceedings before or during trial or in any inquiry or other proceeding under their Code, or of the want of any sanction required by section 195, or of the omission to revise any list of jurors or assessors in accordance with section 324, or of any misdirection in any charge to a jury; unless such error, omission, irregularity, want or misdirection has occasioned a failure of justice.

(S. 203, para. 3; S. 283, para. 2; Ss. 300, 461, paras. 6, 7; Act XI, 1874, S. 41.)

“Failure of justice.” This will probably be interpreted to mean, as was expressed in S. 70 of the Code of 1872, when “the accused has “been actually prejudiced in his defence, or the prosecutor in his prosecution by such error,” prejudiced being “unfairly affected as to his defence on the merits.” Deva Doyal, 11 Bomb., 237. As was further stated in that case the intention of the Legislature is to remedy defects of a formal character which may have arisen through inadvertence or neglect and which defects the law and the Legislature think ought not to be made the means of culprits escaping the just penalties of their crimes.

A Magistrate passed sentence in a case, recording it on the back of the depositions of the witnesses and the accused person was committed to jail under a warrant addressed to the jail, but the Magistrate died without recording a formal judgment. The High Court remarked that the omission to record a judgment or formal order was no doubt an irregularity which the circumstances of the case possibly rendered unavoidable, but it was an irregularity which obviously could not prejudice the accused who had the right of appeal against the sentences passed. Mad H. Ct. Pro., Aug. 28, 1871, Weir, 283.

"Error, omission or irregularity in the charge." In this respect S. 537 would be subject to S. 232:

If any Appellate Court, or the High Court in the exercise of its powers of revision or of its powers under Chapter XXVII, is of opinion that any person convicted of an offence was misled in his defence by the absence of a charge or by an error in the charge, it shall direct a new trial to be had upon a charge framed in whatever manner it thinks fit.

If the Court is of opinion that the facts of the case are such that no valid charge could be preferred against the accused in respect of the facts proved, it shall quash the conviction.

Illustration.

A is convicted of an offence under section 196 of the Indian Penal Code, upon a charge which omits to state that he knew the evidence which he corruptly used or attempted to use as true or genuine was false or fabricated. If the Court thinks it probable that A had such knowledge, and that he was misled in his defence by the omission from the charge of the statement that he had it, it shall direct a new trial upon an amended charge; but if it appears probable from the proceedings that A had no such knowledge it shall quash the conviction.

538. No distress made under this Code shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any person making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account of any defect or want of form in the summons, conviction, writ of distress or other proceedings relating thereto.

(Act X, 1875, S. 149.)

An affidavit or declaration in writing when made for the immediate purpose of being filed or used in any Court or before the officer of any Court is exempt from stamp duty. Act I of 1879, Sch. II Art 1.

No fee is chargeable for administering the oath to a process-server regarding the manner of service of process or in the case of an affidavit made by a public officer in virtue of his office but for making all or other affidavits in a Criminal Court a fee of one Rupee is charged, the same to be paid by means of a Court fee stamp of not less than that value. Calcutta High Court, Rule, Sept. 20, 1878 sanctioned by the Govr.-Genl. in Council. Wilkins, 115.

Although affidavits may contradict the finding of a Magistrate so as to show a want of jurisdiction they cannot be used as affording materials for reviewing his decision; when the charge is such that if true it would give the Magistrate jurisdiction, his decision is final. Reg. v. Nathalal Pitambar, 10 Bomb., 102.

540. Any Court may, at any stage of any inquiry trial or other proceeding under this Code, summon any person as a witness, or examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as a witness, or recall and re-examine any person already examined; and the Court shall summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person if his evidence appears to it essential to the just decision of the case.

(Ss. 192, 351.)

In forwarding an application or summons for the attendance of a witness residing in a native State, care should be taken to give such a description of him that he may be easily identified. Thus, for instance, besides his name and his father's name, the requisition should indicate his age, caste, and village, and it should be mentioned if his village is in the neighbourhood of any well-known town. The probable time during which he will be detained should also be stated, and in fixing the date when his appearance is required, reasonable time should be given to allow of his being found and sent off. When practicable the batta allowed by Government orders for the expenses of witnesses should be transmitted at the time of sending the requisition.—Bomb. H. Ct. Cir., p. 41.

A Magistrate does not wisely exercise the discretion which S. 540 confers on him, if without good reason he allows witnesses on the part of the prosecution to be interposed in the midst of the case of the accused. But it is entirely within the discretion of a Magistrate to admit evidence on either side, at any stage of the trial, when he may think it necessary to do so for the purposes of justice.—In re Kasse Singh, 21 W. R., 61. Ch. XLVI. S. 541.

There is nothing to prevent a Magistrate from examining as a witness for the prosecution a person who has been suspected and arrested for the offence under trial, and who has not been discharged.—Behari Lall Bose, 7 W. R., 44. So also a person apprehended by the Police and brought before the Magistrate together with the accused is a competent witness, provided that, at the time he was examined, he was not charged with the accused and upon his trial.—Narayan Sundar, 5 Bomb, 1, Crown Cases.

The Judge (and this term apparently includes a Magistrate) may, in order to discover or obtain proof of relevant facts, ask any question he pleases, in any form, at any time, of any witness or of the parties, about any fact relevant or irrelevant; and neither the parties nor their agents shall be entitled to make any objection to any such question; nor without leave of the Court (this term expressly includes a Magistrate) to cross-examine any witness upon any answer given in reply to any such question.—Evidence Act (I, 1872), S. 165.

But where a witness has been called by the Court of its own motion and been examined, the parties are entitled to cross-examine him.

541. Unless when otherwise provided by any law for the being in force, the Local Government may direct in what place any person liable to be imprisoned or committed to custody under this Code shall be confined.

(S. 881).

In MADRAS, the Madras Penitentiary, the European Jail at Ootacamund and the Central Jails at Rajahmundry, Salem, Coimbatore, Trichinopoly, Vellore and Cannanore (Gaz., December 24, 1872, p. 2065); in BOMBAY, the City Jail at Poona, the Jail at Yerrowla near Poona, the District Jail at Kurrachi, and the Jail at Aden (Gaz., 1873, p. 99); and the District Jails at Ahmedabad, Surat and Sattara (provided that the sentence does not exceed one month) and the District Jail at Kanara (provided the sentence does not exceed three months) (Gaz., 1874, p. 297); in the PUNJAB, the Central Jail at Lahore, and the District Jails of Peshawur, Rawul Pindee, Mooltan, Umballa, and Delhi (Gaz., 1873, p. 76); in the CENTRAL PROVINCES, the Nagpore Central Jail, and the Jails at Jubbulpore and Raipore (Gaz., 1873, p. 80), and in BENGAL the Presidency Jail, the Hazareebaugh Penitentiary, and the Jails at Bhaugulpore, Midnapore, Rajshahye, Cachar, Dacca, Darjeeling, Chittagong, Cuttack, Tezpur, Patna and the Dinapore Lock-up (Cal. Gaz., 1873, p. 18)—have all been appointed as places for the confinement of European British subjects sentenced to imprisonment.

any Presidency Magistrate desirous of examining, as a witness or an accused person, in any case pending before him, any person confined in any jail within the local limits of his jurisdiction, may issue an order to the officer in charge of the said jail requiring him to bring such prisoner in proper custody, at a time to be therein named, to the Magistrate for examination.

The officer so in charge, on receipt of such order, shall act in accordance therewith, and shall provide for the safe custody of the prisoner during his absence from the jail for the purpose aforesaid.

Under S. 7 of the Prisoner's Testimony Act, XV of 1869, an order of the High Court used to be necessary in such cases.

Whenever any evidence is given in a language not understood by the accused and he is present in person, it shall be interpreted to him in open Court in a language understood by him.

If he appears by pleader and the evidence is given in a language other than the language of the Court, and not understood by the pleader, it shall be interpreted to such pleader in that language.

When documents are put in for the purpose of formal proof, it shall be in the discretion of the Court to interpret as much thereof as appears necessary. S. 361.

The Oaths' Act (X of 1873, S. 5) enacts that :—

Oaths or affirmations shall be administered to interpreters of questions put to and evidence given by witnesses, but nothing therein contained shall render necessary to administer to the official interpreter of any Court, after he has entered on the duties of his office, an oath or affirmation that he will faithfully discharge those duties.

Expenses of complainants and witnesses.

Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, any Criminal Court may order payment, on the part of Government, of the reasonable expenses of any complainant or witness attending for the purpose of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding before such Court under this Code.

(S. 421).

The following amended rules have been issued by the Government of Bengal for the expenses of complainants and witnesses attending the Criminal Courts :—

The Criminal Courts are authorized to pay, at the rates specified below, the expenses of complainants or witnesses (1) in cases in which the prosecution is instituted or carried on by or under the orders or with the sanction of the Government, or any Judge, Magistrate, or other public officer, or in which it shall appear to the presiding officer to be directly in furtherance of the interests of the public service ; (2) in all cases entered in column 5 of the Schedule appended to the

Ch. XLVI. Criminal Procedure Code as not bailable; and (3) of witnesses in all cases in which they are compelled by the Magistrate to attend under
 S. 544. the provisions of S. 351 of the Code.

No payment shall be made to Government witnesses summoned at the instance of the complainant under S. 361, unless the prosecution appears to the Court of Magistrate to be in furtherance of the interests of public justice, but under the section the Magistrates may require the complainants to pay their expenses.

Rates of Payment.

(a) For the ordinary labouring class of natives, two annas per diem, together with actual railway fare by the lowest class.

(b.) For natives of higher rank in life, third class railway fare and four annas per diem for subsistence.

(c.) For Europeans and natives of superior rank, second class railway fare and an allowance according to circumstances not exceeding three rupees per diem for subsistence.

(d.) For witnesses following any profession, such as Medicine or Law, a special allowance according to circumstances.

(e.) For Government servants, actual travelling expenses only.

(f.) In districts where no railway exists, and in parts of Eastern Bengal where the only mode of travelling is by water, and in cases where persons travel by rapid dak by road, the actual expenses up to a maximum limit of two rupees per boat per diem, and four annas per mile for travelling by road, may be paid, subject to the proviso that the travelling allowance is only to be given when the journey could not have been performed on foot, or in cases of persons whose age, position, or habits of life render it impossible for them to walk.

Officers will be held responsible that parties of witnesses are brought to Court together, as far as possible, so as to save expense. Each person should not be allowed to charge for his own boat; and, if a passage is offered him with others, he will have no claim for travelling allowance.

The number of days which should be allowed for the passage to and from will be determined by the officer ordering the payment in each case. For this purpose a table should be prepared and kept in each Court, showing the distance of each thannah from the sudder station and subordinate stations, and the number of intermediate ferries to be crossed; the existence or absence of roads or waterways being also noted in the table.—Govt. Cir. 68, May 30, 1873.

Since the promulgation of these rules, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has announced that payment of the expenses of complainants and witnesses need not be offered or made in every case covered by the rules, but it is within the discretion of the Courts to offer or make such payments, and that they should do so whenever they think it right whether an application for payment be made or not.—Govt. of Bengal, Cir. 90, July 19, 1873.

The following orders were subsequently issued in further explanation of the rules:—

The law and orders of Government leave it entirely to the discretion of the Court to pay or not to pay the expenses of witnesses, and this discretion must be exercised without reference to the fact of their having appeared for the prosecution or defence, or any supposed estimate of the means of the accused. Ch. XLVI.

Payment of witnesses' expenses by Government is limited to heinous cases, and, as a rule, if the Judge believes that the witnesses were reasonably summoned without collusion or conspiracy on their part, he should pay their expenses whether the prisoner is convicted or not; but if he thinks they are false and unnecessary witnesses engaged in a conspiracy to defeat justice, or that an unreasonable number are summoned, he may refuse the payment of their expenses.—Govt. of Bengal, Cir. 151, Dec. 16, 1873.

S. 544.

No necessary payment should be withheld because the budget allotment of any Court may have been expended. A fresh assignment will be made on application to Government.—Govt. of Bengal Cir. 147, Dec. 9, 1873.

The following rules on the subject are in force in MADRAS :—

The Criminal Courts are authorized to pay at the rates specified in Rule III, the expenses of complainants and witnesses in cases in which the prosecution is instituted or carried on by or under the orders or with the sanction of the Government, or of any Judge, Magistrate, or other public officer, or when it shall appear to the Judge or Magistrate presiding over such Court to be directly for or in furtherance of the interests of public justice; also in cases entered in column 5 of Schedule IV, appended to the Code of Criminal Procedure as non-bailable; and in all cases in which the witnesses are compelled to attend by a Magistrate under the provisions of Chapter XXVI of the Code.

II.—For the purposes of these rules, Europeans, East Indians, and natives shall be divided into three classes, and the Judge or Magistrate before whom they are required to appear, either as complainants or as witnesses, shall be careful to fix the class with due regard to the station in life occupied by each complainant or witness.

S. 544.

IV.—The distance for which mileage, and the number of days for which batta, should be allowed for the journey to and from the station at which the Court is held, and for attendance at Court, shall be determined by the Judge or Magistrate ordering the payment in each case.

V.—All bills for travelling allowance and batta to complainants and witnesses attending before the Courts of Magistrates of the second or third class shall be scrutinized by the Magistrate of the Division in which such Courts are situated, before the charges included in them are finally passed.

VI.—Whenever a Magistrate dismisses a case as frivolous or vexatious, under S. 209 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, no travelling allowance or batta shall be granted to the complainant in such case.—Gaz., 1873, p. 1096.

The following rules are in force in BOMBAY :—

I.—The Criminal Courts are authorized to pay, at the rates specified below, the expenses of complainants or witnesses (1) in cases in which the prosecution is instituted or carried on by or under the orders or with the sanction of the Government, or any Judge, Magistrate, or any other public officer, or in which it shall appear to the presiding officer to be directly in furtherance of the interests of the public service; (2) in all cases entered in column 5 of the Schedule appended to the Criminal Procedure Code as not bailable; and (3) of witnesses in all cases in which they are compelled by the Magistrate of his own motion to attend under the provisions of S. 351 of the Code.

(a.) European and East Indian witnesses in the mofussil,* when summoned by a Criminal Court to give evidence, are to be allowed their actual expenses for carriage, when the same are not in excess of six annas a mile. They are also to be allowed a sum not exceeding Rs. 2-8 a day for subsistence if they demand the same.

(b.) European and East Indian witnesses coming from the mofussil to attend trials at the High Court. are to be remunerated as follows:—

1st Class.—Each person coming under this class to be allowed eight annas a mile as travelling expenses for himself and a servant; five rupees a day as hotel allowance while in Bombay; and two rupees for carriage hire for each day he may have to attend the High Court.

2nd Class.—Persons under this class to have their actual travelling expenses, three rupees a day as board expenses in Bombay, and one rupee palkee hire for each day of attendance at the High Court.

3rd Class.—Persons of this class to have their actual travelling expenses, and Re. 1-8 a day as boarding allowance.

NOTE.—The Magistrate or other authority who sends a witness to the High Court shall determine to which of the above classes he belongs.

(c.) As a general rule, Native witnesses of the better class, as Patels, Panderpchas, Merchants, Vakeels, and persons of corresponding rank, as well as all witnesses who are in no way concerned in the case in which their evidence is given, but whose evidence is required for furthering the ends of justice (such as attesting witnesses to depositions and request reports, provided they can read and write) are to be allowed six annas a day as subsistence money, and they are also to receive railway and other travelling expenses that have been actually incurred by them, provided the same be reasonable.

* Any place outside the limits of the Town of Bombay, but within the Presidency of Bombay, or any place outside the local limits of the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court at Bombay, but within the Presidency of Bombay.—Gaz., 873, p. 454.

Ch. XLVI.

S. 544.

(d.) Native witnesses of the class of cultivators and menials, who would not, under ordinary circumstances, voluntarily incur any expense on account of special lodging when away from home, are to be allowed subsistence money at the rate of four annas a day, and are also to receive railway and other travelling expenses actually incurred by them, provided the same be reasonable.

II.—Peculiar cases (that is cases not coming under the operations of clauses (a), (b), (c), and (d) of Rule I) are to be dealt with according to their own merits, and at the discretion of the Court from which subsistence money or travelling allowance is demanded.

III.—When a witness lives in the same town or village in which the Court, before which he is required to give evidence, is situated, the Court may award him such sum, not exceeding four annas a day, as may compensate him for any loss he may have incurred by attendance upon the Court.

Subsistence allowance should be paid to witnesses day by day as it may become due; payment should not be deferred until the conclusion of a trial.—Bomb. H. Ct. Cirs., p. 42.

The following rules are in force in BRITISH BURMAH :—

I.—No expenses of complainants or witnesses in any criminal trial will be paid without a certificate from the Judge, or Magistrate, or Bench of Magistrates before whom the trial may have been held that the prosecution was deemed to be in furtherance of the interests of public justice, and that the expenses of the complainants and witnesses should therefore be borne by the State.

II.—If such certificate be granted in a “summons” case, it will be necessary for the Court granting the certificate to record its reasons for considering the case to be of such a nature. These reasons will be forwarded to the Commissioner of the Division, who will note any necessary instructions for future guidance.

III.—Witnesses summoned under S. 351 of the Criminal Procedure Code may, in special cases, be allowed their expenses, if the presiding officer certifies that their deposition was considered necessary to further the interests of public justice.

IV.—On production of the certificate, the complainants and witnesses will be entitled to receive expenses at the following scale on account of their journeys to and from the Court, and for the days during which they have been absent from their houses for the purposes of the trial.

Provided that the allowance for each day's attendance shall not be passed to Government Officers and others remunerated by a fixed salary when attending a Court at the same station as their own. Provided, further, that the allowances passed to Government servants and others receiving fixed salaries shall be calculated by a consideration of the increased expenses actually incurred by them in consequence of their absence from home, and that the full allowance shall ordinarily only be paid to professional witnesses—such as lawyers, medical men, or merchants—in consideration of their loss of time.

1st Class.—Gazetted or Commissioned Officers of Government, European or Native gentlemen.

Ch. XLVI.

S. 544.

Actual sum spent in travelling or in conveyance to and from the Court, with an allowance according to circumstances, not to exceed, except in very special cases, Rs. 5 for each day's absence from their residence to European, and Rs. 2 to Native gentlemen.

2nd Class.—Clerks and Ministerial Officers and other Government officials in a similar position. Native Officers of Regiments, Eurasian or Native Trades-people, and other persons in a similar position.

Actual sum spent in travelling, with an allowance not to exceed Rs. 3 for each day's absence from home to European or Eurasian, and Re. 1 to Native.

3rd Class.—All others not included in the above:—six annas a day, whether spent in attendance at the Court or in travelling, to those who are residents of another place than that where the Court is held; four annas a day to those who are residents of the place where the Court is held.

V.—The amount will be disbursed at the conclusion of the trials under the orders of the Judge, or Magistrate, or Bench of Magistrate, trying the case, whose duty it will be to check the statement of charges and deduct any charge which is unauthorized, or extravagant, or unsuitable to the station in life of the complainant or witness.

VI.—In cases committed to the Court of Sessions, the Magistrate who commits the case will note in the list of witnesses the class to which each belongs.

VII.—The expenditure on this account will be adjusted as a contingent charge of the Court trying the case.

VIII.—The number of days which should be allowed for the passage to and from the Court will be determined by the Judge, Magistrate, or Bench in each case. For this purpose a table shall be prepared showing the distance of the station at which Court is situate from the other stations in the district, the number of intermediate ferries to be crossed, and the existence or absence of roads or waterways.—Gaz., 1873, Part IV, p. 143.

The following rules are in force in the CENTRAL PROVINCES:—

The Criminal Courts may, at their discretion, pay, at the rates specified below, the expenses of complainants and witnesses in all cases which are cognizable by the Police; in all cases entered in column 5 of the Schedule appended to the Criminal Procedure Code as not bailable; in all cases in which the witnesses are compelled to attend by the Magistrate, under Chapter XXVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure; and in cases where the prosecution is instituted or carried on by or under the orders or with the sanction of Government or any Judge, Magistrate, or public officer, or in which the presiding officer thinks the prosecution to be directly in furtherance of the interests of the public.

Class I.—Rs. 3 per diem. All Europeans and Eurasians of the higher and middle classes, and Natives of the higher classes.

Class II.—Rs. 1 per diem. Other Europeans and Eurasians, and Natives of respectability generally, such as zemindars and tradesmen of the better sort.

Class III.—Annas 4 per diem. Natives below the preceding class but with some status, such as inferior zemindars, petty tradesmen, &c.

Class IV.—Annas 2 per diem. All Natives not included in the above classes, such as day-labourers, &c.

The Court shall have absolute discretion to determine, for the purposes of these rules, to what class any person belongs. All persons residing within 6 miles of the Court may be considered as able to come in and return on the same day, and should, therefore, be held entitled to one day's subsistence. Those residing from 6 to 12 miles may come in one day and return the next; they should, therefore, draw two days' subsistence, and so on, an extra day for every 6 miles; or, in other words, every witness may be allowed a day's allowance for every 12 miles or part of 12 miles he has to travel.

Ch. XLVI.

S. 544.

In some cases it may be found necessary to order witnesses to appear a second time. It will be for the Court to determine whether they are justified in remaining at the place where the Court sits, or should return to their homes for the time preceding the second date of hearing; in the former case they may be allowed subsistence for every day they are detained; in the latter, may be paid a second time for the journey to and from Court.

Nothing beyond actual travelling expenses shall be paid to Government servants and employes in Government offices as it is the public time, and not their own time which is taken up by their having to attend as witnesses.—Gaz., 1873, p. 116.

The following rules are in force in OUDE:—

The Criminal Courts may pay, at the rates specified below, the expenses—

(a.) Of complainants and witnesses summoned to attend the Courts in all Sessions cases, and inquiries into cases triable by the Courts of Session or High Court (subject to the provisions of S. 359 of the Code of Criminal Procedure in respect of unnecessary witnesses for the defence).

(b.) Of complainants and witnesses in all warrant cases.

(c.) Of witnesses for the defence in those warrant cases only in which the Magistrate does not consider it necessary to act in the discretionary power granted him by S. 362 of requiring deposit of the expenses of a witness before summoning him.

Class I.—Rs. 3 per diem. All Europeans and Eurasians of the higher and middle classes, and Natives of the higher classes.

Class II.—Re. 1 per diem. Other Europeans and Eurasians and Natives of respectability, generally such as zemindars and tradesmen of the better sort.

Class III.—Annas 4 per diem. Natives below the preceding class but with some status, as inferior zemindars, petty tradesmen, &c.

Class IV.—Annas 2 per diem. All Natives not included in the above classes such as day-labourers, &c.

2. Nothing beyond actual travelling expenses shall be paid to Government servants.

3. The Courts shall have absolute discretion to determine, for the purposes of these rules, to what class any person belongs.

4. All persons residing within 6 miles of the Court may be considered as able to come in and return on the same day, and should, therefore, be held entitled to one day's subsistence. Those residing from 6 to 12 miles may come in on one day and return the next; they should, therefore, draw two day's subsistence, and so on; an extra day for every 6 miles, or in other words, every witness may be allowed a

Ch. XLVI. day's allowance for every 12 miles or part of 12 miles he has to travel. .

S. 544. 5. These instructions have reference only to the time occupied by witnesses in coming and going, and they could receive the diet-money due to their class for each additional day that they may be kept in attendance by the Court. For some cases it may be found necessary to order witnesses to appear a second time. It will then be for the Court to determine whether they are justified in remaining at the place where the Court sits, or should return to their homes for the time preceding the second date of hearing; in the former case they may be allowed subsistence allowance for every day they are detained; in the latter they may be paid a second time for the journey to and from Court.—Oude Gaz., Part II, p. 34.

The following rules are in force in the PUNJAB:—

The Criminal Courts are authorized to pay, at the rates specified below, the expenses of complainants or witnesses (1) in cases in which the prosecution is instituted or carried on by, or under the orders or with the sanction of, the Government, or any Judge, Magistrate, or any other public officer, or in which it shall appear to the presiding officer to be directly in furtherance of the interests of the public service; (2) in all cases entered in column 5 of the Schedule appended to the Criminal Procedure Code as not bailable; (3) in all cases which are cognizable by the Police; and (4) of witnesses in all cases in which they are compelled by the Magistrate of his own motion to attend under Chapter XXVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

No payment shall be made by Government to witnesses summoned at the instance of the complainant under S. 361, unless the prosecution appear to the Court or Magistrate to be in furtherance of the interests of public justice; but under this section the Magistrate may require the complainants to pay their expenses.

A.—RATES OF SUBSISTENCE ALLOWANCE, THAT IS, ALLOWANCE FOR EACH DAY'S NECESSARY ABSENCE FROM RESIDENCE AND ATTENDANCE AT COURT.

Natives.

- (a.) For the ordinary labouring class, two annas per diem.
- (b.) For witnesses of a somewhat higher grade, four annas per diem.

- (f.) For witnesses of either nationality not coming within the scope of the abovementioned classes, a special allowance according to circumstances.

The Court in which a complainant or witness appears shall determine the class under which the complainant or witness shall be ranked.

B.—TRAVELLING RATES.

Ch. XLVI.

S. 545.

For class (c), second class fare.

For class (d), second or third class fare at the direction of the Court.

For class (e), second class fare.

For class (f), the fare actually paid.

When the journey is made otherwise than by rail, the necessary and actual expenses of carriage may be paid at the discretion of the Court; provided the expense incurred does not exceed eight annas a mile, and provided that the journey could not have been made on foot; or in the case of persons whose age, position, or habits of life render it impossible for them to walk To natives in class (c) and Europeans in class (f) a further sum may be allowed to cover the cost of carriage hire to and from Court on the days of attendance at Court.—Smyth, pp. 123—125.

time being a Criminal Court imposes a fine or confirms in appeal, revision or otherwise a sentence of fine, or a sentence of which fine forms a part, the Court may when passing judgment order the whole or any part of the fine recovered to be applied—

(a) in defraying expenses properly incurred in the prosecution;

(b) in compensation for the injury caused by the offence committed, where substantial compensation is, in the opinion of the Court, recoverable by civil suit.

If the fine is imposed in a case which is subject to appeal, no such payment shall be made before the period allowed for presenting the appeal has elapsed, or if an appeal be presented, before the decision of the appeal.

(S. 308, paras 1, 2, 3.)

S. 250 enables a Magistrate in dismissing a summons case which in his opinion has been brought on a frivolous or vexatious complaint to order the complainant to pay to the accused, or to each of the accused where there are more than one, such compensation not exceeding fifty Rupees, as he thinks fit.

An order directing the accused on conviction to pay the complainant a certain sum is illegal. The Magistrate should pass a sentence of fine, and then direct that out of the sum realized, payment should be made to the complainant of whatever amount he thinks fit. Nor can a Magistrate order the accused persons generally to pay a certain sum Ch. XLVI. as costs of the complainant. It is not a fine and the amount payable by each is undetermined.—Mohesh Mondul, 3 Cal. L. R., 404.

S. 546. In the Panjab, officers have been desired to give compensation in all cases of a public character, theft, grievous hurt, &c.—Smyth, p. 114.

The grounds upon which compensation has been awarded should be distinctly stated [Bishonath Mundul, 2 W. R., 58], as well as the specific sums to be paid to each individual, if there are more complainants than one—5 W. R., 20, C. L.

In any case where the prosecution is on the part of Government, it shall be competent to the Magistrate, if the accused be convicted, to order that the fees which are chargeable under the rules framed under the Court Fees Act, but have not been paid because the prosecution was by Government, shall be paid by the accused or any of them in like manner as if such fees had been paid by the prosecutor in the first instance.—21 W. R., 12, Rules, &c. ; Cal. Gaz., 1874, p. 478. This rule would, however, apply only to non-cognizable cases for which alone rules can be made.—See Court Fees Act (VII, 1870), S. 20, Cl. ii.

A Magistrate cannot order that a portion of the fine imposed by him shall be paid to the Ameen employed to hold a local inquiry in the case. It can be paid only to the person who has been injured.—Moortut Lall, 6 W. R., 93.

An award of compensation should be passed in the presence of the accused person, and be a part of the sentence or order made upon conviction. It should also be formed on a statement of the loss, damage, or expenses incurred at the trial. The complainant should, when under examination, state on what grounds he applies for compensation, and the accused will then have the opportunity of disproving his statement, for the accused person has clearly an interest in this, since the award in favour of the complainant is to form an ingredient in his punishment on conviction.—Gour Churn Dass, 11 W. R., 53.

Where no order for compensation was proved as part of the sentence, but the fine imposed was realised and credited to Government ; the Madras High Court held that an order passed by the Magistrate subsequently on a petition of the complainant awarding him as compensation part of the fine was not illegal, notwithstanding the terms of S. 369 of the Code and the judgment of the Calcutta High Court just quoted in the case of Gour Churn Dass, 11 W. R., 53.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. March 13, 1878, Weir, 232.

If the fine has been paid away, there is no mode of compelling its refund on the reversal of the award. The payment should have been withheld until the expiry of the period specified in the last para of S. 545. If an appeal be preferred, the Appellate Court can order the sentence to be suspended as to the paying over the fine to the party injured until after the decision of the appeal. The Court of first instance should always inform the Appellate Court of such an order, so that payment may be suspended.—6 W. R., 4, C. L.

546. At the time of awarding compensation in any subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter, the Court shall take into account any sum paid or recovered as compensation under section 545. Ch. XLVI.
 Payments to be taken into account in subsequent suit.

Ss. 547, 548.

(S. 308, last para.)

The "taking into account," referred to in S. 546, means that any sum awarded as compensation by the Magistrate is to be taken into consideration at the time of awarding damages in any subsequent civil suit, not that it is to be deducted from any sum that may be given as damages in such suit.—Love, 22 W. R., 336, Civil.

547. Any money (other than a fine) payable by virtue of any order made under this Code shall be recoverable as if it were a fine.
 Moneys ordered to be paid recoverable as fines.

This section is new. It would apply to enforcement of an order of maintenance, S. 490. It may be held to authorize an appellant to order repayment of money erroneously paid by an order of the Court of first instance on reversal of that order and thus to overrule 6 W. R., 4 C. L. quoted at the end of the note to S. 545 ante.

548. If any person affected by a judgment or order passed by a Criminal Court desires to have a copy of the Judge's charge to the jury, or of any order or deposition or other part of the record, he shall, on applying for such copy, be furnished therewith: Provided that he pay for the same, unless the Court, for some special reason, thinks fit to furnish it free of cost. *

Copies of proceedings.

Formerly an application for any such copies must have been made on a paper bearing a stamp of one anna—Act VII, 1870, Sch. II, Art. 1 (a), but these fees under the Court Fees' Act have been remitted.—Gaz. of India, 1873, p. 530. Copies of such papers, unless specially exempted by the Magistrate, will be charged at the rate of eight annas for every three hundred and sixty words or fraction of three hundred and sixty words.—Ibid, Sch. I, Art. 9.

Section 548 is subject to the following:—

In exercise of the power conferred by the Court Fees' Act (VII. of 1870) S. 35, the Governor General in Council has remitted the fees leviable on account of the judgment or order passed by a Criminal Court and of a Judge's charge to the Jury furnished on the application of any part affected by such judgment or order, provided that such person is in Jail, or the Court, for some special reason, sees fit to grant such copy free of expense.—Government of India Not. 496 dated June 6, 1873. Wilkins 107.

S. 371 ante moreover declares that except in a summons case a copy of the judgment or of a translation, if so required, shall be given to the accused person free of cost; or, in trials by Jury in a Court of Session, copy of the heads of the charge to the Jury.

Ch. XLVI.

S. 548.

S. 210 further provides that if the accused so requires it, a copy of the charge shall be given to the accused person free of cost if the Magistrate finds that there are sufficient grounds for committing him for trial to the Court of Session or High Court; and S. 219 enables the accused, if he so requires, to obtain free of cost a copy of the evidence, of any witness examined by a Magistrate after a commitment and before the commencement of the trial.

In order to aid Appellate Courts in computing the period of limitation under para. 2, S. 13 of the Limitation Act (IX, 1871), every Criminal Court, subordinate to the High Court of Bombay, has been ordered to endorse the following particulars on every copy of a judgment, order, or charge to a Jury furnished under S. 276 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, viz., the date on which the copy was applied for; the date on which it was ready for delivery; the date on which it was delivered. To prevent unauthorized alterations being made, the dates should be written in letters in a distinct handwriting, and such endorsement should be signed by some responsible officer of the Court on the date to which it refers.—Bomb. Gaz., 1874, p. 601.

In exercise of the powers conferred by Section 35 of the Court Fees' Act, VII of 1870, the Governor General in Council is pleased to remit the fees chargeable under the said Act in respect of—1st.—Copies of all documents furnished under the orders of any Court or Magistrate to any Government Advocate or Pleader or other person specially empowered in that behalf for the purpose of conducting any trial or investigation on the part of Government before any Criminal Court.

2nd.—Copies of all documents which any such Advocate, Pleader or other person is required to take in connection with any such trial or investigation for the use of any Court or Magistrate, or may consider necessary for the purpose of advising the Government in connection with any criminal proceeding.

3rd.—Copies of judgments and depositions required by officers of the Police Department for conducting appeals on behalf of Government before any Criminal Court.—Gaz. India, July 21, 1879, Part I, p. 382.

On application made by the Magistrate of the District to the Sessions Judge for a copy of any judgment delivered by him, the Judge should permit a copy to be made by any person whom the Magistrate may depute for that purpose. Such copies will be granted to Magistrates and committing officers only for their information and guidance; they are not at liberty to cavil at the judgment of the Sessions Court, or enter into any discussion with the Judge upon its merits.—Cal. H. Ct. Cir. 1, 1864. When the Judge's notes form the only record of a case, the parties should be allowed to have copies of such notes on paying the authorized charge for making the same.—Subbayya Gaundan, 1 Mad., 138.

The terms of this section apply to all Magistrates. It was held under the previously existing law that all prosecutors whose charges have been dismissed by a Presidency Magistrate are affected by the order of discharge and are therefore entitled to the copies of the orders made by and the depositions taken before the Magistrate. Empress v. Dinonath Roy, (1, Cal. L. R., 190; S. C.) 1 L. R., 8 Cal., 166.

Explanation.—A Judge or Magistrate shall not be deemed to be a party or personally interested, within the meaning of this section, to or in any case, merely because he is a Municipal Commissioner.

(This section is new.)

Under S. 487 a Judge or Magistrate is generally prohibited from trying any person for any offences, such as contempts of lawful authority, offences against public justice, or relating to documents specified in S. 195 when such offence is committed before himself or in Ch. XLVI. contempt of his authority, or is brought under his notice as such Judge or Magistrate in the course of a judicial proceeding. But this rule is subject to the cases specially provided for in Ss. 477, 480, 485.

S. 555.

In the case of Hem Chunder Pal, 20 W. R., 70 the Magistrate who tried the case and convicted the accused had acted under S. 159 in holding the preliminary inquiry before the trial commenced. The Calcutta High Court (Per Phear, J., Morris, J. concurring) made the following observations:—

“The Deputy Magistrate states: ‘In this, as in that case, I was the chief actor and investigator. I have in this, as in that, to separate, and so far as in me lies to banish from the record, and if it were possible, from my own recollection facts which I have seen and known, and confine myself strictly to the evidence on the record. In fact, I have to do that most difficult of all things—to, as it were, change my identity, and speak, write, and think, not in the first, but third person.’

“What was the particular obligation under which the Deputy Magistrate supposed himself to have laboured, and which constrained him to ‘change,’ as he says, ‘his identity,’ it is perhaps difficult to understand. It has been held by this Court, and is accordant with the general principles which govern the conduct of an English Court of Criminal Justice, that while a person is not necessarily disqualified from presiding as a Judge or acting as a juryman upon an inquiry into or investigation of facts, because he may have himself a witness of some of the facts which are the subject of the inquiry or investigation, if he does do so, he, so far from being under any such obligation as that which the Deputy Magistrate seems to have referred to, is bound to state to the prisoner or other person concerned, or to make known to him, so far as he can, what are the facts which he himself observed, to which he himself can bear testimony. And, moreover, the prisoner, who is being tried by a Judge in this situation, has a right, if he thinks it desirable, to cross-examine the Judge, who, under these circumstances, and to this extent, must be viewed as a witness, and his evidence should be recorded. It is quite erroneous, in our opinion, to suppose on the contrary, as the Deputy Magistrate appears to have supposed, that he was bound to keep out of sight altogether the part which he had played in the matter and to pretend (we cannot use any other word than that) that he knew nothing about the facts excepting so much as the witnesses told him in Court. It is always dangerous for any man in whose right conduct others are concerned to set up and endeavour to carry out a fiction such as this. It is most specially dangerous for a Judge, who is under the grave responsibility which attaches to the office of a criminal Judge, to attempt anything of the kind. The Deputy Magistrate, if he thought it right, as he did, to take upon himself the duty of trying the prisoners in this case, ought to have made no pretence whatever of any sort; he ought to have frankly avoided and openly stated in his Court all the part which he had taken, and the facts which he had observed, and made his own evidence part of the record in the case. The awkwardness of a criminal Judge being the principal witness in the case which he has to try, is no doubt most apparent; this, however, is a reason for his declining to try the case, not for his endeavouring to assume an unreal character.”

The case of Bhulanath Sen, 25 W. R., 57: (S. C.), I. L. R., 2 Cal.,

23 is also important in this respect. It was there declared that no man should sit as a Judge in a case in which he has a substantial interest. Ch. XLVI.

Thus, where the accused was charged with having imposed on the Superintendent of the Jail and fraudulently getting possession of sums of money, the receipt and appropriation of which was charged against him as criminal breach of trust, it was held that as the Superintendent had a substantial interest in the matter and was by no means free from the possibility of being responsible for the money embezzled, he was disqualified to sit on the Bench of Magistrates to try the case. Bhola-nath Sen, 25 W. R., 57: (S. C.), I. L. R., 2 Cal., 23. S. 555.

Cases occasionally occur in which a Magistrate or Judge holding the trial is in the position to give evidence or is called by the defence to give evidence. How far he is thus incapacitated has been discussed in several cases.

In the case of Mookta Singh, 13 W. R., 60: (S. C.), 4 B. L. R., 14, the following points were laid down:—

A person having to exercise judicial functions may give evidence in a case before himself when such evidence can and must be submitted to the independent judgment of other persons exercising similar function sitting with him at the same time.

A Sessions Judge is a competent witness, and the giving of evidence by him does not preclude him from dealing judicially with the evidence of which his own forms a part.

The prisoner has a right to ask to have the evidence of a Sessions Judge who is trying him taken on a point which he thinks makes in his favour.

A Sessions Judge who makes a complaint before a Magistrate is not incompetent afterwards to try it without the aid of a Jury, if he has no personal or pecuniary interest in the subject of the charge.—Mookta Singh, 13 W. R., 60; 4 B. L. R., 14.

In the case of the Govt. of Bengal v Hira Lall Dass, 8 B. L. R., 422, the Govt. appealed against the order of the Sessions Judge on appeal, who held that the same officer having as Sub-Registrar instituted the prosecution was not competent as Magistrate to try the case.

The appeal was heard by the Chief Justice and five Judges who held, first, that the Magistrate was not prohibited by the law from trying the case. The other question then arose whether there is any general rule of law with regard to the Judge being interested which could apply and which would prevent the Sub-Registrar being the Magistrate who tried the case. The following judgment was delivered:—

Now the interest which disqualifies a Judge is not merely a pecuniary interest; that would be too limited a way of describing such an interest; but in describing it we ought rather to use the language of Norman, J., in the case of The Queen v. Mookta Singh (4 W. R., 15; (S. C.), 13 W. R., 601) that is to say “a personal or a pecuniary interest.” A Magistrate could not try a person for an assault upon himself; and without defining precisely what amounts to personal interest, it appears to me that there must be either a personal or pecuniary interest in order to disqualify a Judge or Magistrate from exercising the general jurisdiction which is conferred upon him. It is not a question of want of jurisdiction so much as a disability arising from interest to exercise his jurisdiction in the particular case.

Ch. XLVI.

S. 556.

In this case I think the Sub-Registrar has not such an interest in the matter as disqualifies him from trying the case; and I may observe, with reference to some of the arguments that have been used as to the Sub-Registrar having made up his mind and that the accused would have no chance of a fair trial, that the sanction of the superior officer, the Registrar, is required before the prosecution can be instituted, and certainly I do not consider that the prosecution will not be instituted unless the Sub-Registrar has made up his mind as to the guilt of the party. It is his duty, when he comes to know that an offence has been committed to cause a prosecution to be instituted; by which I understand that there is prima facie evidence of an offence having been committed, that there is that which renders it proper that there should be an inquiry, and the Registrar accordingly gives his sanction to it; and certainly, I cannot suppose that, because an officer in his position sanctions the institution of a prosecution, his mind is made up as to the guilt of the party, and that he is not willing to consider the evidence which may be produced before him when he comes to try the case. In this case there appears to be no such interest as would prevent the case from going before the Magistrate as the trying authority; but, as I have already said, it would be better, where it can be avoided, that it should not be done, and it may very well be that the Court in its discretion would in similar cases direct the transfer of the case, in order that it should be tried by some other officer.

The case of Het Lall Roy, 22 W. R., 75 is somewhat similar. It was there held that when the District Magistrate took an active part, if not in instituting the prosecution, yet in inviting in a somewhat special manner and in procuring the evidence on which the prosecution was to be placed and was in fact afterwards instituted, and he directed the prosecution taking evidence of witness before he transferred cases to various Magistrates for trial, it was not desirable or fair to the Magistrate himself that he should hear the appeals which were consequently transferred to the Sessions Court.

Hindee has been declared by the Government of Bengal to be the language in ordinary use in the Colehan. (Not., April 26, 1867); also in the hill portion of the District of Darjeeling (Cal. Gaz., p. 1873, 116); and Assamese in the Districts of Kamroop, Durrung, Nowgong, Seebagor, and Lukhimpore (Ibid, p. 912).

In all the Districts of the Patna Division, that is, in Patna, Shahabad, Gya, Tirhoot, Sarun, Nagree has been declared to be the character to be used in all Court documents, the issue of such documents, except exhibits, in the Persian character being forbidden.—Govt. Bengal, Resn. April 13, 1880.

ACT X OF 1873.

(RECEIVED THE ASSENT OF THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL ON THE 8TH DAY OF APRIL, 1873)

An Act to consolidate the law relating to Judicial Oaths, and for other purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate the law relating to judicial oaths, affirmations, and declarations and to repeal the law relating to official oaths, affirmations, and declarations ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

I.—Preliminary.

Witnesses.

(b.) interpreters of questions put to, and evidence given by, witnesses, and Interpreters.

(c.) jurors.

Jurors.

Nothing herein contained shall render it lawful to administer in a criminal proceeding an oath or affirmation to the accused person, or necessary to administer to the official interpreter of any Court, after he has entered on the execution of the duties of his office, an oath or affirmation that he will faithfully discharge those duties.

Affirmation by Natives or by persons objecting to oaths.

6. Where the witness, interpreter or juror is a Hindu or Muhammadan, or has an objection to making an oath,

he shall, instead of making an oath, make an affirmation.

In every other case the witness, interpreter or juror shall make an oath.

IV.—Forms of Oaths and Affirmations.

7. All oaths and affirmations made under section five shall be administered

Forms of oaths and affirmations. according to such forms as the High Court may from time to time prescribe.

And until any such forms are prescribed by the High Court, such oaths and affirmations shall be administered according to the forms now in use.

Explanation.—As regards oaths and affirmations administered in the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon and the Court of Small Causes of Rangoon, the Recorder of Rangoon shall be deemed to be the High Court within the meaning of this section.

The forms of oaths and affirmations, prescribed by several of the High Courts, are given after this Act.

8. If any party to, or witness in, any judicial proceeding offers to give evidence on oath or solemn affirmation in any form common Power of Court to tender certain oaths.

eight, if such oath or affirmation is made by the other party to, or by any witnesses in, such proceeding, the Court may, if it thinks fit, ask such party or witness, or cause him to be asked, whether or not he will make the oath or affirmation :

Provided that no party or witness shall be compelled to attend personally in Court solely for the purpose of answering such question.

10. If such party or witness agrees to make such oath or affirmation, the Court may proceed to administer it, or if it is of such a nature that it may be more conveniently made out of Court, the Court may issue a Commission to any person to administer it, and authorize him to take the evidence of the person to be sworn or affirmed and return it to the Court.

Evidence conclusive as against person offering to be bound.

11. The evidence so given shall, as against the person who offered to be bound as aforesaid, be conclusive proof of the matter stated.

The evidence referred to by s. 11 must have been given under the oath or solemn affirmation contemplated by s. 8, and not under the usual form of oath or affirmation.—Sreemunt Ram Totadar, 22 W. R., 387.

12. If the party or witness refuses to make the oath or solemn affirmation referred to in section eight, he shall not be compelled to make it, but the Court shall record, as part of the proceedings, the nature of the oath or affirmation proposed, the facts that he was asked whether he would make it, and that he refused it, together with any reason which he may assign for his refusal.

V.—Miscellaneous. ★

13. No omission to take any oath or make any affirmation, no substitution of any one for any other of them, and no irregularity whatever in the form in which any one of them is administered, shall invalidate any proceeding or render inadmissible any evidence whatever, in or in respect of which such omission, substitution or irregularity took place, or shall affect the obligation of a witness to state the truth.

Proceedings and evidence not invalidated by omission of oath or irregularity.

The word "omission" includes any omission, and is not limited to accidental or negligent omissions. In this case the affirmation was in fact omitted to be made, although it was done deliberately and under the direction of the Judge. The intention appears to have been to provide for every omission, substitution or irregularity.—Per Couch, C.J., Kemp, Phear and Markby, JJ. (Jackson, J., dis.).—Sewa Bhogta, 23 W. R., 12.

14. Every person giving evidence on any subject before any Court or person hereby authorized to administer oaths and affirmations shall be bound to state the truth on such subject.

Persons giving evidence bound to state the truth.

15. The Indian Penal Code, sections 178 and 181, shall be construed as if, after the word "oath" the words "or affirmation" were inserted.

16. Subject to the provisions of sections three and five, no person appointed to any office shall, before entering on the execution of the duties of his office, be required to make any oath, or to make or subscribe any affirmation or declaration whatever.

Official oaths abolished.

PART I.
RELEVANCY OF FACTS.

CHAPTER I.—PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

I. This Act may be called “The Indian Evidence Act, 1872.”

Extent.

It extends to the whole of British India and applies to all judicial proceedings in or before any Court, including Courts-Martial, but not to affidavits presented to any Court or Officer, nor to proceedings before an arbitrator;

Commencement of Act.

and it shall come into force on the first day of September 1872 :

But nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect any provision of any Statute, Act or Regulation in force in any part of British India and not hereby expressly repealed.

Interpretation-clause.

III. In this Act the following words and expressions are used in the following senses, unless a contrary intention appears from the context :—

“Court.”

“Court” includes all Judges and Magistrates and all persons, except arbitrators legally authorized to take evidence.

“Facts.”

“Fact” means and includes—

- (1.) Any thing, state of things, or relation of things capable of being perceived by the senses ;
 (2.) Any mental condition of which any person is conscious.

- (a.) That there are certain objects arranged in a certain order in a certain place is a fact.
 (b.) That a man heard or saw something is a fact.
 (c.) That a man said certain words is a fact.
 (d.) That a man holds a certain opinion, has a certain intention, acts in good faith, or fraudulently, or uses a particular word in a particular sense, or is or was at a specified time conscious of a particular sensation, is a fact.
 (e.) That a man has a certain reputation is a fact.

One fact is said to be relevant to another when the one is connected with the other in any of the ways referred to in the provisions of this Act relating to the relevancy of facts.

"Facts in issue." The expression "Facts in issue" means and includes—

Any fact from which, either by itself or in connection with other facts, the existence, non-existence, nature, or extent of any right, liability or disability asserted or denied in any suit or proceeding, necessarily follows.

Explanation—Whenever, under the provisions of the law for the time being in force relating to Civil Procedure, any Court records an issue of fact, the fact to be asserted or denied in the answer to such issue, is a fact in issue.

Illustrations.

A is accused of the murder of B.

At his trial the following facts may be in issue :—

- That A caused B's death ;
 That A intended to cause B's death ;
 That A had received grave and sudden provocation from B ;
 That A, at the time of doing the act which caused B's death, was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing its nature.

"Document" means any matter expressed or described upon any substance by means of letters, figures, or marks, or by more than one of those means, intended to be used, or which may be used, for the purpose of recording that matter.

Illustrations.

A writing is a document :

Words printed, lithographed or photographed are documents :

A map or plan is a document :

An inscription on a metal plate or stone is a document :

A caricature is a document.

"Evidence." "Evidence" means and includes—such statements are called oral evidence :

(2.) All documents produced for the inspection of the Court ;

A fact is said to be disproved when, after considering the matters before it, the Court either believes that it does not exist, or considers its non-existence so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that it does not exist.

"Disproved."

"Not proved."

A fact is said not to be proved when it is neither proved nor disproved.

IV. Whenever it is provided by this Act that the Court may presume a fact, it may either regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved, or may call for proof of it:

"May presume."

Whenever it is directed by this Act that the Court shall presume a fact it shall regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved.

"Shall presume."

When one fact is declared by this Act to be conclusive proof of another, the Court shall, on proof of the one fact, regard the other as proved, and shall not allow evidence to be given for the purpose of disproving it.

"Conclusive proof."

CHAPTER II.—OF THE RELEVANCY OF FACTS.

Evidence may be given of facts in issue and relevant facts.

V. Evidence may be given in any suit or proceeding of the existence or non-existence of every fact in issue and of such other facts as are hereinafter declared to be relevant, and of no others.

Explanation.—This section shall not enable any person to give evidence of a fact which he is disentitled to prove by any provision of the law for the time being in force relating to Civil Procedure.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is tried for the murder of B by beating him with a club with the intention of causing his death.

At A's trial the following facts are in issue:—

A's beating B with the club;

A's causing B's death by such beating;

A's intention to cause B's death

(b.) A suitor does not bring with him, and have in readiness for production at the first hearing of the case, a bond on which he relies. This section does not enable him to produce the bond or prove its contents at a subsequent stage of the proceedings, otherwise than in accordance with the conditions prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure.

VI. Facts which, though not in issue, are so connected with a fact in issue

Relevancy of facts forming part of same transaction. as to form part of the same transaction, are relevant, whether they occurred at the same time and place or at different times and places.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is accused of the murder of B by beating him. Whatever was said or done by A or B or the bystanders at the beating, or so shortly before or after it, as to form part of the transaction, is a relevant fact.

(b.) A is accused of waging war against the Queen by taking part in an armed insurrection in which property is destroyed, troops are attacked, and gaols are broken open. The occurrence of these facts is relevant, as forming part of the general transaction, though A may not have been present at all of them.

(c.) A sues B for a libel contained in a letter forming part of a correspondence. Letters between the parties relating to the subject out of which the libel arose, and forming part of the correspondence in which it is contained, are relevant facts, though they do not contain the libel itself.

(d.) The question is, whether certain goods ordered from B were delivered to A. The goods were delivered to several intermediate persons successively. Each delivery is a relevant fact.

VII. Facts which are the occasion, cause, or effect, immediate or otherwise, of relevant facts, or facts in issue, or which constitute the state of things under which they happened, or which afforded an opportunity for their occurrence or transaction, are relevant.

Facts which are occasion, cause, or effect of facts in issue.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is, whether A robbed B.

The facts that, shortly before the robbery, B went to a fair with money in his possession and that he showed it, or mentioned the fact that he had it, to third persons, are relevant.

(b.) The question is, whether A murdered B.

Marks on the ground, produced by a struggle at or near the place where the murder was committed, are relevant facts.

(c.) The question is, whether A poisoned B.

The state of B's health before the symptoms ascribed to poison, and habits of B, known to A, which afforded an opportunity for the administration of poison, are relevant facts.

Motive, preparation and previous or subsequent conduct.

VIII. Any fact is relevant which shows or constitutes a motive or preparation for any fact in issue or relevant fact.

The conduct of any party, or of any agent to any party, to any suit or proceeding, in reference to such suit or proceeding, or in reference to any fact in issue therein or relevant thereto and the conduct of any person, an offence against whom is the subject of any proceeding, is relevant, if such conduct influences or is influenced by any fact in issue or relevant fact, and whether it was previous or subsequent thereto.

Explanation 1.—The word “conduct” in this section does not include statements, unless those statements accompany and explain acts other than statements; but this explanation is not to affect the relevancy of statements under any other section of this Act.

Explanation 2.—When the conduct of any person is relevant, any statement made to him or in his presence and hearing, which affects such conduct, is relevant.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is tried for the murder of B.

The facts that A murdered C, that B knew that A had murdered C, and that B had tried to extort money from A by threatening to make his knowledge public, are relevant.

(b.) A sues B upon a bond for the payment of money. B denies the making of the bond.

The fact that, at the time when the bond was alleged to be made, B required money for a particular purpose, is relevant.

(c.) A is tried for the murder of B by poison.

The fact that, before the death of B, A procured poison similar to that which was administered to B, is relevant.

(d.) The question is, whether a certain document is the will of A.

The facts that, not long before the date of the alleged will, A made inquiry into matters to which the provisions of the alleged will relate; that he consulted vakils in reference to making the will, and that he caused drafts of other wills to be prepared, of which he did not approve, are relevant.

(e.) A is accused of a crime.

The facts that, either before, or at the time of, or after the alleged crime, A provided evidence which would tend to give to the facts of the case an appearance favourable to himself, or that he destroyed or concealed evidence, or prevented the presence or procured the absence of persons who might have been witnesses, or suborned persons to give false evidence respecting it, are relevant.

(f.) The question is, whether A robbed B.

The facts that, after B was robbed, C said in A's presence—'the police are coming to look for the man who robbed B,' and that immediately afterwards A ran away, are relevant.

(g.) The question is, whether A owes B rupees 10,000.

The facts that A asked C to lend him money, and that D said to C in A's presence and hearing—'I advise you not to trust A, for he owes B 10,000 rupees,' and that A went away without making any answer, are relevant facts.

(h.) The question is whether A committed a crime.

The fact that A absconded after receiving a letter warning him that inquiry was being made for the criminal, and the contents of the letter, are relevant.

(i.) A is accused of a crime.

The facts that, after the commission of the alleged crime, he absconded, or was in possession of property or the proceeds of property acquired by the crime, or attempted to conceal things which were or might have been used in committing it, are relevant.

(j.) The question is, whether A was ravished.

The facts that, shortly after the alleged rape, she made a complaint relating to the crime, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which, the complaint was made, are relevant.

The fact that, without making a complaint, she said that she had been ravished is not relevant as conduct under this section, though it may be relevant as a dying declaration under section thirty-two, clause (one), or as corroborative evidence under section one hundred and fifty-seven.

(k.) The question is, whether A was robbed.

The fact that, soon after the alleged robbery, he made a complaint relating to the offence, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which the complaint was made, are relevant.

The fact that he said he had been robbed, without making any complaint, is not relevant as conduct under this section, though it may be relevant.

as a dying declaration under section thirty-two, clause (one), or as corroborative evidence under section one hundred and fifty-seven.

The prisoner was charged with theft (S. 379, Penal Code) and dishonestly receiving stolen property (S. 411). The prosecutor who was robbed while travelling by railway reported his loss to the Railway Police Inspector at the first station at which the train stopped after being aware of the theft, the prisoner not being present. Evidence as to the report made was admitted under Illust. (k) of S. 8 of the Evidence Act.—Queen v. Macdonald, 10 B. L. R., 2, App.

IX. Facts necessary to explain or introduce a fact in issue or relevant fact,

Facts necessary to explain or introduce relevant facts, or which support or rebut an inference suggested by a fact in issue or relevant fact, or which establish the identity of any thing or person whose identity is relevant, or fix the time or place at which any fact in issue or relevant fact happened, or which show the relation of parties by whom any such fact was transacted, are relevant in so far as they are necessary for that purpose.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is, whether a given document is the will of A. The state of A's property and of his family at the date of the alleged will may be relevant facts.

(b.) A sues B for a libel imputing disgraceful conduct to A; B affirms that the matter alleged to be libellous is true.

The position and relations of the parties at the time when the libel was published may be relevant facts as introductory to the facts in issue.

The particulars of a dispute between A and B about a matter unconnected with the alleged libel are irrelevant, though the fact that there was a dispute may be relevant if it affected the relations between A and B.

(c.) A is accused of a crime.

The fact that, soon after the commission of the crime, A absconded from his house, is relevant, under section eight, as conduct subsequent to and affected by facts in issue.

The fact that, at the time when he left home, he had sudden and urgent business at the place to which he went, is relevant, as tending to explain the fact that he left home suddenly.

The details of the business on which he left are not relevant, except in so far as they are necessary to show that the business was sudden and urgent.

(d.) A sues B for inducing C to break a contract of service made by him with A. C, on leaving A's service, says to A—'I am leaving you because B has made me a better offer.' This statement is a relevant fact as explanatory of C's conduct, which is relevant as a fact in issue.

(e.) A, accused of theft, is seen to give the stolen property to B, who is seen to give it to A's wife. B says, as he delivers it—'A says you are to hide this.' B's statement is relevant as explanatory of a fact which is part of the transaction.

(f.) A is tried for a riot and is proved to have marched at the head of a mob. The cries of the mob are relevant as explanatory of the transaction.

X. Where there is reasonable ground to believe that two or more persons have conspired together to commit an offence or an actionable wrong, any thing said, done or written by any one of such persons in reference to their common intention, after the time when such intention was first entertained by any one of them, is a relevant fact as against each of the persons believed to be so conspiring, as well for the purpose of proving the existence of the conspiracy as for the purpose of showing that any such person was a party to it.

Illustrations.

Reasonable ground exists for believing that A has joined in a conspiracy to wage war against the Queen.

The facts that B procured arms in Europe for the purpose of the conspiracy, C collected money in Calcutta for a like object, D persuaded persons to join the conspiracy in Bombay, E published writings advocating the object in view at Agra, and F transmitted from Delhi to G at Cabul the money which C had collected at Calcutta, and the contents of a letter written by H giving an account of the conspiracy, are each relevant, both to prove the existence of the conspiracy, and to prove A's complicity in it, although he may have been ignorant of all of them, and although the persons by whom they were done were strangers to him, and although they may have taken place before he joined the conspiracy or after he left it.

When facts not otherwise relevant become relevant.

XI. Facts not otherwise relevant are relevant—

(1.) If they are inconsistent with any fact in issue or relevant fact.

(2.) If by themselves or in connection with other facts they make the existence or non-existence of any fact in issue or relevant fact highly probable or improbable.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is whether A committed a crime at Calcutta on a certain day.

The fact that, on that day, A was at Lahore is relevant.

The fact that, near the time when the crime was committed, A was at a distance from the place where it was committed, which would render it highly improbable, though not impossible, that he committed it, is relevant.

(b.) The question is, whether A committed a crime.

The circumstances are such that the crime must have been committed either by A, B, C, or D. Every fact which shows that the crime could have been committed by no one else, and that it was not committed by either B, C, or D, is relevant.

In a trial for forgery, evidence was admitted to show that the accused was in possession of a number of other documents, apparently either forged or held in readiness for purposes of forgery. On appeal, the High Court held that this evidence had been improperly admitted and was irrelevant. The Court, per West, J., made the following remarks:—"S. 11 of the Evidence Act is no doubt expressed in terms so extensive that any fact which can, by any chance of ratiocination, be brought into connection with another, so as to have a bearing upon a point in issue, may possibly be held to be relevant within its meaning. But the connexions of human affairs are so infinitely various and so far reaching, that thus to take the section on its widest admissible sense would be to complicate every trial with a mass of collateral inquiries limited only by the patience and the means of the parties. One of the objects of a Law of Evidence is to restrict the investigations made by Courts within the bounds prescribed by general convenience, and this object would be completely frustrated by the admission, on all occasions, of every circumstance on either side having some remote and conjectural probative force, the precise amount of which might itself be ascertained only by a long trial and a determination of fresh collateral issues, growing up in endless succession, as the enquiry proceeded. That such an extreme meaning was not in the mind of the Legislature seems to be shown by several instances in the Act itself."—Parbhudas, 11 Bomb., 90.

In suits for damages, facts tending to enable Court to determine amount are relevant.

XII. In suits in which damages are claimed, any fact which will enable the Court to determine the amount of damages which ought to be awarded, is relevant.

Facts relevant when right or custom is in question.

XIII. Where the question is as to the existence of any right or custom, the following facts are relevant:—

(a.) Any transaction by which the right or custom in question was created, claimed, modified, recognized, asserted or denied, or which was inconsistent with its existence.

(b.) Particular instances in which the right or custom was claimed, recognized, or exercised, or in which its exercise was disputed, asserted or departed from.

Illustration.

The question is, whether A has a right to a fishery. A deed conferring the fishery on A's ancestors, a mortgage of the fishery by A's father, a subsequent grant of the fishery by A's father, irreconcilable with the mortgage, particular instances in which A's father exercised the right, or in which the exercise of the right was stopped by A's neighbours, are relevant facts.

XIV. Facts showing the existence of any state of mind—such as intention, Facts showing existence of state of mind, or of body or bodily feeling.

knowledge, good faith, negligence, rashness, ill-will or good-will towards any particular person,—or showing the existence of any state of body or bodily feeling, are relevant, when the existence of any such state of mind or body or bodily feeling is in issue or relevant.

Explanation.—A fact, relevant as showing the existence of a relevant state of mind, must show that it exists, not generally, but in reference to the particular matter in question.

Explanation 2 X.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is accused of receiving stolen goods knowing them to be stolen. It is proved that he was in possession of a particular stolen article.

The fact that, at the same time, he was in possession of many other stolen articles is relevant, as tending to show that he knew each and all of the articles of which he was in possession to be stolen.

(b.) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to another person ^a piece of counterfeit coin which at the time when he delivered it, he knew to be counterfeit.

The fact that, at the time of its delivery, A was possessed of a number of other pieces of counterfeit coin, is relevant.

(c.) A sues B for damage done by a dog of B's which B knew to be ferocious.

The facts that the dog had previously bitten X, Y, and Z, and that they had made complaint to B, are relevant.

(d.) The question is whether A the acceptor of a bill of exchange is liable to the name of the payee was fictitious.

The fact that A had accepted other bills drawn in the same manner before they could have been transmitted to him by the payee if the payee had been a real person, is relevant, as showing that A knew that the payee was a fictitious person.

(e.) A is accused of defaming B by publishing an imputation intended to harm the reputation of B.

The fact of previous publications by A respecting B, showing ill-will on the part of A towards B, is relevant, as proving A's intention to harm B's reputation by the particular publication in question.

The facts that there was no previous quarrel between A and B, and that A repeated the matter complained of as he heard it, are relevant, as showing that A did not intend to harm the reputation of B.

(f.) A is sued by B for fraudulently representing to B that C was solvent, whereby B, being induced to trust C, who was insolvent, suffered loss.

The fact that, at the time when A represented C to be solvent, C was supposed to be solvent by his neighbours and by persons dealing with him, is relevant, as showing that A made the representation in good faith.

(g.) A is sued by B for the price of work done by B, upon a house of which A is owner, by the order of C, a contractor.

A's defence is that B's contract was with C.

The fact that A paid C for the work in question is relevant, as proving that A did, in good faith, make over to C the management of the work in question, so that C was in a position to contract with B on C's own account, and not as agent for A.

(h.) A is accused of the dishonest misappropriation of property which he had found, and the question is whether, when he appropriated it, he believed in good faith that the real owner could not be found.

The fact that public notice of the loss of the property had been given in the place where A was is relevant, as showing that A did not in good faith believe that the real owner of the property could not be found.

The fact that A knew, or had reason to believe, that the notice was given fraudulently by C, who had heard of the loss of the property and wished to set up a false claim to it, is relevant, as showing that the fact that A knew of the notice did not disprove A's good faith.

(i.) A is charged with shooting at B with intent to kill him. In order to show A's intent, the fact of A's having previously shot at B may be proved.

(j.) A is charged with sending threatening letters to B. Threatening letters previously sent by A to B may be proved, as showing the intention of the letters.

(k.) The question is, whether A has been guilty of cruelty towards B, his wife.

Expressions of their feeling towards each other shortly before or after the alleged cruelty are relevant facts.

(l.) The question is, whether A's death was caused by poison.

Statements made by A during his illness as to his symptoms are relevant facts.

(m.) The question is, what was the state of A's health at the time when an assurance on his life was effected.

Statements made by A as to the state of his health at or near the time in question are relevant facts.

(n.) A sues B for negligence in providing him with a carriage for hire not reasonably fit for use, whereby A was injured.

The fact that B's attention was drawn on other occasions to the defect of that particular carriage is relevant.

The fact that B was habitually negligent about the carriages which he let to hire is irrelevant.

(o.) A is tried for the murder of B by intentionally shooting him dead.

The fact that A, on other occasions, shot at B is relevant, as showing his intention to shoot B.

The fact that A was in the habit of shooting at people with intent to murder them is irrelevant.

(p.) A is tried for a crime.

The fact that he said something indicating an intention to commit that particular crime is relevant.

That fact that he said something indicating a general disposition to commit crimes of that class is irrelevant.

Evidence that the accused person was on a date subsequent to those specified in the charge guilty of having done similar acts is not admissible.—Empress v. M. J. Vyapoory Moodilliar, 8 Cal. L. R., 197; (S. C.) 1 L. R., 6 Cal., 655.

XV. When there is a question whether an act was accidental or intentional, the fact that such act formed part of a series of similar occurrences, in each of which the person doing the act was concerned, is relevant.

Facts bearing on question whether act was accidental or intentional.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is accused of burning down his house in order to obtain money for which it is insured.

The facts that A lived in several houses successively, each of which he insured, in each of which a fire occurred, and after each of which fires A received payment from a different insurance office are relevant, as tending to show that the fires were not accidental.

(b.) A is employed to receive money from the debtors of B. It is A's duty to make entries in a book showing the amounts received by him. He makes an entry showing that on a particular occasion he received less than he really did receive.

The question is, whether this false entry was accidental or intentional.

The facts that other entries made by A in the same book are false, and that the false entry is in each case in favour of A, are relevant.

(c.) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to B a counterfeit rupee.

The question is, whether the delivery of the rupee was accidental.

The facts that, soon before or soon after the delivery to B, A delivered counterfeit rupees to C, D, and E are relevant, as showing that the delivery to B was not accidental.

XVI. When there is a question whether a particular act was done, the existence of course of existence of any course of business, according to which it business when relevant. naturally would have been done, is a relevant fact.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is, whether a particular letter was despatched.

The facts that it was the ordinary course of business for all letters put in a certain place to be carried to the post, and that that particular letter was put in that place, are relevant.

(b.) The question is, whether a particular letter reached A. The facts that it was posted in due course, and was not returned through the Dead Letter Office, are relevant.

ADMISSIONS.

XVII. An admission is a statement, oral or documentary, which suggests any inference as to any fact in issue or relevant fact, and which is made by any of the persons, and under the circumstances, hereinafter mentioned.

XVIII. Statements made by a party to the proceeding, or by an agent to any such party, whom the Court regards, under the circumstances of the case, as expressly or impliedly authorized by him to make them, are admissions.

Admission—by party to proceeding or his agent;

Statements made by parties to suits, suing or sued in a representative character, are not admissions, unless they were made while the party making them held that character.

by suitor in representative character;

Statements made by—

(1) Persons who have any proprietary or pecuniary interest in the subject-matter of the proceeding, and who make the statement by party interested in subject-matter; in their character of persons so interested, or by person from whom interest derived.

(2) Persons from whom the parties to the suit have derived their interest in the subject-matter of the suit, are admissions, if they are made during the continuance of the interest of the persons making the statements.

Accounts kept on behalf of an accused person are relevant as admissions though they may not have been regularly kept in the course of business.—Harmanta Madhaji Khadkeo, Bomb. H. Ct., Feb. 26, 1877.

XIX. Statements made by persons whose position or liability it is necessary to prove as against any party to the suit, are admissions, if such statements would be relevant as against such persons in relation to such position or liability in a suit brought by or against them, and if they are made whilst the person making them occupies such position or is subject to such liability.

Admission by persons whose position must be proved as against party to suit.

Illustration.

A undertakes to collect rents for B.
 B sues A for not collecting rent due from C to B.
 A denies that rent was due from C to B.
 A statement by C. that he owed B rent is an admission, and is a relevant fact as against A, if A denies that C did owe rent to B.

XX. Statements made by persons to whom a party to the suit has expressly referred for information in reference to a matter in dispute are admissions.
 Admissions by persons expressly referred to by party to suit.

Illustration.

The question is, whether a horse sold by A to B is sound.
 A says to B, 'Go and ask C, C knows all about it.' C's statement is an admission.

XXI. Admissions are relevant and may be proved as against the person who makes them, or his representative in interest; but they cannot be proved by or on behalf of the person who makes them or by his representative in interest, except in the following cases:—

(1.) An admission may be proved by or on behalf of the person making it, when it is of such a nature that, if the person making it were dead, it would be relevant as between third persons under section thirty-two.

(2.) An admission may be proved by or on behalf of the person making it, when it consists of a statement of the existence of any state of mind or body, relevant or in issue, made at or about the time when such state of mind or body existed, and is accompanied by conduct rendering its falsehood improbable.

(3.) An admission may be proved by or on behalf of the person making it, if it is relevant otherwise than as an admission.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question between A and B is, whether a certain deed is or is not forged. A affirms that it is genuine, B that it is forged.

A may prove a statement by B that the deed is genuine, and B may prove a statement by A that the deed is forged; but A cannot prove a statement by himself that the deed is genuine, nor can B prove a statement by himself that the deed is forged.

(b.) A, the Captain of a ship, is tried for casting her away.

Evidence is given to show that the ship was taken out of her proper course.

A produces a book kept by him in the ordinary course of his business, showing observations alleged to have been taken by him from day to day, and indicating that the ship was not taken out of her proper course. A may prove these statements because they would be admissible between third parties, if he were dead, under section thirty-two, clause (two).

(c.) A is accused of a crime committed by him at Calcutta.

He produces a letter written by himself and dated at Lahore on that day, and bearing the Lahore post mark of that day.

The statement in the date of the letter is admissible, because, if A were dead, it would be admissible under section thirty-two, clause (two).

(d.) A is accused of receiving stolen goods knowing them to be stolen.

He offers to prove that he refused to sell them below their value.

A may prove these statements, though they are admissions, because they are explanatory of conduct influenced by facts in issue.

(e.) A is accused of fraudulently having in his possession counterfeit coin which he knew to be counterfeit.

He offers to prove that he asked a skilful person to examine the coin, as he doubted whether it was counterfeit or not, and that that person did examine it and told him it was genuine.

A may prove these facts for the reasons stated in the last preceding illustration.

The purchaser at an execution sale is a representative in interest of the judgment-debtor within the terms of s. 21, and any statement made by the latter is evidence against him.—Per Markby and Birch, JJ., Unnopoorna Dossee, 21 W. R., 148.

unless and until the party proposing to prove them shows that he is entitled to give secondary evidence of the contents of such document under the rules hereinafter contained, or unless the genuineness of a document produced is in question.

express condition that evidence of it is not to be given, or under circumstances from which the Court can infer that the parties agreed together that evidence of it should not be given.

Explanation.—Nothing in this section shall be taken to exempt any barrister, pleader, attorney or vakil from giving evidence of any matter of which he may be compelled to give evidence under section one hundred and twenty-six.

XXIV. A confession made by an accused person is irrelevant in a criminal proceeding, if the making of the confession appears to the Court to have been caused by any inducement, threat or promise, having reference to the charge against the accused person, proceeding from a person in authority and sufficient, in the opinion of the Court, to give the accused person grounds, which would appear to him reasonable, for supposing that by making it he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil of a temporal nature in reference to the proceedings against him.

Confession caused by inducement, threat or promise, when irrelevant in criminal proceeding.

S. 163 of the Code of Criminal Procedure declares that no Police officer or person in authority shall offer or make or cause to be offered or made any such inducement, threat or promise as is mentioned by the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, S. 24. But no Police officer or other person shall prevent, by caution or otherwise any person from making in the course of any investigation any statement which he may be disposed to make of his own free will. Id.

The only inducement to confess which can legally be offered is the tender of a pardon by certain judicial officers on certain conditions to a person supposed to be concerned in an offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session or High Court. Ss. 337, 338 Code of Criminal Procedure.

In the case of Dhurmo Dutt Ojha (8 W. R., 18), it appeared that the prisoners confessed on being told by the Police officer that he would get them released if they told the truth. The Calcutta High Court severely condemned such conduct as highly improper and illegal, holding that no part of the Police officer's evidence as to the discovery of facts in consequence of the confessions was legally admissible. See also Bechoo Manjeo, 9 W. R., 16.

The following judgment of the Calcutta High Court expresses the law regarding the admissibility of statements made to the Police—(Case of Nobodoop Chunder Ghosamoo and another, 1 B. L. R., 15, Original Side, Criminal.)

“Peacock, C. J.—Upon the questions argued before us I entertain no doubt.

“The first relates to the answer given to the Police constable when he arrested the prisoner. The answer did not amount to a confession of guilt, but was a statement of facts, which, if true, showed that the prisoner was innocent. It is not a confession obtained under an inducement of hope or fear. The only objection to the statement being admissible in evidence is, that it was made in answer to a question put by the Police officer.

“The cases upon this subject in England are conflicting, but the later cases seem to show that statements made by a prisoner in answer to a question put by a Police officer are admissible in evidence. In the case of R. v. Borlman, 6 Cox, C. C., 388, Erle, C. J. refused to admit as evidence an answer given by a prisoner to a question put to him by a Magistrate; and a similar ruling by Wilde, C. J. is to be found in the case of R. v. Pettit, 4 Cox, C. C., 164. But in a later case, the Queen v. Cheverton, 2 F. & F., 833, Erle, C. J. admitted as evidence against the prisoner a statement which she had made in answer to questions put to her by a Police officer. In that case it appeared that Baxter, the Police officer, had said to the prisoner, ‘you had better tell all about it, it will save trouble;’ and then put certain questions to the prisoner, which she answered. It was held that the answers given to Baxter were inadmissible, because they had been made under the influence of something in the nature of a threat or inducement. Afterwards, another Policeman put questions to the prisoner, which she answered, and it was objected that those answers were inadmissible, as they had been made under the inducement held out by the former Police officer. Erle, C. J., after consulting Wightman, J., admitted the statements made to the second Police officer, holding as I suppose, that the answers were not given in consequence of the inducement held out by the first officer. That is a distinct authority that statements made by a prisoner in answer to questions put by a Police officer are admissible, and it may be remarked that in that case the answers were held to be admissible, though the prisoner had not been cautioned.

"In the case of R. v. Mick, 3 F. F., 342, it was held by Miller, J., that the confession made by a prisoner in answer to a question put to him by a Police officer was admissible. A similar decision will be found in 1 Moody, C. C., 27, in which it was held that a confession obtained without threat or promise from a boy, fourteen years old, by questions put to him by a Police officer, in whose custody the boy was on a charge of felony, and when the boy had had no food for nearly a whole day, was properly received as evidence against him. That was held by six Judges to three upon a point reserved. The majority held that the confession was rightly received, as no threat or promise had been made.

"Miller, J., in the case of R. v. Mick, to which I have referred, remarked that many Judges would not receive the evidence, and that he highly disapproved of the course the Police officer had taken in asking questions.

"Having these conflicting decisions before us, I should be disposed to act upon the decisions given in the case reserved, even if it were not borne out by every principle of common sense. If an inducement is held out to a prisoner to make a confession, by telling him he will be better off if he makes a confession, he may be induced, if he knows that circumstances are strong to lead to a presumption of guilt, to make a confession, though he is innocent.

"There may be reasonable ground against the admission of such a confession, though perhaps it would be better to admit it, and to leave those who have to determine as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner to judge of the weight which ought to be attached to it.

"The object of the Criminal Law is to punish the guilty, for the purpose of deterring them and others from committing offences. The object of the law of Procedure, including the law of Evidence, is, or ought to be, that the innocent shall be protected and the guilty punished. I cannot, therefore, at all agree with the remarks of Miller, J., and in the expression of his disapproval of the conduct of the Police officer on asking questions, provided he does not hold out hope or fear as an inducement to confess."

A Panchayat assembled to consider whether A had murdered B, and had not consequently disqualified himself from further social intercourse with the brotherhood. Held, that statements made before the Panchayat were not irrelevant under S. 24 as it was not in authority, nor was there any threat, inducement or promise made having reference to any charge against the accused.—Mohun Lall, I. L. R., 4 All., 66.

The same matter was also discussed by the Bombay High Court in the case of Reg. v. Navroji Dudabhai, 9 Bomb., 358 where the question of how far a person was "in authority" over the confessing person, came also under consideration. Sargent, C. J., said: The test would seem to be, had the person authority to interfere in the matter; and any concern or interest in it would appear to be sufficient to give him that authority, as in the Queen v. Warringham (2 Den., C. C., 447 n) where Baron Parke held that the wife of one of the prosecutors and concerned in the management of their business was a person in authority, and the rule is so laid down in Archbold's Criminal Practice.

The evidence given by a witness in the presence of the accused and before the committing Magistrate who, it was proved, could not be found owing to his ship having sailed, was tendered as evidence in the Sessions trial in the Calcutta High Court; but the material part relating to an admission by the prisoner was not received because the admission was stated to have been made immediately after the prisoner and others had been threatened with a loaded rifle by the witness to whom the statement was made. It was held to be immaterial that the threat was not for the purpose of extorting the confession, but in order to suppress a mutiny.—Queen v. Hicks, 10 B. L. R., 1, App.

The Sessions Judge and Assessors having found that the Police had been guilty of misconduct in producing evidence to the identification of property which was false, the High Court on appeal refused to affirm conviction which rested on uncorroborated confessions, which were retracted before the case left the Magistrate's Court.—Sofiruddin, 2 Cal. L. R., 132.

Confession to Police officer XXV. No confession made to a Police officer shall be not to be proved. proved as against a person accused of any offence.

No statement, other than a dying declaration, made by any person to a Police officer in the course of an investigation shall, if reduced to writing, be signed by the person making it, or be used as evidence against the accused person. S. 162, Code of Criminal Procedure

But S. 25 does not prevent an accused person from proving a confession made to a Police officer by another person tried jointly with him; though such confession cannot be received as evidence against the person who made it, it may be used in evidence on behalf of another person.—Pitambar Jana, 1 L. R., 1 Bomb., 61.

Where the accused went to consult as a friend a person who happened to be a Police officer unconnected with the case and attached to another Police station who had come to give evidence in another case under trial, it was held that the statement made to him was inadmissible in evidence, because it had been made to a Police officer. Ss. 25 and 26 are distinct. S. 25 excludes confessions made to a Police officer under any circumstances, and S. 26 excludes a confession made to any person while the person making it is in any position to be influenced by a Police officer unless the free and voluntary nature of the confession is secured by its being made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate, in which case a confessing person has an opportunity of making a statement uncontrolled by any fear of the Police. In re Hiran Mya, 1 Cal., L. R., 21.

Although the Deputy Commissioner of Police in Calcutta may be invested with powers of a Magistrate, he is still a Police officer and as such is not competent to record a confession.—Hurrobole Chunder Ghose, 25 W. R., 36.

When a Police officer is about to depose to a confessional statement of a prisoner, a question should be interposed, "Was a Magistrate present at that time?" If not, that confessional statement is excluded by an express provision of law.—Mad. H. Ct., Sept. 13, 1864; Weir, 356.

In two cases before the Calcutta High Court on its original criminal jurisdiction, a distinction has been drawn between a confession of guilt and an admission made to a Police officer when not under arrest. In the Queen v. Macdonald, 10 B. L. R., 2 App., Phear, J., held that the statement made by the prisoner to the Police officer who arrested him to the effect that a watch and Rs. 1000 said to have been stolen had been given to him by his sister, and that he had bought the chain, were admissible as evidence. Phear, J., drew a distinction between admissions and confessions of guilt. Similarly in the case of Empress v. Debee Pershad, 1 L. R., 6 Cal., 530, Prinsep, J., admitted a statement made to the Police while the accused was under arrest.

The Bombay High Court has however refused to admit statements made under similar circumstances. In the case of Pandararnath, 1 L. R., 6 Bomb., 34, the prisoner, while under arrest and in the custody of the Police, on being shown a cheque, said that one Kisan had given it to him. It was held that that statement was not admissible in evidence, although it was probably not intended as a confession of guilt, but was rather made by the prisoner in self-exculpation. It was nevertheless an admission of a criminating circumstance on which the prosecution mainly relied, and formed indeed the principal part of the evidence against him. Such an admission comes properly within the rule of exclusion which the Legislature has laid down with regard to confessions made by a person in custody of the Police.

Confession by accused while in custody of Police not to be proved against him.

XXVI. No confession made by any person whilst he is in the custody of a Police officer, unless it be made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate, shall be proved as against such person.

As confessions are so often obtained by undue influence, in order to give weight to those recorded under S. 26 of the Evidence Act, there should always be made a judicial record of the special circumstances under which such confessions were received by the Magistrate, showing in whose custody the prisoners were and how far they were quite free agents.—Kodai Kahar, 5 W. R., 6.

The mere standing-by of a Magistrate when confessions are being made to and recorded by the Police for their own use will not make those confessions evidence, for the law refers to cases where the Magistrate is himself conducting the investigation, and then, although the prisoner may be in the custody of the Police at the time, such prisoner, making a confession, is liable to have that confession used against him.—Domun Kahar, 12 W. R., 82.

S. 164 empowers any Magistrate not being a Police officer to record any confession made to him in the course of a Police investigation or at any time afterwards before the commencement of the inquiry or trial. Though the Deputy Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, may be invested with powers of a Magistrate, still he is a Police officer and consequently not competent to record a confession.—Hurrobole Chunder Ghose, 25 W. R., 36.

XXVII. Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a Police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved.

The accused stated to the Sub-Inspector of Police that he had seized Khatu Beebee (the deceased) by the neck and pushed her forcibly down, so that she fell against a plantain tree and broke her neck; that he also struck her with his hand; that the woman then and there died, and that he then, after endeavouring to remove the body, took from it a necklace and a pair of bracelets which he concealed in the neighbouring jungle. In consequence of this information the accused was taken to the jungle pointed out by him, and he then produced, from a concealed place, the necklace and bracelets before spoken of, saying that they are the ornaments he had removed from the body of Khatu Beebee. That part of the accused's information which described his assault on Khatu Beebee, and her consequent death, related distinctly to the fact of the discovery of the ornaments, which discovery was made in consequence of that information; and the prisoner's admission as to the way he became possessed of those ornaments is a fact which the law of Evidence allows to be proved against him.—Per Glover, J., Kemp, J., concurring; Pagareo Shaha, 19 W. R., 51.

In the case of Dhurmo Dutt Ojha (8 W. R., 13), it appeared that two prisoners confessed on being told by the Police officer that he would get them released if they told the truth. The Calcutta High Court severely condemned such conduct as highly improper and illegal, holding that no part of the Police officer's evidence as to the discovery of facts in consequence of the confessions was logically admissible. See also Bechoo Manjee, 9 W. R., 16.

The Sessions Judge refused to accept a confession as evidence under S. 30 against other persons tried at the same time for the same offence, because it had been obtained under undue influence, but he accepted it as against the confessing prisoner, because it was corroborated by external facts with which it was connected. The High Court, however, held that if it was admissible at all, it was admissible for the Court to take into consideration against the co-accused, as well as affording the strongest evidence against himself. If circumstances made it wholly or partly admissible, it ought not to have been set aside at all, but weighed for all purposes with care and discretion.—Rama Birapa, 1. L. R., 3 Bomb., 12.

It is not all statements connected with the production or finding of property which are admissible; those only which lead immediately to the discovery of property, and so far as they lead to such discovery are properly admissible. Whatever be the nature of the fact discovered, that fact must in all cases be itself relevant to the case, and the connection between it and the statement made must have been such that that statement constituted the information through which the discovery was made, in order to render the statement admissible. Other statements connected with the one thus made evidence, and so immediately, but not necessarily or directly connected with the fact discovered, are not to be admitted, as this would be rather an evasion than a fulfilment of the law, which is designed to guard prisoners accused of offences against unfair practices on the part of the Police. For instance, a man says, 'you will find a stick at such and such a place; I killed Rama with it.' A policeman, in such a case, may be allowed to say he went to the place indicated, and found the stick, but any statement as to the confession of murder would be inadmissible. If, instead of 'you will find,' the prisoner has said, 'I placed a knife or a sword in such a spot,' when it was found that too involved an admission of a particular act on the prisoner's part, and is admissible, because it is the information which has directly led to the discovery, and is thus directly and independently of any other statement connected with it. But if, besides this, the prisoner has said what induced him to put the knife or sword where it has been found, that part of his statement, as it has not furthered, much less has caused, the discovery, is not admissible. The words of S. 27 of the Evidence Act 'whether it amounts to a confession or not' are to be read as qualifying the word 'information' in the immediately preceding context, not the words 'so much'; and the effect is, that though ordinarily a confession of an accused while in custody would be wholly excluded, yet if, in the course of such a confession, information leading to the discovery of a relevant fact has been given, so much of the information as leads distinctly to this result may be deposed to, though as a whole the statement would constitute a confession which the preceding sections are intended to exclude.

In this case, as in many others, the production of articles supposed to have been made use of in committing the murder by the prisoners, is adduced as strong evidence against them. The conduct of any prisoner in relation to a relevant fact is good evidence according to S. 8 of the Indian Evidence Act; but according to Explanation 1, "the word 'conduct' in this section does not include statements, unless those statements accompany and explain acts other than those statements." It is on such a statement that the significance of the act, which it accompanies, in many cases depends; as for instance when a Police officer says to a prisoner, 'I must search your house for the stolen property,' to which the prisoner replies, 'I will give you at once all the valuables that I have in the house,' and thus gives him certain articles not stolen property, after which stolen jewels are found concealed under his hearth. But if, under cover of an explanation said to have been given by a prisoner of an act in itself ambiguous, or not so obviously connected with the fact in issue as to be relevant, it is sought to introduce a confession of a prisoner to the Police, or made while in Police custody, the Evidence Act does not warrant its admission. The rules of exclusion and the exception to them being definitely laid down, are not to be extended to cases not properly falling within it. The giving up by a cultivator of a bill-hook, or the pointing out of a place where baji appears to have been trampled, is however in itself an unambiguous act. It is in general also insignificant. It needs no explanation, and a confession accompanying it does not explain it, but is a collateral matter whose exclusion, where it is excluded, is not prevented by its being connected with matters that are not excluded.—Jora Hasji, 11 Bomb., 242.

The fact discovered must be one which of its own force, independently of the confession would be admissible evidence. The discovery of a rope was not such a fact. Its relevancy and probative force were both the offspring of the confession itself. There is some doubt as to the stones from the side of the well which were found in the well with the body. These as part of the transaction would no doubt be admissible and would if discovered in consequence of the confession probably render it admissible. Here, however, the facts of the case render it somewhat doubtful whether the discovery of the stones did not result from the finding of the body. It is perhaps safer to exclude the confessions altogether. The section is very inartistically drawn, but it seems clear that the discovery of a fact which, save for the confession, would be altogether indifferent, cannot take a confession out of the excluding rule.—Mad. H. Ct., Choda Atchama. Weir, 317.

Confession made after removal of impression caused by inducement, threat, or promise, relevant.

XXIX. If such a

Confession otherwise relevant not to become irrelevant because of promise of secrecy, &c.

confession is otherwise relevant, it does not become irrelevant, merely because it was made under a promise of secrecy, or in consequence of a deception practised on the accused person for the purpose of obtaining it, or when he was drunk, or because it was made in answer to questions which he need not have answered, whatever may have been the form of those questions, or because he was not warned that he was not bound to make such confession, and that evidence of it might be given against him.

Although it is expressly declared by S. 163 of the Code that no Police officer or person in authority shall offer or make, or cause to be offered or made, any such inducement, threat or promise as is mentioned in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, S. 24, but it is further provided that no Police officer or other person shall prevent, by any caution or otherwise, any person from making in the course of any investigation any statement which he may be disposed to make of his own free will.

S. 342 declares that for the purpose of enabling the accused to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him the Court may, at any stage of any inquiry or trial, without previously warning the accused, put such questions to him as the Court considers necessary, and the Court shall, for the same purpose, question him generally on the case after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined, and before he is called on for his defence. The manner in which such an examination is to be recorded is set forth in S. 364 of the Code.

Where witnesses depose to the fact that before them the prisoner admitted his guilt, they should be required to repeat the words used by the prisoner. Nothing short of the actual words given in detail in the first person, so far as it is possible to obtain them, ought ever to be relied upon as the foundation for any opinion proved by the Court, because it may turn out that the words taken together with the questions and the circumstances under which the questions were put, do not in truth amount to a confession of guilt such as the witnesses choose to represent it.—Soorjaat, 10 B. L. R., 332.

XXX. When more persons than one are being tried jointly for the same offence, and a confession made by one of such persons affecting himself and some other of such persons is proved, the Court may take into consideration such confession as against such other person as well as against the person who makes such confession.

Illustrations.

(a) A and B are jointly tried for the murder of C. It is proved that A said,—‘B and murdered C.’ The Court may consider the effect of this confession as against B.

(b) 'A is on his trial for the murder of C. There is evidence to show that C was murdered by A and B, and that B said,—‘A and I murdered C.’

This statement may not be taken into consideration by Court against A, as B is not being jointly tried.

There are several considerations necessary before S. 30 can be brought into use.

I. The confession can be taken into consideration only at the trial in which the prisoner who made it is being tried jointly for the same offence with some other person.

Thus, where one of several prisoners tried together confessed, and was thereupon convicted and sentenced, and the trial proceeded against the others, the evidence of the confessing prisoner was taken for the prosecution. It was held that the confession could not be taken into consideration under S. 30 of the Evidence Act as the confessing prisoner was not then under trial.—Kalu Patel, 11 Bomb., 146.

II. The person who made the confession must be under trial jointly for the same offence with the person against whom that confession is to be used.

So where some prisoners charged with murder confessed and implicated others charged only with abetment, it was held that such confessions could not be considered against the latter. Jaffir Ali, 19 W. R., 59. See also Nur Mahomed, Panj. Rec. 1874, p. 12. And for the same reason the confession of a person charged with abetment of murder could not be taken into consideration against another tried at the same time on a charge of murder.—Amrita Govinda, 10 Bomb., 497.

So also a confession made by a prisoner charged with dacoity was held to be inadmissible against another prisoner tried on the same trial under S. 412, Penal Code, for dishonestly receiving stolen property acquired in a dacoity.—Bala Patel, I. L. R., 5 Bomb., 63.

Where in the course of the trial the Sessions Judge amended the charge so as to make it identical against all the prisoners it was held that a confession which otherwise could not have been taken into consideration against another prisoner being tried at the same time but for another offence could by this amendment of the charge be properly used against him. The following judgment was delivered :—

As to the point of the admissibility of prisoner Govind's confession as evidence against the second prisoner Babaji, we think that the Sessions Judge was justified in admitting that confession, not only against Govind, but against his fellow-prisoner. No doubt, when it was received, the two accused were before the Court on different charges, and it was received under the notion that it was evidence against Govind alone. But the Code of Criminal Procedure, by S. 228 and the following sections, provides for an amendment of the charge at any stage of the trial, and enables the Court, at its discretion, after making such amendment, to proceed with the trial as if the amended charge had been the original charge. The amendment of the charge in this case made the charge identical against both the accused. If both had been charged originally with abetment, the confession of one would have been received without question against the other. Some difficulty might indeed conceivably arise out of dealing with a case of a confession of prisoner B as evidence against prisoner A (then under trial jointly on a different charge), who, at the time when this confession was recorded, might possibly have raised an objection against its legal admissibility, or might have started questions which would have served his purpose, but for their apparent irrelevancy at that time. But looking to the principle laid down in Ss. 228 to 231, it is clear that the intention of the Legislature is, that whenever an amendment of the charge in any way tends to prejudice the prisoner, steps should be taken to prevent that consequence arising by ordering a new trial, or suspending the trial going on, to enable him to make his defence, or to examine any material witness, or to recall any witnesses already examined. The same principle extends to all instances of material prejudice arising to any one under trial from an amendment made in the course of the proceedings. If we found that the Sessions Court had overlooked this principle, that the prisoner Babaji had objected, on valid grounds, to the reception of the confession, or that this prisoner had really been prejudiced by the refusal of an adjournment, or in any other manner, we should, in a confirmation case, give the accused the full benefit of the objection. We find, however, that the prisoner Babaji, in whose favour the objection is raised here, was defended by a competent pleader, who, when the charge against Govind was amended, neither asked for a new trial, nor sought to raise any objection to the admissibility of the confession as evidence against his client. It is only in the case of charges closely related that a trial goes on forthwith after an amendment; and in this instance the original and amended charges are so nearly related, that in the absence of technical objections urged on behalf of the prisoner Babaji, the trial might, without any unfairness, be deemed, for the reception of evidence and all other purposes, to have been a trial on the amended charge from its commencement. It was only when he came to draw up his judgment that the Judge took Govind's confession into consideration against Babaji, and at that moment they were both jointly under trial for the same offence. Therefore, the objection must be disallowed, although, at first sight, it might seem to possess some force.—Govind Bapli Paul, 11 Bomb., 278.

III. The confession must "affect" the person who has made it and the person against whom it is used.

The true test to apply is whether the confession is of itself sufficient to justify the conviction of the person making it of the offence for which he is jointly tried with the other person or persons against whom it is tendered. The confession must "tár" himself and the person or persons he implicates "with one and the same brush."—Gunraj and others, 1 Leg. Rom., 211.

Before the confession of a person tried jointly with the prisoner can be taken into consideration against him, it must appear that the confession implicates the confessing person substantially to the same extent as it implicates the person against whom it is to be used in the commission of the offence for which the prisoners are being jointly tried. It is this implication by himself by the confessing prisoner which is intended by the Legislature to take the place, as it were, of the sanction of an oath, or rather which is supposed to serve as some guarantee for the truth of the accusation against the other. In this case the prisoners keep themselves out of all complicity in the actual facts which are charged against all the prisoners jointly, and upon which the appellants have been convicted with the others, so that the statements which these men make against the appellants, are simply, so far as the charge upon which they have been convicted is concerned, statements made without either the sanction of an oath, or of that substitute for that sanction already referred to, viz., the implication of themselves on the charge upon which they have been tried with the appellants—in short, without the application of any test of truth whatever.—Belat Ali, 10 B. L. R., 453. Baijoo Chowdhry, 25 W. R., 15.

Statements made by prisoners under trial inculcating others but exculpating themselves, were held not to come within S. 30.—Keshub Bhoonia, 25 W. R., 8: Nur Bux Haji, 1 L. R., 6 Cal., 279.

A confession admissible under S. 30 is evidence both against the prisoner who made it and against another charged jointly with the same offence, but a conviction against the latter if uncorroborated is illegal. A Sessions Judge should direct the Jury to acquit a prisoner against whom there is nothing but the confession of a fellow prisoner.—Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 1 L. R., 4 Cal. 484, FULL BENCH.

The confession of a fellow prisoner which may under S. 30 be taken into consideration stands no higher than the evidence of an accomplice. In addition to the infirmity inherent in an accomplice's testimony it is neither sanctioned by an oath, nor can it be tested, developed or explained by cross-examination. It therefore requires to be corroborated. Corroboration by circumstantial evidence was in the case accepted as sufficient.—Nafa and others 23, W. R., 24.

There was not a particle of evidence against a prisoner, except the confession of a co-prisoner, which by S. 30 of the Evidence Act "may be taken into consideration." S. 30 is an exception, and its wording shows that the confession is merely to be an element in the consideration of the evidence. Unless there is something more, a conviction upon it will still be a case of no evidence and bad in law. The conviction was accordingly quashed.—Mad. II. Ct. Pro., Jan. 24, 1873; 7 Mad., xv, App.; 8 Mad. Jur., 415, ib., 95. Ambigara Hulagu, 1 L. R., 1 Mad., 694: Bhawan, 1 L. R., 1 Ali. 664: Ramchand, ibid. 675.

If the testimony of an accomplice given before a Court under a process of careful examination and capable of being tested by cross-examination is yet by its nature such that it is against the accused, it must be received with caution, still more so must be the confession of a fellow prisoner, which is only the bare statement of an accomplice limited to just so much as the confessing person chooses to say, and guaranteed by nothing except the peril into which it brings the speaker and which it is generally fashioned to lessen.—Sadhu Mundul, 2 L. R., 69, Mohesh Biswas, 19 W. R.: Belat Ali Moonshee, 19 W. R., 67: Budhu Nanku, 1 L. R., 1 Bomb., 475.

A prisoner can be convicted on the confession of a fellow prisoner if it be admissible under S. 30, provided that it is corroborated by other evidence, but how far such corroborative evidence would be sufficient must depend on the circumstances of each case (per Garth, C. J.) but (per Jackson and McDonell, J.J.) no conviction at such confession corroborated by circumstantial evidence can be supported unless the circumstances constituting corroboration would if believed to exist, themselves support a conviction.—Ashootosh Chuckerbutty, 1 L. R., 4 Cal. 484, FULL BENCH.

Where a Sessions Judge in examining the prisoners on the trial, required them to withdraw from the Court until the turn of each to be examined came round, and by this means most of them never had an opportunity of knowing or denying what the others had said, and the Sessions Judge convicted mainly on the statements so obtained, the High Court on appeal, in considering the evidence, placed their statements aside remarking that it is an elementary rule that no one should be condemned in his absence and on evidence taken behind his back.—Chunder Nath Sikdar and others, 8 Cal. L. R., 352; (S. C.) 1 L. R., 7 Cal. 65. Approved and followed 1 L. R., 6 Bomb., 124.

Admissions not conclusive proof, but may estop.

XXXI. Admissions are not conclusive proof of the matters admitted, but they may operate as estoppels under the provisions hereinafter contained.

STATEMENTS BY PERSONS WHO CANNOT BE CALLED AS WITNESSES.

XXXII. Statements, written or verbal, relevant facts made by a person who is dead, or who cannot be found, or who has become incapable of giving evidence, or whose attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circumstances of the case, appears to the Court unreasonable, are themselves relevant facts in the following cases :—

(1.) When the statement is made by a person as to the cause of his death, or as to any of the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death, in cases in which the cause of that person's death comes into question.

When it relates to cause of death ;

Such statements are relevant whether the person who made them was or was not, at the time when they were made, under expectation of death, and whatever may be the nature of the proceeding in which the cause of his death comes into question.

Thus in the case of Bissorunjan Mookerjee, 6 W. R., 75, in which the prisoner was charged with murder and rape, the dying declaration of the woman was received as evidence on the charge of rape. The terms of the law, it will be observed, do not require as heretofore any belief on the part of the deponent that he is in danger of approaching death.

The mere signature of a Magistrate, without proof or solemn affirmation, that a person since deceased actually made a declaration reduced to writing, is not sufficient authentication. It is obviously desirable that the person who took the statement should be subject to examination as to the dying man's state of mind when he made it as well as to other circumstances. The declaration made in the absence of the prisoner, and not authenticated by oral evidence, was rejected.—Fata Adaji, 11 Bomb., 247.

(2.) When the statement was made by such person in the ordinary course of business, and in particular when it consists of any entry or memorandum made by him in books kept in the ordinary course of business, or in the discharge of professional duty ; or of an acknowledgment written or signed by him of the receipt of money, goods, securities or property of any kind ; or of a document used in commerce written or signed by him, or of the date of a letter or other document usually dated, written or signed by him.

or is made in course of business ;

(3.) When the statement is against the pecuniary or proprietary interest of the person making it, or when, if true, it would expose him or would have exposed him to a criminal prosecution or to a suit for damages.

or against interest of maker ;

(4.) When the statement gives the opinion of any such person, as to the existence of any public right or custom or matter of public or general interest, of the existence of which, if it existed, he would have been likely to be aware, and when such statement was made before any controversy as to such right, custom or matter, had arisen.

or gives opinion as to public right or custom, or matters of general interest ;

(5.) When the statement relates to the existence of any relationship between persons as to whose relationship (by blood, marriage, or adoption Act XVIII, 1872, S. 2) the person making the statement had special means of knowledge, and when the statement was made before the question in dispute was raised.

or relates to existence of relationship ;

(6.) When the statement relates to the existence of any relationship (by blood, marriage, or adoption Act XVIII, 1872, S. 2) between persons deceased, and is made in any will or deed relating to the affairs of the family to which any such deceased person belonged, or in any family pedigree, or upon any tombstone, family portrait, or other thing on which such statements are usually made, and when such statement was made before the question in dispute was raised.

or is made in will or deed relating to family affairs; or in document relating to transaction mentioned in section 13, clause (a);

(7.) When the statement is contained in any deed, will or other document which relates to any such transaction as is mentioned in section thirteen, clause (a).

or is made by several persons, and expresses feelings relevant to matter in question.

(8.) When the statement was made by a number of persons, and expressed feelings or impressions on their part relevant to the matter in question.

Cl. 8 refers to a case in which a number of persons collect together to give vent to one common statement, which statement expresses the feelings or impressions made in their minds at the time of making it. It does not mean that a Police officer may go round, collect a great many statements from persons in different places, and afterwards put those statements in second-hand before a Court as evidence which may affect the result of a criminal trial.—Ram Dutt Chowdry, 23 W. R., 35.

To these instances, S. 512 of the Code, was added the following:

If it be proved that an accused person has absconded, and that there is no immediate prospect of arresting him the Court competent to try or commit for trial such person for the offence complained of may, in his absence, examine the witnesses (if any) produced on behalf of the prosecution, and record their depositions. Any such deposition may, on the arrest of such person, be given in evidence against him on the inquiry into or trial for the offence with which he is charged, if the deponent is dead or incapable of giving evidence or his attendance cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable.

The question is, whether A was killed by B under such circumstances that a suit would lie against B by A's widow.

Statements made by A as to the cause of his or her death, referring respectively to the murder, the rape, and the actionable wrong under consideration, are relevant facts.

(b.) The question is as to the date of A's birth.

An entry in the diary of a deceased surgeon, regularly kept in the course of business, stating that, on a given day, he attended A's mother and delivered her of a son, is a relevant fact.

(c.) The question is, whether A was in Calcutta on a given day.

A statement in the diary of a deceased solicitor, regularly kept in the course of business, that on a given day the solicitor attended A at a place mentioned, in Calcutta, for the purpose of conferring with him upon specified business, is a relevant fact.

(d.) The question is, whether a ship sailed from Bombay harbour on a given day.

A letter written by a deceased member of a merchant's firm by which she was chartered, to their correspondents in London to whom the cargo was consigned, stating that the ship sailed on a given day from Bombay harbour, is a relevant fact.

(e.) The question is, whether rent was paid to A for certain land.

A letter from A's deceased agent to A, saying that he had received the rent on A's account and held it at A's orders, is a relevant fact.

(f.) The question is, whether A and B were legally married.

The statement of a deceased clergyman that he married them under such circumstances that the celebration would be a crime, is relevant.

(g.) The question is, whether A, a person who cannot be found, wrote a letter on a certain day. The fact that a letter written by him is dated on that day, is relevant.

(h.) The question is, what was the cause of the wreck of a ship.

A protest made by the Captain, whose attendance cannot be procured, is a relevant fact.

(i.) The question is, whether a given road is a public way.

A statement by A, a deceased headman of the village, that the road was public, is a relevant fact.

(j.) The question is, what was the price of grain on a certain day in a particular market.

A statement of the price, made by a deceased banya in the ordinary course of his business, is a relevant fact.

(k.) The question is, whether A, who is dead, was the father of B.

A statement made by A that B was his son, is a relevant fact.

(l.) The question is, what was the date of the birth of A.

A letter from A's deceased father to a friend, announcing the birth of A on a given day, is a relevant fact.

(m.) The question is, whether, and when, A and B were married.

An entry in a memorandum-book by C, the deceased father of B, of his daughter's marriage with A on a given date, is a relevant fact.

(n.) A sues B for a libel expressed in a painted caricature exposed in a shop window. The question is as to the similarity of the caricature and its libellous character. The remarks of a crowd of spectators on these points may be proved.

person authorized by law to take it, is relevant for the purpose of proving in a subsequent judicial proceeding, or in a later stage of the same judicial proceeding, the truth of the facts which it states, when the witness is dead or cannot be found, or is incapable of giving evidence, or is kept out of the way by the adverse party, or if his presence cannot be obtained without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circumstances of the case, the Court considers unreasonable.

Provided—

that the proceeding was between the same parties or their representatives in interest;

that the adverse party in the first proceeding had the right and opportunity to cross-examine;

that the questions in issue were substantially the same in the first as the second proceeding.

Explanation.—A criminal trial or inquiry shall be deemed to be a proceeding between the prosecutor and the accused within the meaning of this section.

See S. 512 of the Code of Criminal Procedure quoted in the note to the last section. See also Ss. 503, 504 of the Code respecting the issue of commissions for the examination of witnesses in Criminal cases.

S. 33 of the Evidence Acts gives the Courts new powers which require to be exercised with great caution. There is no doubt that it is still necessary (just as much as ever it was) to produce every witness at the trial unless it is proved to be actually impossible, or to be so difficult to do so that it is, under the circumstances, unreasonable to insist on his production. In the present case everything turns on the evidence of an absent witness, and without it the prosecution must fail. The Judge gives no means of judging whether there was any really good reason why the witness was not produced by the prosecution. He simply says "all attempts to find him having failed We are of opinion that when the evidence of an absent witness is admitted under S. 33 of the Evidence Act, the grounds for its admission should be stated fully and clearly so as to enable the Courts to judge of the propriety of its admission. In the present case we think that it was improperly admitted: because there is nothing to show that, by ordinary care, and by the use of the ordinary means, the witnesses could not have been produced We think that, in order to make a deposition admissible under S. 33, there must be evidence that the accused person did in fact have an opportunity of cross-examining him."—Per Macpherson, J., Morris, J., concurring; Mowjan alias Nance Khan, 20 W. R., 69.

The following judgment of the Calcutta High Court (per Phear, J., Morris, J., concurring) discloses another instance of the improper admission of evidence under S. 33 of the Evidence Act:—

"On the record of the Sessions Court, as it has come up to us, we do not find the evidence of witnesses, excepting in the shape of depositions which purport to have been made before the Assistant Commissioner. And we have the following remark of the Judge: 'The officer of the Court reports that neither of the witnesses for the prosecution are present. The accused in this examination admits the facts which have been spoken to by the witnesses in the preliminary inquiry. As, therefore, useless delay and expense would be incurred by postponing this case, and causing the absent witnesses to appear, it is hereby ordered that the depositions taken by the Assistant Commissioner be, under S. 33, Act I of 1872, admitted as evidence in the present case.'

"The Judge does not go so far as to say that he thinks that the presence of the witnesses could not be obtained without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circumstances of the case, the Court considers unreasonable. He confines himself to saying: 'As, therefore, useless delay and expense would be incurred by postponing this case, and causing the absent witnesses to appear, it is hereby ordered.' Now, it might very well be that, in the view which the Judge had taken of the case, 'the delay and expense' of postponing the trial in order that the absent witnesses might be able to appear was a 'useless delay and expense.' But it does not follow that the delay and expense of bringing the witnesses was, under all the circumstances of the case, unreasonable. The delay could hardly, in a matter of this kind, where the charge against prisoner was that of having committed murder—the delay of an adjournment to the next Sessions—could not in itself very well be considered unreasonable for the purpose of enabling the case to be duly tried on voir dire testimony. And the expense of bringing the witnesses of the prosecution, and any other expense that might be attendant upon this delay, could hardly of itself, under the circumstances disclosed to us, be considered unreasonable, unless it is so in almost every case which is tried. The prisoner certainly had a right to expect that the witnesses should be brought to give their testimony voir dire before the Sessions Court, and any expense or delay that might be necessary for that purpose must, in the absence of special facts, be taken as reasonable rather than unreasonable. This is not a case in which any special difficulty seems to have occurred in the way of procuring the witnesses, for nothing of a special nature is hinted at by the Judge which should stand in the way of postponement of the trial. And this being so, we think that the condition was not satisfied under which, in pursuance of the provisions of S. 33, the Judge had discretion to take the depositions of witnesses instead of and in the place of the oral testimony of the witnesses themselves. The result is, in our opinion, that there was no evidence rightly before the Court at the Sessions trial, except the statement which the prisoner himself made to the Court."—Lakhan Santal, March 26, 1874.

It should be recollected, as pointed out in the case of Soojan Beebee (21 W. R., 414; (S. C.) 44 B. L. R., 3 App.) that S. 33 does not apply to statements previously made by parties to a suit who are not afterwards witnesses. Such statements can be used adversely to such persons as admissions unless they can show that the facts on the former answer were different from what they stated them to be, and that the deposition was false, and it would require strong evidence to prove that what the parties had deliberately asserted was altogether untrue, they alleging the facts to be different in order to keep the property which they were in possession of.

Where evidence had been legally taken by the British consul at Zanzibar who could not, however, enforce the attendance of the witnesses at the trial in Bombay, the depositions of the absent witnesses were received as evidence.—Empress v. Dosaji Gholam Hosein, I. L. R., 3 Bomb., 334.

But where the former statement had been made coram non judice it is not admissible.—Rana Reddi, I. L. R., 3 Mad., 48.

When a witness had been examined in the inquiry before the Magistrate and after the commitment of the accused on a charge of grievous hurt, the injured person died and additional charges of murder and culpable homicide were added, the evidence of the injured man who had died and of another witness who had absconded were rightly received in the Sessions Court. The text is whether the same evidence is applicable though different consequences might follow from the same act.—Rochia Mahato, I. L. R., 7 Cal., 42.

The incapacity to attend need not be a permanent incapacity, but may be something short of it. The fact that a witness was ill and confined to his house is not sufficient. Precise evidence as to the nature of the illness and the incapacity of the witness to attend should be forthcoming. In re Asgur Hosein and others, 8 Cal. L. R., 124, (S. C.) I. L. R., 6 Cal., 774.

But see contra Piyaroe Lall and others, 4 Cal. L. R., 504.

The incapacity to attend denotes an incapacity of a permanent not a temporary kind: and when a person is proved to be incapable of attending, the Court has no discretion in receiving his deposition. But when the absence of a witness is casual or due to a temporary cause, the Court has such a discretion "if his presence cannot be obtained without an amount of delay or expense which under the circumstances the Court considers unreasonable." In this case it was stated by the medical officer that the witness was suffering from small-pox and consequently was not in a position to attend Court and give evidence, but would probably be able to attend in a week or so. The High Court on appeal rejected the deposition of the absent witness taken at the inquiry as inadmissible.—Piyaree Lall and others, 4 Cal. L. R., 504.

A dying declaration made to a Magistrate but not in the presence of the accused person is not legal evidence unless the Magistrate be examined and use that statement to refresh his memory.—Samiruddin, 10 Cal. L. R., 11.

It is only in extreme cases of delay or expense that the powers given by S. 33 should be exercised.—Mulla, 1 Leg. Rem., 220.

Relevancy of statements in maps, charts and plans.

XXXVII. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the existence of any fact of a public nature, any statement of it, made in a recital contained in any Act of Parliament, or in any Act of the Governor-General of India in Council, or of the Governors in Council of Madras or Bombay, or of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of Bengal, or in a notification of the Government appearing in the Gazette of India, or in the Gazette of any Local Government, or in any printed paper purporting to be the London Gazette or the Government Gazette of any colony or possession of the Queen, is a relevant fact.

Relevancy of statement as to fact of public nature, contained in certain Acts or notifications.

XXXVIII. When the Court has to form an opinion as to a law of any country, any statement of such law contained in a book purporting to be printed or published under the authority of the Government of such country and to contain any such law, and any report of a ruling of the Courts of such country contained in a book purporting to be a report of such rulings, is relevant.

Relevancy of statements as to any law contained in law-books.

HOW MUCH OF A STATEMENT IS TO BE PROVED.

longer statement, or of a conversation or part of an isolated document, or is contained in a document which forms part of a book, or of a connected series of letters or papers, evidence shall be given of so much and no more of the statement, conversation, document, book, or series of letters or papers as the Court considers necessary in that particular case to the full understanding of the nature and effect of the statement, and of the circumstances under which it was made.

JUDGMENTS OF COURTS OF JUSTICE, WHEN RELEVANT.

XL. The existence of any judgment, order or decree which by law prevents any Court from taking cognizance of a suit or holding a trial, is a relevant fact when the question is whether such Court ought to take cognizance of such suit, or to hold such trial.

Previous judgments relevant to bar a second suit or trial.

XLI. A final judgment, order or decree of a competent Court, in the exercise of probate, matrimonial, admiralty or insolvency jurisdiction, which confers upon or takes away from any person any legal character, or which declares any person to be entitled to any such character, or to be entitled to any specific thing, not as against any specified person but absolutely, is relevant when the existence of any such legal character, or the title of any such person to any such thing, is relevant.

Relevancy of certain judgments in probate, &c., jurisdiction.

Such judgment, order or decree is conclusive proof that any legal character which it confers accrued at the time when such judgment, order or decree came into operation ; that any legal character, to which it declares any such person to be entitled, accrued to that person at the time when such judgment (*order or decree) declares it to have accrued to that person ; that any legal character which it takes away from any such person ceased at the time from which such judgment (*order or decree) declared that it had ceased or should cease ;

and that any thing to which it declares any person to be so entitled was the property of that person at the time from which such judgment (*order or decree) declares that it had been or should be his property.

XLII. Judgments, orders or decrees other than those mentioned in section forty one, are relevant if they relate to matters of a public nature relevant to the inquiry ; but such judgments, orders or decrees, are not conclusive proof of that which they state.

Relevancy and effect of judgments, orders or decrees other than those mentioned in section 41.

Illustration.

A sues B for trespass on his land. B alleges the existence of a public right of way over the land, which A denies.

The existence of a decree in favour of the defendant, in a suit by A against C for a trespass on the same land, in which C alleged the existence of the same right of way, is relevant, but it is not conclusive proof that the right of way exists.

XLIII. Judgments, orders or decrees, other than those mentioned in sections forty, forty-one, and forty-two, are irrelevant unless the existence of such judgment, order or decree is a fact in issue or is relevant under some other provision of this Act.

Judgments, &c., other than those mentioned in sections 40—42, when relevant.

* Added by Act XVIII, 1872, S. 3.

Illustrations.

• (a) A and B separately sue C for a libel which reflects upon each of them. C in each case says, that the matter alleged to be libellous is true, and the circumstances are such that it is probably true in each case, or in neither.

A obtains a decree against C for damages on the ground that C failed to make out his justification. The fact is irrelevant as between B and C.

(b.) A prosecutes B for adultery with C, A's wife.

B denies that C is A's wife, but the Court convicts B of adultery.

Afterwards C is prosecuted for bigamy in marrying B during A's lifetime. C says that she never was A's wife.

The judgment against B is irrelevant as against C.

(c.) A prosecutes B for stealing a cow from him. B is convicted.

A afterwards sues C for the cow, which B had sold to him before his conviction. As between A and C, the judgment against B is irrelevant.

(d.) A has obtained a decree for the possession of land against B. C, B's son, murders A in consequence.

The existence of the judgment is relevant, as showing motive for a crime.

It has been held under the terms of S. 13 that though decrees to which one of the parties was no party were no evidence under Ss. 40, 41, 42, still they were admissible under S. 13 as a transaction not as conclusive but to receive such weight as the Court might think that they ought to receive. In S. 13 there is not the limit that the suit must be between the same parties. Of course, the value of the decree will be very different when it is given in a suit to which the person against whom it is used was not a party and had not an opportunity of contesting the matter, and where he was a party to the suit and had the opportunity of producing any evidence he might think fit. Unless the Indian Evidence Act has excluded judgments and decrees which had previously been always considered as very good evidence, and which are indeed in many cases almost, if not quite, conclusive, it is clear that the decisions referred to were admissible in this case, and that the Subordinate Judge was wrong in treating them as not being evidence of the plaintiff's title. They ought to have been considered.—Per Couch, C.J., and Ainslie, J.; Neamut Ali, 22 W. R., 365.

XLIV. Any party to a suit or other proceeding may show that any judgment, Fraud or collusion in obtaining judgment or incompetency of Court, may be proved.

order or decree which is relevant under section forty, forty-one, or forty-two, and which has been proved by the adverse party, was delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it, or was obtained by fraud or collusion.

OPINIONS OF THIRD PERSONS WHEN RELEVANT.

XLV. When the Court has to form an opinion upon a point of foreign law, Opinion of experts.

or of science or art, or as to identity of handwriting, the opinions upon that point of persons specially skilled in such foreign law, science or art, (or in question as to identity of handwriting—Act XVIII, 1872, S. 4) are relevant facts.

Such persons are called experts.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is, whether the death of A was caused by poison.

The opinions of experts as to the symptoms produced by the poison by which A is supposed to have died are relevant.

(b.) The question is, whether A, at the time of doing a certain act, was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act, or that he was doing what was either wrong or contrary to law.

The opinions of experts upon the question whether the symptoms exhibited by A commonly show unsoundness of mind, and whether such unsoundness of mind usually renders persons incapable of knowing the nature of the acts which they do, or of knowing that what they do is either wrong or contrary to law, are relevant.

(c.) The question is, whether a certain document was written by A. Another document is produced which is proved or admitted to have been written by A.

The opinions of experts on the question whether the two documents were written by the same person or by different persons are relevant.

Facts bearing upon opinions of experts.

XLVI. Facts, not otherwise relevant, are relevant if they support or are inconsistent with the opinions of experts, when such opinions are relevant.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is, whether A was poisoned by a certain poison.

The fact that other persons, who were poisoned by that poison, exhibited certain symptoms which experts affirm or deny to be the symptoms of that poison, is relevant.

(b.) The question is, whether an obstruction to a harbour is caused by a certain sea wall.

The fact that other harbours similarly situated in other respects, but where there were no such sea-walls, began to be obstructed at about the same time, is relevant.

XLVII. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the person by whom Opinion as to handwriting, when relevant.

any document was written or signed, the opinion of any person acquainted with the handwriting of the person by whom it is supposed to be written or signed that it was or was not written or signed by that person is a relevant fact.

Explanation.—A person is said to be acquainted with the handwriting of another person when he has seen that person write, or when he has received documents purporting to be written by that person in answer to documents written by himself or under his authority and addressed to that person, or when, in the ordinary course of business, documents purporting to be written by that person have been habitually submitted to him.

Illustration.

The question is, whether a given letter is in the handwriting of A, a merchant in London.

B is a merchant in Calcutta, who has written letters addressed to A and received letters purporting to be written by him. C is B's clerk, whose duty it was to examine and file B's correspondence. D is B's broker, to whom C habitually submitted the letters purporting to be written by A for the purpose of advising with him thereon.

The opinions of B, C, and D on the question whether the letter is in the handwriting of A are relevant, though neither B, C, nor D ever saw A write.

XLVIII. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the existence of any Opinion as to existence of right or custom, when relevant.

general custom or right, the opinions, as to the existence of such custom or right, of persons who would be likely to know of its existence if it existed, are relevant.

Explanation.—The expression 'general custom or right' includes customs or rights common to any considerable class of persons.

Illustration.

The right of the villagers of a particular village to use the water of a particular well is a general right within the meaning of this section.

XLIX.—When the Court has to form an opinion as to—the usages and tenets of any body of men or family, the constitution and government of any religious or charitable foundation, or the meaning of words or terms used in particular districts or by particular classes of people, the opinions of persons having special means of knowledge thereon are relevant facts.

to another, the opinion, expressed by conduct, as to the existence of such relationship, of any person who, as a member of the family or otherwise, has special means of knowledge on the subject, as a relevant fact: Provided that such opinion shall not be sufficient to prove a marriage in proceedings under the Indian Divorce Act, or in prosecutions under section four hundred and ninety-four, four hundred and ninety-five, four hundred and ninety-seven, or four hundred and ninety-eight of the Indian Penal Code.

Illustrations.

(a.) The question is, whether A and B were married.

The fact that they were usually received and treated by their friends as husband and wife is relevant.

(b.) The question is, whether A was the legitimate son of B. The fact that A was always treated as such by members of the family is relevant Grounds of opinion when relevant.

LI. Whenever the opinion of any living person is relevant, the grounds on which such opinion is based are also relevant.

Illustration.

CHARACTER WHEN RELEVANT.

In civil cases character to prove conduct imputed, irrelevant.

In so far as such character

LII. In civil cases, the fact that the character of any person concerned is such as to render probable or improbable any conduct imputed to him is irrelevant, except it appears from facts otherwise relevant.

In criminal cases, previous good character relevant.

LIV. In criminal proceedings, previous conviction relevant, but not previous bad character, except in reply.

LIII. In criminal proceedings, the fact that the person accused is of a good character is relevant.

previously convicted of any offence is relevant; but the fact that he has a bad character is irrelevant, unless evidence has been given that he has a good character, in which case it becomes relevant.

Explanation.—This section does not apply to cases in which the bad character of any person is itself a fact in issue.

Where the complainant claimed certain property found with the prisoner as his own and as having been stolen from him and the prisoner stated that it belonged to him, the Sessions Judge was held to have misdirected the Jury in stating “the fact that the prisoner has been twice imprisoned is not without its weight and should be taken into consideration by you when deciding on the reliability of the evidence of identification.” That was treating the previous conviction as evidence of character which was irrelevant and inadmissible.—Rocha Dosad and others, 6 Cal L. R., 219; (S. C.) I. L. R., 5 Cal., 768.

See S 511 of the Code regarding the manner of proving a previous conviction.

The Explanation to S. 54 evidently refers to proceedings under Chapter VIII, Ss 109 et seq. of the Code, under the European Vagrancy Act 1874 or under the Habitual Criminal.

Character as affecting damages.

LV. In civil cases, the fact that the character of any person is such as to affect the amount of damages which he ought to receive is relevant.

Explanation.—In sections fifty-two, fifty-three, fifty-four, and fifty-five, the word ‘character’ includes both reputation and disposition; but evidence may be given only of general reputation and general disposition, and not of particular acts by which reputation or disposition were shown.

PART II. ON PROOF.

CHAPTER III.—FACTS WHICH NEED NOT BE PROVED.

Fact judicially noticeable need not be proved.

LVI. No fact of which the Court will take judicial notice need be proved.

Facts of which Court must take judicial notice.

LVII. The Court shall take judicial notice of the following facts :—

(1) All laws or rules having the force of law now or heretofore in force, or hereafter to be in force, in any part of British India :

(2) All public Acts passed or hereafter to be passed by Parliament, and all local and personal Acts directed by Parliament to be judicially noticed :

(3) Articles of War for Her Majesty's Army or Navy :

(4) The course of proceeding of Parliament and of the Councils for the purposes of making Laws and Regulations established under the Indian Councils' Act, or any other law for the time being relating thereto :

Explanation.—The word 'Parliament' in clauses (two) and (four) includes—

1. The Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland ;

2. The Parliament of Great Britain ;

3. The Parliament of England ;

4. The Parliament of Scotland ; and

5. The Parliament of Ireland :

(5) The accession and the sign manual of the Sovereign for the time being of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland :

(6) All seals of which English Courts take judicial notice : the seals of all the Courts of British India, and of all Courts out of British India, established by the authority of the Governor-General or any Local Government in Council : the seals of Courts of Admiralty and Maritime Jurisdiction and of Notaries Public, and all seals which any person is authorized to use by any Act of Parliament or other Act or Regulation having the force of law in British India :

(7) The accession to office, names, titles, functions, and signatures of the persons filling for the time being any public office in any part of British India, if the fact of their appointment to such office is notified in the Gazette of India, or in the official Gazette of any Local Government :

(8) The existence, title, and national flag of every State or Sovereign recognized by the British Crown :

(9) The divisions of time, the geographical divisions of the world, and public festivals, fasts and holidays notified in the official Gazette :

(10) The territories under the dominion of the British Crown :

(11) The commencement, continuance, and termination of hostilities between the British Crown and any other State or body of persons :

(12) The names of the members and officers of the Court, and of their deputies and subordinate officers and assistants, and also of all officers acting in execution of its process, and of all advocates, attorneys, proctors, vakils, pleaders, and other persons authorized by law to appear or act before it :

(13.) The rule of the road (on land or at sea, Act XVIII, 1872, S. 5.)

In all these cases, and also on all matters of public history, literature, science or art, the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books or documents of reference.

If the Court is called upon by any person to take judicial notice of any fact, it may refuse to do so, unless and until such person produces any such book or document as it may consider necessary to enable it to do so.

• LVIII. No fact need be proved in any proceeding which the parties thereto or their agents agree to admit at the hearing, or which, before the hearing, they agree to admit by any writing under their hands, or which by any rule of pleading in force at the time they are deemed to have admitted by their pleadings: Provided that the Court may, in its discretion, require the facts admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admissions.

CHAPTER IV.—OF ORAL EVIDENCE.

Proof of facts by oral evidence. LIX. All facts, except the contents of documents, may be proved by oral evidence.

Oral evidence must be direct. LX. Oral evidence must, in all cases whatever, be direct; that is to say—

If it refers to a fact which could be seen, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he saw it;

If it refers to a fact which could be heard, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he heard it;

If it refers to a fact which could be perceived by any other sense or in any other manner, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he perceived it by that sense or in that manner;

If it refers to an opinion or to the grounds on which that opinion is held, it must be the evidence of the person who holds that opinion on those grounds:

Provided that the opinions of experts expressed in any treatise commonly offered for sale, and the grounds on which such opinions are held, may be proved by the production of such treatises if the author is dead or cannot be found, or has become incapable of giving evidence, or cannot be called as a witness without an amount of delay or expense which the Court regards as unreasonable:

Provided also that, if oral evidence refers to the existence or condition of any material thing other than a document, the Court may, if it thinks fit, require the production of such material thing for its inspection.

For the meaning of the term “expert,” see S. 45.

CHAPTER V.—OF DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

Proof of contents of documents. LXI. The contents of documents may be proved either by primary or by secondary evidence.

Primary evidence. LXII. Primary evidence means the document itself produced for the inspection of the Court.

Explanation 1.—Where a document is executed in several parts, each part is primary evidence of the document.

Where a document is executed in counterpart, each counterpart being executed by one or some of the parties only, each counterpart is primary evidence as against the parties executing it.

Explanation 2.—Where a number of documents are all made by one uniform process as in the case of printing, lithography, or photography, each is primary evidence of the contents of the rest; but where they are all copies of a common original, they are not primary evidence of the contents of the original.

Illustration.

A person is shown to have been in possession of a number of placards, all printed at one time from one original. Any one of the placards is primary evidence of the contents of any other, but no one of them is primary evidence of the contents of the original.

Secondary evidence.

LXIII. Secondary evidence means and includes—

- (1) Certified copies given under the provisions hereinafter contained ;
- (2) Copies made from the original by mechanical processes which in themselves insure the accuracy of the copy, and copies compared with such copies ;
- (3) Copies made from or compared with the original ;
- (4) Counterparts of documents as against the parties who did not execute them ;
- (5) Oral accounts of the contents of a document given by some person who has himself seen it.

Illustrations.

(a.) A photograph of an original is secondary evidence of its contents, though the two have not been compared, if it is proved that the thing photographed was the original.

(b.) A copy compared with a copy of a letter made by a copying machine is secondary evidence of the contents of the letter, if it is shown that the copy made by the copying machine was made from the original.

(c.) A copy transcribed from a copy, but afterwards compared with the original, is secondary evidence ; but the copy not so compared is not secondary evidence of the original, although the copy from which it was transcribed was compared with the original.

(d.) Neither an oral account of a copy compared with the original, nor an oral account of a photograph or machine-copy of the original, is secondary evidence of the original.

Copies inadmissible under the Evidence Act having been rejected, it was competent to the Court, as a matter of discretion, to refuse to accept the originals when tendered in a later stage of the suit.—Per L. S. Jackson and McDonell, JJ., Harechur Mozoondar, 22 W. R. , 355.

Proof of documents by primary evidence.

LXIV. Documents must be proved by primary evidence except in the cases hereinafter mentioned.

Cases in which secondary evidence relating to existence, condition, or contents of the documents may be given.

LXV. Secondary evidence may be given of the following cases :—

- (a.) When the original is shown or appears to be in the possession or power of the person against whom the document is sought to be proved, or of any person out of reach of, or not subject to, the process of Court, or of any person legally bound to produce it, and when, after the notice mentioned in section sixty-six, such person does not produce it ;

(b.) When the existence, condition or contents of the original have been proved to be admitted in writing by the person against whom it is proved or by his representative in interest ;

(c.) When the original has been destroyed or lost, or when the party offering evidence of its contents cannot, for any other reason not arising from his own default or neglect, produce it in reasonable time ;

(d.) When the original is of such a nature as not to be easily moveable ;

(e.) When the original is a public document within the meaning of section seventy-four ;

(f.) When the original is a document of which a certified copy is permitted by this Act, or by any other law in force in British India, to be given in evidence ;

(g.) When the originals consist of numerous accounts or other documents which cannot conveniently be examined in Court, and the fact to be proved is the general result of the whole collection.

In cases (a), (c), and (d), any secondary evidence of the contents of the document is admissible.

In case (b), the written admission is admissible.

In case (e), or (f), a certified copy of the document, but no other kind of secondary evidence, is admissible.

In case (g), evidence may be given as to the general result of the document by any person who has examined them, and who is skilled in the examination of such documents.

LXVI. Secondary evidence of the contents of the document referred to in section sixty-five, clause (a), shall not be given unless the party proposing to give such secondary evidence has previously given to the party in whose possession or power the document is (or to his attorney or pleader Act XVIII, 1872, S. 6) such notice to produce it as is prescribed by law, and if no notice is prescribed by law then such notice as the Court considers reasonable under the circumstances of the case :

Rules as to notice to produce. party proposing to give such secondary evidence has previously given to the party in whose possession or power the document is (or to his attorney or pleader Act XVIII, 1872, S. 6) such notice to produce it as is prescribed by law, and if no notice is prescribed by law then such notice as the Court considers reasonable under the circumstances of the case :

Provided that such notice shall not be required in order to render secondary evidence admissible in any of the following cases, or in any other case in which the Court thinks fit to dispense with it :—

(1.) When the document to be proved is itself a notice ;

(2.) When, from the nature of the case, the adverse party must know that he will be required to produce it ;

(3.) When it appears or is proved that the adverse party has obtained possession of the original by fraud or force ;

(4.) When the adverse party or his agent has the original in Court ;

(5.) When the adverse party or his agent has admitted the loss of the document ;

(6.) When the person in possession of the document is out of reach of, or not subject to, the process of the Court.

LXVII. If a document is alleged to be signed or to have been written wholly or in part by any person, the signature or the handwriting of so much of the document as is alleged to be in that person's handwriting must be proved to be in his handwriting.

Proof of signature and handwriting of person alleged to have signed or written document produced.

The law does not render it necessary that direct evidence of the handwriting of the person, who is alleged to have executed a deed, must be given by some person who saw the signature affixed. It is left to the discretion of the Judge to determine what satisfies him that the document is genuine.—Per Markby and Burch, J.J., Neelkanto Pandit, 13 B. L. R., 18, App.

as evidence until one attesting witness at least has been called for the purpose of proving its execution, if there be an attesting witness alive, and subject to the process of the Court and capable of giving evidence.

LXIX. If no such attesting witness can be found, or if the document purports to have been executed in the United Kingdom, it must be proved that the attestation of one attesting witness at least is in his handwriting, and that the signature of the person executing the document is in the handwriting of that person.

Admission of execution by party to attested document.

LXX. The admission of a party to an attested document of its execution by himself shall be sufficient proof of its execution as against him, though it be a document required by law to be attested.

Proof when attesting witness denies the execution.

LXXI. If the attesting witness denies or does not recollect the execution of the document, its execution may be proved by other evidence.

Proof of document not required by law to be attested.

LXXII. An attested document not required by law to be attested may be proved as if it was unattested.

LXXIII. In order is to be proved, although that signature, writing, or seal has not been produced or proved for any other purpose.

The Court may direct any person present in Court to write any words or figures for the purpose of enabling the Court to compare the words or figures so written with any words or figures alleged to have been written by such person.

PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.

Public documents.

LXXIV. The following documents are public documents:—

(1.) Documents forming the acts, or records of the acts—

- (i) of the sovereign authority,
- (ii) of official bodies and tribunals, and

(iii) of public officers, legislative, judicial and executive, whether of British India or of any other part of Her Majesty's dominions, or of a foreign country.

(2.) Public records kept in British India of private documents.

Private documents.

LXXV. All other documents are private.

LXXVI. Every public officer having the custody of a public document, which any person has a right to inspect, shall give that person on demand a copy of it on payment of the legal fees therefor, together with a certificate written at the foot of such copy that it is a true copy of such document or part thereof, as the case may be, and such certificate shall be dated and subscribed by such officer with his name and his official title, and shall be sealed, whenever such officer is authorized by law to make use of a seal; and such copies so certified shall be called certified copies.

Explanation.—Any officer who, by the ordinary course of official duty, is authorized to deliver such copies, shall be deemed to have the custody of such documents within the meaning of this section.

Proof of documents by production of certified copies.

LXXVII. Such certified copies may be produced in proof of the contents of the public documents or parts of the public documents of which they purport to be copies.

Proof of other official documents.

LXXVIII. The following public documents may be proved as follows:—

(1.) Acts, orders or notifications of the Executive Government of British India in any of its departments, or of any Local Government or any department of any Local Government, by the records of the departments, certified by the heads of those departments respectively, or by any document purporting to be printed by order of any such Government:

(2.) The proceedings of the Legislatures, by the journals of those bodies respectively, or by published Acts or abstracts, or by copies purporting to be printed by order of Government:

(3.) Proclamations, orders or Regulations issued by Her Majesty or by the Privy Council, or by any department of Her Majesty's Government, by copies or extracts contained in the London Gazette, or purporting to be printed by the Queen's Printer :

• (4.) The acts of the Executive or the proceedings of the Legislature of a foreign country, by journals published by their authority, or commonly received in that country as such, or by a copy certified under the seal of the country or sovereign, or by recognition thereof in some public Act of the Governor-General of India in Council :

(5.) The proceedings of a municipal body in British India, by a copy of such proceedings, certified by the legal keeper thereof, or by a printed book purporting to be published by the authority of such body :

(6.) Public documents of any other class in a foreign country, by the original, or by a copy certified by the legal keeper thereof, with a certificate under the seal of a Notary Public, or of a British Consul or diplomatic agent, that the copy is duly certified by the officer having the legal custody of the original, and upon proof of the character of the document according to the law of the foreign country.

PRESUMPTIONS AS TO DOCUMENTS.

LXXIX. The Court shall presume every document purporting to be a certificate, certified copy, or other document, which is by law declared to be admissible as evidence of any particular fact, and which purports to be duly certified by any officer in British India, or by any officer in any Native State in alliance with Her Majesty, who is duly authorized thereto by the Governor-General in Council, to be genuine : Provided that such document is substantially in the form and purports to be executed in the manner directed by law in that behalf.

The Court shall also presume that any officer, by whom any such document purports to be signed or certified, held, when he signed it, the official character which he claims in such paper.

LXXX. Whenever any document is produced before any Court, purporting Presumption as to documents produced as record of evidence.

to be a record or memorandum of the evidence, or of any part of the evidence, given by a witness in a judicial proceeding or before any officer authorized by law to take such evidence, or to be a statement or confession by any prisoner or accused person, taken in accordance with law, and purporting to be signed by any Judge or Magistrate, or by any such officer as aforesaid, the Court shall presume—that the document is genuine ; that any statements as to the circumstances under which it was taken, purporting to be made by the person signing it, are true, and that such evidence, statement or confession was duly taken.

Ss. 353 et seq. of the Code of Criminal Procedure provide for the taking of evidence in criminal cases. Ss. 164, 364 of the same Code provide for the recording of statements or confessions made to a Magistrate.

LXXXI. The Court shall presume the genuineness of every document purporting to be the London Gazette, or the Gazette of India, or the Government Gazette of any Local Government, or of any colony, dependency or possession of the British Crown, or to be a newspaper or journal, or to be a copy of a private Act of Parliament printed by the Queen's Printer, and of every document purporting to be a document directed by any law to be kept by any person, if such document is kept substantially in the form required by law and is produced from proper custody.

Presumption as to Gazettes, newspapers, private Acts of Parliament and other documents.

See explanation to S. 90, post.

LXXXII. When any document is produced before any Court, purporting to Presumption as to document admissible in England without proof of seal or signature.

be a document which, by the law in force for the time being in England or Ireland, would be admissible in proof of any particular in any Court of Justice in England or Ireland without proof of the seal or stamp or signature authenticating it, or of the judicial or official character claimed by the person by whom it purports to be signed, the Court shall presume that such seal, stamp or signature is genuine, and that the person signing it held, at the time when he signed it, the judicial or official character which he claims, and the document shall be admissible for the same purpose for which it would be admissible in England or Ireland

LXXXIV. The Court shall presume the genuineness of every book purporting to be printed or published under the authority of the Government of any country, and to contain any of the laws of that country, and of every book purporting to contain reports of decisions of the Courts of such country.

LXXXV. The Court shall presume that every document purporting to be a power-of-attorney, and to have been executed before, and authenticated by, a Notary Public, or any Court, Judge, Magistrate, British Consul or Vice-Consul, or representative of Her Majesty or of the Government of India, was so executed and authenticated.

LXXXVI. The Court may presume that any document purporting to be a Presumption as to certified copies of foreign judicial records.

certified copy of any judicial record of any country not forming part of Her Majesty's dominions is genuine and accurate, if the document purports to be certified in any manner which is certified by any representative of Her Majesty or of the Government of India resident in such country to be the manner commonly in use in that country for the certification of copies of judicial records.

LXXXVII. The Court may presume that any book to which it may refer for information on matters of public or general interest, and that any published map or chart, the statements of which are relevant facts, and which is produced for its inspection, was written and published by the person, and at the time and place, by whom or at which it purports to have been written or published.

LXXXVIII. The Court may presume that a message, forwarded from a telegraph office to the person to whom such message purports to be addressed, corresponds with a message delivered for transmission at the office from which the message purports to be sent; but the Court shall not make any presumption as to the person by whom such message was delivered for transmission.

LXXXIX. The Court shall presume that every document called for and not produced after notice to produce, was attested, stamped and executed in the manner required by law.

XC. Where any document, purporting or proved to be thirty years old, is produced from any custody which the Court in the particular case considers proper, the Court may presume that the signature and every other part of such document, which purports to be in the handwriting of any particular person is in that person's handwriting, and, in the case of a document executed or attested, that it was duly executed and attested by the persons by whom it purports to be executed and attested.

Explanation.—Documents are said to be in proper custody if they are in the place in which, and under the care of the person with whom, they would naturally be; but no custody is improper if it is proved to have had a legitimate origin, or if the circumstances of the particular case are such as to render such an origin probable.

The explanation applies also to section eighty-one.

Illustrations.

(a.) A has been in possession of landed property for a long time. He produces from his custody deeds relating to the land showing his titles to it. The custody is proper.

(b.) A produces deeds relating to landed property of which he is the mortgagee. The mortgage is in possession. The custody is proper.

(c.) A, a connection of B, produces deeds relating to lands in B's possession, which were deposited with him by B for safe custody. The custody is proper.

CHAPTER VI.—OF THE EXCLUSION OF ORAL BY DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

XCI. When the terms of a contract, or of a grant, or of any other disposition of property have been reduced to the form of a document, and in all cases in which any matter is required by law to be reduced to the form of a document, no evidence shall be given in proof of the terms of such contract, grant or other disposition of property, or of such matter, except the document itself, or secondary evidence of its contents in cases in which secondary evidence is admissible under the provisions hereinbefore contained.

Exception 1.—When a public officer is required by law to be appointed in writing, and when it is shown that any particular person has acted as such officer, the writing by which he is appointed need not be proved.

Exception 2.—Wills under the Indian Succession Act may be proved by the probate.

[For the words in italics, Act XVIII, 1872, s. 7, has substituted "admitted to probate in British India."]

Explanation 1.—This section applies equally to cases in which the contracts, grants or dispositions of property referred to are contained in one document, and to cases in which they are contained in more documents than one.

Explanation 2.—Where there are more originals than one, one original only need be proved.

Explanation 3.—The statement, in any document whatever, of a fact other than the facts referred to in this section, shall not preclude the admission of oral evidence as to the same fact.

Illustrations

(a.) If a contract be contained in several letters, all the letters in which it is contained must be proved.

(b.) If a contract is contained in a bill of exchange, the bill of exchange must be proved.

(c.) If a bill of exchange is drawn in a set of three, one only need be proved.

(d.) A contracts, in writing, with B, for the delivery of indigo upon certain terms. The contract mentions the fact that B had paid A the price of other indigo contracted for verbally on another occasion.

Oral evidence is offered that no payment was made for the other indigo. The evidence is admissible.

(e.) A gives B a receipt for money paid by B.

Oral evidence is offered of the payment.

The evidence is admissible.

Any omission in the records of a confession or other statement of an accused person made by a Magistrate may be supplied by evidence notwithstanding S. 91 of the Evidence Act, provided that the error has not injured the accused as to his defence on the merits. S. 533, Code of Criminal Procedure.

XVII. When the terms of any such contract, grant or other disposition of property, or any matter required by law to be reduced to the form of a document, have been proved according to the last section, no evidence of any oral agreement or statement shall be admitted, as between the parties to any such instrument or their representatives in interest, for the purpose of contradicting, varying, adding to, or subtracting from, its terms.

Proviso 1.—Any fact may be proved which would invalidate any document, or which would entitle any person to any decree or order relating thereto; such as fraud, intimidation, illegality, want of due execution, want of capacity in any contracting party, want or failure of consideration, or mistake in fact or law.

Proviso 2.—The existence of any separate oral agreement as to any matter on which a document is silent, and which is not inconsistent with its terms, may be proved. In considering whether or not this proviso applies, the Court shall have regard to the degree of formality of the document.

Proviso 3.—The existence of any separate oral agreement, constituting a condition precedent to the attaching of any obligation under any such contract, grant or disposition of property, may be proved.

Proviso 4.—The existence of any distinct subsequent oral agreement to rescind or modify any such contract, grant or disposition of property may be proved, except in cases in which such contract, grant or disposition of property is by law required to be in writing, or has been registered according to the law in force for the time being as to the registration of documents.

Proviso 5.—Any usage or custom by which incidents not expressly mentioned in any contract are usually annexed to contracts of that description may be proved: Provided that the annexing of such incident would not be repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the express terms of the contract.

Proviso 6.—Any fact may be proved which shows in what manner the language of a document is related to existing facts.

Illustrations.

(a.) A policy of insurance is effected on goods "in ships from Calcutta to London." The goods are shipped in a particular ship, which is lost. The fact that that particular ship was orally excepted from the policy cannot be proved.

(b.) A agrees absolutely in writing to pay B Rs. 1,000 on the first March 1873. The fact that, at the same time, an oral agreement was made that the money should not be paid till the thirty-first March cannot be proved.

(c.) An estate called 'the Rampur tea estate' is sold by a deed which contains a map of the property sold. The fact that land not included in the map had always been regarded as part of the estate and was meant to pass by the deed cannot be proved.

(d.) A enters into a written contract with B to work certain mines, the property of B, upon certain terms. A was induced to do so by a misrepresentation of B's as to their value. This fact may be proved.

(e.) A institutes a suit against B for the specific performance of a contract, and also prays that the contract may be reformed as to one of its provisions, as that provision was inserted in it by mistake. A may prove that such a mistake was made as would by law entitle him to have the contract reformed.

(f.) A orders goods of B by a letter, in which nothing is said as to the time of payment, and accepts the goods on delivery. B sues A for the price. A may show that the goods were supplied on credit for a term still unexpired.

(g.) A sells B a horse and verbally warrants him sound. A gives B a paper in these words :—‘Bought of A horse for Rs. 500.’ B may prove the verbal warranty.

(h.) A hires lodgings of B, and gives B a card on which is written—‘Rooms, Rs. 200 a month. A may prove a verbal agreement that these terms were to include partial board.

A hires lodgings of B for a year, and a regularly stamped agreement, drawn up by an attorney, is made between them. It is silent on the subject of board. A may not prove that board was included in the terms verbally.

(i.) A applies to B for a debt due to A by sending a receipt for the money. B keeps the receipt and does not send the money. In a suit for the amount, A may prove this.

(j.) A and B make a contract in writing to take effect upon the happening of a certain contingency. The writing is left with B, who sues A upon it. A may show the circumstances under which it was delivered.

XCIII. When the language used in a document is, on its face, ambiguous or defective, evidence may not be given of facts which would show its meaning or supply its defects.

Illustrations.

(a.) A agrees, in writing, to sell a horse to B for ‘Rs. 1,000, or Rs. 1,500.’

Evidence cannot be given to show which price was to be given.

(b.) A deed contains blanks. Evidence cannot be given of facts which would show how they were meant to be filled.

Exclusion of evidence against application of document to existing facts.

XCIV. When language used in a document is plain in itself, and when it applies accurately to existing facts, evidence may not be given to show that it was not meant to apply to such facts.

Illustration.

A sells to B, by deed, ‘my estate at Rámpur containing 100 bighás.’ A has an estate at Rámpur containing 100 bighás. Evidence may not be given of the fact that the estate meant to be sold was one situated at a different place and of a different size.

Evidence as to document unmeaning in reference to existing facts.

XCV. When language used in a document is plain in itself, but is unmeaning in reference to existing facts, evidence may be given to show that it was used in a peculiar sense.

Illustration.

A sells to B, by deed, ‘my house in Calcutta’.

A had no house in Calcutta, but it appears that he had a house at Howrah, of which B had been in possession since the execution of the deed.

These facts may be proved to show that the deed related to the house at Howrah.

XCVI. When the facts are such that the language used might have been meant to apply to any one, and could not have been meant to apply to more than one, of several persons or things, evidence may be given of facts which show which of those persons or things it was intended to apply to.

Illustrations.

(a.) A agrees to sell to B, for Rs. 1,000, ‘my white horse.’ A has two white horses. Evidence may be given of facts which show which of them was meant.

(b.) A agrees to accompany B to Haidarābād. Evidence may be given of facts showing whether Haidarābād in the Dekkhan or Haidarābād in Sindh was meant.

Evidence as to application of language to one of two sets of facts, to neither of which the whole correctly applies.

XCVII. When the language used applies partly to one set of existing facts, and partly to another set of existing facts, but the whole of it does not apply correctly to either, evidence may be given to show to which of the two it was meant to apply.

Illustration.

A agrees to sell to B 'my land at X in the occupation of Y.' A has land at X, but not in the occupation of Y. and he has land in the occupation of Y, but it is not at X. Evidence may be given of facts showing which he meant to sell.

XCVIII. Evidence may be given to show the meaning of illegible or not commonly intelligible characters, of foreign, obsolete, technical, local, and provincial expressions, of abbreviations and of words used in a peculiar sense.

Evidence as to meaning of illegible characters, &c.

Illustration.

A, a sculptor, agrees to sell to B 'all my mods.' A has both models and modelling tools. Evidence may be given to show which he meant to sell.

Who may give evidence of agreement varying terms of document.

XCIX. Persons who are not parties to a document, or their representatives in the interest, may give evidence of any facts tending to show a contemporaneous agreement varying the terms of the document.

Illustration.

A and B make a contract in writing that B shall sell A certain cotton, to be paid for on delivery. At the same time they make an oral agreement that three months' credit shall be given to A. This could not be shown as between A and B, but it might be shown by C, if it affected his interests.

Saving of provisions of Indian Succession Act relating to wills.

C. Nothing in this chapter contained shall be taken to affect any of the provisions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) as to the construction of wills.

PART III.

PRODUCTION AND EFFECT OF EVIDENCE.

CHAPTER VII.—OF THE BURDEN OF PROOF.

CI. Whoever desires any Court to give judgment as to any legal right or liability dependent on the existence of facts which he asserts, must prove that those facts exist.

When a person is bound to prove the existence of any fact, it is said that the burden of proof lies on that person.

Illustrations.

(a.) A desires a Court to give judgment that B shall be punished for a crime which A says B has committed.

A must prove that B committed the crime.

(b.) A desires a Court to give judgment that he is entitled to certain land in the possession of B, by reason of facts which he asserts, and which B denies to be true.
A must prove the existence of those facts.

CII. The burden of proof in a suit or proceeding lies on that person who would fail if no evidence at all were given on either side.

Illustrations.

(a.) A sues B for land of which B is in possession, and which, as A asserts, was left to A by the will of C, B's father.

If no evidence were given on either side, B would be entitled to retain his possession.

Therefore the burden of proof is on A.

(b.) A sues B for money due on a bond.

The execution of the bond is admitted, but B says that it was obtained by fraud, which A denies.

If no evidence were given on either side, A would succeed, as the bond is not disputed and the fraud is not proved.

Therefore the burden of proof is on B.

CIII. The burden of proof as to any particular fact lies on that person who wishes the Court to believe in its existence, unless it is provided by any law that the proof of that fact shall lie on any particular person.

Illustration.

(a.) A prosecutes B for theft, and wishes the Court to believe that B admitted the theft to C. A must prove the admission.

B wishes the Court to believe that, at the time in question, he was elsewhere. He must prove it.

Burden of proving fact to be proved to make evidence admissible.

CIV. The burden of proving any fact necessary to be proved, in order to enable any person to give evidence of any other fact, is on the person who wishes to give such evidence.

Illustrations.

(a.) A wishes to prove a dying declaration by B. A must prove B's death.

(b.) A wishes to prove, by secondary evidence, the contents of a lost document.

A must prove that the document has been lost.

CV. When a person is accused of any offence, the burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing the case within any of the General Exceptions in the Indian Penal Code, or within any special exception or proviso contained in any other part of the same Code, or in any law defining the offence, is upon him, and the Court shall presume the absence of such circumstances.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, accused of murder, alleges that, by reason of unsoundness of mind, he did not know the nature of the act.

The burden of proof is on A.

(b.) A, accused of murder, alleges that, by grave and sudden provocation, he was deprived of the power of self-control.

The burden of proof is on A.

(c.) Section three hundred and twenty-five of the Indian Penal Code provides that whoever, except in the case provided for by section three hundred and thirty-five, voluntarily causes grievous hurt, shall be subject to certain punishments.

A is charged with voluntarily causing grievous hurt under section three hundred and twenty-five.

The burden of proving the circumstances bringing the case under section three hundred and thirty-five lies on A.

The fact that the charge is made, is equivalent to a statement that every legal condition required by law to constitute the offence charged was fulfilled in the particular case. Code of Criminal Procedure, S. 221, cl. V.

Where a person charged with rioting sets up the exercise of the right of private defence, it is for him to contradict that plea either from the evidence for the prosecution or by evidence adduced on his own behalf. It is not for the prosecution to show that the acts charged were not done in the exercise of the right of private defence.—Omed Ali and others, Cal. H. Ct. June 1, 1877.

See also Tookhun Mahato, July 24, 1877.

The plea must be supported by evidence giving a full and true account of the affair from which the charge arises. No accused person can at the same time deny committing an act and justify it. The law does not admit of justification by putting forward hypothetical cases; it must be by proof of actual facts.—Jowlsheir Sindar, 1 Cal. L. R., 62. But if the evidence for the prosecution shows that no offence was committed because the accused acted in exercise of his legal rights of private defence, he should not be called upon to make his defence at the trial at all.

Burden of proving fact especially within knowledge.

CVI. When any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him.

Illustrations.

(a.) When a person does an act with some intention other than that, which the character and circumstances of the act suggest, the burden of proving that intention is upon him.

(b.) A is charged with travelling on a railway without a ticket. The burden of proving that he had a ticket is on him.

Burden of proving death of person known to have been alive within thirty years.

CVII. When the question is whether a man is alive or dead, and it is shown that he was alive within thirty years, the burden of proving that he is dead is on the person who affirms it.

CVIII. Provided that when the question is whether a man is alive or dead, and it is proved that he has not been heard of for seven years by those who would naturally have heard of him if he had been alive, the burden of proving that he is alive is on (shifted to—Act XVIII, 1872, S. 9) the person who affirms it.

CIX. When the question is whether persons are partners, landlord and tenant, or principal and agent, and it has been shown that they have been acting as such, the burden of proving that they do not stand, or have ceased to stand to each other in those relationships respectively, is on the person who affirms it.

Burden of proof as to relationship in the case of partners, landlord and tenant, principal and agent.

CX. When the question is whether any person is owner of anything of which he is shown to be in possession, the burden of proving that he is not the owner is on the person who affirms that he is not the owner.

Burden of proof as to ownership.

CXI. Where there is a question as to the good faith of a transaction between parties, one of whom stands to the other in a position of active confidence, the burden of proving the good faith of the transaction is on the party who is in a position of active confidence.

Proof of good faith in transactions where one party is in relation of active confidence.

Illustrations.

(a.) The good faith of a sale by a client to an attorney is in question in a suit brought by the client. The burden of proving the good faith of the transaction is on the attorney.

(b.) The good faith of a sale by a son just come of age to a father is in question in a suit brought by the son. The burden of proving the good faith of the transaction is on the father.

CXII. The fact that any person was born during the continuance of a valid marriage between his mother and any man, or within two hundred and eighty days after its dissolution, the mother remaining unmarried, shall be conclusive proof that he is the legitimate son of that man, unless it can be shown that the parties to the marriage had no access to each other at any time when he could have been begotten.

CXIII. A notification in the Gazette of India that any portion of British territory has been ceded to any Native State, Prince or Ruler, shall be conclusive proof that a valid cession of such territory took place at the date mentioned in such notification.

CXIV. The Court may presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct, and public and private business, in their relation to the facts of the particular case.

Illustrations.

The Court may presume—

(a.) That a man who is in possession of stolen goods soon after the theft is either the thief or has received the goods knowing them to be stolen, unless he can account for his possession :

(b.) That an accomplice is unworthy of credit, unless he is corroborated in material particulars ;

(c.) That a bill of exchange, accepted or endorsed, was accepted or endorsed for good consideration ;

(d.) That a thing or state of things which has been shown to be in existence within a period shorter than that within which such things or states of things usually cease to exist, is still in existence :

(e.) That judicial and official acts have been regularly performed :

(f.) That the common course of business has been followed in particular cases :

(g.) That evidence which could be, and is not, produced would, if produced, be unfavourable to the person who withholds it :

(h.) That if a man refuses to answer a question which he is not compelled to answer by law, the answer, if given, would be unfavourable to him :

(i.) That when a document creating an obligation is in the hands of the obligor, the obligation has been discharged.

But the Court shall also have regard to such facts as the following, in considering whether such maxims do or do not apply to the particular case before it :—

As to illustration (a)—A shop-keeper has in his till a marked rupee soon after it was stolen and cannot account for its possession specifically, but is continually receiving rupees in the course of his business :

As to illustration (b)—A, a person of the highest character, is tried for causing a man's death by an act of negligence in arranging certain machinery. B, a person of equally good character, who also took part in the arrangement, describes precisely what was done, and admits and explains the common carelessness of A and himself.

As to illustration (c)—A crime is committed by several persons. A, B, and C, three of the criminals, are captured on the spot and kept apart from each other. Each gives an account of the crime implicating D, and the accounts corroborate each other in such a manner as to render previous concert highly improbable :

As to illustration (e)—A, the drawer of a bill of exchange, was a man of business. B, the acceptor, was a young and ignorant person, completely under A's influence :

As to illustration (d)—It is proved that a river ran in a certain course five years ago, but it is known that there have been floods since that time which might change its course :

As to illustration (e)—A judicial act, the regularity of which is in question, was performed under exceptional circumstances :

As to illustration (f)—The question is, whether a letter was received. It is shown to have been posted, but the usual course of the post was interrupted by disturbances :

As to illustration (g)—A man refuses to produce a document which would bear on a contract of small importance on which he is sued, but which might also injure the feelings and reputation of his family :

As to illustration (h)—A man refuses to answer a question which he is not compelled by law to answer, but the answer to it might cause loss to him in matters unconnected with the matter in relation to which it is asked :

As to illustration (i)—A bond is in possession of the obligor, but the circumstances of the case are such that he may have stolen it.

With regard to (a) an important consideration in determining whether the particular person is the thief or the receiver is not only the nature of the article, whether it is one capable of being readily transferred in the course of business—see proviso to (a)—but whether the possession was recent, that is, at no great interval of time after the commission of the theft.

With regard to (b), S. 133 declares that an accomplice shall be a competent witness against an accused person, and a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice. Our Courts have, however, invariably discouraged such a practice, and in appeal the High Courts have frequently set aside convictions which proceeded entirely on such uncorroborated evidence. See Budhu Nanku, I. L. R., 1 Bomb., 475; Jaffir Ali, 19 W. R., 57; Naga, 23 W. R., 24; Sadhu Mandal, 21 W. R., 69.

So in the case of Nazam, 2 Leg. Rem., 170 it was held that although it is true that a conviction is not illegal because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, yet the unfailing practice of all Courts of Criminal Justice in England, as also in India, has been and always should be to require some corroboration in a material particular from a source independent of the accomplice, more particularly as to the identity of the party accused by him. It cannot for a moment be questioned that this is a sound and wholesome rule, and were any other method followed perfectly innocent persons would be placed at the mercy of an approver, who, having received a conditional pardon, would realize that his only sure means of escape would be to implicate other persons in his crime.

The same rule was laid down by the Madras High Court in the case of Ramasami Padayachi, I. L. R., 1 Mad., 394. The Jury, in cases tried by Jury, and the Court, in cases tried with Assessors, may no doubt presume that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless corroborated, but before acting on the presumption, the Jury or Court is required by S. 114 and the sequel in the Illustration to take into consideration certain facts with the view to ascertain the probability of the story told, and the rule in the section is thus brought to coincide with the rule observed in England, that though the tainted evidence of an accomplice should be carefully scanned and received with caution, and may be treated as unworthy of credit, yet if the Jury in the one case, or the Court in the other, credits that evidence, a conviction proceeding upon it is not illegal.

CHAPTER VIII.—ESTOPPEL.

CXV. When one person has, by his declaration, act or omission, intentionally caused or permitted another person to believe a thing to be true and to act upon such belief, neither he nor his representative shall be allowed, in any suit or proceeding between himself and such person or his representative, to deny the truth of that thing.

Illustration.

A intentionally and falsely leads B to believe that certain land belongs to A, and thereby induces B to buy and pay for it.

The land afterwards becomes the property of A, and A seeks to set aside the sale on the ground that, at the time of the sale, he had no title. He must not be allowed to prove his want of title.

CXVI. No tenant of immoveable property, or person claiming through such tenant, shall during the continuance of the tenancy, be permitted to deny that the landlord of such tenant had, at the beginning of the tenancy, a title to such immoveable property; and no person who came upon any immoveable property by the license of the person in possession thereof,

Estoppel of tenant ;

And of license of person in possession.

shall be permitted to deny that such person had a title to such possession at the time when such license was given.

CXVII. No acceptor of a bill of exchange shall be permitted to deny that the
 * Estoppel of acceptor of drawer had authority to draw such bill or to endorse it; bill of exchange, bailor or nor shall any bailee or licensee be permitted to deny that licensee. his bailor or licensor had, at the time when the bailment or license commenced, authority to make such bailment or grant such license.

Explanation 1.—The acceptor of a bill of exchange may deny that the bill was really drawn by the person by whom it purports to have been drawn.

Explanation 2.—If a bailee delivers the goods bailed to a person other than the bailor, he may prove that such person had a right to them as against the bailor.

CHAPTER IX.—OF WITNESSES.

CXVIII. All persons shall be competent to testify unless the Court considers that they are prevented from understanding the questions put to them, or from giving rational answers to those questions, by tender years, extreme old age, disease, whether of body or mind, or any other cause of the same kind.

Explanation.—A lunatic is not incompetent to testify, unless he is prevented by his lunacy from understanding the questions put to him and giving rational answers to them.

A Juror or Assessor, in a Sessions trial, personally acquainted with any relevant fact is bound to inform the Judge that such is the case whereupon he may be sworn, examined, cross-examined and re-examined in the same manner as any other witness S. 294. Code of Criminal Procedure.

In the same manner a Judge can be examined in a trial before himself. See Mookta Singh, 13 W. R., 60, quoted in the note to S. 294 of the Code, p 301 ante. But a Magistrate who is the sole judge of law and of fact is not competent to examine himself as a witness (Per Markby, J.); where he has done so and convicted the accused, the conviction is bad—(Per Prinsep, J.) The conviction can be sustained under S. 167, Evidence Act if after rejecting that evidence, there is other evidence, which, if believed, is sufficient to support the conviction. In the matter of Mary Donnelly, 1. L. R., 2 Cal. 405.

See also Hurro Chunder Pal, 20 W. R., 76, quoted in the note to S. 159, of the Code, p. 160 ante.

A Magistrate is not competent to examine an accused person as a witness except when a pardon has been lawfully tendered to, and accepted by him under Ss. 337, 338 of the Code. Harmanta Mudhoji Khadkee, Bomb. H. Ct., Feb. 26, 1877.

CXIX. A witness who is unable to speak may give his evidence in any other manner in which he can make it intelligible, as by writing or by signs: but such writing must be written and the signs made in open Court. Evidence so given shall be deemed to be oral evidence.

CXX. In all civil proceedings the parties to the suit, and the husband or wife of any party to the suit, shall be competent witnesses. In criminal proceedings against any person, the husband or wife of such person, respectively, shall be a competent witness.

CXXI. No Judge or Magistrate shall, except upon the special order of some Court to which he is subordinate, be compelled to answer any questions as to his own conduct in Court as such Judge or Magistrate, or as to anything which came to his knowledge in Court as such Judge or Magistrate; but he may be examined as to other matters which occurred in his presence whilst he was so acting.

Illustrations.

(a.) A on his trial before the Court of Session, says that a deposition was improperly taken by B, the Magistrate. B cannot be compelled to answer questions as to this, except upon the special order of a superior Court.

(b.) A is accused before the Court of Session of having given false evidence before B, a Magistrate. B cannot be asked what A said except upon the special order of the superior Court.

(c.) A is accused before the Court of Session of attempting to murder a Police officer whilst on his trial before B, a Sessions Judge. B may be examined as to what occurred.

It is the privilege of the witness of whom the question is asked, If he waives it, it does not lie in the mouth of any other person to assist it. Cheddu and others. Per Stuart C. J., Pearson, Oldfield, Straight, JJ., (Spankie, J.) Dns. 2 Leg. Rem., 34, (S. C.) 1. L. R., 3 All., 573.

CXXII. No person who is or has been married shall be compelled to disclose any communication made to him during marriage by any person to whom he is or has been married; nor shall he be permitted to disclose any such communication, unless the person who made it, or his representative in interest, consents, except in suits between married persons, or proceedings in which one married person is prosecuted for any crime committed against the other.

CXXIII. No one shall be permitted to give any evidence derived from unpublished official records relating to any affairs of State, except with the permission of the officer at the head of the department concerned, who shall give or withhold such permission as he thinks fit.

CXXIV. No public officer shall be compelled to disclose communications made to him in official confidence, when he considers that the public interests would suffer by disclosure.

CXXV. No Magistrate or Police officer shall be compelled to say whence he got any information as to the commission of any offence.

CXXVI. No barrister, attorney, pleader or vakil, shall at any time be permitted, unless with his client's express consent, to disclose any communication made to him in the course and for the purpose of his employment as such barrister, pleader, attorney or vakil, by or on behalf of his client, or to state the contents or condition of any document with which he has become acquainted in the course and for the purpose of his professional employment, or to disclose any advice given by him to his client in the course and for the purpose of such employment:

Provided that nothing in this section shall protect from disclosure—

(1) Any such communication made in furtherance of any criminal (illegal substituted for the word "criminal," Act XVIII, 1872, S. 10,) purpose;

(2) Any fact observed by any barrister, pleader, attorney or vakil, in the course of his employment as such, showing that any crime or fraud has been committed since the commencement of his employment.

It is immaterial whether the attention of such barrister (pleader, Act XVIII, 1872, S. 10,) attorney or vakil was or was not directed to such fact by or on behalf of his client.

Explanation.—The obligation stated in this section continues after the employment has ceased.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, a client, says to B, an attorney—"I have committed forgery, and I wish you to defend me."

As the defence of a man known to be guilty is not a criminal purpose, this communication is protected from disclosure.

(b.) A, a client, says to B, an attorney—"I wish to obtain possession of property by the use of a forged deed on which I request you to sue."

This communication, being made in furtherance of a criminal purpose, is not protected from disclosure.

(c.) A, being charged with embezzlement, retains B, an attorney, to defend him. In the course of the proceedings, B observes that an entry has been made in A's account book, charging A with the sum said to have been embezzled, which entry was not in the book at the commencement of his employment.

This being a fact observed by B in the course of his employment, showing that a fraud has been committed since the commencement of the proceedings, it is not protected from disclosure.

CXXVII. The provisions of section one hundred and twenty-six shall apply to interpreters, and the clerks or servants of barristers, pleaders, attorneys and vakils.

CXXVIII. If any party to a suit gives evidence therein at his own instance or otherwise, he shall not be deemed to have consented thereby to such disclosure as is mentioned in section one hundred and twenty-six; and if any party to a suit or proceeding calls any such barrister (pleader, Act XVIII, 1872, S. 10), attorney or vakil as a witness, he shall be deemed to have consented to such disclosure only if he questions such barrister, attorney or vakil on matters which, but for such question, he would not be at liberty to disclose.

CXXIX. No one shall be compelled to disclose to the Court any confidential communication which has taken place between him and his legal professional adviser, unless he offers himself as a witness, in which case he may be compelled to disclose any such communications as may appear to the Court necessary to be known in order to explain any evidence which he has given, but no others.

CXXX. No witness who is not a party to a suit shall be compelled to produce his title-deeds to any property, or any document in virtue of which he holds any property as pledgee or mortgagee, or any document the production of which might tend to criminate him, unless he has agreed in writing to produce them with the person seeking the production of such deeds or some person through whom he claims.

CXXXI. No one shall be compelled to produce documents in his possession, which any other person would be entitled to refuse to produce if they were in his possession, unless such last mentioned person consents to their production.

CXXXII. A witness shall not be excused from answering any question as to any matter relevant to the matter in issue in any suit or in any civil or criminal proceeding, upon the ground that the answer to such question will criminate, or may tend directly or indirectly to criminate, such witness, or that it will expose, or tend directly or indirectly to expose, such witness to a penalty or forfeiture of any kind:

Provided that no such answer, which a witness shall be compelled to give, shall subject him to any arrest or prosecution, or be proved against him in any criminal proceeding, except a prosecution for giving false evidence by such answer.

Proviso. Witness not excused from answering on ground that answer will criminate.

Ss. 161, 175 of the Code of Criminal Procedure declare that all persons who are supposed to be acquainted with the facts and circumstances of a criminal case or the cause of the sudden or unnatural death of any person, shall be bound to answer truly all questions put to them by the investigating Police officer (other than questions which may criminate them).

If a witness does not desire to have his answer used against him in a subsequent criminal charge, he must object to answer, although he may know beforehand, that such objection, if the answer is relevant, is perfectly futile, so far as his duty to answer is concerned and must be overruled. Gopal Das, I. L. R., Mad., 271, Per Turner, C. J., Turner, Kindersley, JJ., Kernan, Multassim Ayyar, JJ., diss. The dissenting Judges held that S. 182 abolishes the privilege and confers an obligation on a witness to answer every question material to the issue, whether the answer criminate him or not, and gives him a right as correlated to that duty to claim that that answer shall not be admitted as evidence against him in any criminal prosecution.

See the case of Seaman v. Netherclift, 2 C. P. D., 53 for the rule as to how far a witness is protected from proceedings in consequence of what he said while under examination. He is protected as to what he said having reference to the inquiry being held and may volunteer statements to explain imputations on his character and credibility arising from an imperfect answer to a question asked. "Malice is no element in such a case unless it be shown that the statement was made not in the course of giving evidence and therefore not in the character of witness." Per Cockburn, C. J.

CXXXIII. An accomplice shall be a competent witness against an accused person, and a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice.

Accomplice.

Where a witness admits that he was cognizant of the crime to which he testifies, and that he took no means to prevent or disclose it, his evidence must be considered as no better than that of an accomplice—Chanda Chandalineo, 21 W. R., 55.

The evidence of an accomplice in Criminal cases would be generally that of a person supposed to be directly or indirectly concerned in, or privy to an offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session or High Court then under inquiry, or committed for trial in which he had accepted a pardon tendered by certain Magistrates or by the Sessions or High Court, Ss. 337, 338, Code of Criminal Procedure. The confession of a person under trial for the same offence jointly with others can be taken into consideration against his fellow prisoner if it affects himself and those persons—S. 30 ante; but as pointed out by Phear, J., such confession would not stand as high as even the evidence of an accomplice—Nafar and others, 23 W. R., 24.

With respect to the evidence of an accomplice the Court, having regard to the common course of natural events, or human conduct, may presume that it is unworthy of credit unless corroborated in material particulars, but where a crime is committed by several persons, and three of them are captured on the spot and are kept apart from each other, if each gives an account of the crime implicating a fourth person and these accounts corroborate each other in such a manner as to render previous concert highly improbable, the Court may take this into consideration in considering the value of that evidence. S. 114 ante Illustration (b).

The following cases contain the substance of the leading cases on this subject. (See also notes to S. 114 ante and S. 337 of the Code.)

The evidence should not be left to a Jury without such directions and observations from the Judge as the circumstances of the case may require.

If a Judge in a criminal trial were to tell the Jury that in his opinion the evidence was sufficient to justify them in finding the prisoner guilty, in a case in which, if the Judge had been trying the case with Assessors the High Court would on appeal have reversed his judgment if upon the same evidence he had convicted the prisoner, then no doubt the Court ought on appeal, to set aside a verdict of guilty found by the Jury notwithstanding the advice was merely as to the weight of evidence.

So, if a Judge, instead of advising a Jury not to convict upon the mere uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice, were to advise them to convict upon such evidence, or were to tell them that the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice given under a tender of pardon was admissible, and that it was for them alone to form their opinion upon it, that a conviction founded upon such evidence would be legal, and that such evidence without corroboration might be acted upon with as much safety as that of any other witness, I think the error in the direction would form a good ground of appeal.—Elahee Bukhsh, 5 W. R., 80: (S. C.) B. L. R., Sup. Vol. (F. B.) 469. Per Peacock, C. J. (Kemp and Phear, JJ. concurring).

The law and practice of our Courts were thus summed up by Phear, J. (Morris, J. concurring) in the case of Sadhu Mundal, 21 W. R., 69:—"The result seems to be that the Legislature has laid it down as a measure or rule of evidence resting on human experience that an accomplice is unworthy of credit against an accused person, i. e., so far as his testimony implicates an accused person, unless he is corroborated in material particulars in respect to that person: that it is the duty of the Court which in any particular case has to deal with an accomplice's testimony to consider whether this maxim applies to exclude that testimony or not; in other words, to consider whether the requisite corroboration is furnished by other evidence or facts proved in the case, though, at the same time, the Court may rightly in exceptional cases, notwithstanding this maxim, and in the absence of this corroboration, give credit to the accomplice's testimony against the accused, if it sees good reason for doing so upon ground other than, scilicet, to speak, the personal corroboration.

"Now in a case tried by Jury, it is the function of the Jury to ascertain the facts upon the evidence before them, and for that purpose to be guided by the law which is applicable, and it is in all cases the duty of the Judge to point out to them that law. It was therefore the duty of the Judge to lay before the Jury substantially, to the effect just set out, the principles relative to the reception of an accomplice's testimony which the Legislature has sanctioned by the Indian Evidence Act: and the Judge was wrong in telling the Jury that this case was one in which no caution or instruction from him was needed on this head. It is, in all cases in which an accomplice's testimony is admitted, incumbent on the Judge to inform the Jury of the results of the law bearing on this point substantially as we have just endeavoured to explain it."

It is not sufficient simply to tell a Jury to consider whether the evidence of an accomplice was strongly corroborated as to the prisoners, as that would be to ask them to consider a question which, it is certain, no native Jury in the mofussil would understand. It is the duty of the Judge to go through the history of the crime as related by the accomplice, to point out any independent evidence proving facts showing that the prisoners were, or must have been, present at or cognizant of, the murder. If such facts are proved they would corroborate the story of the accomplice. But it would not be enough that the evidence should disclose a state of facts consistent with the possibility of the truth of the accomplice's story. If the state of facts proved is equally consistent with, and capable of receiving, a reasonable and natural explanation on the hypothesis of the prisoner's innocence, those facts, standing alone, would be no evidence of the truth of the accomplice's story.—Karoo and others, 6 W. R., 44; see also Bykunto Nath Banerjee, 10 W. R., 17.

The Bombay High Court, however, on the authority of the case of Reg. v. Stubbs (2 Law J. Mag. Ca., 16) has held that the omission on the part of a Sessions Judge to tell the Jury that they should require corroboration before convicting a prisoner on the evidence of an accomplice, is not an error in law, as it is competent to convict on the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice, though it is contrary to all practice.—Ganu bin Dharoji, 6 Bomb., 57, Crown cases. See also Inam Valad Bikan, 3 ibid., 57; Budhu Nanku, 1 L. R., 1 Bomb., 475.

As regards the amount of corroboration required to support the evidence of approvers, Norman, J. remarked:—"It is sufficient if the evidence is confirmatory of some of the leading circumstances of the story of the approvers as against the particular prisoner, so that the Court may be able to presume that they have told the truth as to the rest. The true rule on the subject of the corroboration of the evidence of approvers probably is, that if the Court is satisfied that the witness is speaking the truth in some material part of his testimony, in which it is seen that he is confirmed by unimpeachable evidence, there may be just ground for believing that he also speaks truth in other parts as to which there may be no confirmation."—Kalachand Dass, 11 W. R., 21.

There should be corroboration such as adds to the approver's evidence against the particular prisoner, and this is not complied with when there is no evidence apart from that of the accomplice which identifies the prisoner with the commission of the offence with which he is charged; nothing which distinctly goes to prove that he was in any way connected with the commission of the principal offences. Facts which do not show the connection of the prisoner with the commission of the offence with which he is charged are no corroboration in the sense in which the word is used in such cases, although they may tend to show that certain portions of what the accomplice says are true.—Nowab Jan., 8 W. R., 19 (see p. 25) per Macpherson, J.

So in the case of Baikuntomath Banerjee, 2 B. L. R., 3, (F. B.) Footnote. It was laid down that before the evidence of an accomplice can be safely depended upon, so far as it affects the prisoner, it ought to be corroborated—that is, that other evidence from sources independent of the approver, should be forthcoming relative to facts which implicate the prisoner in the same way as the story of the approver does. See also Mohesh Biswas, 19 W. R., 16.

S. 30 of the Evidence Act enables a Court to take into consideration a confession made by an accused person affecting himself and another person as well as against himself. See note to S. 30 ante. Such a confession is, however, no proper legal corroboration of the evidence of an accomplice.—Malapa bin Kapana and others, 81 Bomb., 196; Jaffer Ali, 19 W. R., 57, &c., &c.

CXXXIV. No particular number of witnesses shall in any case be required for the proof of any fact.

The evidence of a complainant even if uncorroborated is sufficient for the conviction of the accused person.—In re Kulam Mundul, 22 W. R., 32.

CHAPTER X.—OF THE EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES.

CXXXV. The order in which witnesses are produced and examined shall be regulated by the law and practice for the time being relating to civil and criminal procedure respectively, and, in the absence of any such law, by the discretion of the Order of production and examination of witnesses.

Court.

CXXXVI. When either party proposes to give evidence of any fact, the Judge may ask the party proposing to give the evidence in what manner the alleged fact, if proved, would be relevant; and the Judge shall admit the evidence if he thinks that the fact, if proved, would be relevant, and not otherwise.

Judge to decide as to admissibility of evidence.

If the fact proposed to be proved is one of which evidence is admissible only upon proof of some other fact, such last mentioned fact must be proved before evidence is given of the fact first mentioned, unless the party undertakes to give proof of such fact and the Court is satisfied with such undertaking.

If the relevancy of one alleged fact depends upon another alleged fact being first proved, the Judge may, in his discretion, either permit evidence of the first fact to be given before the second fact is proved, or require evidence to be given of the second fact before evidence is given of the first fact.

Illustrations.

(a.) It is proposed to prove a statement about a relevant fact by a person alleged to be dead, which statement is relevant under section thirty-two

The fact that the person is dead must be proved by the person proposing to prove the statement before evidence is given of the statement.

(b.) It is proposed to prove, by a copy, the contents of a document said to be lost.

The fact that the original is lost must be proved by the person proposing to produce the copy, before the copy is produced.

(c.) A is accused of receiving stolen property, knowing it to have been stolen.

It is proposed to prove that he denied the possession of the property.

The relevancy of the denial depends on the identity of the property. The Court may, in its discretion, either require the property to be identified before the denial of the possession is proved, or permit the denial of the possession to be proved before the property is identified.

(d.) It is proposed to prove a fact (A) which is said to have been the cause or effect of a fact in issue. There are several intermediate facts (B, C, and D) which must be shown to exist before the fact (A) can be regarded as the cause or effect of the fact in issue. The Court may either permit A to be proved before B, C, or D is proved, or may require proof of B, C, and D before permitting proof of A.

Examination-in-chief.

CXXXVII. The examination of a witness by the party who calls him shall be called his examination-in-chief.

Cross-examination.

The examination of a witness by the adverse party shall be called his cross-examination.

Re-examination.

The examination by a witness, subsequent to the cross-examination by the party who called him, shall be called his re-examination.

Order of examinations.
Direction of re-examination.

CXXXVIII. Witnesses shall be first examined-in-chief, then (if the adverse party so desires) cross-examined, then (if the party calling him so desires) re-examined.

The examination and cross-examination must relate to relevant facts, but the cross-examination need not be confined to the facts to which the witness testified on his examination-in-chief.

The re-examination shall be directed to the explanation of matters referred to in cross-examination; and if new matter is, by permission of the Court, introduced in re-examination, the adverse party may further cross-examine upon that matter.

The Court cannot refuse to allow a witness to be cross-examined who has been called by itself.—Grish Chunder Talookdar, 5 Cal. L. R., 364.

Cross-examination of person called to produce a document.

CXXXIX. A person summoned to produce a document does not become a witness by the mere fact that he produces it, and cannot be cross-examined unless and until he is called as a witness.

Witnesses to character.

CXL. Witnesses to character may be cross-examined and re-examined.

Leading questions.

CXLI. Any question suggesting the answer which the person putting it wishes or expects to receive, is called a leading question.

CXLII. Leading questions must not, if objected to by the adverse party, be asked in an examination-in-chief, or in a re-examination, except with the permission of the Court.

The Court shall permit leading questions as to matters which are introductory or undisputed, or which have, in its opinion, been already sufficiently proved.

When they may be asked.

CXLIII. Leading questions may be asked in cross-examination.

Evidence as to matters in writing.

CXLIV. Any witness may be asked, whilst under examination, whether any contract, grant or other disposition of property, as to which he is giving evidence was not contained in a document; and if he says that it was, or if he is about to make any statement as to the contents of any document, which, in the opinion of the Court, ought to be produced, the adverse party may object to such evidence being given until such document is produced, or until facts have been proved which entitle the party who calls the witness to give secondary evidence of it.

Explanation.—A witness may give oral evidence of statements made by other persons about the contents of documents if such statements are in themselves relevant facts.

Illustration.

The question is whether A assaulted B.

C deposes that he heard A say to D—"B wrote a letter accusing me of theft, and I will be revenged on him." This statement is relevant, as showing A's motive for the assault, and evidence may be given of it, though no other evidence is given about the letter.

CXLV. A witness may be cross-examined as to previous statements made by him in writing or reduced into writing, and relevant to matters in question, without such writing being shown to him or being proved; but if it is intended to contradict him by the writing, his attention must, before the writing can be proved, be called to those parts of it which are to be used for the purpose of contradicting him.

Questions lawful in cross-examination.

CXLVI. When a witness is cross-examined, he may, in addition to the questions hereinbefore referred to, be asked any questions which tend

- (1) to test his veracity;
- (2) to discover who he is and what is his position in life; or
- (3) to shake his credit, by injuring his character, although the answer to such questions might tend directly or indirectly to criminate him, or might expose or tend directly or indirectly to expose him to a penalty or forfeiture.

No inference is to be drawn from not putting questions in cross-examination.—Madho Rao Cainta Pant Galai, Feb. 7, 1837, per Parko, B.; 5 W. R., 33, Privy Council Cases.

When witness to be compelled to answer.

CXLVIII. If any

Court to decide when question shall be asked and when witness compelled to answer.

tion, the Court shall have regard to the following considerations:—

(1.) Such questions are proper if they are of such a nature that the truth of the imputation conveyed by them would seriously affect the opinion of the Court as to the credibility of the witness on the matter to which he testifies:

(2.) Such questions are improper if the imputation which they convey relates to matters so remote in time, or of such a character, that the truth of the imputation would not affect, or would affect in a slight degree, the opinion of the Court as to the credibility of the witness on the matter to which he testifies:

(3.) Such questions are improper if there is a great disproportion between the importance of the imputation made against the witness's character and the importance of his evidence:

(4.) The Court may, if it sees fit, draw from the witness's refusal to answer the inference that the answer if given would be unfavourable.

CXLIX. No such question as is referred to in section one hundred and forty-eight ought to be asked, unless the person asking it has reasonable grounds for thinking that the imputation which it conveys is well-founded.

Illustrations.

(a.) A barrister is instructed by an attorney or vakil that an important witness is a dākāit. This is a reasonable ground for asking the witness whether he is a dākāit.

(b.) A pleader is informed by a person in Court that an important witness is a dākāit. The informant, on being questioned by the pleader, gives satisfactory reasons for his statement. This is a reasonable ground for asking the witness whether he is a dākāit.

(c.) A witness, of whom nothing whatever is known, is asked at random whether he is a dākāit. There are here no reasonable grounds for the question.

(d.) A witness, of whom nothing whatever is known, being questioned as to his mode of life and means of living, gives unsatisfactory answers. This may be a reasonable ground for asking him if he is a dākāit.

CL. If the Court is of opinion that any such question was asked without reasonable grounds, it may, if it was asked by any barrister, pleader, vakil or attorney, report the circumstances of the case to the High Court or other authority to which such barrister, pleader, vakil or attorney is subject in the exercise of his profession.

CLI. The Court may forbid any questions or inquiries which it regards as Indecent and scandalous questions.

indecent or scandalous, although such questions or inquiries may have some bearing on the questions before the Court, unless they relate to facts in issue or to matters necessary to be known in order to determine whether or not the facts in issue existed.

CLII. The Court shall forbid any question which appears to it to be intended to insult or annoy, or which, though proper in itself, appears to the Court needlessly offensive in form.

Questions intended to insult or annoy.

CLIII. When a witness has been asked and has answered any question which is relevant to the inquiry only in so far as it tends to shake his credit by injuring his character, no evidence shall be given to contradict him ; but if he answers falsely, he may afterwards be charged with giving false evidence.

Exception 1.—If a witness is asked whether he has been previously convicted of any crime and denies it, evidence may be given of his previous conviction.

As to the manner in which a previous conviction may be proved, see Code of Criminal Procedure, S. 326.

Exception 2 —If a witness is asked any question tending to impeach his impartiality, and answers it by denying facts suggested, he may be contradicted.

Illustrations.

(a.) A claim against an underwriter is resisted on the ground of fraud.

The claimant is asked whether, in a former transaction, he has not made a fraudulent claim. He denies it.

Evidence is offered to show that he did make such a claim.

The evidence is inadmissible.

(b.) A witness is asked whether he was not dismissed from a situation for dishonesty. He denies it.

Evidence is offered to show that he was dismissed for dishonesty.

The evidence is not admissible.

(c.) A affirms that on a certain day he saw B at Lahore.

A is asked whether he himself was not on that day at Calcutta. He denies it.

Evidence is offered to show that A was on that day at Calcutta.

The evidence is admissible, not as contradicting A on a fact which affects his credit, but as contradicting the alleged fact that B was seen on the day in question in Lahore.

In each of these cases the witness might, if his denial was false, be charged with giving false evidence.

(d.) A is asked whether his family has not had a blood feud with the family of B against whom he gives evidence.

He denies it. He may be contradicted on the ground that the question tends to impeach his impartiality.

CLIV. The Court may, in its discretion, permit the person who calls a witness to put any questions to him which might be put in cross-examination by the adverse party.

CLV. The credit of a witness may be impeached in the following ways by the impeaching credit of adverse party, or, with the consent of the Court, by the party who calls him :—

(1.) By the evidence of persons who testify that they, from their knowledge of the witness, believe him to be unworthy of credit ;

(2.) By proof that the witness has been bribed, or has had (accepted—substituted for “had” Act XVIII, 1872, S. 11) the offer of a bribe, or has received any other corrupt inducement to give his evidence ;

(3.) By proof of a former statement inconsistent with any part of his evidence which is liable to be contradicted ;

(4.) When a man is prosecuted for rape or an attempt to ravish, it may be shown that the prosecutrix was of generally immoral character.

Explanation.—A witness declaring another witness to be unworthy of credit may not, upon his examination-in-chief, give reasons for his belief, but he may be asked his reasons in cross-examination, and the answers which he gives cannot be contradicted, though, if they are false, he may afterwards be charged with giving false evidence.

Illustrations.

(a.) A sues B for the price of goods sold and delivered to B.

C says that he delivered the goods to B.

Evidence is offered to show that, on a previous occasion, he said that he had not delivered the goods to B.

The evidence is admissible.

(b.) A is indicted for the murder of B.

C says that B, when dying, declared that A had given B the wound of which he died.

Evidence is offered to show that, on a previous occasion, C said that the wound was not given by A or in his presence.

The evidence is admissible.

CLVI. When a witness whom it is intended to corroborate gives evidence of any relevant fact, he may be questioned as to any other circumstances which he observed at or near to the time or place at which such relevant fact occurred, if the Court is of opinion that such circumstances, if proved, would corroborate the testimony of the witness as to the relevant fact which he testifies.

Illustration.

A, an accomplice, gives an account of a robbery in which he took part. He describes various incidents unconnected with the robbery which occurred on his way to and from the place where it was committed.

Independent evidence of these facts may be given in order to corroborate his evidence as to the robbery itself.

CLVII. In order to corroborate the testimony of a witness, any former statement made by such witness relating to the same fact, at or about the time when the fact took place, or before any authority legally competent to investigate the fact, may be proved.

Former statements of witness may be proved to corroborate later testimony as to same fact.

CLVIII. Whenever any statement, relevant under section thirty-two or thirty-three, is proved, all matters may be proved, either in order to contradict or to corroborate it, or in order to impeach or confirm the credit of the person by whom it was made, which might have been proved if that person had been called as a witness and had denied upon cross-examination the truth of the matter suggested.

CLIX. A witness may, while under examination, refresh his memory by referring to any writing made by himself at the time of the transaction concerning which he is questioned, or so soon afterwards that the Court considers it likely that the transaction was at that time fresh in his memory.

The witness may also refer to any such writing made by any other person and read by the witness within the time aforesaid, if when he read it he knew it to be correct.

Whenever a witness may refresh his memory by reference to any document, he

When witness may use copy of document to refresh memory. may, with the permission of the Court refer to a copy of such document: Provided the Court be satisfied that there is sufficient reason for the non-production of the original.

An expert may refresh his memory by reference to professional treatises.

A witness cannot be compelled to refresh his memory from any document unless it is in the possession of the party who desires to put it to the witness, or is, at least, such as he can insist on having produced. A Police Diary is a document which an accused is not entitled to call for (S. 172, Code of Criminal Procedure) and be entitled to require that it shall be referred to for the purpose of refreshing the memory of a Police officer.—In re Kali Churn Chumari, 10 Cal. L. R., 51; (S. C.) 1. L. R., 8 Cal., 156.

CLX. A witness may also testify to facts mentioned in any such document as is mentioned in section one hundred and fifty-nine, although he has no specific recollection of the facts themselves, if he is sure that the facts were correctly recorded in the document.

Testimony to facts stated in document mentioned in section 159.

Illustration.

A book-keeper may testify to facts recorded by him in books regularly kept in the course of business, if he knows that the books were correctly kept, although he has forgotten the particular transactions entered.

CLXI. Any writing referred to under the provisions of the two last preceding sections must be produced and shown to the adverse party if he requires it; such party may, if he pleases, cross-examine the witness thereupon.

Right of adverse party as to writing used to refresh memory.

CLXII. A witness summoned to produce a document shall, if it is in his possession or power, bring it to Court, notwithstanding any objection which there may be to its production or to its admissibility. The validity of any such objection shall be decided on by the Court. The Court, if it sees fit, may inspect the document, unless it refers to matters of State, or take other evidence to enable it to determine on its admissibility.

If for such a purpose it is necessary to cause any document to be translated, the Court may, if it thinks fit, direct the translator to keep the contents secret unless the document is to be given in evidence: and if the interpreter disobeys such direction, he shall be held to have committed an offence under section one hundred and sixty-six of the Indian Penal Code.

CLXIII. When a party calls for a document which he has given the other party notice to produce, and such document is produced and inspected by the party calling for its production, he is bound to give it as evidence if the party producing it requires him to do so.

Giving as evidence, of document called for and produced on notice.

CLXIV. When a party refuses to produce a document which he has had notice to produce, he cannot afterwards use the document as evidence without the consent of the other party or the order of the Court.

Using, as evidence, of document production of which was refused on notice.

Illustration.

A sues B on an agreement and gives B notice to produce it. At the trial A calls for the document and B refuses to produce it. A gives secondary evidence of its contents. B seeks to produce the document itself to contradict the secondary evidence given by A, or in order to show that the agreement is not stamped. He cannot do so.

CLXV. The Judge may, in order to discover or to obtain proper proof of relevant facts, ask any question he pleases, in any form, at any time, of any witness, or of the parties, about any fact relevant or irrelevant; and may order the production of any document or thing: and neither the parties nor their agents shall be entitled to make any objection to any such question or order, nor, without the leave of the Court, to cross-examine any witness upon any answer given in reply to any such question:

Judge's power to put questions or order production.

Provided that the judgment must be based upon facts declared by this Act to be relevant, and duly proved:

Provided also this section shall not authorize any Judge to compel any witness to answer any question, or to produce any document which such witness would be entitled to refuse to answer or produce under sections one hundred and twenty-one to one hundred and thirty-one, both inclusive, if the question were asked or the document were called for by the adverse party; nor shall the Judge ask any question which it would be improper for any other person to ask under section one hundred and forty-eight or one hundred and forty-nine; nor shall he dispense with primary evidence of any document, except in the cases hereinbefore excepted.

The term "Judge" would not ordinarily include a Magistrate, and it is not specially defined by this Act or by the "General Clauses Act" (I, 1868). "Court," however, is defined by S. 3, ante, to "include all Magistrates," so that probably S. 165 would be held to apply to proceedings before a Magistrate.

On the examination-in-chief being finished, the Sessions Judge questioned almost all the witnesses at considerable length upon the very points to which he must have known that the cross-examination would certainly and properly be directed. The result of this was to render the cross-examination of the Pleador to a great extent ineffective by assisting the witnesses to explain away in anticipation the points which may have afforded proper ground for useful cross-examination. It is not the province of a Court to examine the witnesses unless the Pleadors on either side have omitted to put some material further question: the Court should as a rule leave the witnesses to be dealt with by the Pleadors as laid down in S. 138. Noor Bux, 7 Cal. L. R. 385; (S. C.) I. L. R., 6 Cal., 279.

Where the Sessions Judge thinks it necessary to call one of the witnesses for the prosecution examined before the Magistrate but not called on the part of the prosecution, for the purpose of eliciting some facts which he considered necessary for the prosecution, the prisoner ought to be allowed an opportunity of putting any questions he thinks proper in cross-examination.—Grish Chunder Talukdar, I. L. R., 5 Cal., 614.

When the Counsel for the prisoner has examined or declined to cross-examine a witness, and the Court afterwards of its own motion examined him, the witness cannot then, without the permission of the Court, be subjected to cross-examination. When after the examination of a witness by the complainant and the defendant the Court takes him in hand, he is put under special pressure, as the Judge is empowered to ask any question he pleases in any form about any fact relevant or irrelevant, S. 165; and he is therefore at the same time placed under the special protection of the Court, which may, at its discretion, allow a party to cross-examine him, but this cannot be asked for as a matter of right.

The principle applies equally whether it is intended to direct the examination to the witness's statements of fact, or to circumstances touching his credibility, for any question meant to impair his credit tends, or is so designed, to get rid of the effect of all his answers and of each of them just as much as one that may bring out an inconsistency or a contradiction. It is then a cross-examination upon answers, upon every answer given to the Court, and is therefore to the Court's control.—Sakharam Makundji, 1 Bomb., 166.

CLXVI. In cases tried by jury or with assessors, the jury or assessors may put any questions to the witnesses, through or by leave of the Judge, which the Judge himself might put and which he considers proper.

Power of jury or assessors to put questions.

CHAPTER XI.—OF IMPROPER ADMISSION AND REJECTION OF EVIDENCE.

CLXVII. The improper admission or rejection of evidence shall not be ground of itself for a new trial or reversal of any decision in any case, if it shall appear to the Court before which such objection is raised that, independently of the evidence objected to and admitted, there was sufficient evidence to justify the decision, or that, if the rejected evidence had been received, it ought not to have varied the decision.

This section applies to criminal as well as to civil cases, and even to a case tried by Jury in which evidence not legally admissible, a confession had been laid before the Jury. The Court then proceeded to consider the evidence in the case, and holding that it was sufficient to support the conviction, refused to interfere. Per Garth, C. J., and Pontifex, J., Horribolo Chunder Ghoso, 25 W. R. 36; (S. C.) I. L. R., 1 Cal., 207.

So also in the case of Pitambar Jana, I. L. R., 2 Bomb., 61, the Bombay High Court held on the authority of the cases of Reg. v. Navroji, 9 Bomb., 358, and Reg. v. Hurribol Chunder Ghose, 25 W. R., 36; (S. C.) I. L. R., 1 Cal., 207, that it had power to review the whole case and determine whether if a question found to have been improperly rejected had been admitted, the result would have been the same. The judgment is as follows:—

“ Apart from those two cases, i. e., if the question were now raised for the first time, we think that, by Clause 26 of the Letters Patent, 1865, and Section 101 of the High Court's Criminal Procedure Act (now re-enacted in S. 434 of the Code), the power of so reviewing the whole case, on a point of law such as the admissibility of rejected evidence when reserved, is expressly conferred on this Court. We are clearly of opinion that Section 167 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, is applicable to criminal as well as to civil cases, and is so to criminal cases, whether or not the trial has been had before a Jury, and that the expression in that section “ the Court before which such objection is raised,” includes the reviewing or Appellate Court. That the 167th section applies to criminal as well as to Civil Courts is, we think, satisfactorily established by the 1st section, which renders the Act applicable “ to all judicial proceedings in or before any Court including Courts Martial” with certain exceptions not material in this case, and by section 3 which declares that the word ‘ Court’ includes all Judges and Magistrates.”

If, however, the evidence after excluding that improperly admitted is such that the Jury might not unreasonably find the accused or some of them guilty, but is not conclusive as to their guilt, the Court will order a new trial.—Reg. v. Amutee Govinda, 10 Bomb., 497.

So also in the case of Gogon Chunder Bose, I. L. R., 6 Cal., 247, in which it was held that a judgment in a Court not declaring a certain document to be a forgery had been improperly admitted as evidence on the Criminal trial, the High Court proceeded to consider whether the other evidence was sufficient for the verdict of a Jury convicting the prisoner and having found that it was not sufficient acquitted him.

ACT NO. XV OF 1869.

(Received the assent of the Governor-General, June 4, 1869.)

An Act to provide facilities for obtaining the evidence and appearance of prisoners and for service of process upon them.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide facilities for obtaining the evidence and appearance in Court of prisoners and for service of process upon them; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

I.—Preliminary.

I. This Act may be called "The Prisoners' Testimony Act, 1869."

II. For the purposes of this Act, the Courts of Small Causes established within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras, and Bombay, and the Courts of persons exercising the powers of a Magistrate of Police within the same limits, shall be deemed to be respectively subordinate to the said High Courts.

II.—Bringing up Prisoners.

III. Any Criminal Court not inferior to the Court of a Subordinate Magistrate of the first class may in its discretion, if it appear that the testimony of any person confined in any jail situate within the local limits of its appellate jurisdiction, if the Criminal Court be a High Court, or, if it be not a High Court, then within the local limits of the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court to which it is subordinate, is material in any matter depending in such Criminal Court, or if a charge of an offence against such person is made or pending, make an order in the form in Schedule A or Schedule B (as the case may be) to this Act annexed, directed to the Officer in charge of the said jail.

A Subordinate Magistrate of the first class would, under the present Code of Criminal Procedure, correspond to a Magistrate of the second class.

For the definition of High Court, see Act I, 1868, S. 2, cl. xi.

IV. When any person for whose attendance an order as hereinbefore mentioned

Order to be transmitted through Magistrate of the District in which the person is confined.

shall be made, is confined in any district other than that in which the Court making or countersigning the order is situate, the order shall be sent by the Court by which it shall have been made or countersigned to the Magistrate of the District or division of a District in which the said person is confined, and such Magistrate shall cause it to be delivered to the Officer in charge of the jail in which such person is confined

VII. In any case in which a person is confined in a jail within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras, and Bombay, or in a jail more than one hundred miles distant from the place where any Court, subordinate to a High Court, in which his evidence is required is held, the Judge or presiding Officer of the Court in which the evidence is so required shall, if he think it expedient that such person should be removed under this Act for the purpose of giving evidence in such Court, and if the said jail is situate within the local limits of the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court to which such Court is subordinate, apply in writing to the same High Court; and such High Court may, if it thinks fit, make an order in the form in the said Schedule A, directed to the Officer in charge of the said jail.

Order by High Court for removal of person confined more than 100 miles from place where his evidence is required.

The High Court making the order shall send it to the Magistrate of the District or division of a District in which the person named therein is confined, and such Magistrate shall cause the order to be delivered to the Officer in charge of the jail in which such person is confined.

For the purposes of this Section and Sections three and four, the Chief Commissioner of British Burma shall be deemed to be a High Court; the Court of a Recorder appointed under Act No. XXI of 1863 shall be deemed to be subordinate to the said Chief Commissioner; and every jail situate in British Burma shall be deemed to be situate within the local limits of the said Chief Commissioner's appellate jurisdiction.

Act VII, 1872, S. 78, substitutes the following for the last para. of the preceding Section:—For the purposes of this Act, every jail in British Burma shall be deemed to be situate within the local limits of the appellate jurisdiction of the Judicial Commissioner; and the Recorder of Rangoon may issue orders under this Section or Section three or four, and may also issue commissions under Part III of this Act in any jail in British Burma.

Notwithstanding anything contained in the Prisoners' Testimony Act, 1869, any Presidency Magistrate desirous of examining, as a witness or accused person, in any case pending before him, any person confined in any jail within the local limits of his jurisdiction, may issue an order to the officer in charge of the said jail requiring him to bring such prisoner in proper custody, at a time to be therein named, to the Magistrate for examination.

The officer so in charge, on receipt of such order, shall act in accordance therewith, and shall provide for the safe custody of the prisoner during his absence from the jail for the purpose aforesaid. S. 542, Code of Criminal Procedure.

VIII. In any case in which a person is confined within a jail situate beyond the local limits of the appellate jurisdiction of a High Court, any Judge of such Court may, if he think it expedient that such person should be removed under this Act, for the purpose of giving evidence in any criminal matter in such Court or in any Court subordinate thereto, apply in writing to the Local Government within the territories subject to which the said jail is situate; and such Government may, if it think fit, direct that such person shall be so removed, subject to such rules regulating the escort of such prisoners as the Governor-General of India in Council may from time to time prescribe.

To obtain the removal of a person confined in a jail situate beyond the territories for the time being under the administration of the Chief Commissioner of British Burma, for the purpose of giving evidence in any criminal matter in the Court of a Recorder appointed under the said Act No. XXI of 1863, such Recorder shall have the power conferred on a Judge of a High Court by the former part of this section, and the other provisions of such part shall, mutatis mutandis, apply.

IX. Upon delivery of any order under this Act to the Officer in charge of the jail in which the person named therein is confined, such Officer shall cause him to be taken to the Court in which his attendance is required, so as to be present in such Court at the time in such order mentioned; and shall cause him to be detained in custody in or near the Court until he shall have been examined or until the Judge or presiding Officer of such Court shall authorize him to be taken back to the jail in which he was confined.

X. The Governor-General of India in Council or the Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that any person or any class of persons shall not be removed from the jail in which he or they may be confined; and thereupon, and so long as such notification remains in force, the provisions of this Act, other than those contained in Sections twelve, thirteen, and fourteen, shall not apply to such person or class of persons.

XI. When any person named in any order made under Section three, Section four, or Section seven appears to be from sickness or other infirmity unfit to be removed, the Officer in charge of the jail in which he is confined shall apply to the Magistrate of the District or division of a District in which such jail is situate, and if such Magistrate shall by writing under his hand declare himself to be of opinion that such person is from infirmity unfit to be removed; or when any person named in any such order is under committal for trial; or under a remand pending trial or pending a preliminary investigation; or when any such person is in custody for a period which would expire before the expiration of the time required for removing him under this Act and for taking him back to the jail in which he is confined;

then and in every such case the Officer in charge of the jail shall abstain from obeying such order, and shall send to the Court from which the order has been issued a statement of his reason for not obeying the same:

Provided that the said Officer shall not so abstain when the order has been made under Section three, and the person named in the order is confined under committal for trial, or under a remand pending trial or pending a preliminary investigation, and does not appear to be from sickness or other infirmity unfit to be removed, and the place where his evidence is required is not more than five miles distant from the jail in which he is confined.

The rules for British Burma are to be found in the Gazette of India, March 26, 1870, p. 202; for the Central Provinces, in the same Gazette, Sept. 11, 1869, p. 261; for the Punjab, in the same Gazette, Sept. 25, 1869, p. 300; for Coorg, in p. 301; for the North-Western Provinces, in the same Gazette, Oct. 16, 1869, p. 386; for Oudh, in the same Gazette, Dec. 4, 1869, p. 490; for the Hyderabad Assigned Districts, in the same Gazette, Dec. 18, 1869, p. 520.

IV.—Service of Process on Prisoners.

XV. When any process directed to any person confined in any jail is issued Process how served on prisoners.

from any Court, the same may be served by exhibiting to the Officer in charge of such jail or prison the original of such process, and by depositing with him a copy thereof.

XVI. Every Officer

Process served to be transmitted at prisoner's request.

in charge of a jail upon whom any such service as is mentioned in section fifteen shall be made, shall as soon as may be, cause the copy of the process so deposited with him to be shown and explained to the prisoner to whom it is directed, and shall thereupon endorse upon such process a certificate signed by him that the prisoner to whom the process is directed is a prisoner in the jail under his charge, and that he has received a copy thereof.

Such certificate shall be sufficient prima facie evidence of the service of such process; and if the prisoner requests that the said copy be sent to any other person, and provides the cost of so sending it, the said Officer shall cause the same to be so sent through the Post Office by registered letter.

XVIII. It shall be lawful for the local Government, and, in cases arising under Power to make rules.

Section eight, for the Governor-General of India in Council, to make rules consistent with this Act.

- (1) for regulating the escort of prisoners to and from the Court in which their presence is required;
- (2) for regulating the amount to be allowed for the costs and charges of such escort; and
- (3) for the guidance of Officers in all other matters connected with the enforcement of this Act; and from time to time to alter and add to the rules so made.

For the definition of "Local Government," see Act I, 1868, S. 2, cl. x. For the rules published by Government under this section, see note to S. 10, ante.

Rules made by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, under S. 18 of Act XV of 1869, for regulating the escort of prisoners (State prisoners excepted) to and from any Court situated within the jurisdiction of the High Court in which their presence is required, and for fixing the amount to be allowed for the costs and charges for such escort when their presence is required in any civil matter, and for the guidance of Officers in all matters connected with the enforcement of these rules:—

1. On receipt of an order issued by a Court of competent authority under Section 3 or 4 of the Act, the Officer in charge of the jail shall make a requisition on the District Superintendent of Police for an escort, and the District Superintendent shall supply such escort in conformity with the ordinary rules of his department.

2. The Officer in charge of such escort shall, in like manner, be guided by the rules of the Police Department in the performance of his duty, and in the treatment of the prisoners under his charge.

3. All prisoners shall be taken to the Court before which their appearance is required by the most expeditious route. Prisoners under sentence for criminal offences shall ordinarily travel on foot; but civil prisoners, who are desirous of obtaining, and are willing to pay for the indulgence, may be provided with suitable means of conveyance. When a railway is available, all prisoners shall be conveyed by rail under charge of the Police guard.

4. Before any prisoner is made over to the Officer in charge of the escort, the Officer in charge of the jail shall satisfy himself that the fetters of the prisoner or prisoners to be removed are in order, and that each prisoner is supplied with suitable clothing, and he shall further make over to the Officer in charge of the guard copies of the orders of the Court under which the prisoners are removed, together with a sum of money for their maintenance and road expense. Diet-money shall be calculated at a rate not exceeding 4 annas per diem, according to the number of days which the escort will take in going to and returning from the Court.

5. The Officer in charge of the guard shall give to the Officer in charge of the jail a receipt for such prisoners as he may receive, with a statement of the clothing, &c., in each prisoner's possession, and a receipt for the amount of diet-money or road expenses which has been advanced on their account. Advances required on account of the escort will be made by the District Superintendent supplying it.

6. Should there be a jail or lock-up at the place where the Court before which the prisoners have to appear is held, the Officer in charge of the escort shall deliver the prisoners to the keeper of such jail or lock-up, and shall not be responsible for their custody while they are in such jail or lock-up, but shall only be responsible for their custody while escorting them thereto, and from such jail or lock-up to the place where the Court is held.

7. On the completion of the duty for which the escort was detailed, the District Superintendent supplying it shall, if the presence of the prisoner was required in any civil matter, submit a bill to the Court from which the requisition proceeded, for the cost of the guard, as fixed by the scale in Schedule A, and for the actual expenditure incurred by them on account of carriage by land or water, if the journey is not performed entirely on foot, plus 10 per cent. for contingencies. A separate bill should also be forwarded by the District Superintendent for the diet-money and road expenses of the prisoner or prisoners.

8. All sums received in payment of these bills shall at once be paid into the treasury of the district from which the escort started to the credit of Government as a receipt either of the Police or Jail Department, according as the amount is paid on account of the escort or the prisoners.

9. For the guidance of the Courts in estimating beforehand, under Section 17, the amount to be deposited by any party requiring the testimony of a prisoner in any civil matter, it is notified that the charges for escort parties have been fixed as shown in Schedule A attached to these rules; and that the average distance performed by escort parties travelling by road is ten to fifteen miles per diem. The Court should estimate for the whole time occupied in going, waiting, and returning. Where the journey is performed by rail, the cost of third class fares both ways for the whole party, including the prisoner, should be added. The fares by boat or steamer must be estimated on such information as the Court may itself possess. In every case 4 annas per diem for each prisoner's diet-money, and 10 per cent. on the cost of the guard for contingencies should be added. Any balance deficient between the amount estimated by the Court, and the charge entered in the District Superintendent's bill, will be recovered by the Court under Section 17 of the Act.

10. The Lieutenant-Governor exempts from the operation of the Act all State prisoners confined by order of Government.

SCHEDULE A.

Number of Prisoners.	Number of Constables employed.	Cost of Guard per diem.
		Rs. As. P.
1 to 3	2 Constables	0 8 0

19 to 24	1 Ditto 8 ditto	2 9 4
And so on in proportion.

The following rules have been issued by the Government of the PUNJAB when any prisoner is summoned by a Court under the provisions of Act XV, 1869:—The Superintendent of the jail from which the prisoner is moved shall fix the scale and description of diet to be allowed to such prisoner during his absence from jail, and the Officer in charge of the public escort shall see that the diet fixed by the Superintendent of the jail is as far as possible given in each case. The cost of dieting prisoners under this rule shall be included in the bill of costs which the District Superintendent of Police presents for payment to the Court issuing process under No. IX of the rules already in force.—Punjab Gaz., 1874, Part I, p. 336.

XIX. All such rules, alterations, and additions shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall from the date of such publication be deemed to have the force of law.

XX. The Local Government may also declare in each case what Officer shall, Power to declare who shall be deemed 'Officer in charge of Jail.' for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be 'the Officer in charge of Jail.'

Enactments inconsistent with this Act in Madras and Bombay cantonments.	portion to any place under his administration; and, from the date on which any such portion is so extended to any place such of the enactments for the time being in force in such place as are in any way inconsistent with, or repugnant to, such portion shall cease to have effect in such place.
Repeal of Act XXII of 1864.	2. Act No. XXII of 1864 (to provide for the administration of Military Cantonments) is hereby repealed; but all orders, declarations, rules and regulations made, powers conferred, and Courts established under that Act, shall be deemed to be respectively made, conferred and established under this Act.
References to Act XXII of 1864.	All references to the said Act No. XXII of 1864 in enactments passed subsequently thereto shall be read as if made to this Act.

CHAPTER II.—CRIMINAL JURISDICTION.

3. Every person invested by the Local Government, under the Code of Criminal Procedure, with the powers of a Magistrate of the first class within the limits of any cantonment, shall be styled the Cantonment Magistrate, and shall be deemed a Magistrate in charge of a division of a district within the meaning, and for the purposes, of the said Code.

A Cantonment Magistrate's powers under this section would be those described in Sch. III, Parts 3, 4 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and he would have powers of punishment as set forth in S. 32 (a) of the Code. He may also be invested with the additional powers described in Sch. IV. His jurisdiction over European British subjects would depend on his being himself an European British subject and a Justice of the Peace. S. 443 of the Code.

4. Every person invested by the Local Government, under the provisions of the said Code, with the powers of a Magistrate of the second or third class within the limits of any cantonment, shall be styled the Assistant Cantonment Magistrate.

The powers of an Assistant Cantonment Magistrate under the section are set forth in Sch. III, Part 1 or Part 2 and in S 32 (b) or (c) as he might be of the second or third class and he may in addition be vested with powers as described by Sch. IV of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

CHAPTER III.—CIVIL JURISDICTION.

5. Whenever the Local Government establishes within the limits of any cantonment a Court of Small Causes under Act No. XI of 1865 (to consolidate and amend the law relating to Courts of Small Causes beyond the local limits of the ordinary original Civil jurisdiction of the High Courts of Judicature), the Cantonment Magistrate, if there be a Cantonment Magistrate, shall be the Judge of the Court so established.

The Local Government shall declare and may from time to time alter the pecuniary limit of the jurisdiction of every such Court, but such limit shall in no case exceed five hundred rupees.

6. The Local Government may invest any Assistant Cantonment Magistrate with the powers of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes to try suits instituted in any Court referred to in section five; provided that no Assistant Cantonment Magistrate shall have jurisdiction to try suits for an amount exceeding fifty rupees.

Act XI of 1865 to apply to all Small Cause Courts in cantonments.

7. All the provisions of the said Act shall be applicable to every such Court, and to all suits instituted in any such Court, except as is herein otherwise provided.

8. Whenever a Court of Small Causes is established in any cantonment, the jurisdiction exercised in such cantonment by any officer under Act No. III of 1859 (for conferring Civil Jurisdiction in certain cases upon Cantonment Joint Magistrates) shall cease and so much of any Act as authorises the commanding-officers of stations or cantonments to convene military courts of requests for the trial of actions of debt and other personal actions, shall cease to have effect within the limits of such cantonment.

CHAPTER IV.—POLICE.

9. The Police-force employed in any cantonment shall be deemed to be part of the general Police-force under the Local Government in whose territories such cantonment is situate, within the meaning of Act No. V of 1861 (for the Regulation of Police), section two, and all the provisions of the said Act shall be applicable to such force.

The administration of the Police within the limits of any cantonment in which there is a Cantonment Magistrate shall be vested in the District Superintendent subject to the general control and direction of the commanding-officer of such cantonment.

Administration of Police within cantonments.

The subsistence money shall not ordinarily be made over to the person, but shall be kept and disbursed on his account by the Police or other officer in whose custody he is for the time being. Rule IV passed by the Governor General in Council.

9. Any Magistrate of Police or Justice of the Peace exercising powers as aforesaid may, on being satisfied that any person of European extraction is not likely to become a vagrant, give such person a certificate under his hand stating that for a certain time (mentioning it) not exceeding six months from the date of the certificate, and within certain limits (mentioning them), nothing in sections four, five, six and seven shall apply to the holder of such certificate; and thereupon, so long as the certificate remains in force, nothing in sections four, five, six and seven shall apply to such person within such limits as aforesaid.

Every such certificate shall be published in the local official Gazette, and thereupon such building or part of a building shall, until the Local Government otherwise orders, be deemed a Government work-house under this Act.

12. Every such work-house shall be under the immediate charge of a Governor, who shall be appointed, and may be suspended or removed, by the Local Government.

Every such Governor shall, if the Local Government think fit, be subject to the orders of a Committee of Management appointed from time to time by such Government, or, in the absence of a Committee, to the orders of such officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf.

13. Every such Governor may order that any vagrant admitted to the work-house under his charge shall be searched, and that the vagrant's bundles, packages and other effects shall be inspected, and may direct that any money then found with or on the vagrant, shall be applied (subject to the orders of the Local Government) towards the expense of carrying this Act into execution, and may order that all or any of the said effects shall be sold, and that the produce of the sale be applied as aforesaid, but subject to the like orders.

14. Vagrants admitted to work-houses under this Act shall be subject to such rules of management and discipline as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council.

The Local Government may authorize any Governor of a work-house to punish (under or not under the supervision and direction of a Committee of Management, as the Local Government thinks fit) any vagrant who knowingly disobeys or neglects any such rule with any one of the following punishments (namely)—

(a) solitary confinement within the work-house for any time not exceeding seven days;

When such employment is obtained, any such vagrant refusing or neglecting to avail himself thereof, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punishable with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month.

CHAPTER IV.—EXTRADITION.

11. When an offence has been committed or is supposed to have been committed in any State against the law of such State by a person not being a European British subject, and such person escapes into or is in British India, the Political Agent for such State may issue a warrant for his arrest and delivery at a place and to a person to be named in the warrant—

if such Political Agent thinks that the offence is one which ought to be inquired into in such State ; and if the act said to have been done would, if done in British India, have constituted an offence against any of the sections of the Indian Penal Code mentioned in the Schedule hereto annexed, or under any other section of the said Code, or any other law, which may, from time to time, be specified by the Governor General in Council by a notification in the Gazette of India

12. Such warrant may be directed to the Magistrate of any district in which the accused person is believed to be, and shall be executed in the manner provided by the law for the time being in force with reference to the execution of warrants ; and the accused person, when arrested, shall be forwarded to the place and delivered to the officer named in the warrant.

13. Such Political Agent may either dispose of the case himself, or, if he is generally or specially directed to do so by the Governor General in Council, or by the Governor of the Presidency of Fort St. George in Council or by the Governor of the Presidency of Bombay in Council, may give over the person so forwarded, whether he be a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty or not, to be tried by the ordinary Courts of the State in which the offence was committed.

14. Whenever a requisition is made to the Governor General in Council or any Local Government by or by the authority of the persons for the time being administering the executive government of any part of the dominions of Her Majesty, or the territory of any Foreign Prince or State, that any person accused of having committed an offence in such dominions or territory should be given up, the Governor General in Council or such Local Government, as the case may be, may issue an order to any Magistrate who would have had jurisdiction to inquire into the offence if it had been committed within the local limits of his jurisdiction, directing him to inquire into the truth of such accusation.

The Magistrate so directed shall issue a summons or warrant for the arrest of such person, according as the offence named appears to be one for which a summons or warrant would ordinarily issue ; and shall inquire into the truth of such accusation, and shall report thereon to the Government by which he was directed to hold the said inquiry. If, upon receipt of such report, such Government is of opinion that the accused person ought to be given up to the persons making such requisition, it may issue a warrant for the custody and removal of such accused person and for his delivery at a place and to a person to be named in the warrant.

The provisions of section ten shall apply to inquiries held under this section.

15. Whenever any person accused or suspected of having committed an offence out of British India is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of a Magistrate in British India, and it appears to such Magistrate that the Political Agent for any State

Magistrate may in certain cases issue warrant for arrest of person accused of having committed an offence out of British India, could, under the provisions of section eleven, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person, or that the persons for the time being administering the executive government of any part of the dominions of Her Majesty or the territory of any Foreign Prince or State could demand his surrender, such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person, on such information or complaint and such evidence as would, in his opinion, justify the issue of such a warrant if the offence had been committed within the local limits of his jurisdiction.

Any Magistrate issuing a warrant under this section shall, when the offence appears or is alleged to have been committed in a State for which there is a Political Agent, send immediate information of his proceedings to such Agent, and in other cases shall at once report his proceedings to the Local Government.

16. No person arrested on a warrant issued by a Magistrate under section fifteen shall be detained more than two months from the date of his arrest, unless within such period the Magistrate receives a warrant under section eleven from the Political Agent for any State for the delivery of such person, or an order with reference to him under section fourteen from the Governor General in Council or Local Government, or such person is in accordance with law delivered up to some Foreign Prince or State.

At any time before the receipt of such a warrant or order the Magistrate, if he thinks fit, may, and the Magistrate if so directed by the Local Government shall, discharge the accused person.

17. The provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure in respect of bail shall apply in the case of any person arrested under section fifteen in the same manner as if such person were accused of committing in British India the offence with which he is charged.

CHAPTER V.—MISCELLANEOUS.

18. The Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make rules to provide for—

(1) the confinement, diet and prison-discipline of British subjects, European or Native, imprisoned by Political Agents under this Act;

(2) the removal of accused persons under this Act, and their control and maintenance until such time as they are handed over to the persons named in the warrant as entitled to receive them; and

(3) generally to carry out the purposes of this Act.

19. The testimony of any witness may be obtained in relation to any criminal matter pending in any Court or tribunal in the territory of any Foreign Prince or State in like manner as it may be obtained in relation to any civil matter under the Code of Civil Procedure, chapter XXV; and the provisions of that chapter shall be construed as if the term "suit" included a proceeding against a criminal:

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply in the case of any criminal matter of a political character.

II. Section 6 of Act VI of 1864 as applicable to hill-tribes to which the Kachin Hill-tribes Regulation, 1895, is applied, runs as follows [see Reg. I of 1895, ss. 1 (2) and 3 (1)]:—

“Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections of this Act, a person convicted of any offence may be punished with whipping in lieu of, or in addition to, any other punishment to which he may be liable.”

Whipping can also be imposed under S. 14, Act III, 1880, in lieu of other punishment, for the sale, &c., of liquor, &c., within cantonments and their neighbourhood, to or for the use of European soldiers and others by civilians without license.

• No female shall be punished with whipping. S. 7.

• Section 1 applies to juvenile offenders as well as S. 5.—Jaikishen Girdhar, Bombay High Court, October 2, 1873.

There is no appeal from a sentence of whipping only passed by a Court of Session, Magistrate of the District, or Magistrate of the first class. All Magistrates, except Magistrates of the third class, can pass sentence of whipping.—Code of Criminal Procedure, S. 20.

Section 391 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and S. 9 of this Act, provide for suspension of a sentence of whipping passed in addition to imprisonment, but in cases in which no other punishment has been awarded, the sentence should be carried out without delay. The effect of the appeal will be to ascertain the correctness of the sentence already carried out, and not to bring under review the sentence itself with a view to its revision.—Calcutta High Court, 314, 1864; Madras High Court, May 10, 1861.

Abetments of the offences mentioned in S. 2 may generally be punished with whipping, as the Indian Penal Code, in providing the punishment for nearly every case of abetment, declares that the punishment for the substantive offence shall be awarded—see Ss. 109, 110, 111, 112, and 114. Attempts to commit any of these offences are not punishable with whipping—Calcutta High Court, 425, 1864; Yalla Valad Parshia, 3 Bomb., 37, Crown Cases.

III. Whoever, having been previously convicted of any one of the offences

On second conviction of specified in the last preceding Section, shall again be convicted of the same offence, may be punished with whipping, in lieu of, or in addition to, any other punishment to which he may for such offence be liable under the Indian Penal Code.

Section 403 of the Code of Criminal Procedure declares how a previous conviction may be proved. Identity should also be proved.—Nuzee Nushyo, 15 W. R., 52.

Section 221 of the Code of Criminal Procedure declares that if it is intended to prove a previous conviction for the purpose of affecting the punishment which is to be awarded, the fact of the previous conviction must be stated in the charge. If it is omitted, it may be added at any time before sentence is passed, but not afterwards.

The Calcutta High Court has held that a sentence of imprisonment and whipping passed on a person convicted of "theft," and who had been previously convicted of "receiving stolen property," is illegal, as the convictions in both cases should have been for the same offence.—Amarut Sheikh, 4 W. R., 20; Soorajodeen, Pan. Rec., 1864, p. 64.

Similarly, a sentence of whipping in addition to imprisonment passed on a person convicted of theft in a house (S. 380, Penal Code), on the ground that he had been previously convicted of theft (S. 379), has been held to be illegal, since the previous conviction was not for the same specific offence.—5 Mad. XXXVIII, App. Pro. Oct. 28, 1870, Pro. Nov. 25, 1864. Weir, 416; Changra Valad Shermia, 7 Bomb., 68, Crown Cases.

Both convictions must have been under the Indian Penal Code, consequently, if the first offence was committed before 1st January 1862,—that is, before that Code became law in the Presidency of Bengal—the offender would not, by reason of a second conviction of that offence, be liable to whipping.—Calcutta High Court, 425, 1864.

The offence must have been committed after a conviction of the same offence to legalize the passing of sentence of whipping under Sections 3 and 4.—Surya bin Krishna Mandakar, 3 Bomb., 37, Crown Cases.

Section 3 applies to juvenile offenders as well as S. 5.—Jaikishen Girdhar, Bombay High Court, Oct. 2, 1872.

The object of the law is to inflict whipping in addition to other punishments upon those persons only who, having completed a previous sentence, and after having a loco penitentie afforded them, again commit the same offence, and show that they are not to be deterred by sentence of imprisonment only.—Udai Patnaik, 4 B. L. R., 5; 12 W. R., 68. But the Madras High Court had held that it is necessary that there should have been a previous conviction only, and not that the sentence should have been carried out, so that where a person convicted of having committed on the same day two distinct offences of house-breaking by night in order to commit theft (Sec. 457, Penal Code), was sentenced to imprisonment for one and to whipping for the other offence, the sentences were held to be good.—5 Mad. XVIII, App. Feb. 18, 1870.

A Magistrate should not transfer to the jail of another district a convict who has been sentenced to imprisonment and whipping until the latter sentence has been executed, annulled, or commuted.—Agra Sudder Court, Cir. 9, 1865.

In connection with S. 3 read S. 9 and S. 391 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the effect of which is to defer the immediate execution of sentences of whipping, when such are passed in addition to imprisonment, for all sentences are appealable in which whipping is not the sole punishment.

As regards the passing of sentences of whipping on persons convicted of abetments of, or attempts to, commit offences punishable with whipping, see note to S. 2.

If the previous conviction was set aside on appeal, a sentence of whipping cannot be passed on an additional imprisonment, S. 3 does not require that the second offence should have been committed after a previous conviction and certainly not that the sentence which followed on that conviction should have been undergone. Sentence of whipping could therefore be passed in a trial for the second offence commenced immediately the sentence was passed in the first.—Mad. H. Ct. Nov. 25, 1861. Weir, 417. The same matter was again considered by the Full Court, a majority of which held that a Magistrate was competent on a second conviction at the same time to pass a sentence of whipping in substitution for, or in addition to imprisonment, subject to the restrictions of the Whipping Act itself as to the amount.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Feb. 18, 1870. Weir, 417.

The fact that the accused admitted that he had been flogged at a certain Magistrate's Court for "starting a Cumboo" is not sufficient for a sentence of whipping without production of the record of the conviction or oral evidence or to the specific offence of which he was convicted. A sentence of whipping under S. 3 in addition to imprisonment was therefore set aside as illegal.—Mad. H. Ct. Pro. Sept. 12, 1876. Weir, 419.

IV. Whoever, having been previously convicted of any one of the following Offences punishable in cases of second conviction, with whipping in addition to other punishment. offences, shall be again convicted of the same offence, may be punished with whipping in addition to any other punishment to which he may be liable under the Indian Penal Code,—that is to say :—

1. Giving or fabricating false evidence in such manner as to be punishable under Section 193 of the Indian Penal Code.

2. Giving or fabricating false evidence with intent to procure conviction of a capital offence, as defined in Section 194 of the said Code.

3. Giving or fabricating false evidence with intent to procure conviction of an offence punishable with transportation or imprisonment, as defined in Section 195 of the said Code.

4. Falsely charging any person with having committed an unnatural offence as defined in Sections 211 and 377 of the said Code.

5. Assaulting or using criminal force to any woman with intent to outrage her modesty, as defined in Section 354 of the said Code.

6. Rape, as defined in Section 375 of the said Code.

7. Unnatural offences, as defined in Section 377 of the said Code.

8. Robbery or dacoity, as defined in Sections 390 and 391 of the said Code.

9. Attempting to commit robbery, as defined in Section 393 of the said Code.

10. Voluntarily causing hurt in committing robbery, as defined in Section 394 of the said Code.

11. Habitually receiving or dealing in stolen property, as defined in Section 413 of the said Code.

12. Forgery, as defined in Section 463 of the said Code.

13. Forgery of a document, as defined in Section 466 of the said Code.

14. Forgery of a document, as defined in Section 467 of the said Code.

15. Forgery for the purpose of cheating, as defined in Section 468 of the said Code.

16. Forgery for the purpose of harming the reputation of any person, as defined in Section 469 of the said Code.

17. Lurking house-trespass or house-breaking, as defined in Sections 443 and 445 of the said Code, in order to the committing of any offence punishable with whipping under this section.

18. Lurking house-trespass by night or house-breaking by night, as defined in Sections 444 and 446 of the said Code, in order to the committing of any offence punishable with whipping under this section.

See note to S. 3, which applies generally to this section. No females shall be punished with whipping; nor shall any person who may be sentenced to death, or to transportation, or to penal servitude, or to imprisonment for more than five years, or males whom the Court considers to be more than forty-five years of age, S. 393, Code of Criminal Procedure.

The previous conviction must have been for the same offence as that under trial in order to legalise a sentence of whipping under S. 4.—Bapji Valad Bapia, 4 Bomb., 5, Crown Cases; Amarut Sheikh, 4 W. R., 20; Soorajodeen, Panj. Rec., 1864, p. 64; 5 Mad. XXXVIII, App. Pro. Oct. 28, 1870.

See note to S. 2, regarding the passing of sentences of whipping on persons convicted of abetments of, or attempts to, commit offences punishable with whipping.

V. Any juvenile offender who commits any offence which is not by the Indian Juvenile offenders punishable with whipping for offences not punishable with death. Penal Code punishable with death, may, whether for a first or any other offence, be punished with whipping in lieu of any other punishment to which he may for such offence be liable under the said Code.

See note to S. 2 regarding appeals from such sentences.

The Agra Sudder Court (May 7, Sept. 24, 1864), and also the Bombay High Court (Mahomed Ali, 8 Bomb., 5, Crown Cases), have defined "juvenile" under this Section to be persons under 16 years of age, but the Madras High Court has left it to Judges and Magistrates to exercise their own good sense and experience in determining this point.—Madras High Court, Nov. 25, 1864. The Code of Criminal Procedure, S. 392, in re-enacting S. 10 of this Act, has for the term "juvenile" substituted "a person under 16 years of age."

Sections 2, 3, 4 apply to juvenile offenders equally with S. 5.—Jaikishen Girdhar, Bombay High Court, Oct. 2, 1873.

VI. Whenever any Local Government shall, by notification in the official

When offences specified in Section 4 may be punished with whipping in frontier districts and wild tracts. Gazette, have declared the provisions of this Section to be in force in any frontier district or any wild tract of country within the jurisdiction of such Local Government, any person who shall in such district or tract of country, after such notification as aforesaid, commit any of the offences specified in Section 4 of this Act, may be punished with whipping in lieu of any other punishment to which he may be liable under the Indian Penal Code.

by a Court whose sentence is open to revision by a superior Court, the whipping shall not be inflicted until fifteen days from the date of such sentence, or if an appeal be made within that time, until the sentence is confirmed by the superior Court; but the whipping shall be inflicted immediately on the expiry of the fifteen days, or, in case of an appeal, immediately on the receipt of the order of the Court confirming the sentence, if such order shall not be received within the fifteen days.

• This Section has been re-enacted by S. 391 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

X. In the case of an adult, the punishment of whipping shall be inflicted with such instrument, in such mode, and on such part of the person as the Local Government shall direct; and, in the case of a juvenile offender, it shall be inflicted in the way of school discipline with a light rattan. In no case, if the cat-o'-nine-tails be the instrument employed, shall the punishment of whipping exceed one hundred and fifty lashes, or if the rattan be employed, shall the punishment exceed thirty stripes. The punishment shall be inflicted in the presence of a Justice of the Peace, or of an Officer authorized to exercise any of the powers of a Magistrate, and also, unless the Court which passed the sentence shall otherwise order, in the presence of a Medical Officer.

This Section should be read with S. 391 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

VIII.—Sessions Judges and Magistrates may, at their discretion, preserve any particular paper, or the record of any particular case beyond the above periods.

Exhibits.

IX.—Exhibits, i. e., documents admitted and used, shall in no case be destroyed.

X.—To every copy of a judgment given to any of the parties to a case, a notice shall be attached, calling upon him or them to withdraw his or their documentary evidence as soon as the judgment shall become final. In such cases, no separate notice under Rule XII will be required.

XI.—When exhibits are separated from the records for permanent preservation as provided for in Rule 50 (b), Chapter VI,* they shall be tied up in a parcel with the detailed index sheet of documents required by that Rule; and a number shall be attached to each parcel, which shall be noted on the fly-leaf or general index sheet of the record required by Rule 50 (a), Chapter VI,* to facilitate the finding of these documents if subsequently claimed.

XII.—On the judgment becoming final, notice shall, whenever practicable, be given to the person or persons on whose behalf they were brought into Court, requiring him or them to take them back into his or their own keeping within six months from the date of the notice, and copies of the notice shall be put up in the Courts of the Sessions Judge and District Magistrate, and in the Court in which the case was tried; or if such Court have been abolished, in such other Court or Courts as may be exercising jurisdiction in its place.

XIII.—When returning documents, Judicial Officers must take care that documents which the Court has impounded are not delivered out of the custody of the Court.

XIV.—Sessions Judges and District Magistrates must make the best arrangements for the custody of the documents removed from the records that circumstances admit of; the notices must distinctly warn the owners that they will be kept at their risk, and that the Court declines all responsibility for them.

Papers other than records of cases.

Rules IX, X and XI have been added in accordance with Mr. Justice Morris' minute on the Magistrate of Dacca's No. 1582, dated 4th July 1881.

XV.—Office copies of all periodical statements submitted to the High Court shall be destroyed at the expiration of the following periods:—

(a) Monthly and quarterly statements, 3 years.
(b) Half-yearly and annual statements, 7 years.

XVI.—In respect of—

- (a) Periodical statements received from the Lower Courts.
- (b) Proceedings of other Courts and offices forwarding notices, &c.
- (c) Proceedings of the Lower Courts, calling for records, asking for information, &c.
- (d) Reports from ministerial officers, not relating to particular cases.

Judges and Magistrates must exercise their discretion in preserving reports, returns, and proceedings likely to be useful in the future as containing the results of enquiries or other information, or the opinions of experienced officers on matters connected with the general administration of justice.

* i. e., of the High Court's Rules and Orders (Civil), 1881.

General.

XVII.—The destruction of all records and papers of the Criminal Courts, which is hereby directed, shall be carried into effect by burning. The practice of selling them as waste paper, which the Court understands to prevail in some districts, is prohibited. Sessions Judges and Magistrates must adopt such precautions as will satisfy them that the papers set aside for destruction are not otherwise dealt with.

XVIII.—The above Rules shall be acted on from year to year at the close of each calendar year, so that no accumulation, beyond the periods prescribed, may be allowed to occur.

XIX.—The above Rules must be read in connection with the provisions of Section S, Act III of 1879.

to the pamphlet containing the Rules and Orders of the Governor General in Council regulating the conduct of public servants in respect of borrowing money, receipt of complimentary addresses and other matters. (Second edition.)

Insert the following footnote to paragraph 9 of Home Department Circular No. ²¹₇₉₇₋₈₀₆, dated the 13th May 1885, at page 4 of the pamphlet :—

NOTE.—The Secretary of State has decided that the standing orders regulating the connection of Government Officers with Banks and Trading Companies apply to all gazetted officers of Government, and that no such officer holding a permanent appointment under Government, whether pensionable or not, shall be permitted to serve as a Director of any Bank or Public Company without previous reference to him.

The Secretary of State has also decided that the Solicitors to Government at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, may be permitted to serve as Directors of Banks and of Companies so long as the public service in no way suffers and the interests of the Banks or Companies are not antagonistic to those of the Government, and that the like rule may be applied to Government Pleaders, Diocesan Registrars, Crown Prosecutors and Coroners.

(Vide Despatches from the Secretary of State, No. 25 (Financial), dated 7th February 1889, and No. 53 (Public), dated 14th May 1891.)

The orders prohibiting Government servants from becoming Directors of Public Companies do not apply to non-gazetted and ministerial officers in Government employ, in whose case it is expected that the supervision of heads of departments and offices will suffice as a check. It must, however, be distinctly understood that Government can at any time prohibit any extra employment which in its opinion it is undesirable that its servants should undertake
